DIVINUM OFFICIUM

The texts, and the program that arranges them according to the rubrics, are the work of the Divinum Officium Project (divinumofficium.com), begun by the late Laszlo Kiss and continued by the Project's volunteers. Its code and data are available at github.com/DivinumOfficium/divinum-officium under the MIT License.

LATIN

The Latin text derives from the Ratisbon 1888 edition of the Breviarium Romanum, scanned by the University of St Michael's College, Toronto, amended from the 1906 edition, and corrected by Laszlo Kiss and the Project team against later printings: Pustet (Regensburg, 1943), Benziger Brothers (New York, 1945), Burns Oates & Washbourne (London, 1946), La Presse Catholique Panaméricaine (Montréal, 1943), and Desclée and Mame (1962).

The accented text of the Sixto-Clementine Vulgate was supplied by Frère Romain-Marie of the Abbaye Saint-Joseph de Clairval, Flavigny-sur-Ozerain.

ENGLISH

Holy Scripture is given in the Douay-Rheims translation.

The other lessons and the responsories are from the translation of the Roman Breviary by John, Marquess of Bute (edition of 1908), made available by the University of St Michael's College, Toronto.

THIS EDITION

The arrangement of this edition follows the Divinum Officium program's choice of lessons for each day under the rubrics of 1954. Any errors in the arrangement are the editor's, not the Project's.

LECTIO I

De Isaia Propheta

Isa 6:1-4

In anno, quo mórtuus est rex Ozías, vidi Dóminum sedéntem super sólíum excélsu[m] et elevátu[m]: et ea, quæ sub ipso erant, replébant templu[m]. Séraphim stabant super illud: sex alæ uni, et sex alæ álteri, duábus velábant fáciem ejus, et duábus velábant pedes ejus, et duábus volábant. Et clamábant alter ad álteru[m], et dicébant: Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus, Dóminus exercítu[u]m, plena est omnis terra glória ejus. Et commóta sunt supereliminária cárdinu[m] a voce clamántis, et domus repléta est fumo.

R. Vidi Dóminu[m] sedéntem super sólíu[m] excélsu[m] et elevátu[m], et plena erat omnis terra majestáte ejus: * Et ea, quæ sub ipso erant, replébant templu[m].

Ÿ. Séraphim stabant super illud: sex alæ uni, et sex alæ álteri.

R. Et ea, quæ sub ipso erant, replébant templu[m].

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Isaiah

Isa 6:1-4

In the year that king Ozias died, I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne high and elevated: and his train filled the temple. Upon it stood the seraphims: the one had six wings, and the other had six wings: with two they covered his face, and with two they covered his feet, and with two they hew. And they cried one to another, and said: Holy, holy, holy, the Lord God of hosts, all the earth is full of his glory. And the lintels of the doors were moved at the voice of him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke.

R. I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and the whole earth was full of His glory; * And His train filled the temple.

Ÿ. Above it stood the Seraphim each one had six wings.

R. And His train filled the temple.

LESSON II

Isa 6:5-8

And I said: Woe is me, because I have held my peace; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people that hath unclean lips, and I have seen with my eyes the King the Lord of hosts. And one of the seraphims flew to me, and in his hand was a live coal, which he had taken with the tongs off the altar. And he touched my mouth, and said: Behold this hath touched thy cátum tuum mundábitur. Et audívi vocem Dómini dicéntis: Quem mittam? et quis ibit nobis? Et dixi: Ecce ego, mitte me.

R. Benedíctus Dóminus Deus Israël, qui facit mirabília magna solus: * Et benedíctum nomen majestátis ejus in ætérnum.

Ps. Replébitur majestáte ejus omnis terra: fiat, fiat.

R. Et benedíctum nomen majestátis ejus in ætérnum.

LECTIO III

Isa 6:9-12

Et dixit: Vade, et dices pópulo huic: Audíte audientes, et nolíte intellégere: et vidéte visionem, et nolíte cognóscere. Excæca cor pópuli hujus, et aures ejus ágrava, et óculos ejus claude, ne forte vídeat óculis suis, et áuribus suis áudiat, et corde suo intéllegat, et convertátur, et sanem eum. Et dixi: Usquequo, Dómine? Et dixit: Donec desoléntur civitátes absque habitatóre, et domus sine hómine, et terra relinquétur desérta, et longe fáciat Dóminus hómines, et multiplicábitur quæ derelícta fúerat in médio terræ.

R. Benedícat nos Deus, Deus noster, benedícat nos Deus: * Et métuant eum omnes fines terræ.

Ps. Deus misereátur nostri, et benedícat nos Deus.

R. Et métuant eum omnes fines terræ.

Ps. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et métuant eum omnes fines terræ.

LECTIO IV

Ex libro sancti Fulgéntii Epíscopi, de fide ad Petrum

Inter Opera Augustini, tom. 3

lips, and thy iniquities shall be taken away, and thy sin shall be cleansed. And I heard the voice of the Lord, saying: Whom shall I send? and who shall go for us? And I said: Lo, here am I, send me.

R. Blessed be the Lord God of hosts, Who only doeth wondrous things. * And blessed be His glorious Name for ever.

Ps. And let the whole earth be filled with His glory. Amen. Amen.

R. And blessed be His glorious Name for ever.

LESSON III

Isa 6:9-12

And he said: Go, and thou shalt say to this people: Hearing, hear, and understand not: and see the vision, and know it not. Blind the heart of this people, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes: lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted and I heal them. And I said: How long, O Lord? And he said: Until the cities be wasted without inhabitant, and the houses without man, and the land shall be left desolate. And the Lord shall remove men far away, and she shall be multiplied that was left in the midst of the earth.

R. Let God, even our own God, bless us; let God bless us. * And let all the ends of the earth fear Him.

Ps. God be merciful unto us, and bless us.

R. And let all the ends of the earth fear Him.

Ps. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And let all the ends of the earth fear Him.

LESSON IV

From the Book on the Faith, addressed to Peter by St. Fulgentius, Bishop [of Ruspa]

Found in the Works of Augustine, tom. 3

The Faith which the holy Patriarchs and Prophets received from God before His Son was made Flesh, the Faith which the holy Apostles heard from the Lord Himself when Present in the Flesh, the Faith which the same Apostles learnt by the teaching non solum sermóne prædicavérunt, verum étiam ad instructiônem salubérrimam posterórum scriptis suis índitam reliquérunt; unum Deum prædicat Trinitátem, id est, Patrem, et Fílium, et Spíritus Sanctum. Sed Trínitas vera non esset, si una eadémque persóna dicerétur Pater et Fílius et Spíritus Sanctus.

℟. Quis Deus magnus sicut Deus noster? *
Tu es Deus, qui facis mirabília.

℣. Notam fecísti in pópulis virtútem tuam: redemísti in bráccio tuo pópulum tuum.

℟. Tu es Deus, qui facis mirabília.

LECTIO V

Si enim, sicut est Patris, et Fílii, et Spíritus Sancti una substántia, sic esset una persóna; nihil omníno esset in quo veráciter Trínitas dicerétur. Rursus quidem Trínitas esset vera, sed unus Deus Trínitas ipsa non esset, si quemádmódum Pater, et Fílius, et Spíritus Sanctus personárum sunt ab ínvicem proprietáte distínti, sic fuissent naturárum quoque diversitaté discrėti. Sed quia in illo uno vero Deo Trinitáte, non solum quod unus Deus est, sed étiam quod Trínitas est, naturalíter verum est; proptérea ipse verus Deus in personis Trínitas est, et in una natúra unus est.

℟. Tibi laus, tibi glória, tibi gratiárum áctio in sácula sempitérna, * O beáta Trínitas.

℣. Et benedíctum nomen glóriæ tuæ sanctum: et laudábile et superexaltátum in sácula.

℟. O beáta Trínitas.

LECTIO VI

Per hanc unitátem naturálem totus Pater in Fílio et Spíritu Sancto est, totus Fílius in Patre et Spíritu Sancto est, totus quoque Spíritus Sanctus in Patre et Fílio. Nullus horum extra quémlibet ipsórum est: quia nemo álium aut præcédit æternitaté, aut excédit magnítudine, aut súperat potestáte: quia nec Fílio nec Spíritu Sancto, quantum ad of the Holy Ghost not only to preach by word of mouth, but also to leave behind them in their writings for the healthful instruction of all that should come after, that Faith teacheth that the Trinity, that is to say, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, is but One God. But we could not truly call the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost a Trinity, if One and the Selfsame Person were named Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

℟. Who is so great a God as our God? * Thou art the God that doest wonders.

℣. Thou hast declared thy strength among the people Thou hast with thine arm redeemed thy people.

℟. Thou art the God that doest wonders.

LESSON V

Nor if as the Being of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost is One Being, so were there but One Person, then were it untrue to say that God is a Trinity. On the other hand, if, as the Persons of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost are distinguished One from Another by that which is proper to Each, so were They diverse by difference of nature, then were it untrue to say that God is One. But since concerning the nature of the One True God, Who is a Trinity, it is the Truth to say that God is One, and the Truth to say that God is a Trinity, therefore the True God is a Trinity in Persons, and an Unity in nature.

℟. To thee be praise, to thee be glory, to thee be thanksgiving for ever and ever, * O Blessed Trinity.

℣. And blessed is thy glorious and Holy Name, and to be praised and exalted above all for ever.

℟. O Blessed Trinity.

LESSON VI

Through this Oneness of nature All That the Father is is in the Son and the Holy Ghost, All That the Son is is in the Father and the Holy Ghost, and All That the Holy Ghost is is in the Father and the Son. Of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, None is without Other, None is before Other, None is Greater than Other, None is Mightier than Other. The Father, as touching the One Dinatúræ divínæ unitátem pértinet, aut antérior aut major Pater est; nec Fílii ætérnitas atque imménsitas, velut antérior aut major, Spíritus Sancti immensitátem æternitatémque aut præcédere aut excédere naturaliter potest.

℞. Magnus Dóminus, et laudábilis nimis: *
Et sapiéntiæ ejus non est númerus.

℣. Magnus Dóminus, et magna virtus ejus:
et sapiéntiæ ejus non est finis.

℞. Et sapiéntiæ ejus non est númerus.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

℞. Et sapiéntiæ ejus non est númerus.

Matt 28:18-20

In illo témpore: Dixit Jesus discíplis suis: Data est mihi omnis potéstas in cælo et in terra. Eúntes ergo docéte omnes gentes, baptizántes eos in nómine Patris, et Fílii, et Spíritus Sancti. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Gregórii Nazianzéni

In Tractatu de fide, post init.

Quis catholicórum ignórat Patrem vere esse Patrem, Fílium vere esse Fílium, et Spíritum Sanctum vere esse Spíritum Sanctum? sicut ipse Dóminus ad Apóstolos suos dicit: Eúntes baptizáte omnes gentes in nómine Patris, et Fílii, et Spíritus Sancti. Hæc est perfécta Trínitas in unitáte consístens, quam scílicet uníus substántiæ profitémur. Non enim nos secúndum córporum conditiónem, divisiónem in Deo fácimus; sed secúndum divínæ natúræ poténtiam, quæ in matéria non est, et nóminum persónas vere constáre crédimus, et unitátem divinitátis esse testámur.

℞. Benedicámus Patrem et Fílium cum Sancto Spíritu: * Laudémus et superexaltémus eum in sæcula.

℣. Benedíctus es, Dómine, in firmaménto cæli: et laudábilis et gloriósus in sæcula.

vine Nature, is neither before nor greater than the Son and the Holy Ghost neither is it possible that the Eternity and Infinity of the Son, whether as before or greater, should be before or greater than the Eternity and Infinity of the Spirit.

℞. Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised; *
And His Wisdom is unsearchable.

℣. Great is our Lord, and of great power, and His understanding is infinite.

℞. And His Wisdom is unsearchable.

℞. And His Wisdom is unsearchable.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to St. Matthew

Matt 28:18-20

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: All power is given unto Me in heaven and in earth. Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. And so on.

Homily by St. Gregory of Nazianzus, Patriarch of Constantinople

Treatise on the Faith

There is no Catholic but knoweth that the Father is a Very Father, the Son a Very Son, and the Holy Ghost a Very Holy Ghost, even as the Lord Himself saith unto His Apostles: "Go ye and baptize all nations in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." This is that Perfect Trinity Who is but One being, and of Whom therefore we testify that His Substance is one. For we make no division in God, as divisions are made in bodies, but we testify, that, according to the power of the Divine Nature, Which standeth not in matter, the Persons named have a real existence, and that God is One.

℞. Bless we the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost. * Let us praise and exalt Him above all for ever.

℣. Blessed art Thou, O Lord, in the firmament of heaven, and above all to be praised and glorified for ever.

R. Laudémus et superexaltémus eum in sæcula.

LECTIO VIII

Nec extensiõnem partis alicújus ex parte, ut quidam putavérunt, Dei Fílium díci-mus: nec verbum sine re, velut sonum vocis, accípi-mus: sed tria nómina et tres persónas únus esse esséntiæ, únus majestátis atque potén-tiæ crédimus. Et ideo unum Deum confité-mur: quia únititas majestátis, plúrium vocá-bulo deos próhibet appellári. Dénique Pa-trem et Fílium cathólice nominámus; duos autem Deos dícere, nec póssumus, nec de-bémus. Non quod Fílius Dei Deus non sit, immo verus Deus de Deo vero; sed quia non aliúnde, quam de ipso uno Patre, Dei Fí-lium nóvimus, perinde unum Deum díci-mus. Hoc enim Prophétæ, hoc Apóstoli tra-didérunt: hoc ipse Dóminus dócuit, cum dicit: Ego et Pater unum sumus. Unum ad unitátem divinitátis, ut dixi, refert; Sumus autem, persónis assígnat.

R. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad álterum: * Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth: * Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

V. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo:
Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi
tres unum sunt.

R. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus
Sábaoth.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

Commemoratio Dominice

LUC 6:36-42

Léctio sancti Evangélíi secúndum Lucam

In illo témpore: Dixit Jesus discípulis suis:
Estóte misericórdes, sicut et Pater vester mi-séricsors est. Et réliqua.

R. Let us praise and exalt Him above all for ever.

LESSON VIII

We do not say, as some have dreamt, that the Beget-ting of the Son of God is an outgrowing from one part to another part neither do we say that He is the Word in the sense of a mere sound uttered by a voice, but we do believe that these three Names and the Persons meant by them are all of only One Being, One Majesty, and One Power. And there-fore we testify that God is one, because this One-ness of His Majesty forbiddeth that we should use the Plural form of speech and say, "Gods." It is Catholic language to say, "Father and Son," but we cannot and must not say that the Father and the Son are two gods. And that, not because the Son of God is not by Himself God; yea, He is Very God of Very God but because we know that the Son of God is not from elsewhere, but from the One Father Himself, and therefore we say that God is One. This is the doctrine which Prophets and Apostles have delivered; this is the doctrine which the Lord Himself taught when He said: "I and the Father are One," (John x. 30,) that is, He meant, as touching the one Divine Being, but as touching Persons, We are distinct.

R. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

V. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

R. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. The whole earth is full of His glory.

Te Deum

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo
15th Sermon on Matthew, Words of the Lord

There are two works of mercy which free us, and which the Lord Himself hath briefly named in the Gospel "Forgive, and ye shall be forgiven give, and it shall be given unto you." "Forgive, and ye shall be forgiven", such is the promise of pardon. "Give, and it shall be given unto you", such is the promise of favour. As touching forgiveness thou hast trespasses which thou wouldest fain have forgiven, and them which have trespassed against thee, whom thou canst forgive. As touching favour, there are beggars that beg from thee, and thou art a beggar to God. When we pray, we are all beggars to God, standing at the door of the Great Householder, yea, falling down on our knees, and beseeching Him to give us somewhat and that somewhat is God Himself. What doth a beggar ask of thee Bread. And what dost thou ask of God but that Christ Who saith: "I am the Living Bread Which came down from heaven?" If ye will be forgiven, forgive ye. If ye will be pardoned, pardon ye. If ye will receive, "give, and it shall be given unto you."

LECTIO I

Incipit liber primus Regum

1 Reg 1:1-3

Fuit vir unus de Ramáthaim Sophim, de monte Ephraim, et nomen ejus Elcana, fí-lius Iéroham, fílii Eliu, fílii Thohu, fílii Suph, Ephrathæus: et hábuit duas uxóres, nomen uni Anna, et nomen secúndæ Phenénna. Fuerúntque Phenénnæ fílii: Annæ autem non erant líberi. Et ascendébat vir ille de civitatē sua statútis diébus, ut adoráret et sa-crificáret Dómino exercítuum in Silo. Erant autem ibi duo fílii Heli, Ophni et Phínees, sacerdótes Dómini.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 1:1-3

There was a man of Ramathaimsophim, of mount Ephraim, and his name was Elcana, the son of Jero-ham, the son of Eliu, the son of Thohu, the son of Suph, an Ephraimite: And he had two wives, the name of one was Anna, and the name of the other Phenenna. Phenenna had children: but Anna had no children. And this man went up out of his city upon the appointed days, to adore and to offer sacrifice to the Lord of hosts in Silo. And the two sons of Heli, Ophni and Phinees, were there priests of the Lord.

- R. Præparáte corda vestra Dómino, et servíte illi soli: * Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.
- Ψ. Convertímini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auférte deos aliénos de médio vestri.
- R. Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

LECTIO II

Venit ergo dies, et immolávit Elcana, deditque Phenennæ uxóri suæ, et cunctis filiis ejus et filiabus, partes: Annæ autem dedit partem unam tristis, quia Annam diligébat. Dóminus autem conclúserat vulvam ejus. Affligébat quoque eam æmula ejus, et vehementer angébat, in tantum ut exprobráret quod Dóminus conclusisset vulvam ejus: sicque faciébat per singulos annos: cum redeúnte témpore ascénderent ad templum Dómini, et sic provocábat eam: porro illa flebat, et non capiébat cibum. Dixit ergo ei Elcana vir suus: Anna, cur fles? et quare non cómedis? et quam ob rem affligitur cor tuum? numquid non ego mélior tibi sum, quam decem filii?

- R. Deus ómnium exaudítor est: ipse misit Angelum suum, et tulit me de óvibus patris mei: * Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.
- Ψ. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstiæ liberávit me.
- R. Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 1:9-11

Surréxit autem Anna postquam coméderat et bíberat in Silo. Et Heli sacerdote sedén-te super sellam ante postes templi Dómini, cum esset Anna amáro ánimo, orávit ad Dóminum, flens lárgiter, et votum vovit, dicens: Dómine exercítuum, si respíciens víderis afflictiónem fámulæ tuæ, et recordátus mei fúeris, nec oblítus ancíllæ tuæ, dederísque servæ tuæ sexum virílem: dabo eum Dómino

- R. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.
- Ψ. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.
- R. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

1 Sam 1:4-8

Now the day came, and Elcana offered sacrifice, and gave to Phenenna his wife, and to all her sons and daughters, portions: But to Anna he gave one portion with sorrow, because he loved Anna. And the Lord had shut up her womb. Her rival also afflicted her, and troubled her exceedingly, inso-much that she upbraided her, that the Lord had shut up her womb: And thus she did every year, when the time returned that they went up to the temple of the Lord: and thus she provoked her: but Anna wept, and did not eat. Then Elcana her husband said to her: Anna, why weepest thou? and why dost thou not eat? And why dost thou afflict thy heart? Am not I better to thee than ten children?

- R. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's sheep, and * Anointed me with the oil of His mercy.
- Ψ. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear
- R. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

1 Sam 1:9-11

So Anna arose after she had eaten and drunk in Silo: And Heli the priest sitting upon a stool, before the door of the temple of the Lord: As Anna had her heart full of grief, she prayed to the Lord, shedding many tears, And she made a vow, saying: O Lord, of hosts, if thou wilt look down on the affliction of thy servant, and wilt be mindful of me, and not forget thy handmaid, and wilt give to thy servant a man child: I will give him to the Lord all ómnibus diébus vitæ ejus, et novacula non ascéndet super caput ejus.

R. Dóminus, qui erípuít me de ore leónis, et de manu béstiæ liberávit me, * Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

R. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

the days of his life, and no razor shall come upon his head.

R. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

ψ. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 1:12-18

Factum est autem, cum illa multiplicáret preces coram Dómino, ut Heli observáret os ejus. Porro Anna loquebátur in corde suo, tantúmque lábia illús movebántur, et vox pénitus non audiebátur. Æstimávit ergo eam Heli temuléntam, dixítque ei: Usquequo ébria eris? dígere paulísper vinum, quo mades. Respóndens Anna: Nequáquam, inquit, dómine mi: nam múlier infélix nimis ego sum: vinúmque et omne quod inebriáre potest, non bibi, sed effúdi ánimam meam in conspéctu Dómini. Ne réputes ancíllam tuam quasi unam de filiábus Bélial: quia ex multitúdine dolóris et mæróris mei locúta sum usque in præsens. Tunc Heli ait ei: Vade in pace: et Deus Israël det tibi petitiónem tuam quam rogásti eum. Et illa dixit: Utinam invéniat ancílla tua grátiam in óculis tuis.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 1:12-18

And it came to pass, as she multiplied prayers before the Lord, that Heli observed her mouth. Now Anna spoke in her heart, and only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard at all. Heli therefore thought her to be drunk, And said to her: How long wilt thou, be drunk? digest a little the wine, of which thou hast taken too much. Anna answering, said: Not so, my lord: for I am an exceeding unhappy woman, and have drunk neither wine nor any strong drink, but I have poured out my soul before the Lord. Count not thy handmaid for one of the daughters of Belial: for out of the abundance of my sorrow and grief have I spoken till now. Then Heli said to her: Go in peace: and the God of Israel grant thee thy petition, which thou hast asked of him. And she said: Would to God thy handmaid may find grace in thy eyes.

℟. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percussit Philisthæum, et abstulit opprobrium ex Israël.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 1:18-22

Et ábiit múlter in viam suam, et comédit, vultúsque illíus non sunt ámplius in diversa mutáti. Et surrexérunt mane, et adoravérunt coram Dómino: reversíque sunt, et venérunt in domum suam Rámatha. Cognóvit autem Elcana Annam uxórem suam: et recordátus est ejus Dóminus. Et factum est post círculum diérum, concépit Anna, et péperit fílium: vocavítque nomen ejus Sámuel, eo quod a Dómino postulásset eum. Ascéndit autem vir ejus Elcana, et omnis domus ejus, ut immoláret Dómino hóstiam solénnem, et votum suum. Et Anna non ascéndit: dixit enim viro suo: Non vadam donec ablactetur infans, et ducam eum, ut appareat ante conspéctum Dómini, et máneat ibi júgiter.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 1:23-28

Et ait ei Elcana vir suus: Fac quod bonum tibi vidétur, et mane donec ablactes eum: precórque ut ímpleat Dóminus verbum suum. Mansit ergo múlter, et lactávit fílium suum, donec amovéret eum a lacte. Et addúxit eum secum, postquam ablactáverat, in vítulis tribus, et tribus módiis farínæ, et ámphora vini, et addúxit eum ad domum Dómini in Silo.

℟. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON II

1 Sam 1:18-22

So the woman went on her way, and ate, and her countenance was no more changed. And they rose in the morning, and worshipped before the Lord: and they returned, and came into their house at Ramatha. And Elcana knew Anna his wife: and the Lord remembered her. And it came to pass when the time was come about, Anna conceived and bore a son, and called his name Samuel: because she had asked him of the Lord. And Elcana her husband went up, and all his house, to offer to the Lord the solemn sacrifice, and his vow. But Anna went not up: for she said to her husband: I will not go till the child be weaned, and till I may carry him, that he may appear before the Lord, and may abide always there.

℟. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

✠. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

℟. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON III

1 Sam 1:23-28

And Elcana her husband said to her: Do what seemeth good to thee, and stay till thou wean him: and I pray that the Lord may fulfill his word. So the woman stayed at home, and gave her son suck, till she weaned him. And after she had weaned him, she carried him with her, with three calves, and three bushels of flour, and a bottle of wine, and she brought him to the house of the Lord in Silo. Now the child was as yet very young: And they immolated a calf, and offered the child to Heli. And Anna said: I beseech thee, my lord, as thy soul liveth, my lord: I am that woman who stood before thee here praying to the Lord. For this child did I pray, and the Lord hath granted me my petition, which I asked of him. Therefore I also have lent him to the Lord all the days of his life, he shall be lent to the Lord. And they adored the Lord there.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 2:12-14

Porro filii Heli, filii Bélial, nesciéntes Dóminum, neque offícium sacerdótum ad pópulum: sed quicúmque immoláset víctimam, veniébat puer sacerdótis, dum coqueréntur carnes, et habébat fuscínulam tridéntem in manu sua, et mittébat eam in lebétem, vel in caldáriam, aut in ollam, sive in cácabum: et omne quod levábat fuscínula, tollébat sacérdos sibi: sic faciébant univérso Israéli veniéntium in Silo.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 2:12-14

Now the sons of Heli were children of Belial, not knowing the Lord, nor the office of the priests to the people: but whosoever had offered a sacrifice, the servant of the priest came, while the flesh was in boiling, with a flesh-hook of three teeth in his hand, and thrust it into the kettle, or into the cauldron, or into the pot, or into the pan: and all that the flesh-hook brought up, the priest took to himself. Thus did they to all Israel that came to Silo.

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitúdine iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ψ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognóscō: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 2:15-17

Etiam ántequam adolérēt ádipem, veniébāt puer sacerdotís, et dicébat immolánti: Da mihi carnem, ut coquam sacerdoti: non enim accípíam a te carnem coctam, sed crudam. Dicebátque illi ímmolans: Incendátur primum juxta morem hódie adeps, et tolle tibi quantumcúmque desíderat ánima tua. Qui respóndens ajébat ei: Nequáquam: nunc enim dabis, alióquin tollam vi. Erat ergo peccátum puerórum grande nimis coram Dómino: quia retrahébant hómīnes a sacrificio Dómini.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratiónem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: * Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israëł.

Ψ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israëł.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 2:18-21

Sámuel autem ministrábat ante fáciem Dómini, puer accínctus ephod líneo. Et túnīcam parvam faciébāt ei mater sua, quam afferébāt statútis diébus, ascéndens cum viro suo, ut immoláret hóstiam solémnem. Et benedíxit Heli Elcanæ et uxóri ejus: dixítque ei: Reddat tibi Dóminus semen de muliere hac, pro fcœnore quod commodásti Dómino. Et abiérunt in locum suum. Visitávit ergo

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

Ψ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

1 Sam 2:15-17

Also before they burnt the fat, the servant of the priest came, and said to the man that sacrificed: Give me flesh to boil for the priest: for I will not take of thee sodden flesh, but raw. And he that sacrificed said to him: Let the fat first be burnt today according to the custom, and then take as much as thy soul desireth. But he answered and said to him: Not so: but thou shalt give it me now, or else I will take it by force. Wherefore the sin of the young men was exceeding great before the Lord: because they withdrew men from the sacrifice of the Lord.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ψ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Sam 2:18-21

But Samuel ministered before the face of the Lord: being a child girded with a linen ephod. And his mother made him a little coat, which she brought to him on the appointed days, when she went up with her husband, to offer the solemn sacrifice. And Heli blessed Elcana and his wife: and he said to him: The Lord give thee seed of this woman, for the loan thou hast lent to the Lord. And they went to their own home. And the Lord visited Dóminus Annam, et concépit, et péperit tres fílios, et duas fílias: et magnificátus est puer Sámuel apud Dóminum.

R. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratiónem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Anna, and she conceived, and bore three sons and two daughters: and the child Samuel became great before the Lord.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Ÿ. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

De Epístola prima beáti Pauli Apóstoli ad Corínthios

I COR 11:20-22

Conveniéntibus ergo vobis in unum, jam non est Domínica cenam manducáre. Unusquisque enim suam cenam præsumit ad manducándum. Et álius quidem ésurit, álius autem ébrius est. LESSON I

Lesson from the first letter of St. Paul the Apostle to the Corinthians

I COR 11:20-22

When you come therefore together into one place, it is not now to eat the Lord's supper. For every one taketh before his own supper to eat. And one indeed is hungry and another is drunk. What, have you not houses to eat and to drink in? Or despise ye the church of God; and put them to shame that have not? What shall I say to you? Do I praise you? In this I praise you not.

R. The whole assembly of the children of Israel shall kill the lamb toward the evening of the Passover. * And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

Ÿ. Even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us therefore let us keep the feast with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

R. And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

LESSON II

I COR 11:23-26

For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, that the Lord Jesus, the same nocte tradebátur, accépit panem, et grátias agens fregit, et dixit: Accípíte, et manducáte: hoc est corpus meum, quod pro vobis tradétur: hoc fácite in meam commemoratióem. Simíliter et cálicem, postquam coenávít, dicens: Hic calix novum testaméntum est in meo sáanguine: hoc fácite, quotiescúmque bibétis, in meam commemoratióem. Quotiescúmque enim manducábitis panem hunc, et cálicem bibétis, mortem Dómini annuntiábitis donec véniat.

- R. Comedétis carnes, et saturabímíni pánibus: * Iste est panis, quem dedit vobis Dóminus ad vescéndum.
- Ÿ. Non Móyses dedit vobis panem de cælo, sed Pater meus dat vobis panem de cælo verum.
- R. Iste est panis, quem dedit vobis Dóminus ad vescéndum.

LECTIO III

1 COR 11:27-32

Itaque quicúmque manducáverit panem hunc, vel bíberit cálicem Dómini indígne, reus erit córporis et sáanguinis Dómini. Probet autem seípsum homo: et sic de pane illo edat, et de cálice bibat. Qui enim mandúcat et bibit indígne, júdicium sibi mandúcat et bibit, non dijúdicans corpus Dómini. Ideo inter vos multi infirmi et imbecílles, et dórmíunt multi. Quod, si nosmetípsos dijudicáremus, non útique judicáremur. Dum judicámur autem, a Dómino corrípimur, ut non cum hoc mundo damnémur.

- R. Respéxit Elías ad caput suum subcinerícium panem: qui surgens comédit et bibit: * Et ambulávit in fortitúdine cibi illús usque ad montem Dei.
- Ÿ. Si quis manducáverit ex hoc pane, vivet in ætérnum.
- R. Et ambulávit in fortitúdine cibi illús usque ad montem Dei.
- Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

night in which he was betrayed, took bread. And giving thanks, broke, and said: Take ye, and eat: this is my body, which shall be delivered for you: this do for the commemoration of me. In like manner also the chalice, after he had supped, saying: This chalice is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as often as you shall drink, for the commemoration of me. For as often as you shall eat this bread, and drink the chalice, you shall show the death of the Lord, until he come.

- R. Ye shall eat flesh, and shall be filled with bread.
* This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.
- Ÿ. Moses gave you not that Bread from heaven, but My Father giveth you the true Bread from heaven.
- R. This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

LESSON III

1 COR 11:27-32

Therefore whosoever shall eat this bread, or drink the chalice of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and of the blood of the Lord. But let a man prove himself: and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of the chalice. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh judgment to himself, not discerning the body of the Lord. Therefore are there many infirm and weak among you, and many sleep. But if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged. But whilst we are judged, we are chastised by the Lord, that we be not condemned with this world.

- R. Elijah looked, and, behold, there was a cake baken on the coals at his head, and he arose, and did eat and drink; * And went in the strength of that meat [forty days and forty nights] unto the mount of God.
- Ÿ. If any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for ever.
- R. And went in the strength of that meat [forty days and forty nights] unto the mount of God.
- Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Et ambulávit in fortitúdine cibi illíus usque ad montem Dei.

LESSON IV

From the Sermons of St. Thomas Aquinas

17th or 57th of his Opuscula, or Lesser Works

The immeasurable benefits, which the goodness of God hath bestowed on Christian people, have conferred on them also a dignity beyond all price.
“For what nation is there so great, who hath gods so nigh unto them, as the Lord, our God, is unto us?” (Deut. iv. 7.) The Only-begotten Son of God, being pleased to make us “partakers of the Divine nature,” (2 Pet. i. 4.) took our nature upon Him, being Himself made Man that He might make men gods. And all, as much of ours as He took, He applied to our salvation. On the Altar of the Cross He offered up His Body to God the Father as a sacrifice for our reconciliation He shed
His Blood as the price whereby He redeemeth us from wretchedness and bondage, and the washing whereby He cleanseth us from all sin. And for a noble and abiding memorial of that so great work of His goodness, He hath left unto His faithful ones the Same His very Body for Meat, and the Same His very Blood for Drink, to be fed upon under the appearance of bread and wine.

R. As they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blest it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said: * Take, eat this is My Body.

Ÿ. The men of my tabernacle said: O that we had
of his flesh, we cannot be satisfied.

R. Take, eat this is My Body.

LESSON V

How precious a thing then, how marvelous, how health-giving, how furnished with all dainties, is the Supper [of the Lord!] Than His Supper can anything be more precious? Therein there is put before us for meat, not, as of old time, the flesh of bulls and of goats, but Christ Himself, our very God. Than this Sacrament can anything be more marvelous? Therein it cometh to pass that bread and wine are bread and wine no more, but in the stead thereof there is the Body and there is the Blood of Christ; that is to say, Christ Himself, Per-vini spécie continétur. Manducátur ítaque a fidélibus, sed mínime lacerátur; quínimmo, dívísio Sacraménto, sub quálibet divisiónis partícula ínteger perseverát. Accidéntia autem sine subjécto in eódem subsístunt, ut fides locum hábeat, dum visíbile invisíbiliter súmitur aliéna spécie occultátum; et sensus a deceptióne reddántur immúnes, qui de accidéntibus júdicant sibi notis.

℞. Accépit Jesus cálicem, postquam cenávit, dicens: Hic calix novum testaméntum est in meo sáanguine: * Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

ψ. Memória memor ero, et tabéscet in me ánima mea.

℞. Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

Nullum étiam sacraméntum est isto salú-brius, quo purgántur peccáta, virtútes augéntur, et mens ómnium spirituálium charísmatum abundántia impinguátur. Offér-tur in Ecclésia pro vivis et mórtuis, ut óm-nibus prosit, quod est pro salúte ómnium institútum. Suavitátem dénique hujus Sa-craménti nullus exprímere súfficit, per quod spirituális dulcédo in suo fonte gustátur; et recólitur memória illíus, quam in sua pas-sióne Christus monstrávit, excellentíssimæ caritátis. Unde, ut árcíus hujus caritátis im-ménsitas fidélium córdibus infígerétur, in úl-tima cena, quando Pascha cum discipulis ce-lebráto, transitúrus erat de hoc mundo ad Pa-trem, hoc Sacraméntum instítuit, tamquam passiónis suæ memoriále perénne, figurárum vétérum impletívum, miraculórum ab ipso factórum máximum; et de sua contristátis abséntia solátium singuláre reliquit.

fect God and Perfect Man, Christ Himself is there, under the appearance of a little bread and wine. His faithful ones eat Him, but He is not mangled; nay, when [the veil which shroudeth Him in] this Sacrament is broken, in each broken piece thereof remaineth whole Christ Himself, Perfect God and Perfect Man. All that the senses can reach in this Sacrament, [look, taste, feel, smell, and the like, all these] abide of bread and wine, but the Thing is not bread and wine. And thus room is left for faith; Christ Who hath a Form That can be seen, is here taken and received not only unseen, but seem-ing to be bread and wine, and the senses, which judge by the wonted look, are warranted against error.

ψ. My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is humbled in me.

℞. This do in remembrance of Me.

LESSON VI

Than this Sacrament can anything be more health-giving? Thereby are sins purged away, strength renewed, and the soul fed upon the fatness of spiri-tual gifts. This Supper is offered up in the Church both for the quick and dead it was ordained to the health of all, all get the good of it. Than this Sacrament can anything be more furnished with dainties The glorious sweetness thereof is of a truth such that no man can fully tell it. Therein ghostly comfort is sucked from its very well-head. Therein a memorial is made of that exceeding great love which Christ showed in time of His sufferings. It was in order that the boundless goodness of that His great love might be driven home into the hearts of His faithful ones, that when He had celebrated the Passover with His disciples, and the last Supper was ended, "the Lord Jesus, knowing that His hour was come that He should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved His own which were in the world, He loved them unto the end," (John xiii. 1,) and instituted this Sacrament, this Sacra-ment, the everlasting "forth-showing of His death until He come again," (1 Cor. xi. 26,) this Sacra-ment, the embodied fulfilment of all the ancient

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 6:56-59

At that time: Jesus said unto the multitudes of the Jews: My Flesh is meat indeed, and My Blood is drink indeed. And so on.

26th Tract on John

By use of meat and drink men would fain that “they shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more,” (Apoc. vii. 16,) and yet there is but one Meat and one Drink, Which doth work in them that feed thereon that “this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal put on immortality,” (1 Cor. xv. 53,) namely communion with that general assembly and Church of God’s holy children, who are “kept in perfect peace,” (Isa. xxvi. 3,) and are “all one,” (John xvii. 11,) fully and utterly. And therefore it is, as men of God before our time have taken it, that our Lord Jesus Christ hath set before us His Body and His Blood in the likeness of things which, from being many, are reduced into one. In one loaf are many grains of corn, and one cup of wine the juice of many grapes. And now He giveth us to know how that which He spake cometh to pass, and how indeed “this

R. Qui mandúcat meam carnem et bibit meum ságuinem, * In me manet, et ego in eo.

Ψ. Non est ália nátio tam grandis, quæ hábeat deos appropinquántes sibi, sicut Deus noster adest nobis.

R. In me manet, et ego in eo.

LECTIO VIII

Qui mandúcat carnem meam et bibit meum ságuinem, in me manet, et ego in illo. Hoc est ergo manducáre illam escam, et illum bíbere potum, in Christo manére, et illum manéntem in se habére. Ac per hoc, qui non manet in Christo, et in quo non manet Christus, proculdúbio nec mandúcat spiritaliter carnem ejus, nec bibit ejus ságuinem, licet carnáliter et visibíliter premat déntibus Sacraméntum córporis et sánguinis Christi: sed magis tantæ rei sacraméntum ad júdiciu[m] sibi mandúcat et bibit, quia immúndus præsumpsit ad Christi accédere Sacraménta, quæ áliquis non digne sumit, nisi qui mundus est; de quibus dicitur: Beáti mundo corde, quóniam ipsi Deum vidébunt.

R. Misit me vivens Pater, et ego vivo propter Patrem: * Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

Ψ. What nation is there so great, who hath gods so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is to us

R. Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

LESSON VIII

“He that eateth My Flesh, and drinketh My Blood, dwelleth in Me, and I in him.” To dwell in Christ, therefore, and to have Him dwelling in us, is to “eat of that Bread and drink of that Cup,” (1 Cor. xi. 28,) and he which dwelleth not in Christ, and in whom Christ dwelleth not, without all doubt doth not spiritually eat His Flesh nor drink His Blood, although he do carnally and visibly press the Sacrament with his teeth but, contrariwise, he “eateth and drinketh damnation to himself,” because he dareth to draw nigh filthy to that secret and holy thing of Christ, whereunto none draweth nigh worthily, save he which is pure, even he which is of them concerning whom it is said: “Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.” (Matth. v. 8.)

R. As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, * So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

 ♂. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.
 ♀. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

LECTIO IX

Sicut, inquit, misit me vivens Pater, et ego vivo propter Patrem: et qui mandúcat me, et ipse vivet propter me. Ac si diceret: Ut ego vivam propter Patrem, id est, ad illum tamquam ad majórem réferam vitam meam, exinanítio mea fecit, in qua me misit: ut autem quisquam vivat propter me, participátio facit, qua mandúcat me. Ego itaque humiliátus vivo propter Patrem: ille eréctus vivit propter me. Si autem ita dictus est, Vivo propter Patrem, quia ipse de illo, non ille de ipso est; sine detriménto æqualitátis dictum est. Nec tamen dicéndo, Et qui mandúcat me, et ipse vivet propter me; eándem suam et nostram æqualitátem significávit, sed grátiam mediátoris osténdit.

 ♂. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

LESSON IX

“As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, so he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.” This is as though He said: The Father hath sent Me into the world (John x. 36,) and I have emptied Myself [and taken upon Me the form of a servant, and being found in fashion as a man], (Phil. ii. 7, 8,) I have My life from the Father, as One That is greater than I. (John xiv. 28.) He that eateth Me, even he, by thereby taking part in Me, shall live by Me. It is as having humbled Myself (Phil. ii. 8) that I live by the Father, but he that eateth Me, him will I raise up, (John vi. 55,) and so he shall live by Me. It is said “I live by the Father” that is to say, He is of the Father, not the Father of Him, and yet not so, but that the Father and the Son are co-equal together. Also it is said “So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me,” whereby He sheweth the gracious work towards His people of Him Who is the “one Mediator between God and man,” (1 Tim. ii. 5,) and not that He Which is eaten and he which eateth Him are co-equal together.

Venit autem vir Dei ad Heli, et ait ad eum: Hæc dicit Dóminus: Numquid non apérte revelátus sum dómui patris tui, cum essent in Ægýpto in domo Pharaónis? Et elégi eum ex ómnibus tríbutus Israël mihi in sacerdótem, ut ascénderet ad altáre meum, et adoléret mihi incénsus, et portáret ephod coram me: et dedi dómui patris tui ómnia de sacrificiis filiórum Israël. LESSON I

1 Sam 2:27-29

And there came a man of God to Heli, and said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Did I not plainly appear to thy father's house, when they were in Egypt in the house of Pharaoh? And I chose him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to go up to my altar, and burn incense to me, and to wear the ephod before me: and I gave to thy father's house of all the sacrifices of the children of Israel. Why have you kicked away my victims, and my gifts which I commanded to be offered in the temple: and thou hast rather honoured thy sons than me, to eat the firstfruits of every sacrifice of my people Israel?

℟. The whole assembly of the children of Israel shall kill the lamb toward the evening of the Passover. * And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

℣. Even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us therefore let us keep the feast with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

℟. And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

LESSON II

1 Sam 2:30-33

Wherefore thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: I said indeed that thy house, and the house of thy father should minister in my sight, for ever. But now saith the Lord: Far be this from me: but whosoever shall glorify me, him will I glorify: but they that despise me, shall be despised. Behold the days come: and I will cut off thy arm, and the arm of thy father's house, that there shall not be an old man in thy house. And thou shalt see thy rival in the temple, in all the prosperity of Israel, and there shall not be an old man in thy house for ever. However I will not altogether take away a man of thee from my altar: but that thy eyes may faint and thy soul be spent: and a great part of thy house shall die when they come to man's estate

LESSON III

1 Sam 2:34-36

And this shall be a sign to thee, that shall come upon thy two sons, Ophni and Phinees: In one day they shall both of them die. And I will raise me up a faithful priest, who shall do according to my heart, and my soul, and I will build him a faithful house, and he shall walk all days before my anointed. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall remain in thy house, shall come that he may be prayed for, and shall offer a piece of silver, and a roll of bread, and shall say: Put me, I beseech thee, to somewhat of the priestly office, that I may eat a morsel of bread.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. Thomas Aquinas.
Lesser works, 57*

It serveth well therefore to the edifying of the faithful to make memorial of the institution of this so health-giving and so wonderful a Sacrament, that we may worship the unspeakable way by the which venerémur; et laudétur Dei poténtia, quæ in Sacraménto eódem tot mirabília operátur; nec non et de tam salúbri tamque suávi beneficio exsolvántur Deo gratiárum débitæ actiões. Verum etsi in die Cœnæ, quando Sacraméntum prædictum nóscitur institútum solémnia de institutióne ipsíus speciális méntio habeátur; totum tamen résíduum ejúsdem diéi offíciū ad Christi passióem pértinet, circa cujus veneratióem Ecclésia illo témpore occupátur.

℟. Cenántibus illis, accépit Jesus panem, et benedíxit, ac fregit, dedítque discíplis suis, et ait: * Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

℣. Dixérunt viri tabernáculi mei: Quis det de cárnibus ejus, ut saturémur?

℟. Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

LECTIO V

Ut autem íntegro celebritátis offício institutióem tanti Sacraménti recóleret plebs fidélium, Románus Póntifex Urbánus quartus, hujus Sacraménti devotióne afféctus, pie stáuit præfátæ institutiónis memóriam prima quinta féria post Octávam Pentecóstes a cunctis fidélibus celebrári; ut qui per totum anni círculum hoc Sacraménto útimur ad salútem, ejus institutióem illo témpore speciáliter recolámus, quo Spíritus Sanctus corda discipulórum edócuit ad plene cognoscénda hujus mystéria Sacraménti. Nam et in eódem témpore cœpit hoc Sacraméntum a fidélibus frequentári.

the Divine Presence in-dwelleth in this Sacrament, Which we see, and may praise the power of God whereby in this Sacrament are wrought so many wonders, yea, and also give God some of those thanks which we owe unto Him for this so health-giving gift of His loving-kindness. It is true that on the Day of the Supper of the Lord, on which day we know it to have been that He ordained this Sacrament, at the solemn celebration of the Mass, the memory of the instituting thereof is more particularly mentioned, but all the rest of the Services on that day deal chiefly with Christ Suffering, to worshipping of Whom the Church doth at that season give all her mind.

℟. As they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blest it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said: * Take, eat this is My Body.

℟. Take, eat this is My Body.

LESSON V

But, that the congregation of Christ's faithful people might celebrate with an whole Festal Office all to itself the institution of this so great Sacrament, Urban IV., Bishop of Rome, being touched with love toward this said Sacrament, hath made a godly ordinance that the memory of the said institution should be celebrated by all the faithful upon the Fifth Day of the week, next after the Eighth Day of Pentecost. From one end of the year to the other we use this Sacrament to our souls' health, and we more particularly celebrate the institution thereof at that season wherein the Holy Ghost taught the hearts of the disciples to acknowledge the mysteries thereof, for then it was, as we read, that "they continued steadfastly in [the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in] breaking of Bread, [and in prayers.]" (Acts ii. 42.)

℟. Jesus took the cup, after supper, saying: This cup is the New Testament in My Blood. * This do in remembrance of Me.

LESSON VI

And, moreover, to the end that on the aforesaid Thursday, and the seven days next following, the memory of this health-giving Institution might be the more honourably celebrated, and the Feast thereby be held in more excellent worship, the abovenamed Bishop of Rome, after the manner of the doles which in Cathedral Churches are given to such as come to the singing or saying of the Canonical Hours by night and day, hath out of his Apostolic bounty granted spiritual rewards to all such as in their own persons are present in the Church at the diverse Canonical Hours during all this Festival, thereby to stir up the faithful to come to the keeping of this great Feast in greater eagerness and numbers.

LESSON VII

*From the Holy Gospel according to John
John 6:56-59*

At that time, Jesus said unto the multitudes of the Jews: My Flesh is meat indeed and My Blood is drink indeed. And so on.

*Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo
27th Tract on John.*

We have heard from the Gospel the words of the Lord which follow [those that formed the subject of my earlier discourse. To your ears and understandings we owe a discourse on these also, and to-day it becometh very well, for it is upon that manducandum propter ætérnam vitam. Expósuit autem modum attributiónis hujus et doni sui, quómodo daret carnem suam manducáre, dicens: Qui mandúcat carnem meam et bibit ságuinem meum, in me manet, et ego in illo. Signum quia manducávit et bibit, hoc est: si manet, et manétur; si hábitat, et inhabitátur; si hæret, ut non desératur.

R. Qui mandúcat meam carnem et bibit meum ságuinem, * In me manet, et ego in eo.

V. Non est ália nátio tam grandis, quæ hábeat deos appropinquánte sibi, sicut Deus noster adest nobis.

R. In me manet, et ego in eo.

LECTIO VIII

Hoc ergo nos dócuit et admónuit mýsticis verbis, ut simus in ejus córpore sub ipso cápite in membris ejus, edéntes carnem ejus, non relinquéntes unitátem ejus. Sed qui áderant, plures non intelligéndo scandalizáti sunt; non enim cogitábant, hæc audiéndo, nisi carnem, quod ipsi erant. Apóstolus autem dicit, et verum dicit: Sápere secúndum carnem, mors est. Carnem suam dat nobis Dóminus manducáre: et sápere secúndum carnem, mors est. Cum de carne sua dicat quia ibi est vita ætérna; ergo nec carnem debémus sápere secúndum carnem, sicut in his verbis: Multi itaque audiéntes, non ex inimícis, sed ex discípulis ejus, dixerunt: Durus est hic sermo, et quis potest eum audíre?

R. Misit me vivens Pater, et ego vivo propter Patrem: * Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

V. Cibávit illum Dóminus pane vitæ et intelléctus.

R. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

R. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

Body of the Lord, Which He professeth Himself that He “will give for the life of the world,” “that a man may eat thereof and not die.” He hath made manifest how He giveth, and What is His Gift, where He saith: “He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, dwelleth in Me and I in him.” The sign to show whether a man hath or hath not eaten that Flesh and drunk that Blood, is whether or not he dwelleth in Christ and Christ in him, whether or not he is a guest of Christ and Christ of his, whether or not he so cleaveth unto Christ, that Christ be not parted from him.

R. He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, * Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

V. What nation is there so great, who hath gods so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is to us

R. Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

LESSON VIII

This hath He taught, and warned us, by words of deep meaning, to be in His Body as members whose Head is He, eating His Flesh, and cleaving alway to His Oneness.” Many of His disciples when they had heard this.. went back, and walked no more with Him “for they understood not by Flesh any flesh other than such as they themselves were made of. The Apostle saith, (and very true it is) “To be carnally minded is death.” (Rom. viii. 6.) The Lord giveth us His Flesh to eat, and to understand it carnally is death. Where He saith: “Whoso eateth My Flesh is life” we. must not eat His Flesh carnally, whom it is written “Many of His disciples” (not His enemies) “when they heard this, said This is an hard saying who can hear it?”

R. As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, * So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

V. With the bread of life and understanding hath the Lord fed him.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

LECTIO IX

Si discipuli durum habuerunt istum sermonem, quid inimici? Et tamen sic oportebat ut diceretur, quod non ab omnibus intelligeretur. Secretum Dei intentos debet facere, non adversos: isti autem cito defecerunt, talia loquente Domino Jesu Christo. Non crediderunt aliquid magnum dicentem, et verbis illis aliquam gratiam cooperientem: sed prout voluerunt, ita intellexerunt, et more hominum: quia poterat Jesus, aut hoc disponebat Jesus, carnem, qua indutum erat Verbum, veluti concisam, distribuere credentibus in se. Durus est, inquiunt, hic sermo: quis potest eum audire?

Te Deum

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

LESSON IX

If His disciples took His words for an hard saying, how did His enemies take them? And, nevertheless, thus it behoved to speak them if all men were not to understand them. A Divine mystery ought to make us thoughtful, not to repel us and yet, when the Lord Jesus Christ spoke thus in mystery, many of His disciples went back and walked no more with Him. They believed not that He was speaking of some great thing, and darkly announcing in these hath eternal understand this as did they of "Many of His words a bounty. They understood but as they pleased, even after the manner of men, that Jesus was able, or that Jesus meant, to give that Flesh wherewith the Word is clothed on, as it were, in slices, to them that believe on Him. And they said "This is an hard saying who can hear it?"

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 3:1-7

Puer autem Samuel ministrabat Domino coram Heli, et sermo Domini erat pretiosus in diebus illis: non erat visio manifesta. Factus est ergo in quadam die, Heli jacebat in loco suo, et oculi ejus caligaverant, nec poterant videre. Lucerna Dei antequam exstingueretur, Samuel dormiebat in templo Domini, ubi erat arca Dei. Et vocavit Dominus Samuel, qui respondens ait: Ecce ego. Et cucurrit ad Heli et dixit: Non vocavi: revertere et dormi. Et abiit et dormivit. Et adjecit Dominus rursus vocare Samuelem. Consurgensque Samuel abiit ad Heli, et dixit: Ecce ego, quia vocasti me. Qui respondit: Non vocavi te, fili mi: revertere et dormi. Porro Samuel necdum sciebat Dominum, neque revelatus fuerat ei sermo Domini.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 3:1-7

Now the child Samuel ministered to the Lord before Heli, and the word of the Lord was precious in those days, there was no manifest vision. And it came to pass one day when Heli lay in his place, and his eyes were grown dim, that he could not see: Before the lamp of God went out, Samuel slept in the temple of the Lord, where the ark of God was. And the Lord called Samuel. And he answered: Here am I. And he ran to Heli and said: Here am I: for thou didst call me. He said: I did not call: go back and sleep. And he went and slept. And the Lord called Samuel again. And Samuel arose and went to Heli, and said: Here am I: for thou calledst me. He answered: I did not call thee, my son: return and sleep. Now Samuel did not yet know the Lord, neither had the word of the Lord been revealed to him.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 3:15-20

Dormívit autem Sámuel usque mane, ape-ruítque óstia domus Dómini. Et Sámuel timébat indicáre visiónem Heli. Vocávit ergo Heli Samuélem, et dixit: Sámuel fili mi? Qui

R. The whole assembly of the children of Israel shall kill the lamb toward the evening of the Passover. * And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

Ÿ. Even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us therefore let us keep the feast with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

R. And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

LESSON II

1 Sam 3:8-12

And the Lord called Samuel again the third time.
And he arose up and went to Heli. And said: Here am I: for thou didst call me. Then Heli understood that the Lord called the child, and he said to Samuel: Go, and sleep: and if he shall call thee any more, thou shalt say: Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went and slept in his place.
And the Lord came and stood: and he called, as he had called the other times: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel said: Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth.
And the Lord said to Samuel: Behold I do a thing in Israel: and whosoever shall hear it, both his ears shall tingle. In that day I will raise up against Heli all the things I have spoken concerning his house:
I will begin, and I will make an end.

R. Ye shall eat flesh, and shall be filled with bread.
* This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

Ÿ. Moses gave you not that Bread from heaven, but My Father giveth you the true Bread from heaven.

R. This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

LESSON III

1 Sam 3:15-20

And Samuel slept till morning, and opened the doors of the house of the Lord. And Samuel feared to tell the vision to Heli. Then Heli called Samuel, and said: Samuel, my son. And he answered: Here am I. And he asked him: What is the word that the Lord hath spoken to thee? I beseech thee hide it not from me. May God do so and so to thee, and add so and so, if thou hide from me one word of all fáciat tibi Deus, et hæc addat, si absconderis a me sermónem ex ómnibus verbis quæ dicta sunt tibi. Indicávit itaque ei Sámuel univér-sos sermónes, et non abscondit ab eo. Et ille respóndit: Dóminus est: quod bonum est in óculis suis fáciat. Crevit autem Sámuel, et Dóminus erat cum eo, et non cécidit ex ómnibus verbis ejus in terram. Et cognóvit univérsus Israël, a Dan usque Bersabée, quod fidélis Sámuel prophéta esset Dómini.

LECTIO IV

Sermo sancti Joánnis Chrysóstomi

Hom. 61 ad pópulum Antiochenum

Necessárium est, dilectíssimi, mysteriórum díscere miráculum, quodnam sit, et quare sit datum, et quæ ejus rei utilitas. Unum corpus effícimur: membra, inquit, ex carne ejus et ex óssibus ejus. Sequámur autem initiáti, quæ dicúntur. Ut itaque non tantum per caritátem hoc fiámus, verum étiam ipsa re, in illam misceámur carnem: hoc namque per escam effícitur, quam largítus est nobis volens osténdere desidérium quod erga nos habet. Proptérea semetípsum nobis immí-scuit, et corpus suum in nos contemperávit, ut unum quid simus tamquam corpus cápi-ti coaptátum; ardénter enim amántium hoc est.

that were said to thee. So Samuel told him all the words, and did not hide them from him. And he answered: It is the Lord: let him do what is good in his sight. And Samuel grew, and the Lord was with him, and not one of his words fell to the ground. And all Israel from Dan to Bersabee, knew that Samuel was a faithful prophet of the Lord.

R. Elijah looked, and, behold, there was a cake baken on the coals at his head, and he arose, and did eat and drink; * And went in the strength of that meat [forty days and forty nights] unto the mount of God.

Ÿ. If any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for

R. And went in the strength of that meat [forty

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And went in the strength of that meat [forty days and forty nights] unto the mount of God.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom,
Patriarch of Constantinople.*

61st Homily to the people of Antioch.

Dearly beloved brethren, it behoveth us to learn the miracle of the Mysteries what the Gift is, and why It was given, and what is the use thereof. "We, being many, are one body," saith [the Apostle Paul, (1 Cor. x. 17,) and again] "We are members of His Body, of His Flesh, and of His Bones." (Eph. v. 30.) Only the initiated will now understand what I say. That this union may take place, not by love only, but verily and indeed, we ought to mingle our own with His Flesh. And this is done by eating that Food Which He hath given unto us, being fain to manifest that exceeding great love which He beareth to us-ward. To this end He hath mingled Himself with us, and infused His Body into our bodies, that we may be one together, like as the limbs of a man and his head are all of one body. Such union do they long for that love much.

℞. Cenántibus illis, accépit Jesus panem, et benedíxit, ac fregit, dedítque discípulis suis, et ait: * Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

℞. Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

LECTIO V

Tamquam leónes ígitur ignem spirántes ab illa mensa recedámus, facti diabólo terribiles, et caput nostrum mente revolvéntes, et caritátem quam erga nos osténdit. Nam paréntes quidem áliis sæpe fílios tradunt aléndos: ego autem, inquit, non ita, sed cárnibus meis alo, et meípsum vobis appóno, vos omnes generósos esse volens, et spem bonam de futúris vobis præbens: quippe qui vobis hic meípsum trádidi, multo magis id in futúro fáciam. Vólui frater vester fíeri, carni propter vos et sánguini comunicávi: vobis vicíssim ipsam carnem et sánguinem, per quæ cognátus vester factus sum, trado.

℞. Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

LECTIO VI

Attendámus ítaque nobis ipsis, dilectíssimi, tálibus fruéntes bonis: et, cum áliquid turpe dícere voluérimus, vel nos ab ira córripi vidérimus, vel álio quópiam hujúsmodi vítio, considerémus quibus facti sumus digni; talíque cogitatio nobis irrationabílium mótuum sit corréctio. Quotquot ígitur hujus partícipes córporis effícimur, quotquot sánguinem degustámus; cogitémus quod illum sursum sedéntem, qui ab Angelis adorátur incorruptibili vicínus virtúti, hunc degustámus. ℞. As they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blest it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said: * Take, eat this is My Body.

℞. Take, eat this is My Body.

LESSON V

When we come back from that Table we ought to be like so many lions breathing fire, dreadful to the devil. Our thoughts ought to be concentrated on our Great Head and the love which He showeth us. Many fathers and mothers there are who give their children to others to nurse, but I, saith the Lord to His children, I am not so, but I feed you with Mine Own Flesh, and join Myself to you, fain that ye all should be sons of noble blood now, and giving you a noble hope of that which ye shall be hereafter. I was content to become your Brother, I for your sakes have taken unto Me Flesh, and Blood, and that Flesh and Blood wherein I am become your Brother, the Same give I in turn unto you.

℣. My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is humbled in me.

℞. This do in remembrance of Me.

LESSON VI

Let us then, dearly beloved brethren, take good heed to ourselves, as unto the holders of so great mercies, and when any foul word springeth to our lips, or we feel anger taking possession of us, or the sting of any other sinful passion, let us call to mind of What we have been counted worthy, and let that remembrance still the unruly motion. As often as we take that Body, as often as we taste that Blood, let us think how that we feed on Him Who is sitting on high, adored of Angels, at the right hand of the Eternal Power. Ah me, how many a way is open to us whereby we may be saved He pus suum effécit; nobis suum comunicávit corpus: et horum nos nihil a malis avértit.

R. Ego sum panis vitæ; patres vestri manducavérunt manna in désérto, et mórtui sunt: * Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

Ÿ. Ego sum panis vivus, qui de cælo descénde: si quis manducáverit ex hoc pane, vivet in ætérnum.

R. Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

Díximus, fratres, hoc Dóminum commendásse in manducatíone carnis suæ et potatíone sanguíinis sui, ut in illo maneámus, et ipse in nobis. Manémus autem in illo, cum sumus membra ejus; manet autem ipse in nobis, cum sumus templum ejus. Ut autem simus membra ejus, únitás nos compáginat: ut compáginet únitás, quæ facit, nisi caritas? Et caritas Dei unde? Apóstolum intérroga. Caritas, inquit, Dei diffúsa est in córdibus nostris per Spíritum Sanctum, qui datus est nobis.

R. Qui mandúcat meam carnem et bibit meum sanguínem, * In me manet, et ego in eo.

R. I am that Bread of life. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. * This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

Ÿ. I am the living Bread Which came down from heaven if any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for ever.

R. This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

LESSON VII

*From the Holy Gospel according to John
John 6:56-59*

At that time, Jesus said unto the multitudes of the Jews: My Flesh is meat indeed and My Blood is drink indeed. And so on.

*Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo.
27th Tract on John.*

I have said, my brethren, that what the Lord hath set before us, in eating of His Flesh and drinking of His Blood, is that we should dwell in Him, and He in us. We dwell in Him when we are His members, and He dwelleth in us when we are His temple. But the bond whereby we are made His members is oneness and what is the cause of oneness but love And love of God, whence is it? Ask the Apostle. "The love of God," saith he, "is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, Which is given unto us." (Rom. v. 5.)

R. He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, * Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

Ÿ. What nation is there so great, who hath gods so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is to us

R. Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

LECTIO VIII

Ergo spírítus est qui vivíficat; spírítus enim facit viva membra: nec viva membra spírítus facit, nisi quæ in corpore, quod végetat ipse spírítus, invénerit. Nam spírítus, qui est in te, o homo, quo constas ut homo sis, numquid vivíficat membrum quod separátum invénerit a carne tua? Spírítum tuum dico ánimam tuam. Anima tua non vivíficat, nisi membra quæ sunt in carne tua: unum si tollas, jam non vivifícatur ex áanima tua, quia unitáti córporis tui non copulátur.

R. Misit me vivens Pater, et ego vivo propter Patrem: * Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

Ψ. Cibávit illum Dóminus pane vitæ et intelléctus.

R. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

Ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spírítui Sancto.

R. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

LECTIO IX

Hæc dicúntur, ut amémus unitátem et timeámus separatióem. Nihil enim sic debet formidáre Christiánus quam separári a corpore Christi. Si enim separátur a corpore Christi, non est membrum ejus, non vegetátur Spírítu ejus. Quisquis autem, inquit Apóstolus, Spírítum Christi non habet, hic non est ejus. Spírítus ergo est, qui vivíficat, caro autem non prodest quidquam. Verba, quæ ego locútus sum vobis, spírítus et vita sunt. Quid est, Spírítus et vita sunt? Spíritáliter intelligénda sunt. Intellexísti spiritaliter? Spírítus et vita sunt. Intellexísti carnáliter? Etiam sic illa spírítus et vita sunt, sed tibi non sunt.

Te Deum

LESSON VIII

So “it is the spirit that quickeneth.” It is the spirit that maketh lively the limbs, nor is the quickening power of the spirit shed through any limbs but such as remain in union with the body whose the spirit is. The spirit that thou hast in thee, O man, and whereby thou art a man, doth that spirit shed life through any limb cut off from thy flesh By “spirit,” I mean soul. The soul quickeneth no limb but such as remain attached to the body. Cut one off, and the soul quickeneth it no more, for it is separate from the oneness of thy body.

R. As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, * So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

Ψ. With the bread of life and understanding hath the Lord fed him.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

LESSON IX

These things I say, that we may love oneness and dread division. In sooth, there is nothing which a Christian ought so much to dread, as to be cut off from the Body of Christ. If he be cut off from the Body of Christ, he is no longer a member of Christ, and the Spirit of Christ no longer quickeneth him. “Now, if any man,” saith the Apostle, “have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His.” (Rom. viii. 9.) “It is the Spirit that quickeneth the flesh profiteth nothing the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life.” “Spirit and life”, what meaneth this? It is to be taken spiritually. Hast thou taken it spiritually? Then the words the Lord spake, unto thee they are spirit and they are life. Hast thou taken it carnally? Then the words of the Lord are still indeed spirit and life but not for thee.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 4:1-3

Et factum est in diebus illis, convenérunt Philísthiim in pugnam: et egréssus est Israël óbviam Philísthiim in prælium, et castrametátus est juxta lápidem Adiutórii. Porro Philísthiim venérunt in Aphec, et instruxérunt áciem contra Israël. Inito autem certámine, terga vertit Israël Philisthæis: et cæsa sunt in illo certámine passim per agros, quasi quátuor míllia virórum. Et revérsus est pópulus ad castra: dixerúntque majóres natu de Israël: Quare percússit nos Dóminus hódie coram Philísthiim? afferámus ad nos de Silo arcam foéderis Dómini, et véniat in médium nostri, ut salvet nos de manu inimicórum nostrórum.

℟. Et edent carnes et ázymos panes.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 4:4-6

Misit ergo pópulus in Silo, et tulérunt inde arcam foéderis Dómini exercítuum sedéntis super chérubim: erántque duo filii Heli cum arca foéderis Dei, Ophni et Phínees. Cumque venísset arca foéderis Dómini in castra, vociferátus est omnis Israël clamóre grandi, et persónuit terra. Et audiérunt Philísthiim vocem clamóris, dixerúntque: Quænam est hæc vox clamóris magni in castris Hebræórum? Et cognóverunt quod arca Dómini venísset in castra.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 4:1-3

And it came to pass in those days, that the Philistines gathered themselves together to fight: and Israel went out to war against the Philistines, and camped by the Stone of help. And the Philistines came to Aphec, And put their army in array against Israel. And when they had joined battle, Israel turned their backs to the Philistines, and there was slain in that fight here and there in the fields about four thousand men. And the people returned to the camp: and the ancients of Israel said: Why hath the Lord defeated us today before the Philistines? Let us fetch unto us the ark of the covenant of the Lord from Silo, and let it come in the midst of us, that it may save us from the hand of our enemies.

℟. The whole assembly of the children of Israel shall kill the lamb toward the evening of the Passover. * And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

℟. And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

LESSON II

1 Sam 5:4-11

So the people sent to Silo, and they brought from thence the ark of the covenant of the Lord of hosts sitting upon the cherubims: and the two sons of Heli, Ophni and Phinees, were with the ark of the covenant of God. And when the ark of the covenant of the Lord was come into the camp, all Israel shouted with a great shout, and the earth rang again. And the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, and they said: What is this noise of a great shout in the camp of the Hebrews? And they understood that the ark of the Lord was come into the camp.

to us: for there was no such great joy yesterday and the day before: Woe to us. Who shall deliver us from the hand of these high gods? these are the gods that struck Egypt with all the plagues in the desert. Take courage and behave like men, ye Philistines: lest you come to be servants to the Hebrews, as they have served you: take courage and fight. So the Philistines fought, and Israel was overthrown, and every man fled to his own dwelling: and there was an exceeding great slaughter; for there fell of Israel thirty thousand footmen.
And the ark of God was taken: and the two sons of Heli, Ophni and Phinees, were slain.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom
Patriarch of Constantinople.*

60th Homily to the people of Antioch.

His Word saith: "This is My Body." This we confess, and believe, and, with spiritual eyes, do see.

lectuálibus ipsum óculis intueámur. Nihil enim sensibile nobis Christus trádidit; sed sensibílibus quidem rebus, at ómnia intelligibília. Itidem et in baptísmate: per rem nempe sensibilem, aquam, donum confér-tur; intelligíbile vero quod perfícitur, generátio et renovátio. Si enim incorpóreus esses, nuda et incorpórea tibi dedísset ipse dona; sed quóniam ánima córpori consérta est, in sensibílibus intelligibília tibi præbet. Quot nunc dicunt: Vellem ipsíus formam aspícere, figúram, vestiménta, calceaménta? Ecce eum vides, ipsum tangis, ipsum mandúcas. Et tu quidem vestiménta cupis vidére; ipse vero tibi concédit non tantum vidére, verum et manducáre, et tângere, et intra te súmere.

℟. Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

LECTIO V

Igitur accédát nemo cum náusea, nemo resólutus; omnes accénsi, omnes fervéntes et excitáti. Nam si Judæi stantes, et calceaménta in pédibus habéntes, et báculos mánibus gestántes, agnum cum festinatióne comedébant; te multo magis opórtet esse solértem. Nam illi quidem in Palæstínam erant profectúri, et proptérea viatórum figúram habébant: tu vero debes in cælum migráre. Quaprópter in ómnibus opórtet te vigiláre; nec enim parva pœna propónitur indígne suméntibus. Cógita quantum advérsus proditórem indignáris, et contra eos qui illum crucifixerunt: itaque consídera, ne tu quoque sis reus córporis et sánguinis Christi. Illi sanctíssimum corpus occidérunt, tu vero pollúta súscipis ánima, post tot benefícia.

Christ hath not left unto us Himself in such form as that we can see, hear, touch, smell, or taste Him and yet hath He left Himself unto us in things which we can see, hear, touch, smell, and taste, and which all men may understand. Thus also is it in baptism by mean of water, which men perceive outwardly, is given unto them a gift which they can grasp only inwardly, that is, a new birth. If we had no bodies, then would these things be given us without any outward and visible signs, but since we are here made up of souls and bodies, there are given unto our souls gifts which they can grasp, in outward signs which our bodies may perceive. How many there be which say I would that I could see His comely presence, His Face, His garments, even His shoes Behold, thou dost see and touch Him, yea, thou dost feed upon Him. And wouldest thou behold His raiment Lo, He hath given unto thee not only to behold it, but to feed upon it, and handle it, and take it into thyself.

℟. As they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blest it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said: * Take, eat this is My Body.

℟. Take, eat this is My Body.

LESSON V

At this table of the Lord let none dare to draw near with squeamishness or carelessness. Let all be fiery, all hot, all roused. To the Jews it was commanded touching the Paschal lamb, (Exod. xii. 11): "And thus shall ye eat it with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand and ye shall eat it in haste it is the Lord's Passover." But thou needest to be more watchful than they. They were just about to travel from Egypt to Palestine, and therefore they bore the guise of travellers but the journey that lieth before thee is from earth to heaven. And therefore it behoveth thee in all things to be on thy guard, for the punishment of him that eateth or drinketh unworthily is no light one (1 Cor. xi. 27.) Bethink thee how thou art indignant against him which betrayed, and them that crucified the Lord and look to it well that Neque enim illi satis fuit, hóminem fieri, cólaphis cædi, et crucifígi; verum et semetípsum nobis commíscet; et non fide tantum, verum et ipsa re, nos suum éfficit corpus.

R. Accépit Jesus cálicem, postquam cenávit, dicens: Hic calix novum testaméntum est in meo sángine: * Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

Ÿ. Memória memor ero, et tabéscet in me ánima mea.

R. Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

Quo non opórtet ígitur esse puriorem, tali fruéntem sacrificio? quo solári rádio non splendidiorem manum, carnem hanc dividentem? os quod igni spiritali replétur, linguam quæ treméndo nimis sángine rubéscit? Cógita quali sis insignítus honóre, quali mensa fruáris. Quod Angeli vidéntes horréscunt, neque líbere audent intuéri propter emicántem inde splendórem; hoc nos páscimur, huic nos unímur, et facti sumus unum Christi corpus, et una caro. Quis loquétur poténtias Dómini, audítas fáciat omnes laudes ejus? Quis pastor oves próprio pascit cruóre? Et quid dico, pastor? Matres multæ sunt, quæ post partus dolóres, fílios áliis tradunt nutrícibus. Hoc autem ipse non est passus; sed ipse nos próprio sángine pascit, et per ómnia nos sibi coagméntat.

R. Ego sum panis vitæ; patres vestri manducavérunt manna in desérto, et mórtui sunt: * Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

Ÿ. Ego sum panis vivus, qui de cælo descénderi: si quis manducáverit ex hoc pane, vivet in ætérnum.

R. Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

thou also be not “Guilty of the Body and Blood of the Lord.” As for them, they slew His Most Holy Body but thou, after all that He hath done for thee, dost thrust Him into thy polluted soul. For His love, it was not enough to be made Man, to be buffeted, and to be crucified He hath also mingled Himself with us, by making us His Body, and that not by faith only, but verily and indeed.

R. Jesus took the cup, after supper, saying: This cup is the New Testament in My Blood. * This do in remembrance of Me.

Ÿ. My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is humbled in me.

R. This do in remembrance of Me.

LESSON VI

Anything be purer than that man ought to be, who eateth of this great Sacrifice Can sun-beam be clearer than that hand ought to be which breaketh this Flesh? that mouth, which is filled with that spiritual fire? that tongue, which is reddened by that Blood, awful exceedingly? That whereon the Angels quail to look, neither dare to gaze steadfastly upon It, because of the blinding glory that shineth therefrom, upon This we feed, with This we become one, and are made one body of Christ, and one flesh. “Who can utter the mighty acts of the Lord; who can show forth all His praise?” (Ps. cv. 2.) Where is the shepherd which feedeth his flock with his own blood Nay, why should I say, shepherd Many mothers there be, who after all the pains of travail, give their own little ones to strangers to nurse. But so would not He, but feedeth us with His Own Blood, and maketh us to grow up in His Own substance.

R. I am that Bread of life. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. * This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

Ÿ. I am the living Bread Which came down from heaven if any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for ever.

R. This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

At contra, spiritáles delíciæ, cum non habéntur, in fastídió sunt; cum vero habéntur, in desidério: tantóque a comedénte ámplius esuriúntur, quanto et ab esuriénte ámplius comedúntur. In illis appetítus placet, experiéntia dísplicet; in istis appetítus saturitátem, satúritas fastídium génerat: in istis autem appetítus saturitátem, satúritas appetítum parit.

Augent enim spiritáles delíciæ desidérium in mente, dum sátiant: quia quanto magis eárum sapor percípitur, eo ámplius cognóscitur quod avidius amétur; et idcirco non hábitæ amári non possunt, quia eárum sapor ignorátur. LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 14:16-24

At that time: Jesus spake unto the Pharisees this parable: A certain man made a great supper, and bade many. And so on.

36th upon the Gospels

Dearly beloved brethren, between the dainties of the body and the dainties of the mind there is this difference, that the dainties of the body, when we lack them, raise up a great hunger after them, and when we devour them, straightway our fulness worketh in us niceness. But about the dainties of the mind we are nice while as yet we lack them, and when we fill ourselves with them, then are we an-hungered after them, and the more, being an-hungered, we feed thereon, the more are we an-hungered thereafter. In the bodily dainties, the hunger is keener than the fullness, but in the spiritual the fulness is keener than the hunger. In the bodily, hunger gendereth fullness, and fulness niceness in the spiritual, hunger indeed gendereth fullness, but fullness gendereth hunger.

- R. He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, * Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.
 ✠. What nation is there so great, who hath gods so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is to us
 R. Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

LESSON VIII

Spiritual dainties, in the very eating, do stir up the keenness of hunger in the mind which they fill, for, the more we taste their sweetness, the better we know how well they deserve to be loved and, if we taste them not, we cannot love them, for we know not how sweet they be. And who can love that whereof he knoweth nothing? Hence saith the Psalmist "O taste and see that the Lord is good,"

Dóminus. Ac si apérte dicat: Suavitatem ejus non cognóscitis, si hanc mínime gustátis; sed cibum vitæ ex paláto cordis tángite, ut probántes ejus dulcédinem, amáre valeátis. Has autem homo delícias tunc amísit, cum in paradíso peccávit; extra éxiit, cum os a cibo ætérnæ dulcédinis clausit.

R. Homo quidam fecit coenam magnam, et misit servum suum hora coenæ dícere invitátis ut venírent, * Quia paráta sunt ómnia.

V. Veníte, comédite panem meum, et bíbite vinum quod míscui vobis.

R. Quia paráta sunt ómnia.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Quia paráta sunt ómnia.

LECTIO IX

Unde nos quoque, nati in hujus peregrinationis ærúmna, huc fastidiósi jam vénimus, nescimus quid desideráre debeamus. Tantóque se ámplius fastídi nostri morbus exággerat, quanto se magis ab esu illíus dulcédinis ánimus elóngat; et eo jam intérnas delícias non áppetit, quo eas comédere, diu longéque desuévit. Fastídio ergo nostro tabéscimus, et longa inédiæ peste fatigámur. Et quia gustáre intus nólumus parátam dulcédinem, amámus foris míseri famem nostram.

Te Deum

(Ps. xxxiii. 9,) that is, as it were, “If ye taste not, ye shall not see His goodness but let your heart once taste the bread of life, and then indeed, having tasted and proved His sweetness, ye shall be able to love Him.” But these were the dainties which man lost when he sinned in Eden, and when he had shut his own mouth against the sweet bread whereof if any man eat he shall live for ever, he forsook paradise.

R. A certain man made a great supper, and sent his servant at suppertime to say to them that were bidden: Come * For all things are now ready.

V. Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled for you.

R. For all things are now ready.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. For all things are now ready

LESSON IX

And we that, from the first man, are born under the afflictions of this pilgrimage, are come into the world smitten with niceness we know not what we ought to want, and the disease of our niceness groweth the worse, as our soul draweth itself the more away from that bread of sweetness. We are no longer an-hungered after inward dainties, since we have lost the use of feeding on them. And so in our niceness we starve, and the sickness of long famishing maketh prey of our health. We will not eat of that inward sweetness which is made ready for us, and being enamoured only of things outward we sink into the wretchedness of loving starvation.

Aggraváta est autem manus Dómini super Azótios, et demolítus est eos. Et ebulliérunt villæ et agri in médio regiónis illíus, et nati sunt mures, et facta est confúsio mortis magnæ in civitáte. Vidéntes autem viri Azótii hujuscémodi plagam dixerunt: Non máneat arca Dei Israël apud nos, quóniam dura est manus ejus super nos et super Dagon deum nostrum. And when the Azotians arose early the next day, behold Dagon lay upon his face on the ground before the ark of the Lord: and they took Dagon, and set him again in his place. And the next day again, when they rose in the morning, they found Dagon lying upon his face on the earth before the ark of the Lord: and the head of Dagon, and both the palms of his hands were cut off upon the threshold: And only the stump of Dagon remained in its place.

R. The whole assembly of the children of Israel shall kill the lamb toward the evening of the Passover. * And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

Ÿ. Even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us therefore let us keep the feast with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

R. And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

LESSON II

1 Sam 5:6-8

And the hand of the Lord was heavy upon the Azotians, and he destroyed them, and afflicted Azotus and the coasts thereof with emerods. And in the villages and fields in the midst of that country, there came forth a multitude of mice, and there was the confusion of a great mortality in the city. And the men of Azotus seeing this kind of plague, said: The ark of the God of Israel shall not stay with us: for his hand is heavy upon us, and upon Dagon our god. And sending, they gathered together all the lords of the Philistines to them, and said: What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And the Gethrites answered: Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about.

R. Ye shall eat flesh, and shall be filled with bread. * This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

Ÿ. Moses gave you not that Bread from heaven, but My Father giveth you the true Bread from heaven.

R. This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

Misérunt ergo arcam Dei in Accaron. Cumque venísset arca Dei in Accaron, exclamavérunt Accaronítæ dicéntes: Adduxérunt ad nos arcam Dei Israël, ut interficiat nos et pópulum nostrum. Misérunt itaque et congregavérunt omnes sátrapas Philisthinórum, qui dixerunt: Dimíttite arcam Dei Israël, et revertátur in locum suum et non interficiat nos cum pópulo nostro. LESSON III

1 Sam 5:8-12

And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about. And while they were carrying it about, the hand of the Lord came upon every city with an exceeding great slaughter: and he smote the men of every city, both small and great, and they had emerods in their secret parts. And the Gethrites consulted together, and made themselves seats of skins. Therefore they sent the ark of God into Accaron. And when the ark of God was come into Accaron, the Accaronites cried out, saying: They have brought the ark of the God of Israel to us, to kill us and our people. They sent therefore and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines: and they said: Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it return into its own place, and not kill us and our people. For there was the fear of death in every city, and the hand of God was exceeding heavy.

R. Elijah looked, and, behold, there was a cake baked on the coals at his head, and he arose, and did eat and drink; * And went in the strength of that meat [forty days and forty nights] unto the mount of God.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom,
Patriarch of Constantinople
Continuation of the 60th Homily*

In this mysterious Sacrament Christ doth mingle Himself with all and each of His faithful ones. They are His children, and He nurseth them Himself, and giveth them not over unto another, herein again assuring us that the Flesh He hath taken unto Himself is ours. We then, who have been deemed meet to be treated with such love and such honour, let us be wakeful See ye not how eagerly the sucklings seize on the breasts, how readily they fix their mouths on the paps Let us, with like eagerness, Nullus itaque Judas assístat, nullus avárus; nam tales mensa non súscipit. Si quis est discípulus, adsit; ait enim: Cum discípulis meis fácio Pascha. Hæc est illa mensa, et minus nihil habet. Non enim illam quidem Christus, hanc autem homo pérficit; verum et hanc ipse quoque.

R. Cenántibus illis, accépit Jesus panem, et benedíxit, ac fregit, dedítque discípulis suis, et ait: * Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

draw nigh to that Table, and suck at that spiritual Cup. Yea, let us prize that gracious Food as the suckling doth its mother's breast, and hold it the great woe of life to be cut off from that Banquet. Here there are set before us no works of man's power He That worked at that Last Supper, the Same worketh the same here still. As for us Priests, we hold the place of His ministers, but He Which halloweth and changeth is He. Hither let there draw nigh no Judas, nor covetous one this is no Table for him. But he which is Christ's disciple, let him come for the Lord saith "I will keep the Passover with My disciples," (Matth. xxvi. 18.) This is that Passover Table, and it is all Christ's what is wrought there is not some of it Christ's work, and some of it man's work, but it is all His work and not another's.

R. As they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blest it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said: * Take, eat this is My Body.

Y. The men of my tabernacle said: O that we had of his flesh, we cannot be satisfied.

R. Take, eat this is My Body.

Wither let there draw nigh none brutal, none cruel, none merciless in good sooth, none unclean. I speak to all that take that Holy Communion, and to you also, O ye that do administer the same To you now I turn my speech, to warn you with how great care that Gift is to be given. No slight vengeance is that which awaiteth you if ye admit for a partaker at the Lord's Table the sinner whose guiltiness ye know. At your hands will his blood be required. If a man be a General, a Governor, a crowned Monarch, yet if he come there unworthily, forbid him thou hast greater power than he. To this end hath God exalted you to the honour ye hold, that ye may judge in such matters. This office is your dignity, this is your strength, this is all your crown, this, and not the going about in white robes and glittering vestments. And thou, O layman when thou seest the Priest making the oblation, think not that He Which is then the real Worker is such a Priest as thou seest, but know of

Let us hear, all of us, both Priests and laymen, let us hear What Food it is whereof we are made worthy let us hear, I say, and let us quake. The Lord satisfieth us with His Own holy Flesh, setting Himself slain before us. What excuse therefore shall we have, if, being so fed as we are, we sin as we do If, eating of the Lamb, we are still wolves If, pastured as the sheep of the flock, we raven like lions This mysterious Sacrament forbiddeth unto us not outrage only, but any the least enmity it is the Mystery of peace. Upon the Jews God laid it to make year by year by solemn festivals a yearly commemoration of His mercies unto them, but upon thee to do this in remembrance of His love to thee, day by day. To this Table then let there draw nigh no Judas Iscariot, no Simon Magus. These men fell through covetousness let us fly that bottomless pit.

LECTIO VIII

John 6:56-59

At that time, Jesus said unto the multitudes of the Jews: My Flesh is meat indeed, and My Blood is drink indeed. And so on.

26th Tract on John.*

“This is the bread which cometh down from heaven,” (v. 50.) By “this bread” the Lord here signifieth both the manna, and That Which we receive at the Altar of God. Both these are, as it were, Sacramental signs, differing indeed somewhat in their outward and visible part, but pointing to the Same Thing signified. Hear what the Apostle saith: “Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea, and did all eat the same spiritual meat.” (1 Cor. x. 1-3.) This meat was the same spiritually but not really they ate manna we eat Something else. Spiritually they ate What we eat but our fathers not their fathers; unto whom we are like not unto whom they are like. And it is added “And did all drink the same Spiritual drink.” They drank one thing, and we drank Another, the difference being in the outer show, the sameness in that the Same Thing is pointed to by both. And what was that Same Drink? “They drank of the spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ.” Him did bread and rock alike signify. The Rock was a figure, but by the Word and in the Flesh there is the very Christ Himself. And how came they to drink of that rock “Moses lift up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice, and the water came out abundantly.” (Num. xx. 11.) These two strokes of the rod upon the rock are a figure of the two beams whereof the Cross was made.

℞. He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, * Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

℞. Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

LESSON VIII

Norunt fidèles corpus Christi, si corpus Christi non négligant esse. Fiant corpus Christi, si volunt vivere de Spíritu Christi. De Spíritu Christi non vivit, nisi corpus Christi. Intelligite, fratres mei, quid dixerim. Homo es, et spíritum habes, et corpus habes. Spíritum dico, quæ ánima vocátur, qua constas quod homo es; constas enim ex ánima et corpore. Habes enim spíritum invisibilem, corpus visibile. Dic mihi, quid ex quo vivat? Spíritus tuus vivit ex corpore tuo, an corpus tuum ex spíritu tuo? Respóndet omnis, qui vivit: qui autem hoc non potest respondére, nescio si vivit. Quid respóndet omnis, qui vivit? Corpus útique meum vivit de spíritu meo. Vis ergo et tu vivere de Spíritu Christi? In corpore esto Christi.

R. Misit me vivens Pater, et ego vivo propter Patrem: * Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

V. Cibávit illum Dóminus pane vitæ et intelléctus.

R. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

LECTIO IX

Numquid enim corpus meum vivit de spíritu tuo? Meum vivit de spíritu meo, et tuum de spíritu tuo. Non potest vivere corpus Christi, nisi de Spíritu Christi. Inde est quod expónens nobis Apóstolus Paulus hunc panem: Unus panis, inquit, unum corpus multi sumus. O sacraméntum pietátis, o signum unitátis, o vínculo caritátis! Qui vult vivere, habet ubi vivat, habet unde vivat. Accédát, credát, incorporétur, ut vivificétur. Non abhórreat a compáge membrórum, non sit putre membrum quod ressecári mereátur, non sit distórtum de quo erubescátur. Sit pulchrum, sit aptum, sit sanum: háreat corpore, vivat Deo de Deo. Nunc labóret in terra, ut póstea regnet in cælo.

Christ's faithful ones discern the Lord's Body while they remain watchful members of His Body. They remain members of His Body as long as they will to live according to His Spirit. The Spirit of Christ giveth life to nothing but the body of Christ. Now, my brethren, understand what I am going to say. Thou art a man, and hast a body and a spirit. By spirit I mean the soul, which causeth thee to be a man at all. Thou art a man, made up of soul and body. thy spirit is unseen, thy body seen. Tell me, which of them is it which giveth animation to the other Doth thy spirit derive animation from thy body, or thy body from thy spirit Every one who liveth will answer for if any one cannot answer this, I know not if he be alive. What will whosoever hath life answer: "Verily, it is my spirit which doth animate my body." Wilt thou then live by the Spirit of Christ? Be of the Body of Christ.

R. As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, * So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

V. With the bread of life and understanding hath the Lord fed him.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

LESSON IX

Is it not my spirit which doth animate my body My spirit doth animate my body, and thy spirit doth animate thy body. The Body of Christ liveth not save by the Spirit of Christ. Hence it is that the Apostle Paul saith, touching this Bread: "We, being many, are one bread, and one body, for we are all partakers of that one Bread." (1 Cor. x. 17.) O what a Sacrament of love O what a seal of union O what a bond of charity He that willeth to live hath here where to live, and whence to live. Let him come near, let him believe, let him enter into that Body, that he may be quickened. Let him not sever himself from the fit joining-together of all the members let him not be as a mortifying limb, that must needs be cut off, nor a mis-shapen limb, a cause to blush. Let him be goodly, and useful, and healthy. Let him cleave unto the body let him

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 6:1-3

Now the ark of God was in the land of the Philistines seven months. And the Philistines called for the priests and the diviners, saying: What shall we do with the ark of the Lord? tell us how we are to send it back to its place? And they said: If you send back the ark of the God of Israel, send it not away empty, but render unto him what you owe for sin, and then you shall be healed: and you shall know why his hand departeth not from you

℞. The whole assembly of the children of Israel shall kill the lamb toward the evening of the Passover. * And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

℞. And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

LESSON II

1 Sam 6:6-10

Why do you harden your hearts, as Egypt and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? did not he, after he was struck, then let them go, and they departed? Now therefore take and make a new cart: and two kine that have calved, on which there hath come no yoke, tie to the cart, and shut up their calves at home. And you shall take the ark of the Lord, and lay it on the cart, and the vessels of gold, which you have paid him for sin, you shall put into a little box, at the side thereof: and send it away that it may go. And you shall look: and if it go up by the way of his own coasts towards Bethsames, then he hath done us this great evil: but if not, we shall

- R. This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

LESSON III

1 Sam 6:12-15

And the kine took the straight way that leadeth to Bethsames, and they went along the way, lowing as they went: and turned not aside neither to the right hand nor to the left: and the lords of the Philistines followed them as far as the borders of Bethsames. Now the Bethsamites were reaping wheat in the valley: and lifting up their eyes they saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it. And the cart came into the field of Josue a Bethsamite, and stood there. And there was a great stone, and they cut in pieces the wood of the cart, and laid the kine upon it a holocaust to the Lord. And the Levites took down the ark of God.

LESSON IV

From the Letter written to Caecilius by the Holy Martyr Cyprian, Bishop of Carthage.

Liber 2. Epistola 3. sub init.

In sacerdote Melchisedech sacrificii Domíni-ci sacraméntum præfigurátum vidémus, se-cúndum quod Scriptúra divína testátur, et dicit: Et Melchisedech rex Salem proutulit panem et vinum. Fuit autem sacerdos Dei summi, et benedixit Abraham. Quod autem Melchisedech typum Christi portáret, declárat in Psalmis Spíritus Sanctus, ex persóna Patris ad Fílium dicens: Ante lucíferum génui te: Tu es sacerdos in ætérnum secúndum órdinem Melchisedech. Qui ordo útique hic est, de sacrificio illo véniens et inde descén-dens, quod Melchisedech sacerdos Dei summi fuit, quod panem et vinum obtulit, quod Abraham benedixit.

R. Cenántibus illis, accépit Jesus panem, et benedixit, ac fregit, dedítque discipulis suis, et ait: * Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

V. Dixérunt viri tabernáculi mei: Quis det de cárnibus ejus, ut saturémur?

R. Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

LECTIO V

Nam quis magis sacerdos Dei summi, quam Dóminus noster Jesus Christus? qui sacrificícium Deo Patri obtulit; et obtulit hoc idem, quod Melchisedech obtulerat, id est, panem et vinum, suum scílicet corpus et sanguínem.
Et circa Abraham benedíctio illa præcedens, ad nostrum pópulum pertinébat. Nam si Abraham Deo crédidit, et deputátum est ei ad justítiam; útique quisquis Deo credit, et fide vivit, justus invenítur, et jam pridem in Abraham fidéli benedíctus et justificátus osténditur, sicut beátus Apóstolus Paulus probat, dicens: Crédidit Abraham Deo, et deputátum est ei ad justítiam. Cognóscitis ergo quia qui ex fide sunt, hi sunt fílii Abrahæ. Próvidens autem Scriptúra, quia ex fide justificat gentes Deus, prænnuntiávit Abrahæ quia benedicéntur in illo omnes gentes.

Bk. ii. Ep. 3

In the deed of the Priest Melchisedek we see a type of the Sacrament of the Lord's Sacrifice. For thus it is written in the writings of God "And Melchisedek King of Salem brought forth bread and wine for he was the Priest of the Most High God and he blessed Abraham." (Gen. xiv. 18.) That Melchisedek was a type of Christ, the Holy Ghost Himself doth testify in the Psalms, where the First Person of the Holy Trinity, even the Father, is set before us as saying unto the Second Person, that is, the Son
"Before the daystar have I begotten thee. Thou art a Priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedek." (cix. 3, 4.) And verily that sameness of order cometh of this sacrifice, and procedeth from this, that Melchisedek was the Priest of the Most High God that he offered bread and wine and that he blessed Abraham.

R. As they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blest it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said: * Take, eat this is My Body.

V. The men of my tabernacle said: O that we had
of his flesh, we cannot be satisfied.

R. Take, eat this is My Body.

LESSON V

What Priest of the Most High God is there, more so than is our Lord Jesus Christ He Who hath made an offering unto God the Father, and the same offering that Melchisedek made, bread and wine, that is to say, His Own Flesh and His Own Blood. And, as touching Abraham, that ancient blessing was spoken likewise by fore-knowledge upon us. For if Abraham believed God and it was accounted to him for righteousness, verily, whosoever believeth God and liveth by faith, the same is found righteous, and is shown unto us that he is already blessed in faithful Abraham, and justified as the Apostle Paul proveth, where he saith: "Abraham believed God and it was accounted unto him for righteousness. Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached

℞. Accépit Jesus cálicem, postquam cenávit, dicens: Hic calix novum testaméntum est in meo sáanguine: * Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

℣. Memória memor ero, et tabéscet in me ánima mea.

℞. Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

LECTIO VI

Ut ergo in Génesi per Melchisedech sacerdotem posset rite celebrári, præcédit ante imágo sacrificií, in pane et vino scílicet constitúta. Quam rem perficiens et adimplens Dóminus, panem et cálicem mixtum vino obtulit; et, qui est plenitúdo, veritátem præfigurátæ imáginis adimplévit. Sed et per Salomónem Spíritus Sanctus typum Domínici sacrificií ante præmónstrat, immolátæ hóstiæ et panis et vini, sed et altáris et Apostolorum fáciens mentiónem: Sapiéntia, inquit, ædificávit sibi domum, et súbdidit colúmnas septem; mactávit suas hóstias, míscuit in cratére vinum suum, et parávit mensam suam. Et misit servos suos cónvocans cum excélsa prædicatióne ad cratérem, dicens: Qui est insípiens, declínet ad me. Et egéntibus sensu dixit: Veníte, édite de meis pánibus, et bíbite vinum quod míscui vobis.

℞. Ego sum panis vitæ; patres vestri manducavérunt manna in desérto, et mórtui sunt: * Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

℣. Ego sum panis vivus, qui de cælo descénde: si quis manducáverit ex hoc pane, vivet in ætérnum.

℞. Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

before the Gospel unto Abraham, saying In thee shall all nations be blessed.” (Gal. iii. 6-8.)

℞. Jesus took the cup, after supper, saying: This cup is the New Testament in My Blood. * This do in remembrance of Me.

℣. My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is humbled in me.

℞. This do in remembrance of Me.

LESSON VI

In Genesis, therefore, in order that the Priest Melchisedek might in due order pronounce the blessing upon Abraham, there was first offered a typical sacrifice, consisting of bread and wine. This was the offering which our Lord Jesus Christ completed and fulfilled, when He offered up bread and a cup of wine mingled with water. This fulfilment by Him Who came to fulfill (Matth. v. 17,) utterly satisfied the truth of the image which had gone before. The Holy Ghost doth by Solomon also clearly foreshadow, as it were in a parable, the Lord's Sacrifice, pointing to the victim slain, and the bread and the wine, and the Altar likewise, and the Apostles as it is written “Wisdom hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars she hath killed her beasts, she hath mingled her wine, she hath also furnished her table. She hath sent forth her servants, she crieth upon the highest places of the city, saying Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither unto me. As for them that want understanding, she saith to them. Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled for you.” (Prov. ix. 1-5.)

℞. I am that Bread of life. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. * This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

℣. I am the living Bread Which came down from heaven if any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for ever.

℞. This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

LECTIO VII

Lectio sancti Evangelíi secúndum Joánnem

Joannes 6:56-59

In illo témpore: Dixit Jesus turbis Judæorum: Caro mea vere est cibus, et sanguis meus vere est potus. Et reliqua.

*De Homilia sancti Augustini Episcopi
Tractatus 26 in Joánnem, circa médium*

Non sicut manducavérunt patres vestri manna, et mórtui sunt. Quare manducavérunt, et mórtui sunt? Quia quod vidébant, credébant; quod non vidébant, non intelligébant. Ideo patres vestri, quia símiles estis illórum. Nam quantum pértinet, fratres mei, ad mortem istam visibilem et corporálem, numquid nos non mórimur, qui manducámus panem de cælo descendéntem? Sic sunt mórtui et illi, quemádmódum et nos sumus moritúri; quantum áttinet, ut dixi, ad mortem hujus córporis visibilem atque carnálem.

R. Qui mandúcat meam carnem et bibit meum sánguinem, * In me manet, et ego in eo.

ψ. Non est ália nátio tam grandis, quæ hábeat deos appropinquánte sibi, sicut Deus noster adest nobis.

R. In me manet, et ego in eo.

LECTIO VIII

Quantum autem pértinet ad illam mortem, de qua terret Dóminus, qua mórtui sunt patres istórum; manducávit manna et Móyses, manducávit manna et Aaron, manducávit manna et Phínees, manducavérunt ibi multi, qui Dómino placuérunt, et mórtui non sunt. Quare? Quia visibilem cibum spiritaliter intellexérunt, spiritaliter esuriérunt, spiritaliter gustavérunt, ut spiritaliter satiaréntur. Nam et nos hódie accípimus visibilem cibum; sed áliud est sacraméntum, áliud virtus sacraménti.

R. This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 6:56-59

At that time: Jesus said unto the multitudes of the Jews: "My Flesh is meat indeed, and My Blood is drink indeed." And so on.

*Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo.
26/A Tract on John.*

"Not as your fathers did eat manna, and are dead." Wherefore did they eat and die Because they believed only that which they saw and that which they saw not, they understood not. Therefore were they your fathers, because ye are like unto them. Doth this death, my brethren, mean that death which is outward and bodily And do not we also die, who eat of that Bread Which cometh down from heaven That death died they, and so shall we also, as far, as I have said, as is meant that death which is outward and bodily.

R. He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, * Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

ψ. What nation is there so great, who hath gods so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is to us

R. Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

LESSON VIII

But the death whereof the Lord doth sound the alarm, the death that their fathers died, is another death than that which is outward and bodily. Moses ate manna, Aaron ate manna, Phinehas ate manna, many ate manna in whom the Lord was well pleased and these are not dead. Wherefore Because they understood spiritually that outward bread, spiritually hungered thereafter, spiritually tasted thereof, and spiritually were satisfied therewith. So also do we this day feed on a visible food, but the Sacrament is one thing, and the grace of the Sacrament is another.

R. Misit me vivens Pater, et ego vivo propter Patrem: * Et qui manducat me, vivet propter me.

Y. Cibavit illum Dóminus pane vitæ et intelléctus.

R. Et qui manducat me, vivet propter me.

Y. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et qui manducat me, vivet propter me.

LECTIO IX

Quam multi de altári accípiunt, et moriúntur, et accipiéndó moriúntur! Unde dicit Apóstolus: Judícium sibi manducat et bibit. Nonne buccélla Domínica venénium fuit Judæ? Et tamen accépit. Et cum accépit, in eum inimícus intrávit; non quia malum accépit, sed quia bonum male malus accépit. Vidéte ergo, fratres, panem cæléstem spiritáliter manducáte, innocéntiam ad altáre appor-táte. Peccáta, etsi sunt quotidíana, vel non sint mortífera; ántequam ad altáre accedátis, atténdite quod dicátis: Dimítte nobis débíta nostra, sicut et nos dimíttimus debitóribus nostris. Si dimíttis, dimittétur tibi: secúrus accéde, panis est, non venénium.

Te Deum

R. As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, * So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

Y. With the bread of life and understanding hath the Lord fed him.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

Y. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

LESSON IX

That eateth and drinketh unworthily eateth and drinketh damnation to himself.” ~(1 Cor. xi. 29.) Is it not written “When Jesus had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon, and after the sop Satan entered into him” (John xiii. 26, 27.) And yet he took it. And when he had eaten it, the enemy entered in and possessed him. Not because what he ate was evil, but because he, being evil, dared to eat that which was good. Look to it well, then, brethren, that ye take spiritually the Bread Which cometh down from heaven. Bring innocency with you to the Altar. Though your sins be daily, let them not be deadly. Before ye draw near to the Altar, think well what it is that ye say “Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us.” “For, if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you” (Matth. vi. 14) and ye may draw near boldly, for unto you It is Bread, and not poison.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 6:19-21; 7:1

Percússit autem de viris Bethsamítibus, eo quod vidíssent arcam Dómini; et percússit de pópulo septuagínta viros et quinquagínta míllia plebis. Luxítque pópulus, eo quod Dóminus percussísset plebem plaga magna. Et dixerunt viri Bethsamíta: Quis póterit stare in conspéctu Dómini Dei sancti hujus?

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 6:19-21; 7:1

But he slew of the men of Bethsames, because they had seen the ark of the Lord: and he slew of the people seventy men, and fifty thousand of the common people. And the people lamented, because the Lord had smitten the people with a great slaughter. And the men of Bethsames said: Who shall be able to stand before the Lord this Venérunt ergo viri Cariathíarim, et reduxérunt arcam Dómini, et intulérunt eam in domum Abínadab in Gábaa: Eleázarus autem fílium ejus sanctificavérunt, ut custodíret arcam Dómini.

R. Immolábit hædum multitúdo filiórum Israël ad vésperam Paschæ: * Et edent carnes et ázymos panes.

Ψ. Pascha nostrum immolátus est Christus: itaque epulémur in ázymis sinceritátis et veritátis.

R. Et edent carnes et ázymos panes.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 7:2-4

Et factum est, ex qua die mansit arca Dómini in Cariathíarim, multiplicáti sunt dies (erat quippe jam annus vigésimus), et requiévít omnis domus Israël post Dóminum. Ait autem Sámuel ad univérsam domum Israël dicens: Si in toto corde vestro revertímini ad Dóminum, auférte deos aliénos de médio vestri Báalim et Astaroth et præparáte corda vestra Dómino et servíte ei soli, et éruet vos de manu Philísthiim. Abstulérunt ergo fílii Israël Báalim et Astaroth, et serviérunt Dómino soli.

R. Comedétis carnes, et saturabímini pánibus: * Iste est panis, quem dedit vobis Dóminus ad vescéndum.

Ψ. Non Móyses dedit vobis panem de cælo, sed Pater meus dat vobis panem de cælo verum.

R. Iste est panis, quem dedit vobis Dóminus ad vescéndum.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 7:5-8

Dixit autem Sámuel: Congregáte univérsam Israël in Masphath, ut orem pro vobis Dó-minum? and to whom shall he go up from us? And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Cariathiarim, saying: The Philistines have brought back the ark of the Lord, come ye down and fetch it up to you. So they came as they were bidden, the men of Cariathiarim, and brought back the ark with them, housing it with a certain Abinadab in Gabaa; and they set apart his son Eleazar to keep watch over the Lord's ark.

R. The whole assembly of the children of Israel shall kill the lamb toward the evening of the Passover. * And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

Ψ. Even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us therefore let us keep the feast with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

R. And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

LESSON II

1 Sam 7:2-4

And it came to pass, that from the day the ark of the Lord abode in Cariathiarim days were multiplied, (for it was now the twentieth year,) and all the house of Israel rested following the Lord. And Samuel spoke to all the house of Israel, saying: If you turn to the Lord with all your heart, put away the strange gods from among you, Baalim and Astaroth: and prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only, and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines. Then the children of Israel put away Baalim and Astaroth, and served the Lord only.

R. Ye shall eat flesh, and shall be filled with bread. * This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

Ψ. Moses gave you not that Bread from heaven, but My Father giveth you the true Bread from heaven.

R. This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

LECTIO IV

*Ex libro sancti Ambrósii Epísopi de Sacraméntis
Lib. 4, Cap. 4*

Auctor sacramentórum quis est, nisi Dómi-nus Jesus? De cælo ista sacraménta venérunt. Consílium enim omne de cælo est.
Vere autem magnum est et divínium miráculum, quod pópulo pluit Deus manna de cælo, et non laborábat pópulus, et manducábat. Tu forte dicis: Meus panis est usitátus.
Sed panis iste, panis est ante verba sacramentórum: ubi accésserit consecrátió, de pane fit caro Christi. Hoc ígitur astruámus. Quómodo potest, qui panis est, corpus esse Christi?

ered together to Masphath: and they drew water, and poured it out before the Lord, and they fasted on that day, and they said there: We have sinned against the Lord. And Samuel judged the children of Israel in Masphath. And the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Masphath, and the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard this, they were afraid of the Philistines. And they said to Samuel: Cease not to cry to the Lord our God for us, that he may save us out of the hand of the Philistines.

baked on the coals at his head, and he arose,
and did eat and drink; * And went in the strength of that meat [forty days and forty nights] unto the mount of God.

days and forty nights] unto the mount of God.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. And went in the strength of that meat [forty days and forty nights] unto the mount of God.

LESSON IV

*From the Book upon the Sacraments written by St.
Ambrose, Bishop of Milan
Bk. iv. ch. 4*

Who invented the Sacraments but the Lord Jesus? The Sacraments came down from heaven, for all counsel is from heaven. Nevertheless, it was a great and wonderful work of God when He rained down manna upon His people, and the people laboured not, and yet were fed. Perchance, thou sayest Here, it is my bread which is used.
But that bread is bread only till the Sacramental words are spoken at the Consecration, instead of bread, there cometh to be the Body of Christ. This therefore let us establish. How cometh it that that which was bread becometh the Body of Christ Through the Consecration. And in what words and in Whose language doth the Consecration take place In those of the Lord Jesus. All the other things which are said (in the Liturgy), the ascrippópulo, pro régibus, pro céteris: ubi veni-tur ut conficiátur veneráble Sacraméntum, jam non suis sermónibus sacérdos, sed útitur sermónibus Christi.

R. Cenántibus illis, accépit Jesus panem, et benedíxit, ac fregit, dedítque discíulis suis, et ait: * Accípite et comédite: hoc
est corpus meum.

ψ. Dixérunt viri tabernáculi mei: Quis det
de cárnibus ejus, ut saturémur?

R. Accípite et comédite: hoc est corpus meum.

LECTIO V

Ergo sermo Christi hoc cónficit Sacraméntum. Quis sermo Christi? Nempe is, quo facta sunt ómnia. Jussit Dóminus, et factum est cælum: jussit Dóminus, et facta est terra:
jussit Dóminus, et facta sunt mária: jussit Dóminus, et omnis creatúra generáta est. Vi-des ergo quam operatórius sit sermo Christi.
Si ergo tanta vis est in sermóne Dómini Jesu, ut incíperent esse quæ non erant; quanto magis operatórius est, ut quæ erant, in áliud commuténtur? Cælum non erat, terra non erat. Sed audi dicéntem: Ipse dixit, et facta sunt: ipse mandávit, et creáta sunt. Ergo ti-bi ut respóndeam, non erat corpus Christi ante consecratióem; sed post consecratiónem dico tibi quod jam corpus est Christi.
Ipse dixit, et factum est: ipse mandávit, et creátum est.

R. Accépit Jesus cálicem, postquam cenávit, dicens: Hic calix novum testaméntum est in meo sáanguine: * Hoc fácite in meam commemoratióem.

ψ. Memória memor ero, et tabéscet in me ánima mea.

R. Hoc fácite in meam commemoratióem.

tion of praise to God (in the Preface), the prayer for the people, for kings, and for others which formeth the first part [of the Canon, these are put in the mouth of the Priest.] But when that point is reached when this worshipful Sacrament is to be consecrated, then the Priest useth no more his own words, but Christ's.

R. As they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blest
it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said: * Take, eat this is My Body.

ψ. The men of my tabernacle said: O that we had
of his flesh, we cannot be satisfied.

R. Take, eat this is My Body.

LESSON V

It is the word of Christ, therefore, Which doth the needful work in this Sacrament. And what is the word of Christ? It is the word of Him at Whose bidding all things were made. The Lord commanded, and the heavens were created the Lord commanded, and the earth was formed the Lord commanded, and the seas were made the Lord commanded, and all creatures sprang into being. Thou seest, then, how mightily working a word is the word of Christ. If then the word of Christ hath such power that it can make that to be which hath never been, wherein doth it appear greater that it maketh one thing to be changed into Another There was once no heaven there was once no sea there was once no earth. But hear him who saith: "He spake, and it was done He commanded, and it stood fast." (Ps. xxxii. 9.) If, then, I am to answer thee, I tell thee, that before the Consecration it is not the Body of Christ, but after the Consecration it is the Body of Christ, for Himself "hath spoken, and it is done He hath commanded, and it standeth fast."

R. Jesus took the cup, after supper, saying: This cup is the New Testament in My Blood. * This do in remembrance of Me.

ψ. My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is humbled in me.

R. This do in remembrance of Me.

LECTIO VI

Jam redi mecum ad propositionem meam. Magnum quidem et venerabile, quod manna Judæis pluit e cælo. Sed intellige quid est amplius, manna de cælo, an corpus Christi? Corpus Christi útique, qui auctor est cæli. Deínde, manna qui manducávit, mórtuus est: qui manducáverit hoc corpus, fiet ei remissio peccatórum, et non moriétur in ætérnum. Ergo non otiose, cum áccipis, tu dicis, Amen; jam in spíritu cónfitens quod accípias corpus Christi. Dicit tibi sacerdos, Corpus Christi; et tu dicis, Amen, hoc est, Verum. Quod confitétur lingua, téneat afféctus.

R. Ego sum panis vitæ; patres vestri manducavérunt manna in deserto, et mórtui sunt: * Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

Ÿ. Ego sum panis vivus, qui de cælo descénde: si quis manducáverit ex hoc pane, vivet in ætérnum.

R. Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

LESSON VI

And now I come back to my text. It is indeed a great and worshipful fact that manna was rained down upon the Jews but, think thou, which was the more great and worshipful, the manna from heaven or the Body of Christ "the Body of that Same Christ by Whom the heavens were made And, again the fathers "did eat manna, and are dead he that eateth of this Bread," (John vi. 58,) It is unto him "the remission of sins," (Matth. xxvi. 28,) and "he shall never die." (John xi. 26.) Therefore it is not idly that, when thou art receiving, thou sayest "Amen" testifying in thine heart that That Which thou art taking is the Body of Christ. The Priest saith unto thee: "The Body of Christ" and thou answerest: "Amen" that is to say, "It is true." What then thy tongue confesseth, let thine heart hold to.

R. I am that Bread of life. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. * This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

Ÿ. I am the living Bread Which came down from heaven if any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for ever.

R. This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 6: 55-59)

At that time, Jesus said unto the multitudes of the Jews: My Flesh is meat indeed, and My Blood is drink indeed. And so on.

Homily by St. Hilary, Bishop of Poitiers.
Bk. viii. on the Trinity)

When we speak concerning the things of God, we must not speak after the manner of men, nor after the manner of the world. Let us read those things which are written, and understand those things enim in nobis Christi veritate quæ dícimus, nisi ab eo dícimus, stulte atque ímpie dícimus. Ipse enim ait: Caro mea vere est esca, et sanguis meus vere est potus. Qui edit carnem meam et bibit sánguinem meum, in me manet, et ego in eo. De veritate carnis et sánguinis non relíctus est ambigéndi locus.

℞. Qui mandúcat meam carnem et bibit meum sánguinem, * In me manet, et ego in eo.

℣. Non est ália nátio tam grandis, quæ hábeat deos appropinquántes sibi, sicut Deus noster adest nobis.

℞. In me manet, et ego in eo.

LECTIO VIII

Nunc enim, et ipsíus Dómini professióne, et fide nostra, vere caro est, et vere sanguis est. Et hæc accépta atque hausta id effíciunt, ut et nos in Christo, et Christus in nobis sit. An ne hoc véritas non est? Contíngat plane his verum non esse, qui Christum Jesum verum esse Deum negant. Est ergo in nobis ipse per carnem, et sumus in eo, dum secum hoc quod nos sumus, in Deo est. Quod autem in eo per sacraméntum comunicátæ carnis et sánguinis simus, ipse testátur, dicens: Et hic mundus jam me non videt, vos autem me vidébitis: quóniam ego vivo, et vos vivétis: quóniam ego in Patre meo, et vos in me, et ego in vobis.

℞. Misit me vivens Pater, et ego vivo propter Patrem: * Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

℣. Cibávit illum Dóminus pane vitæ et intelléctus.

℞. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

LECTIO IX

which we read and then let us act as having a perfect faith. We shall speak but folly and godlessness if we speak concerning the natural truth of Christ in use and have not learnt at Christ's School how we should speak. He Himself saith "My Flesh is meat indeed, and My Blood is drink indeed. He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, dwelleth in Me, and I in him." There is here no room left for doubt as to What is His Flesh and what is His Blood.

℞. He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, * Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

℞. Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

LESSON VIII

Now we know by the declaration of the Lord Himself and by (the teaching of) our Faith, the reality of His Flesh and Blood. And when we eat the One and drink the Other, They work effectually in us to make us dwell in Him and He in us. Is "not this a reality Surely it befalleth not them to find it true, who deny that Christ Jesus is Very God. He is in us by means of His Flesh, and we are in Him when that which we are is with Him in God. That we dwell in Him through that Sacrament wherein His Flesh and Blood are given unto us, He Himself doth testify, where He saith "Yet a little while, and the world seeth Me no more but ye see Me because I live ye shall live also. (At that day ye shall know that) I am in My Father, and ye in Me, and I in you." (John xiv. 19, 20.)

℞. As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, * So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

℣. With the bread of life and understanding hath the Lord fed him.

℞. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

℞. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

LESSON IX

Quod autem in nobis naturalis hæc unitas sit, ipse ita testatus est: Qui edit carnem meam et bibit sanguinem meum, in me manet, et ego in eo. Non enim quis in eo erit, nisi in quo ipse fuerit; ejus tantum in se assumptam habens carnem, qui suam sumpserit. Perfecit autem hujus unitatis sacramentum superius jam docuerat, dicens: Sicut me misit vivens Pater, et ego vivo per Patrem; et qui manducat meam carnem, et ipse vivet per me. Vivit ergo per Patrem: et quo modo per Patrem vivit, eodem modo nos per carnem ejus vivemus.

Te Deum

But that this union in us is a real one, He testifieth thus: "He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, dwelleth in Me, and I in him." For no one dwelleth in Him in whom He doth not dwell, since he which receiveth (the Body of Christ) hath but received that Flesh of (the same nature as) his own, which Christ hath taken into Himself. The mystery of this perfect union He had taught before, when He said: "As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, so, he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me." He therefore liveth by the Father, and, as He liveth by the Father, so shall we live by Him.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 8:4-6

Then all the ancients of Israel being assembled, came to Samuel to Ramatha. And they said to him: Behold thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways: make us a king, to judge us, as all nations have. And the word was displeasing in the eyes of Samuel, that they should say: Give us a king, to judge us. And Samuel prayed to the Lord.

- ℟. The whole assembly of the children of Israel shall kill the lamb toward the evening of the Passover. * And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.
- ℣. Even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us therefore let us keep the feast with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.
- ℟. And they shall eat the flesh, and unleavened bread.

LESSON II

1 Sam 8:7-9

And the Lord said to Samuel: Harken to the voice of the people in all that they say to thee. For they have not rejected thee, but me, that I should not reign over them. According to all their works, they fecérunt a die qua edúxi eos de Ægýpto usque ad diem hanc, sicut dereliquerunt me et serviérunt diis aliénis, sic faciunt étiam tibi. Nunc ergo vocem eórum audi; verúmtamen contestáre eos et prædic eis jus regis, qui regnatúrus est super eos.

From the Sermons of the Blessed Patriarch of Jerusalem Cyril.Catechetical Lectures, 40

The teaching of the blessed Paul seemeth of itself enough instruction for you concerning those Divine Mysteries, whereof, if ye be made worthy, ye become therein, so to speak, of one Body and of one Blood with Christ. Paul saith that our Lord Jesus Christ, “the same night in which He was betrayed, took bread and, when He had given thanks, He brake it, and gave it unto His disciples, saying Take, eat this is My Body. After the same manner also He took the cup,” and gave thanks, “and said:” Take this, and drink it this is My Blood. Since therefore it is He Who hath definitely stated and said, touching that Bread “This is My Body” -who will dare any longer to doubt that It is so And since it is He again that hath absolutely affirmed and said, touching that cup “This is My Blood” who is he that will doubt any longer, or say that It is not His Blood

℞. As they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blest it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said: * Take, eat this is My Body.

℞. Take, eat this is My Body.

LESSON V

At the beginning of His ministry, at Cana in Galilee, the Lord turned water into wine, a thing which hath some qualities in common with blood and shall we deem Him less worthy that we should believe Him, when He turneth wine into Blood When He was bidden to that marriage wherein twain were made one flesh, He did the beginning of His miracles to the amazement of all men; and shall we less surely hold that He hath given us His Body and Blood to be our meat and drink, or take them with weaker faith that they are indeed His Body and His Blood? Under the appearance of bread He giveth unto us His Body, and, under the appearance of wine, His Blood and when thou shalt come to receive, it is on the Body and Blood of Christ that thou wilt feed, being made a partaker of His Body and of His Blood. Thus indeed Christíferi, hoc est, Christum in corpóribus nostris feréntes, cum corpus ejus et sánguinem in membra nostra recípiamus: sic secúndum beátum Petrum, divínæ natúræ consórtes réddimur.

R. Accépit Jesus cálicem, postquam cenávit, dicens: Hic calix novum testaméntum est in meo ságuine: * Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

Ÿ. Memória memor ero, et tabéscet in me ánima mea.

R. Hoc fácite in meam commemoratiónem.

LECTIO VI

Olim cum Judáís Christus dísserens, Nisi manducavéritis, inquit, carnem meam, et bibéritis meum sánguinem, non habébitis vitam in vobis. Cum autem illi, quæ dicta fúerant, non spiritaliter accepissent, offénsi abiérunt retro; putábant enim quod eos ad manducándas carnes hortarétur. Erant et in véteri testaménto panes propositiόνis; verum illi cum fúerint véteris testaménti, finem jam accepérunt. In novo vero testaménto panis est cæléstis et calix salutáris, qui et ánimam et corpus sanctíficant. Quam ob rem non sic hæc atténdas velim, tamquam sint nudus et simplex panis, nudum et simplex vinum; corpus enim sunt et sanguis Christi. Nam étiam si sensus illud tibi renúnciat, fides tamen te confírmet. Ne júdices rem ex gustu: sed te citra ullam dubitatióem fides certum reddat, quod sis dignus factus, qui córporis et sánguinis Christi párticeps fíeres.

R. Ego sum panis vitæ; patres vestri manducavérunt manna in desérto, et mórtui sunt: * Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

Ÿ. Ego sum panis vivus, qui de cælo descénde: si quis manducáverit ex hoc pane, vivet in ætérnum.

R. Hic est panis de cælo descéndens, ut, si quis ex ipso mandúcet, non moriátur.

it is that we become Christbearers, namely, by carrying about Christ in our bodies, when we receive His Body and Blood into our own frames. Thus, as the blessed Peter hath it, we are “partakers of the Divine nature.” (2 Pet. i. 4.)

R. Jesus took the cup, after supper, saying: This cup is the New Testament in My Blood. * This do in remembrance of Me.

Ÿ. My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is humbled in me.

R. This do in remembrance of Me.

LESSON VI

Christ once said, in conversing with the Jews “Except ye eat the Flesh of the Son of Man, and drink His Blood, ye have no life in you.” (John vi. 53.) But they took not spiritually that which He said, and “from that time many of His disciples went back, and walked no more with Him.” (66.) They thought that He had bidden them to eat flesh. The Old Testament also had Shewbread, but this Old Testament bread was now to have an end. The bread of the New Testament is “the Bread Which cometh down from heaven” (50), the cup of the New Testament, the Cup of Salvation, that Bread and that Cup Which hallow both souls and bodies. Wherefore I will have thee to understand that the Bread and Wine whereunto thou art to come, are not mere common bread or mere common wine for they are the Body and the Blood of Christ. Even if thy senses do indeed deny this fact, yet let faith make thee right sure of it. Judge not the Thing by the taste thereof, but let faith assure thee beyond all doubt thou art partaking of the Body and Blood of Christ.

R. I am that Bread of life. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. * This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

Ÿ. I am the living Bread Which came down from heaven if any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for ever.

R. This is the Bread Which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

LESSON VII

*From the Holy Gospel according to John
John 6:56-59*

At that time Jesus said unto the multitudes of the Jews My Flesh is meat indeed, and My Blood is drink indeed. And so on.

*Homily by St. Cyril, Pope of Alexandria.
Book iv. on John, ch. 17*

“He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood,” saith the Lord, “dwelleth in Me, and I in him.” If a man take two pieces of wax and melt them, and pour the one into the other, they necessarily mingle so also, he that receiveth the Body and Blood of the Lord doth become so joined with the Lord that he is to be found in Christ and Christ in him. Another comparison thou wilt find in Matthew. The Lord there saith “The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, [till the whole was leavened,]” (xiii. 33,) because, as Paul saith, “a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump.” (Gal. v. 9.) So also doth a little of this Blessing draw the whole man unto Itself, and fill him with Its grace and thus doth Christ dwell in us, and we in Christ.

℞. He that eateth My Flesh and drinketh My Blood, * Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

ψ. What nation is there so great, who hath gods so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is to us ℞. Dwelleth in Me, and I in him.

LESSON VIII

As for ourselves, if we would win life everlasting; if we would that the Giver of immortality should dwell in us, let us run freely to receive this Blessing, and let us beware that the devil succeed not in laying a stumbling-block in our way, in the shape of a mistaken reverence. Thou rightly sayest, and we know well, how that it is written “Whosoever shall eat this Bread and drink this Cup of the Lord cium sibi comédere atque bíbere illum, qui de pane cómedit et de cálice bibit indígne. Ego ígitur probó meípsum, et indígnum invénio. Nam si peccándo indígnus es, et peccáre non désinis, (quis enim delícta intélligit? secúndum Psalmístam) expers omníno eris vivificæ hujus sanctificatiónis.

R. Misit me vivens Pater, et ego vivo propter Patrem: * Et qui mandúcat me, vivet propter me.

And I ask thee, who citest these words to me, who shall ever be found worthy When wilt thou be such an one as may be worthy to be offered to Christ If by sin thou art unworthy, and thou ceapest not to sin, (for, as the Psalmist hath it, “Who can understand his errors?” (Ps. xviii. 13) then shalt thou for ever lack this means of life and sanctification.

R. As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, * So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

Ÿ. With the bread of life and understanding hath the Lord fed him.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. So he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me.

LESSON IX

Therefore, I counsel thee to betake thee to godly thoughts, and to live carefully and holily, and so to receive that Blessing a Blessing which, believe me, doth banish, not death only, but all diseases likewise. For when Christ dwelleth in us, He stilleth the law of death in our members, which warreth against the law of our mind, (Rom. vii. 23,) He giveth strength to godliness, He turneth to calm the turbulent surging of our mind, He cureth them which are sick, He raiseth up them which are fallen, and, like the Good Shepherd, Which giveth His life for the sheep, He prevaieth that the sheep perish not.

Jer 30:18-19; 30:21-24

Thus saith the Lord: Behold I will bring back the captivity of the pavilions of Jacob, and will have pity on his houses, and the city shall be built in her high place, and the temple shall be founded according to the order thereof. And out of them shall come forth praise, and the voice of them that play: And their leader shall be of themselves: and their prince shall come forth from the midst of them: and I will bring him near, and he shall come to me: for who is this that setteth his heart to approach to me, saith the Lord? And you shall be my people: and I will be your God. Behold the whirlwind of the Lord, his fury going forth, a violent storm, it shall rest upon the head of the wicked. The Lord will not turn away the wrath of his indignation, till he have executed and performed the thought of his heart: in the latter days you shall understand these things.

LESSON IV

Among the wonderful developments of sacred teaching and piety, by which the plans of the divine Wisdom are daily made clear to the Church, hardly any is more manifest than the triumphant progress made by the devotion of the most Sacred Heart of Jesus. Very often indeed, during the course of past ages, Fathers, Doctors, and Saints have celebrated our Redeemer's love: and they have said, that the wound opened in the side of Christ was the hidden fountain of all graces. Moreover, from the Middle Ages onward, when the faithful began to show a more tender piety towards the most sacred Hu-mam Salvatoris Humanitatem religione fideles affici coepti sunt, animæ contemplativæ per plagam illam ad ipsum Cor, amore hominum vulneratum, penetrare fere solébant. Atque ex eo tempore hæc contemplatio sanctissimis quibusque ita familiaris evásit, ut neque régio neque ordo religiosus sit, in quibus non insígnia, hac ætate, ejus reperiántur testimónia. Proximis demum sæculis, eoque potissimum tempore quo hæretici, sub falsæ pietatis título, a sanctissima Eucharistia Christianos deterrere conabántur, cultus sacratissimo Cordi publice exhiberi coeptus est, ópera imprimis sancti Joánnis Eudes, qui auctor litúrgici cultus sacrórum Córdium Jesu et Mariæ haud immérito nuncupátur.

℟. Prope est Dóminus ómnibus invocántibus eum, * Omnibus invocántibus eum in veritate.

℣. Miserátor et miséricors Dóminus, pátiens et multum miséricors.

℟. Omnibus invocántibus eum in veritate.

Verum, ad cultum sacratissimi Cordis Jesu plene perfectæque constituendum, eundemque per totum orbem propagandum, Deus ipse sibi instruméntum elégit humillimam ex órdine Visitationis vírginem, sanctam Margarítam Mariam Alacóque, cui, a prima quidem ætate jam in Eucharistiæ Sacraméntum amore flagránti, Christus Dóminus sæpenúmero appárens, divíni Cordis sui et divítias et optáta significare dignátus est. Quarum apparitiónum celeberrima illa est, qua ei ante Eucharístiam oránti Jesus conspiciendum se dedit, sacratissimum Cor osténdit et conquestus quod, pro imménsa sua caritate, nihil nisi ingratorum hóminum contumélias recíperet, ipsi præcépit ut novum festum, feria sexta post Octávam Córporis Christi, instituendum curáret, quo Cor suum honóre debito colerétur, atque injúriæ sibi in Sacraménto amoris a peccatóribus illátæ dignis expiaréntur obséquii. Quot autem quantasque Dei fámula in Christi mandátis exmanity of the Saviour, contemplative souls became accustomed to penetrate through that wound almost to the very Heart itself, wounded for the love of men. And from that time, this form of contemplation became so familiar to all persons of saintly life, that there was no country or religious order in which, during this period, witnesses to it were not to be found. Finally, during recent centuries, and most especially at that period when heretics, in the name of a false piety, strove to discourage Christians from receiving the most Holy Eucharist, the veneration of the most Sacred Heart began to be openly practised, principally through the exertions of St. John Eudes, who is by no means unworthily called the founder of the liturgical worship of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary.

℣. The Lord is full of compassion and mercy, long-suffering and of great goodness.

℟. Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

LESSON V

But in order to establish fully and entirely the worship of the most Sacred Heart of Jesus, and to spread the same throughout the whole world, God himself chose as his instrument a most humble virgin from the order of the Visitation, St. Margaret Mary Alacoque, who even in her earliest years already had a burning love for the Sacrament of the Eucharist, and to whom Christ the Lord had very many times appeared, and was pleased to make known the riches and the desires of his divine Heart. The most famous of these apparitions was that in which Jesus revealed himself to her in prayer before the blessed Sacrament, shewed her his most Sacred Heart, and, complaining that in return for his unbounded love, he met with nothing but outrages and ingratitude from mankind, he ordered her to concern herself with the establishment of a new feast, on the Friday after the Octave of Corpus Christi, on which his Heart should be venerated with due honour, and that the insults offered him by sinners in the Sacrament of love should be expiated by worthy satisfaction. But there is no one who knoweth not how many and how great were

Anno tandem millésimo septingentésimo sexagésimo quinto, Clemens décimus tértius Póntifex Máximus officium et missam in honórem sacratíssimi Cordis Jesu approbávit; Pius vero nonus festum ad univérsam Ecclésiám exténdit. Exínde, cultus sacratíssimi Cordis, quasi flumen exúndans, prolúts impediméntis ómnibus, per totum se orbem effúdit, et, novo illucescénťe sæculo, jubilæo indícto, Leo décimus tértius humánum genus univérsum sacratíssimo Cordi devótum volúit. Quæ consecrátió, in ómnibus quidem cathólici orbis ecclésiis, solémni ritu perácta, ingens áttulit devotiónis hujus increméntum, et ad eam non solum pópulos, verum etiám singuláres famílias addúxit, quæ Divíno Cordi innumerábiles se dévovent, regióque ejus império subíciunt. Dénique, Pius undécimus Póntifex Máximus, quo plénius festi solémnitas pópuli christiáni devotióni tam late paténti respondéret, sacratíssimi Cordis Jesu festum ad ritum dúplicem primæ classis cum octáva evéxit; ac præterea, ut violáta jura Christi summi Regis ac Dómini amantíssimi resarciréntur, populórúmque peccáta deferéntur, eódem festo die piaculárem precatiónem in ómnibus christiáni orbis templis quotánnis recitándam mandávit.

the obstacles which the handmaid of God experienced, in carrying out the commands of Christ; but, endowed with strength by the Lord himself, and actively aided by her pious spiritual directors, who exerted themselves with an almost unbelievable zeal, up to the time of her death she never ceased faithfully to carry out the duty entrusted to her by heaven.

R. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent; * Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

V. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

R. Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

LESSON VI

At length, in the year 1765, the Supreme Pontiff Clement XIII approved the Mass and Office in honour of the most Sacred Heart of Jesus; and Pius IX extended the feast to the universal Church. From then on the worship of the most Sacred Heart, like an overflowing river, washing away all obstacles, hath poured itself forth over all the earth, and, at the dawn of the new century, Leo XIII, having proclaimed a jubilee, decided to dedicate the whole human race to the most Sacred Heart. This consecration was actually carried out with solemn rites in all the churches of the Catholic world, and brought about a great increase of this devotion, leading not only nations but even private families to it, who in countless numbers dedicated themselves to the Divine Heart, and submitted themselves to its royal sway. Lastly, the Sovereign Pontiff Pius XI, in order that, by its solemnity, the feast might answer more fully to the greatly widespread devotion of the Christian people, raised the feast of the most Sacred Heart of Jesus to the rite of a double of the first class, with an octave; and moreover, that the violated rights of Christ, the supreme King and most loving Lord, might be repaired, and that the sins of the nations might be bewailed, he ordered that annually, on that same feast-day, there should be recited an expiatory form of prayer in all the churches of the Christian world.

At that time: The Jews, because it was the Prepa-

In order that the Church might be taken out of the side of Christ, in his deep sleep on the Cross, and that the Scripture might be fulfilled which saith: They shall look on him whom they pierced:
it was divinely ordained that one of the soldiers should pierce his sacred side with a spear, and open it. Then forthwith there came flowing out blood and water, which was the price of our salvation, pouring forth from its mountain-source, in sooth, from the secret places of his Heart, to give power to the Sacraments of the Church, to bestow the life of grace, and to be as a saving drink of living waters, flowing up to life eternal for those who were already quickened in Christ. Arise, then, O

Because we are now come to the sweet Heart of Jesus, and because it is good for us to be here, let us not too soon turn away therefrom. O how good and joyful a thing it is to dwell in this Heart. What a good treasure, what a precious pearl, is thy Heart, O most excellent Jesu, which we have found hidden in the pit which hath been dug in this field, namely, in thy body. Who would cast away such a pearl? Nay, rather, for this same I would give all my pearls. I will sell all my thoughts and affections, and buy the same for myself, turning all my thoughts to the Heart of the good Jesus, and without fail it will support me. Therefore, o most sweet Jesu, finding this Heart that is thine and mine, I will pray to thee, my God: admit my prayers into the shrine of hearkening: and draw me even more altogether into thy Heart.

R. Be ye therefore followers of God; * And walk ye therefore in love.

V. For Christ also hath loved us and hath given himself for us.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to
the Holy Ghost.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

LESSON IX

For to this end was thy side pierced, that an entry might be open unto us. To this end was thy Heart wounded, that in it we might be able to dwell secure from alarms from without. And it was wounded none the less on this account that, because of the visible wound, we may perceive the wound of love which is invisible. How could this fire of love better shine forth than for him to permit that not only his body, but that even his Heart, should be wounded with the spear? Who would not love that Heart so wounded? Who would not, in return, love one who is so loving? Who would not embrace one so chaste? Wherefore let us who are in the flesh love in return, as much as we can,
him who so loveth, embrace our wounded one, whose hands and feet, side and Heart, have been pierced by wicked husbandmen; and let us pray that he may deign to bind our hearts, still hard and impenitent, with the chain of his love, and wound them with the dart thereof.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 9:1-4

Et erat vir de Bénjamin nómine Cis, fílius Abiel, fílii Seror, fílii Béchorath, fílii Aphia, fílii viri Jémini, fortis róbores. Et erat ei fílius vocabulo Saul electus et bonus, et non erat vir de fíliis Israëli mélior illo: ab húméro et sursum eminebat super omnem pópulum. Perierant autem ásinæ Cis patris Saul, et dixit Cis ad Saul fílium suum: Tolle tecum unum de púeris et consurgens vade et quære ásinas. Qui, cum transissent per montem Ephraim et per terram Salísa et non invenissent, transierunt étiam per terram Salím, et non erant, sed et per terram Jémini, et mínime repererunt.

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicata sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

ψ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognóscó: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 9:5-8

Cum autem venissent in terram Suph, dixit Saul ad púerum, qui erat cum eo: Veni et revertámur, ne forte dimiserit pater meus ásinas et sollícitus sit pro nobis. Qui ait ei: Ecce vir Dei est in civitáte hac, vir nóbilis: omne quod loquitur, sine ambiguitáte venit; nunc

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 9:1-4

Now there was a man of Benjamin whose name was Cis, the son of Abiel, the son of Seror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphia, the son of a man of Jemini, valiant and strong. And he had a son whose name was Saul, a choice and goodly man, and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he: from his shoulders and upward he appeared above all the people. And the asses of Cis, Sauls father, were lost: and Cis said to his son Saul: Take one of the servants with thee, and arise, go, and seek the asses. And when they had passed through mount Ephraim, And through the land of Salisa, and had not found them, they passed also through the land of Salim, and they were not there: and through the land of Jemini, and found them not.

ψ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

1 Sam 9:5-8

And when they were come to the land of Suph, Saul said to the servant that was with him: Come, let us return, lest perhaps my father forget the asses, and be concerned for us. And he said to him: Behold there is a man of God in this city, a famous man: all that he saith, cometh certainly to pass.

ergo eámus illuc, si forte índicet nobis de via nostra, propter quam vénimus. Dixítque Saul ad púerum suum: Ecce íbimus: quid ferémus ad virum Dei? panis defécit in sí-tárctiis nostris, et spórtulam non habémus, ut demus hómini Dei, nec quidquam áliud. Rursum puer respóndit Sauli et ait: Ecce invénta est in manu mea quarta pars statéris argénti: demus hómini Dei, ut índicet nobis viam nostram.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratiónem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: *
Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israë́l.

Ψ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israë́l.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 9:14-17

Et ascendérunt in civitatē. Cumque illi ambulárent in médio urbis, appáruit Sámuel egrédiens óbviā eis, ut ascénderet in excélsū. Dóminus autem reveláverat aurículam Samuélis, ante unam diē quam veníret Saul, dicens: Hac ipsa hora, quæ nunc est, cras mittam virum ad te de terra Bénjamin, et unges eum ducem super pópulum meum Israë́l, et salvábit pópulum meum de manu Philisthinórum, quia respéxi pópulum meum; venit enim clamor eórum ad me. Cumque aspexísset Sámuel Saulem Dóminus dixit ei: Ecce vir, quem díxeram tibi: iste dominábitur pópulo meo.

R. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratiónem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, *
Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ψ. Réspice, Dómine, de sanctuáριο tuo, et de excélsō cælórum habitáculo.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Now therefore let us go thither, perhaps he may tell us of our way, for which we are come. And Saul said to his servant: Behold we will go: but what shall we carry to the man of God? the bread is spent in our bags: and we have no present to make to the man of God, nor any thing at all. The servant answered Saul again, and said: Behold there is found in my hand the fourth part of a sicle of silver, let us give it to the man of God, that he may tell us our way.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ψ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Sam 9:14-17

And they went up into the city. And when they were walking in the midst of the city, behold Samuel was coming out over against them, to go up to the high place. Now the Lord had revealed to the ear of Samuel the day before Saul came, saying: Tomorrow about this same hour I will send thee a man of the land of Benjamin, and thou shalt anoint him to be ruler over my people Israel: and he shall save my people out of the hand of the Philistines: for I have looked down upon my people, because their cry is come to me. And when Samuel saw Saul, the Lord said to him: Behold the man, of whom I spoke to thee, this man shall reign over my people.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Ψ. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

LECTIO IV

Ex litteris Encyclicis Pii Papæ undécimi Encyclica Miserentissimus Redemptor

Inter cetera infinitæ Redemptoris nostri benignitatis documenta, illud potissimum elucet, quod, defervescēte christifidelium caritate, ipsa Dei caritas ad honorandum peculiari cultu propòsita est, ejusque bonitatis divitiæ late patefactæ sunt per eam religionis formam qua sacratissimum Cor Jesu cõlitur, «in quo sunt omnes thesauri sapientiæ et scientiæ absconditi». Nam, ut quondam humanæ genti a Noëtica arca exeūnti, amici foederis signum illucescere Deus voluit «arcum apparentem in núbibus», sic turbulentissimis recentioris ævi temporibus, cum vaferrima omnium sérperet hæresis illa janseniana, amóri in Deum pietatiq̃ue inimica, quæ Deum non tam diligendum ut patrem quam extimescendum ut implacabilem júdicem prædicabat, benignissimus Jesus Cor suum sacratissimum, quasi pacis et caritatis vexillum elátum géntibus osténdit, haud dubiam portendens in certamine victóriam.

℟. P̃re est Dóminus ómnibus invocántibus eum, * Omnibus invocántibus eum in veritate.

℣. Misérator et miséricors Dóminus, pátiens et multum miséricors.

℟. Omnibus invocántibus eum in veritate.

LECTIO V

Siquidem appòsite felícis recordatiónis decessor Noster Leo décimus tértius in Litteris Encyclicis «Annum Sacrum», tantam cultus sacratissimi Cordis Jesu opportunitatem admirátus, edícere non dubitávit: «Cum Ecclesia per próxima originibus témpora cæsáreo jugo premerétur, conspécta sublíme adolescēti imperatóri crux, amplíssimæ victóriæ, quæ mox est consecúta, auspex simul atque efféctrix. En álterum hódie oblátum óculis auspicatissimum divinissimúque signum: vidélicet Cor Jesu Sacratissimum, superimpòsita cruce, splendidíssimo candóre ℟. Toward this house, day and night.

LESSON IV

From the Encyclical Letter of Pope Pius XI

Among all other proofs of the infinite kindness of our Redeemer, this one is especially conspicuous, that, as the love of the Christian believers grew cold, he, Divine Love itself, was proposed to be honoured by a special devotion, and that the rich treasures of his goodness were thrown wide open by means of that form of worship with which we honour the most Sacred Heart of Jesus, “in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.” For, as formerly God wished to give light to the human race as they came out of Noah’s ark by the signal of a treaty of friendship, “a bow appearing in the clouds,” so, in those most troublous times of a more recent age, when that most subtle of heresies, Jansenism, was everywhere creeping in, and enemy of the love of God and of piety, preaching that God was not so much to be loved as a father, as to be feared as an unrelenting judge, the most kind Jesus manifested unto the nations his most Sacred Heart, borne on high like unto a banner of peace and love, an augury of certain victory in battle.

℟. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, * Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

℟. Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

LESSON V

Because Our predecessor, Leo XIII, of happy memory, desiring to obtain the advantages of such a great devotion to the most Sacred Heart of Jesus, in his Encyclical Letter Annum Sacrum most fittingly did not hesitate to proclaim: “When the Church, in the early period of her history, was oppressed by the yoke of the Caesars, a cross appeared in the heavens to a youthful emperor, which was at the same time both the sign and the cause of that most complete victory, which was soon to follow. Behold this day another most auspicious and most holy sign presented to our eyes: that is to say, the most Sacred Heart of Jesus, with a Cross set upon inter flammās elúcens. In eo omnes collocándæ spēs; ex eo hóminum peténda atque exspectándæ salus».

R. Confíteor tibi, Pater, Dómine cæli et terræ, quia abscondísti hæc a sapiéntibus et prudéntibus * Et revelásti ea párvulis.

Ÿ. Ita, Pater, quóniam sic fuit plácitum ante te.

R. Et revelásti ea párvulis.

LECTIO VI

Ac jure id quidem; in illo enim auspicatíssimo signo atque in ea, quæ exínde conséquitur, pietátis forma nonne totíus religiónis summa atque ádeo perfectióris vitæ norma continétur, quippe quæ et ad Christum Dóminum pénitus cognoscéndum mentes conducát expeditius et ad eúndem veheméntius diligéndum pressiusque imitándum ánimos inflectat effíciacius? Nemo igitur mirétur, hanc probatíssimam religiónis formam decessóres Nostros continénter et a calumniatórum criminatióibus vindicásse et summis láudibus extulísse et veheménti provecísse stúdio, prout téporum rerúmque ratiónes postulárent. Dei autem adspiránte númine factum est ut pia christifidélium erga sacratíssimum Cor Jesu volúntas majóra in dies increménta cáperet.

R. Omnes gentes quascúmque fecísti, vénient * Et adorábunt coram te, Dómine.

Ÿ. Et glorificábunt nomen tuum, quóniam magnus es tu, et fáciens mirábília.

R. Et adorábunt coram te, Dómine.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et adorábunt coram te, Dómine.

LECTIO VII

Léctio sancti Evangélii secúndum Joánnem

Joannes 19:31-37

In illo témpore: Judæi, quóniam parascève erat, ut non remanérent in cruce córpora it, shining forth among flames of a most brilliant radiance. In this, all our hopes are to be placed; from this, the salvation of mankind is to be asked for and to be awaited."

R. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent; * Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

Ÿ. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

R. Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

LESSON VI

And it is indeed justly so; for in this most auspicious sign and in that which doth follow from it, is there not contained the highest model of piety of the whole of religion, and therefore the rule of the more perfect life, inasmuch as it leadeth our minds the more easily to a deeper knowledge of Christ the Lord, and to a more vehement love of him, and moveth our souls more effectually to a more exact imitation of him? Therefore, no one will be surprised, that Our predecessors have continuously vindicated this most approved form of devotion from the accusations of objectors, that they have extolled it with the highest praises, and have promoted it with the most ardent zeal, according as considerations of the period and of affairs in general have demanded. And it hath come to pass by the providence of God, that the devout affection of Christ's faithful people towards the most Sacred Heart of Jesus obtaineth daily a great increase.

R. All nations whom thou hast made shall come, * And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

Ÿ. Yea, they shall glorify thy Name, for thou art great, and doest wondrous things.

R. And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 19:31-37

At that time: The Jews, because it was the Preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon sabbato (erat enim magnus dies ille sabbati) rogaverunt Pilatum, ut frangerentur eorum crura et tollerentur. Et reliqua.

Homilia 85, alias 84 in Joannem, num. 3

Viden, quam fortis sit veritas? Per Judæorum studia impletur prophetia. Alia quoque prædictio finem accipit. Venientes enim milites aliorum fregérunt crura, Christi non item. Attamen hi, in gratiam Judæorum, ejus latus lancea perforant, et mortuo corpori contumeliam inferunt. O scelustum et execrandum facinus! Sed ne turbéris, ne dejiarís, dilécte. Nam quæ mala illi voluntate faciebant, veritatem propugnabant; prophetia namque erat: Vidébunt in quem transfixerunt. Neque hoc tantum; sed etiam iis qui infidéles futuri erant, hoc facinus demonstrationi fuit, ut Thomæ et ipsi similibus. Ad hæc etiam mysterium ineffabile consummabatur. Exiit enim sanguis et aqua. Non sine causa vel casu hi fontes manarunt, sed quia ex hoc utrôque Ecclesia constituta est.

R. Ego si exaltatus fuero a terra * Omnia traham ad meipsum.

Y. Hoc autem dicebat significans qua morte esset moriturus.

R. Omnia traham ad meipsum.

LECTIO VIII

Hoc sciunt initiati, qui per aquam regenerantur, ac per sanguinem et carnem nutriuntur. Hinc initium mysteria sumunt, ut, cum ad tremendum poculum accesseris, sic venias ac si ex hoc latere potaturus esses. Et qui vidit testimonium perhibuit, et verum est testimonium ejus. Hoc est: Non ab aliis audivi, sed ipse præsens vidi, et verum est testimonium. Mérito sane. Contumeliam narrat, non magnum quid et mirabile, ut possis contra suspicari; verum ille hæreticorum ora comprimens et futura prænuntians mysteria, atque contentum in ipsis thesaurum considerans, minutatim recenset et quæ gesta sunt. Impléta est autem prophetia illa:

the cross on the Sabbath Day, for that Sabbath Day was an high day, besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away. And so on/

Homily 85, alias 84 in Joannem, num. 3

See ye not how mighty is the Truth? Through the zeal of the Jews the prophecy is fulfilled. And more than one prophecy was fulfilled. For when the soldiers came and brake the legs of the others, they brake not the legs of Christ. But yet these soldiers, to please the Jews, did pierce his side with a lance, and treat his body with contumely. O wicked and accursed crime! But be not troubled, beloved, or cast down. They indeed did it in ill-will, but they unwittingly contended for the truth, as verily the prophecy foretold: They shall look on him whom they have pierced. And more than this, the evil deed served as a demonstration even afterwards to those who were without faith, such as Thomas and others like him. This ineffable mystery was also consummated to another end: Forthwith came there out blood and water. Nor causelessly or by mere chance did these fountains flow, but because the Church was founded with Water and Blood.

R. If I be lifted up, * I will draw all men unto me.

Y. This he said, signifying what death he should die.

R. I will draw all men unto me.

LESSON VIII

This is well-known to those who have been initiated, namely, to all who have been regenerated by the Water, and nourished with the Flesh and Blood, so that when thou dost approach to the awesome cup, thou shouldst come as if thou wert about to drink from this very side of Christ. And he that saw it bare record, and his record is true: as though to say: Not from others have I heard it, but I myself was present, and saw it, and therefore my record of it is true. Truly indeed doth he thus speak. For he speaketh to us as of an insult, and not as of something great and wonderful, else thou mightest doubt his testimony; but he, (thus shutting the mouth of heretics, and foretelling future mysteries, and mindful of the treasure to be contained in them,) doth enumerate one by one the Os ejus non commínuent. Etiámsi enim hoc de Judæórum agno dictum sit, tamen propter veritátem figúra præcëssit, et in hoc magis complétum est. Ideo prophétam in médium addúcit.

R. Simus ergo imitatóres Dei * Et ambulémus in dilectióne.

Ÿ. Sicut et Christus diléxit nos et trádedit semetípsum pro nobis.

R. Et ambulémus in dilectióne.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et ambulémus in dilectióne.

LECTIO IX

Cum sese testem áfferens ubíque non vidérat fide dignum habéri, addúcit Móysen, ut ínnuat hoc non casu factum esse, sed jam olim scripto fuisse prænuntiátum. Hoc illud dictum est: Os ejus non comminuétur. Rursúmque ex seípso Prophétæ fidem facit. Hæc dixi, inquit, ut discátis magnam esse afínitátem inter figúram et veritátem. Viden, quantam curam adhíbeat, ut credátur illud quod turpe et ignominiósum vidétur? Nam corpus a mílite contumélia áffici, longe pejus erat quam crucifígi. Attamen et hæc dixi, inquit, et cum magna diligéntia dixi, ut credátis. Nemo ítaque fidem neget, neque præ pudóre nostris nóceat. Nam quæ máxime contumeliósa vidéntur, hæc sunt bonórum nostrórum honestíssima.

events as they took place. These things were done that the Scriptures should be fulfilled: A bone of him shall not be broken. For even though this was written concerning the lamb which the Jews used for their Passover, nevertheless this lamb was a figure which came first to shew forth the reality yet to come, wherein the prophecy was to be perfectly fulfilled; and that is why the Evangelist quoteth the passage as a prophecy.

R. Be ye therefore followers of God; * And walk ye therefore in love.

Ÿ. For Christ also hath loved us and hath given himself for us.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

LESSON IX

Since the testimony he himself beareth might not everywhere be held worthy of belief, he citeth Moses, to intimate that this thing was not done by chance, but had already long ago been foretold in writing. By Moses it was said: A bone of him shall not be broken. And again he resteth his faith on the same Prophet: These things I have said, saith he, that ye may learn how great is the resemblance between the figure and the reality. Seest thou what great care he taketh, that what appeareth as disgraceful and ignominious may be believed. For that the body should be treated with contempt by the soldier, was far worse than its crucifixion. But nevertheless, saith he, I have both said these things, and have said them most emphatically, that ye may believe. Let no one, therefore, deny credence to these things, nor in shame tamper with our beliefs. For those things which seem to be the most dishonouring, are in fact our greatest pride.

1 Reg 9:18-21

Accessit autem Saul ad Samuēlem in medio portæ, et ait: Indica, oro, mihi, ubi est domus vidētis. Et respondit Sámuel Sauli, dicens: Ego sum videns: ascēde ante me in excēlsum, ut comedātis mecum hódie, et dimittam te mane: et ómnia quæ sunt in corde tuo indicábo tibi. Et de ásinis quas nudiustertius perdidisti, ne sollícitus sis, quia invéntæ sunt. Et cujus erunt óptima quæque Israël? nonne tibi et omni dómui patris tui? Respondens autem Saul, ait: Numquid non fílius Jémini ego sum de mínima tribu Israël, et cognátio mea novíssima inter omnes famílias de tribu Bénjamin? quare ergo locútus est mihi sermónem istum?

R. Fériam eis pactum sempitérnum et non désinam eis benefácere et timórem meum dabo in corde eórum * Ut non recédant a me.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 9:22-25

Assúmens itaque Sámuel Saulem et púerum ejus, introduxit eos in triclínum, et dedit eis locum in cápite eórum qui fúerant invitati: erant enim quasi trigínta viri. Dixítque Sámuel coco: Da partem quam dedi tibi, et præcépi ut repóneres scórsum apud te. Levávit autem cocus armum, et pósuit ante Saul. Dixítque Sámuel: Ecce quod remánsit: pone ante te, et cómede, quia de indústria servátum est tibi quando pópulum vocávi. Et comédit Saul cum Samuēle in die illa. LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 9:18-21

And Saul came to Samuel in the midst of the gate and said: Tell me, I pray thee, where is the house of the seer? And Samuel answered Saul, saying: I am the seer, go up before me to the high place, that you may eat with me today, and I will let thee go in the morning: and tell thee all that is in thy heart. And as for the asses, which were lost three days ago, be not solicitous, because they are found. And for whom shall be all the best things of Israel? Shall they not be for thee and for all thy father's house? And Saul answering, said: Am not I a son of Jemini of the least tribe of Israel, and my kindred the last among all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? Why then hast thou spoken this word to me?

R. I will make an everlasting Covenant with them, and I will not cease from doing them good, and I will put my fear in their hearts, * So that they shall not depart from me.

Y. Yea, I will rejoice over them, to do them good with my whole Heart.

R. So that they shall not depart from me.

LESSON II

1 Sam 9:22-25

Then Samuel taking Saul and his servant, brought them into the parlour, and gave them a place at the head of them that were invited. For there were about thirty men. And Samuel said to the cook: Bring the portion, which I gave thee, and commanded thee to set it apart by thee. And the cook took up the shoulder, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said: Behold what is left, set it before thee, and eat: because it was kept of purpose for thee, when I invited the people. And Saul ate with Samuel that day. And they went down from the high place into the town, and he spoke with Saul upon the top of the house: and he prepared a bed for Saul on the top of the house, and he slept.

And when they were risen in the morning, and it began now to be light, Samuel called Saul on the top of the house, saying: Arise, that I may let thee go. And Saul arose: and they went out both of them, to wit, he and Samuel. And as they were going down in the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul: Speak to the servant to go before us, and pass on: but stand thou still a while, that I may tell thee the word of the Lord. And Samuel took a little vial of oil and poured it upon his head, and kissed him, and said: Behold, the Lord hath anointed thee to be prince over his inheritance, and thou shalt deliver his people out of the hands of their enemies, that are round about them. And this shall be a sign unto thee, that God hath anointed thee to be prince.

LESSON IV

From the Encyclical Letter of Pope Pius XI

Among the various devotions paid to the Sacred Heart, the one foremost in importance and interest is assuredly the Act of Consecration, whereby we give to the divine Heart of Jesus both ourselves accépta referéntes, divíno Jesu Cordi devovémus. Verum, áliud accédát opórtet, honéstæ satisfactiónis, ínquimus, seu reparatiónis, quam dicunt, offícium sacratíssimo Cordi Jesu præstándum. Nam, si illud est in consecratíone primum ac præcípuum ut amóri Creatóris creatúræ amor rependátur, áltèrum sponte hinc séquitur, ut éidem increáto Amóri, si quando aut oblivíone negléctus, aut offénsa violátus sit, illátæ quoquo modo injúriæ compensári débeant: quod quidem débitum reparatíonem vulgáto nómine vocámus.

℟. Prope est Dóminus ómnibus invocántibus eum, * Omnibus invocántibus eum in veritatē.

℣. Miserátor et miséricors Dóminus, pátiens et multum miséricors.

℟. Omnibus invocántibus eum in veritatē.

LECTIO V

Quodsi ad utrámque rem íisdem prorsus ratióibus impéllimur, reparándi tamen expiandíque offício ob validiorem quemdam justítiæ et amóris títulum tenémur: justítiæ quidem, ut irrogáta Deo nostris flagítiis expiétur offénsa et violátus ordo poeniténtia redintegrétur; amóris vero, ut Christo patiénti ac « saturáto oppróbrii » compatiámur eíque nonníhil solácii pro tenuitate nostra afferámus. Peccatóres enim cum simus omnes, multisque oneráti culpís, non eo solo cultu Deus noster nobis est honorándus, quo vel ejus summam Majestátem débitis obséquiiis adorémus, vel ejus suprémum domínium precándó agnoscámus, vel ejus infínitam largitátem gratiárum actiónibus laudémus; sed prætèrea Deo justo víndici satisfaciámus opórtet « pro innumerábilibus peccátis et offénsiónibus et negligéntiis » nostris. Consecratíoni ígitur, qua Deo devovémur et sancti Deo vocámur, ea sanctitate ac firmitate quæ, ut docet Angélicus, consecratíonis est própria, addénda est expiatio, qua pénitus peccáta exstinguántur, ne forte indignitátem nostram impudéntem revérbe-and all that is ours; in recognition of the truth that all we have cometh unto us out of the infinite charity of the eternal Deity. But it is expedient that any attempt of ours at self-consecration be accompanied with the purpose of making expiation (otherwise called reparation) to the most Sacred Heart of Jesus. In consecration the predominant intention may be said to be the purpose to repay (as it were) the love of the Creator by the love of us his creatures. But since Love Uncreate is passed over by human forgetfulness, and dishonoured by the sins of mankind, we should endeavour to repair such outrages; and the performance of this duty is ordinarily known as reparation.

℟. Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

LESSON V

If we are, for the aforesaid reasons, to undertake both of those practices, we must recognize that we are impelled to the duty of reparation by the most powerful motives of justice and love: of justice, in order to expiate the injury done to God by our sins, and to re-establish through penance the divine order which was violated by them; of love, in order to suffer together with Christ, (who patiently endured all possible dishonour,) so that we may offer him some solace in return for his sufferings. For it is our duty to do more than honour God by the worship of adoration, whereby we adore his infinite Majesty, or by means of prayer, when we recognize his supreme dominion over us, or by acts of thanksgiving, when we praise his infinite generosity towards us. Because we are sinners, burdened with many offences, we must also make satisfaction to the offended justice of God, because of the numberless sins, offences and negligences we have committed. Wherefore, we must add to the act of consecration, by which we offer ourselves to God, and become thereby, as it were, sacred unto God by reason of the holiness which naturally floweth from an act of consecration, as the Angelic Doctor teacheth. We must add the act of reparation, by means of which all our faults ret summæ justitiæ sánctitas, munúsque nostrum pótius árceat invísium quam gratum suscípiat.

R. Confíteor tibi, Pater, Dómine cæli et terræ, quia abscondísti hæc a sapiéntibus et prudéntibus * Et revelásti ea párvulis.

Y. Ita, Pater, quóniam sic fuit plácitum ante te.

R. Et revelásti ea párvulis.

LECTIO VI

Hoc autem expiatiónis offícium humáno géneri unívsero incúmbit, quippe quod, ut christiána docémur fide, post Adæ miserándum casum, hereditária labe inféctum, concupiscéntiis obnoxíum et misérime depravátum, in pernícem detrudéndum fuísset sempitérnam. Id quidem supérbi hac nostra ætáte sapiéntes, véterem Pelágii errórem secúti, inficiántur, natívam quandam virtútem humánæ natúræ jactántes quæ suápte vi ad altióra usque progrediátur; sed falsa hæc humánæ supérbiæ comménta réjicit Apóstolus, illud nos ádmonens: «natúra erámus fílii iræ». Et sane jam ab infítio commúnis illús expiatiónis débitum quasi agnovére hómínes et Deo sacrificiis vel públicis placándo, naturáli quodam sensu ducti, óperam dare cœperunt.

R. Omnes gentes quascúmque fecísti, vénient * Et adorábunt coram te, Dómine.

Y. Et glorificábunt nomen tuum, quóniam magnus es tu, et fáciens mirabília.

R. Et adorábunt coram te, Dómine.

Y. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et adorábunt coram te, Dómine.

LECTIO VII

Léctio sancti Evangelíi secúndum Lucam

Luc 15:1-10

are blotted out, lest perchance the sanctity of Infinite Justice spurn our arrogant unworthiness, and look upon the gift of ourselves as something to be rejected rather than accepted.

R. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent; * Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

Y. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

R. Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

LESSON VI

All men are under obligation to make reparation; for our souls are disfigured as the Christian faith teacheth by original sin as a result of the pitiable fall of Adam. We are also subject to passions, whereby we are corrupted in a truly sad state, and have thus made ourselves worthy of everlasting condemnation. It is true that the proud philosophers of this world deny the aforesaid verities, and in their place do raise up again the ancient heresy of Pelagius: which taught that in human nature there is a certain innate goodness wherewith, by our own powers, we are raised up to ever higher levels of perfection; but such false theories, born of human pride, have been condemned by the Apostle in his saying that all men are by nature the children of wrath. As a matter of fact, from the very beginning of the creation of the world, mankind recognized, in one way or another, the obligation of making reparation, impelled thereto, as by a natural instinct, in an endeavour to placate God by offering public sacrifices unto him.

R. All nations whom thou hast made shall come, * And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

Y. Yea, they shall glorify thy Name, for thou art great, and doest wondrous things.

R. And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

Y. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 15:1-5

In illo témpore: Erant appropinquántes ad Jesum publicáni et peccatóres, ut audírent illum. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Gregórii Papæ

Homília 34 in Evangelium, n. 2-3, post initium
Audístis in lectione evangélica, fratres mei, quia peccatóres et publicáni accessérunt ad Redemptórem nostrum; et non solum ad colloquéndum, sed étiam ad convescéndum recépti sunt. Quod vidéntes pharisæi dedignáti sunt. Ex qua re collígite quia vera justítia compassiónem habet, falsa justítia indignatióem. Quamvis et justí sóleant recte peccatóribus dedignári: sed áliud est quod ágitur typho supérbiæ, áliud quod zelo disciplinæ.

℟. Ego si exaltátus fúero a terra * Omnia traham ad meípsum.

℣. Hoc autem dicébat significans qua morte esset moritúrus.

℟. Omnia traham ad meípsum.

LECTIO VIII

Dedignántur etenim, sed non dedignántes: desprésant, sed non desperántes: persecutióem cómmovent, sed amántes: quia etsi foris increpatiónes per disciplínam exággerant, intus tamen dulcédinem per caritátem servant. Præpónunt sibi in ánimo ipsos plerúmque quos córrigunt: meliôres existimant eos quoque quos júdicant. Quod vidélicet agéntes, et per disciplínam súbditos, et per humilitátem custódiunt semetipsos.

℟. Simus ergo imitatóres Dei * Et ambulémus in dilectione.

℣. Sicut et Christus diléxit nos et trádedit semetípsum pro nobis.

℟. Et ambulémus in dilectione.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Et ambulémus in dilectione.

At that time: the publicans and sinners drew near unto him to hear him. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory (the Great)

34th on the Gospels

Ye have heard, my brethren, from the Gospel which hath but now been read, how that the publicans and sinners drew near unto our Redeemer, and how that He received them, not only to converse, but also to eat with Him. And when the Pharisees and Scribes saw it, they murmured. From this learn ye, that true righteousness is merciful, and false righteousness is contemptuous, albeit that the righteous also oft-times feel moved with just indignation at sinners. But it is one thing to feel thus indignant through pride, and another to feel so through love of law.

℟. If I be lifted up, * I will draw all men unto me.

℣. This he said, signifying what death he should die.

℟. I will draw all men unto me.

LESSON VIII

The righteous indeed look down upon sinners, and yet, as not despising them; they abandon them, and yet, as not without hope; they fight against them, and yet, as loving them all the while; for if they be behoven to chasten them grievously as touching the outer man, yet is it through charity which offereth sweetness to their inner man. In their hearts they prefer before themselves them whom they are correcting; they hold as better than themselves them whom they judge. And thus doing, they watch by carefulness over them, which are committed unto their charge, and, by lowly-mindedness, over themselves.

℟. Be ye therefore followers of God; * And walk ye therefore in love.

℣. For Christ also hath loved us and hath given himself for us.

℟. And walk ye therefore in love.

℟. And walk ye therefore in love.

LECTIO IX

At contra, hi qui de falsa justítia superbíre solent, céteros quosque despíciunt, nulla infirmántibus misericórdia condescéndunt: quo se peccatóres esse non credunt, eo detérius peccatóres fiunt. De quorum profecto número pharisæi exstiterant, qui diiudicántes Dóminum quod peccatóres susciperet, arénti corde ipsum fontem misericórdiæ reprehendébant. Sed quia ægri erant, ita ut ægros se esse nescírent; quátenus quod erant agnóscerent, cæléstis eos médicus blandis foméntis curat, benígnum paradígma óbjiçit, et in eórum corde vúlneris tumórem premit.

LESSON IX

On the other hand, they whose exaltation cometh of a false righteousness, look down upon their neighbour, but are softened by no mercy toward his misery, and are all the more sinful, because they perceive not that they themselves are sinners. Of such were those Pharisees who judged the Lord because He received sinners, and, in the dryness of their own heart, rebuked the very Fountain of mercy. They were sick of so desperate a sickness that they knew not of themselves that they were sick; but, that they might know that they were so, the Heavenly Physician applied to them His tender ointments, and, by means of a gracious parable, lanced the boil of their pride of heart.

LECTIO I

I Reg 10:17-19

Et convocávit Sámuel pópulum ad Dóminum in Maspha: et ait ad filios Israél: Hæc dicit Dóminus Deus Israél: Ego edúxi Israél de Ægypto, et éruí vos de manu Ægyptiórurum et de manu ómnium regum, qui affligébant vos. Vos autem hódie projecístis Deum vestrum, qui solus salvávit vos de univérsis malis et tribulatióibus vestris, et dixístis: Nequáquam, sed regem constitúe super nos. Nunc ergo state coram Dómino per tribus vestras et per famílias.

℟. Fériam eis pactum sempitérnum et non désinam eis benefácere et timórem meum dabo in corde eórum * Ut non recédant a me.

℣. Et lætábor super eis cum bene eis féceró in toto Corde meo.

℟. Ut non recédant a me.

LECTIO II

I Reg 10:20-24

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

I Sam 10:17-19

And Samuel called together the people to the Lord in Maspha: And he said to the children of Israel: Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you from the hand of the Egyptians, and from the hand of all the kings who afflicted you. But you this day have rejected your God, who only hath saved you out of all your evils and your tribulations: and you have said: Nay: but set a king over us. Now therefore stand before the Lord by your tribes, and by your families

℟. I will make an everlasting Covenant with them, and I will not cease from doing them good, and I will put my fear in their hearts, * So that they shall not depart from me.

℣. Yea, I will rejoice over them, to do them good with my whole Heart.

℟. So that they shall not depart from me.

LESSON II

I Sam 10:20-24

Et applicuit Sámuel omnes tribus Israëel, et cecidit sors tribus Bénjamin; et applicuit tribum Bénjamin et cognatiónes ejus, et cecidit cognatio Metri, et pervénit usque ad Saul filium Cis. Quæsiérunt ergo eum, et non est invéntus. Et consuluérunt post hæc Dóminum utrúmnam ventúrus esset illuc. Respondítque Dóminus: Ecce absconditus est domi. Cucurrérunt itaque et tulérunt eum inde; stetítque in médio pópuli, et áltior fuit unívérso pópulo ab húmero et sursum. Et ait Sámuel ad omnem pópulum: Certe vidétis quem elégit Dóminus, quóniam non sit símilis illi in omni pópulo. Et clamávit omnis pópulus et ait: Vivat rex.

- R. Si inimícus meus maledixisset mihi, sustinuíssem útique * Tu vero homo unánimis qui simul mecum dulces capiébas cibos.
- V. Et si is qui me óderat super me magna locútus fuísset, abscondíssem me fórsitan ab eo.
- R. Tu vero homo unánimis qui simul mecum dulces capiébas cibos.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 10:25-27

Locútus est autem Sámuel ad pópulum legem regni, et scripsit in libro, et repósuit coram Dómino; et dimísit Sámuel omnem pópulum, síngulos in domum suam. Sed et Saul ábiit in domum suam in Gábaa; et ábiit cum eo pars exércitus, quorum tetígerat Deus corda. Fílii vero Bélial dixerunt: Num salváre nos póterit iste? Et despexérunt eum, et non attulérunt ei múnera; ille vero dissimulábat se audíre.

- R. Cum essémus mórtui peccátis, convivificávit nos Deus in Christo * Propter nímiam caritátem suam qua diléxit nos.
- V. Ut osténderet in sáculis superveniéntibus abundántes divítias grátiae suæ.
- R. Propter nímiam caritátem suam qua diléxit nos.

And Samuel brought to him all the tribes of Israel, and the lot fell on the tribe of Benjamin. And he brought the tribe of Benjamin and the kindreds thereof, and the lot fell upon the kindred of Metri, and it came to Saul the son of Cis. They sought him therefore and he was not found. And after this they consulted the Lord whether he would come thither. And the Lord answered: Behold he is hidden at home. And they ran and fetched him thence: and he stood in the midst of the people, and he was higher than any of the people from the shoulders and upward. And Samuel said to all the people: Surely you see him whom the Lord hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people. And all the people cried and said: God save the king.

- R. It was not an open enemy that has done me this dishonour, for then I could have borne it, * But it was even thou, mine own familiar friend, who did also eat of my Bread.
- V. Neither was it mine adversary that did magnify himself against me, for then peradventure I would have hid myself from him.
- R. But it was even thou, mine own familiar friend, who did also eat of my Bread.

LESSON III

1 Sam 10:25-27

And Samuel told the people the law of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the Lord: and Samuel sent away all the people, every one to his own house. Saul also departed to his own house in Gabaá: and there went with him a part of the army, whose hearts God had touched. But the children of Belial said: Shall this fellow be able to save us? And they despised him, and brought him no presents, but he dissembled as though he heard not.

- R. And we, being dead in our sins, hath God quickened together with Christ, * For his great love wherewith he hath loved us.
- V. That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace.
- R. For his great love wherewith he hath loved us.
- V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Propter nímiā caritátem suā qua diléxit nos.

LESSON IV

From the Encyclical Letter of Pope Pius XI

No effort on our part could have availed for the expiation of human sin, if the Son of God had not assumed human nature in order to redeem men from their sins. This truth the Saviour of mankind hath made known in the words of the Psalmist:
Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me; in burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin thou hast had no pleasure; then said I, Lo, I come. Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: who his own self bare our sins in his body on the Tree; and blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which same was contrary to us, he took it out of the way, nailing it to his Cross: that we, being dead unto sins, should live unto righteousness. But although this plenteous redemption of Christ was more than sufficient to satisfy for all our offenses, nevertheless, (due to the wondrous dispensation of the divine Wisdom, whereby in our own flesh we may fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ for his body's sake, which is the Church,) we can, and in fact, we should, add our own acts of praise and satisfaction to those acts of praise and satisfaction which Christ, in the name of sinners, presented to God.

℟. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, * Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

✠. The Lord is full of compassion and mercy, long-suffering and of great goodness.

℟. Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

LESSON V

However, we must always remember this, to wit:
The expiatory value of our acts is dependent upon the Bloody Sacrifice of Christ; which same is presented bloodlessly on our altars, without preter-mission. Note that in both the Unbloody and the Bloody Sacrifice, the Victim is one and the rio, qui seipsum tunc in cruce obtulit, sola offerendi ratione diversa; quamobrem cum hoc augustissimo Eucharistico sacrificio et ministrorum et aliorum fidelium immolatio conjungi debet, ut ipsi quoque hostias viventes, sanctas, Deo placentes sese exhibeant. Quin immo, sanctus Cyprianus affirmare non dubitat sacrificium dominicum legitima sanctificatione non celebrari, nisi oblatio et sacrificium nostrum responderit passioni. Quapropter nos monet Apostolus, ut mortificationem Jesu in corpore nostro circumferentes, atque cum Christo consepulti et complantati similitudini mortis ejus, non modo carnem nostram crucifigamus cum vitiis et concupiscentiis, fugientes ejus quæ in mundo est concupiscentiæ corruptionem, sed et vita Jesu manifestetur in corporibus nostris et, æterni ejus sacerdotii participes effecti, offeramus dona et sacrificia pro peccatis.

R. Confiteor tibi, Pater, Domine cæli et terræ, quia abscondisti hæc a sapientibus et prudentibus * Et revelasti ea parvulis.

Y. Ita, Pater, quoniam sic fuit placitum ante te.

R. Et revelasti ea parvulis.

LECTIO VI

Neque enim arcani hujus sacerdotii et satisfaciendi sacrificandique muneris participatione ii soli fruuntur, quibus Pontifex noster Christus Jesus administris utitur ad oblationem mundam divino Nomini ab ortu solis usque ad occasum omni loco offerendam; sed etiam christianorum gens universa, ab Apostolorum Principe genus electum, regale sacerdotium jure appellata, debet cum pro se, tum pro toto humano genere offerre pro peccatis, haud aliter propemodum quam sacerdos omnis ac pontifex ex hominibus assumptus, pro hominibus constituitur in iis quæ sunt ad Deum.

same. He that offered himself on the Cross is the very same that doth offer himself by means of our ministerial priesthood; the only difference being the manner in which the Sacrifice is made; for which reason there must needs be conjoined to the august Sacrifice of the Holy Eucharist, and act of immolation from the priests and the faithful, whereby they offer up themselves, also, to be a reasonable, holy, and living sacrifice, acceptable unto God. With this in mind Saint Cyprian dared to affirm that the Sacrifice of the Lord is not complete so far as our sanctification is concerned until our personal offerings and sacrifices are brought into union with his passion. To which end we have been given apostolic admonition: That we should always bear about in the body of the dying of the Lord Jesus; and thereby, buried with him by Baptism unto death, not only can we crucify the flesh with its affections and lusts, thus escaping the corruption that is in the world, through lust, but also thereby the life of Jesus can be made manifest in our bodies; and so, having been made partakers of Christ in his holy and eternal priesthood, we should offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins.

R. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent; * Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

Y. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

R. Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

LESSON VI

And note who they are that be partakers in the mysteries of such a priesthood, and in the duty of offering sacrifices and satisfaction to God; not only they who have been ordained as ministers of such sacrifices, to wit, to offer unto the divine Name in every place a pure offering, from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same, but also all others who are Christians; which same by the Prince of the Apostles are called, and rightly so, a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, who are to offer sacrifices for sin, not only for themselves but for all mankind, and this in much the same way as every priest and high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in the things that appertain to God.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 19:31-37

At that time: The Jews, because it was the Preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the Sabbath Day, for that Sabbath Day was an high day, besought Pilate that their legs might broken, and that they might be taken away. And so on, and that which followeth.

A Homily by St. Lawrence Justinian the Bishop

But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs, but one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water. Truly this is a great and unheard-of wonder, that from a lifeless body should gush out blood and water! And thereby we are constrained to believe that God willed to set forth the great mystery, namely, the oneness between Christ and the Church. Consider how aforetime a figure of this spiritual union was given us in the Scriptures, where we are told that, from the side of Adam as he slept, one of his ribs was taken, wherefrom was formed Eve, the mother of us all, which same is understood to be a type of the Church. For thereby the Holy Ghost signified that there was to be a true and spiritual Adam, fashioned by the same Paraclete, from whose side, while he slept on the Cross, the Church would be formed, a comely spouse radiant with youth, that is, without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing.

- R. If I be lifted up, * I will draw all men unto me.
- Ÿ. This he said, signifying what death he should

LESSON VIII

For the blood and water are the Sacraments of the Church, whereby the whole body of the Church is washed and sanctified. Certain it is that in the laver of regenerating water, (which same was consecrated by the death of Christ,) the Church is cleansed from original sin. And not only is purification given thereby, but entrance to the heavenly kingdom is also made. Both these things are done at one and the same time, nor doth one avail for salvation without the other; for no one can take unto himself the inheritance of the blessedness which is to come without the Sacrament of Baptism and the remission of sins. This truth is confessed all the world over by holy Mother Church, and confirmed by manifold testimonies in the Word of God. Moreover, he too bare witness, who saw the water and blood flow forth from the side of Christ, and his testimony is true. Now this is John the Apostle and Evangelist who was loved with an exceeding great love by the Lord.

R. Be ye therefore followers of God; * And walk ye therefore in love.

Y. For Christ also hath loved us and hath given himself for us.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

Y. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

LESSON IX

Verily, all these things were done that the Scriptures might be fulfilled, which say: A bone of him shall not be broken: which same was in obedience to the Lord's commandment to Moses, that in the sacrifice of the Passover, (wherein was celebrated the offering up of the lamb,) no bone should be broken. Wherefrom, when this ancient prototype was fulfilled in the most innocent Lamb, (the Lord Jesus himself,) obedience to the ancient command was also fulfilled. For in no wise were his legs broken, after the manner of what was done to the two malefactors hanging with him; but his side alone was opened, that another Scripture might be fulfilled, which saith: They shall look upon him whom they have pierced. Moreover, the Lord willed to retain the marks of the Wounds in his body, thereby to incite the devotion of the elect, and also be an unanswerable testimony of damna-tion to the reprobate. And so all things were consummated in Christ, which had been long before declared by the oracles of the Prophets, that the Catholic faith might be strengthened both in itself and against the errors of the hereticks.

LECTIO II

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 12:1-5

And Samuel said to all Israel: Behold I have hearkened to your voice in all that you said to me, and have made a king over you. And now the king goeth before you: but I am old and greyheaded:
and my sons are with you: having then conversed with you from my youth unto this day, behold here I am. Speak of me before the Lord, and before his anointed, whether I have taken any man's ox, or ass: If I have wronged any man, if I have oppressed any man, if I have taken a bribe at any man's hand: and I will despise it this day, and will restore it to you. And they said: Thou hast not wronged us, nor oppressed us, nor taken ought at any man's hand. And he said to them: The Lord is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, that you have not found any thing in my hand. And they said: He is witness.

R. I will make an everlasting Covenant with them, and I will not cease from doing them good, and I will put my fear in their hearts, * So that they shall not depart from me.

Ψ. Yea, I will rejoice over them, to do them good with my whole Heart.

R. So that they shall not depart from me.

LESSON II

1 Reg 12:6-9

Et ait Sámuel ad pópulum: Dóminus, qui fecit Móysen et Aaron, et edúxit patres nostros de terra Ægýpti. Nunc ergo state, ut iudício conténdam advérsum vos coram Dómino de ómnibus misericórdiis Dómini quas fecit vobíscum et cum pátribus vestris: quómodo Jacob ingræssus est in Ægýptum, et clamavérunt patres vestri ad Dóminum: et misit Dóminus Móysen et Aaron, et edúxit patres vestros de Ægýpto, et collocávit eos in loco hoc. Qui oblíti sunt Dómini Dei sui, et trádedit eos in manu Sísaræ magistri militiæ Hasor, et in manu Philisthinórum, et in manu regis Moab: et pugnavérunt advérsum eos.

- ℟. Si inimícus meus maledixisset mihi, sustinuíssem útique * Tu vero homo unánimis qui simul mecum dulces capiébas cibos.
- ℣. Et si is qui me óderat super me magna locútus fuísset, abscondíssem me fórsitan ab eo.
- ℟. Tu vero homo unánimis qui simul mecum dulces capiébas cibos.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 12:10-14

Póstea autem clamavérunt ad Dóminum, et dixerunt: Peccávimus, quia derelíquimus Dóminum, et servívimus Báalim et Astaroth: nunc ergo érue nos de manu inimicórum nostrórum, et serviémus tibi. Et misit Dóminus Jeróbaal, et Badan, et Jephthe, et Sámuel, et éruit vos de manu inimicórum vestrórum per circúitum, et habitástis confidénter. Vidéntes autem quod Naas rex filiórum Ammon venísset advérsum vos, dixístis mihi: Nequáquam, sed rex imperábit nobis: cum Dóminus Deus vester regnáret in vobis. Nunc ergo præsto est rex vester, quem elegístis et petístis: ecce dedit vobis Dóminus regem. Si timuéritis Dóminum, et serviéritis ei, et audiéritis vocem ejus, et non exasperavéritis os Dómini, éritis et vos, et rex qui ímparat vobis, sequéntes Dóminum Deum vestrum.

1 Sam 12:6-9

And Samuel said to the people: It is the Lord, who made Moses and Aaron, and brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt. Now therefore stand up, that I may plead in judgment against you before the Lord, concerning all the kindness of the Lord, which he hath shown to you, and to your fathers: How Jacob went into Egypt, and your fathers cried to the Lord: and the Lord sent Moses and Aaron, and brought your fathers out of Egypt: and made them dwell in this place. And they forgot the Lord their God, and he delivered them into the hands of Sisara, captain of the army of Hasor, and into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hand of the king of Moab, and they fought against them.

- ℟. It was not an open enemy that has done me this dishonour, for then I could have borne it, * But it was even thou, mine own familiar friend, who did also eat of my Bread.
- ℣. Neither was it mine adversary that did magnify himself against me, for then peradventure I would have hid myself from him.
- ℟. But it was even thou, mine own familiar friend, who did also eat of my Bread.

LESSON III

1 Sam 12:10-14

But afterwards they cried to the Lord, and said: We have sinned, because we have forsaken the Lord, and have served Baalim and Astaroth: but now deliver us from the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee. And the Lord sent Jerobaal, and Badan, and Jephthe, and Samuel, and delivered you from the hand of your enemies round about, and you dwelt securely. But seeing that Naas king of the children of Ammon was come against you, you said to me: Nay, but a king shall reign over us: whereas the Lord your God was your king. Now therefore your king is here, whom you have chosen and desired: Behold the Lord hath given you a king. If you will fear the Lord, and serve him, and hearken to his voice, and not provoke the mouth of the Lord: then shall both you, and the king who reigneth over you, be followers of the Lord your God

LESSON IV

According to that degree of perfection wherewith our oblation and our sacrifice do correspond to the Sacrifice of our Lord, that is to say, to the extent that we have immolated love of self and its passions, and thereby have crucified our flesh in that mystical crucifixion concerning which the Apostle wrote, in that same degree shall we gather the fruits of propitiation and expiation for ourselves and for others. For a wondrous bond doth join all the faithful unto Christ, namely, that bond which uniteth the Head with the members of the body, which is to say, the Communion of the Saints, a bond full of mystery in which we as Catholics do nevertheless verily believe. By virtue of this bond, individuals and nations are not only united the one with the other, but likewise with the Head itself, which is Christ: from whom the whole body, fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the working in due measure of each several part, maketh increase of the body unto the building up of itself in love. This verily was the prayer which Christ Jesus himself, the Mediator between God and man, made at the time of his death: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be perfected into one.

- R. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, * Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.
- Ψ. The Lord is full of compassion and mercy, long-suffering and of great goodness.
- R. Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

LESSON V

Quemádmódum ígitur unióinem cum Christo profitétur ac firmat consecrátió, ita expiátió eámdem unióinem, et culpas detergéndó ínchoat, et Christi passiónes participándó pérficit, et víctimas pro frátribus offeréndó consúmmat. Atque id sane miseréntis Jesu consílium fuit, cum Cor nobis suum, insígnia passiónis præferens ac flammas amóris osténtans, patére vóluit, scílicet ut hinc infínitam peccáti malítiam coniectántes, illinc Reparatiónis caritátem infínitam admiráti, et peccátum veheméntius detestarémur et caritátis ardéntius vicem redderémus. Et vere expiatiónis potíssimum seu reparatiónis spíritus primas semper potiorésque partes hábuit in cultu Sacratíssimo Cordi Jesu exhibéndó, nihílque eo congruéntius orígini, índoli, virtúti, indústriis quæ huic religiónis formæ sunt própriae, ut rerum memória et usus, sacra item litúrgia atque Summórum Pontíficum acta confírman.

R. Confíteor tibi, Pater, Dómine cæli et terræ, quia abscondísti hæc a sapiéntibus et prudéntibus * Et revelásti ea párvulis.

Ÿ. Ita, Pater, quóniam sic fuit plácitum ante te.

R. Et revelásti ea párvulis.

Síquidem cum se conspiciéndum Margarítæ Mariæ exhiberet Christus, caritátis suæ infínitatem prædicans, simul, mæréntis instar, tot tantásque sibi ínustas ab ingrátis homínibus injúrias in hæc verba conquéstus est, quæ útinam in piórum ánimis insidèrent nulláque unquam obliuione deleréntur: « En Cor illud, inquit, quod tantópere hómines amávit beneficiisq̃ue ómnibus cumulávit, quodque amóri suo infínito non tantum rédditam grátiam nullam invénit, at contra, obliuionem, negléctum, contumélias, eásque ab iis

Therefore, even as our effort at consecration doth manifest and strengthen our union with Christ, so our practice of expiation (by purifying us from sins) is the beginning of such union; wherefrom our participation in the sufferings of Christ is the means of perfecting such union; and the offering which we make to him of our sacrifices for the welfare of our brethren bringeth such union to its final consummation. Now this is precisely the design of the mercy of Jesus, when he doth unveil to the gaze of mankind his Heart, surrounded by the emblems of his passion, and aflame with the Fire of Love, namely: that we, (on the one hand, perceiving the unlimited malice of sin, and on the other, filled with a knowledge of the infinite love of him who is The Repairator,) may detest sin more heartily, and substitute for it a burning love for him. And verily, the spirit of expiation or of reparation hath always played a chief part in the devotion to the most Sacred Heart of Jesus, and reparation is most consonant with the origin, nature, efficacy and particular practices of this special devotion, a fact confirmed by history and the customs of the faithful, by the sacred liturgy, and by the official documents of the Supreme Pontiffs.

R. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent; * Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

Ÿ. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

R. Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

LESSON VI

Inasmuch as, when Christ revealed himself to the sight of Margaret Mary, though he then insisted on the immensity of his love, at the same time, with sorrowful mien, he grieved over the great number of horrible outrages heaped upon him by the ingratitude of mankind, he used then these words, words which should be graven on the hearts of all pious souls so as never to be forgotten by them: Behold that Heart which hath so loved men; which same hath heaped upon them so many benefits; in return for whose infinite love no gratitude is to be found; but instead cometh unto it forgetfulness, indifference, outrages; and all such things do come

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 19:31-37

At that time: The Jews, because it was the Preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the Sabbath Day, for that Sabbath Day was an high day, besought Pilate that their legs might broken, and that they might be taken away. And so on.

A Homily by St. Bernardin of Siena John continueth: One of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water. O Love, thou that canst dissolve all things, how thou didst flow forth from our Beloved, for the sake of our redemption! In order that this thy flood of love might spread everywhere, the great firmament was rent above us, even the heights of the Heart of Jesus, which the cruel spear did not fail to pierce to its innermost abyss. And forthwith came there out blood and water. Blood for redemption flowed out, but also water for cleansing; whence the Church was formed from the side of Christ, that she might know herself ever to be the sole-beloved one of Christ, and that she might understand how greatly sin displeaseth him, as she seeth his divine blood flow forth from the God-Man, both in life and in death. For if the divine blood be shed for us, then we cost not a little.

guine defluxísset. Et forte totus sanguis deflúxit ex illo divíno córpore in signum totíus amoris effúsi, post quem humor áqueus egréssus est. Quod quidem est alto mysté-rio factum, ut prius egrederétur ex eódem córpore rédimens prétium, deínde aqua in qua multitúdo populórum redémpta significátur. Sunt enim aquæ multæ, pópuli multi; tamen qui ad christíanam fidem pértinent unus fidélis pópulus sunt, ut non sint aquæ, sed aqua quæ manávit ex látere Christi, sicut prima Corinthiórum cápíte décimo Apóstolus ait: Unus panis, et unum corpus multi sumus omnes, qui de uno pane et de uno cálíce participámus. Et íterum ad Ephésios,

R. Et ambulémus in dilectiône.

R. If I be lifted up, * I will draw all men unto me.

Ÿ. This he said, signifying what death he should die.

R. I will draw all men unto me.

LESSON VIII

The water flowed not forth intermingled with the blood. For if it had so done, it could not have been perceived by simple folk. And perchance all the blood flowed forth from that divine body, as a sign that all his love was poured out, after which a watery humour came forth. Verily this was a token of a profound mystery, to wit, that from one and the same body came forth first the price of our redemption amongst all peoples. For many waters may be taken to signify many peoples; yet all who belong to the Christian Faith, are one people in the Faith, so that they are not as many waters; rather they are as one stream of water, and as such did flow from the side of Christ, as saith the Apostle in the tenth chapter of the former Epistle to the Corinthians: For we being many are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread and one cup. And again, in the fourth chapter of Ephesians, he saith: One God, one faith, one baptism.

R. Be ye therefore followers of God; * And walk ye therefore in love.

Ÿ. For Christ also hath loved us and hath given himself for us.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

LECTIO IX

Notánter tamen adverténdum est quod latus Christi apértum díctur, non vulnerátum; quóniam próprie vulnus præterquam in vivo córpore fieri nequit. Ait enim Evangelísta Joánnēs: Unus mílitum láncea latus ejus apérui; ut, apérto látere, cognoscámus dilectiónem Cordis sui usque ad mortem, et ad illum ineffábilem amórem ejus ingrediámur quo ille ad nos procéssit. Accedámus ergo ad Cor ejus, Cor altum, Cor secrétum, Cor ómnia cógitans, Cor ómnia sciens, Cor díligens, immo amóre ardens; et apértam portam intelligámus saltem in amóris veheméntia; cordifórmes ingrediámur ad secrétum ab ætérno absconditum, nunc vero in morte quasi apérto látere revelátum; quóniam apértio láteris ætérni templi apertiónem demónstrat, ubi ómnium existéntium consummáta est felícitas æténa.

Tè Deum

LESSON IX

Nevertheless, it is especially deserving of our attention that the side of Christ is said to have been pierced, (that is, set open,) not wounded, since a wound cannot properly be said to be inflicted except on a living body. For John the Evangelist saith: One of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side: that through this side thus opened, we might become aware of the love of his Heart, even unto death, and that we might enter into that unutterable love of his, through the same channel whereby it came unto us. Let us draw near then to his Heart, a deep Heart, a hidden Heart, a Heart thinking of all, a Heart knowing all, a Heart loving, yea, even on fire with love. Let us also recognize at least in the vehemence of his love that the gate is open; with our hearts made like unto his, let us enter into that secret place, hidden from all eternity, but now in death revealed, as it were, through the open side; for the opening of his side is a figure of the opening of the eternal temple, where is consummated the everlasting happiness of every creature.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum1 Reg 13:1-4

Fílius uníus anni erat Saul, cum regnáre cœpísset; duóbús autem annis regnávit super Israël. Et elégit sibi Saul tria míllia de Israël. Et erant cum Saul duo míllia in Machmas et in monte Bethel, mille autem cum Jónatha in Gábaa Bénjamin. Porro céterum pópulum remísit unumquémque in tabernácula sua. Et percússit Jónathas statiónem Philisthinórum, quæ erat in Gábaa. Quod cum audísset Philísthiim Saul cécinít búccina in omni terra dicens: Audiant Hebræi. Et uníversus Israël audívit hujuscémodi famam: Percússit Saul statiónem Philisthinórum, et eréxit se Israël advérsus Philísthiim; clamávit ergo pópulus post Saul in Gálgala.

Lesson from the first book of Samuel1 Sam 13:1-4

Saul was a child of one year when he began to reign, and he reigned two years over Israel. And Saul chose him three thousand men of Israel: and two thousand were with Saul in Machmas, and in mount Bethel: and a thousand with Jonathan in Gabaa of Benjamin, and the rest of the people he sent back every man to their dwellings. And Jonathan smote the garrison of the Philistines which was in Gabaa. And when the Philistines had heard of it, Saul sounded the trumpet over all the land, saying: Let the Hebrews hear. And all Israel heard this report: Saul hath smitten the garrison of the Philistines: and Israel took courage against the Philistines. And the people were called together after Saul to Galgal.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 13:5-8

Et Philisthiim congregati sunt ad præliandum contra Israël, triginta millia curruum et sex millia equitum et reliquum vulgus, sicut arena, quæ est in littore maris plurima. Et ascendentes castrametati sunt in Machmas ad orientem Bethaven. Quod cum vidissent viri Israël se in arcto positos, (afflictus enim erat populus) absconderunt se in speluncis et in abditis, in petris quoque et in antris et in cisternis. Hebræi autem transierunt Jordanem in terram Gad et Galaad. Cumque adhuc esset Saul in Gálgala, universus populus perterritus est, qui sequebatur eum. Et expectavit septem diebus juxta placitum Samuélis; et non venit Sámuel in Gálgala, dilapsusque est populus ab eo.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 13:9-14

Ait ergo Saul: Afferte mihi holocaustum et pacifica. Et obtulit holocaustum. Cumque complisset offerens holocaustum, ecce Samuel veniebat; et egressus est Saul obviam ei ut salutaret eum. LESSON II

1 Sam 13:5-8

The Philistines also were assembled to fight against Israel, thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and a multitude of people besides, like the sand on the sea shore for number. And going up they camped in Machmas at the east of Bethaven. And when the men of Israel saw that they were straitened, (for the people were distressed,) they hid themselves in caves, and in thickets, and in rocks, and in dens, and in pits. And some of the Hebrews passed over the Jordan into the land of Gad and Galaad. And when Saul was yet in Galgal, all the people that followed him were greatly afraid. And he waited seven days according to the appointment of Samuel, and Samuel came not to Galgal, and the people slipped away from him.

R. It was not an open enemy that has done me this dishonour, for then I could have borne it, * But it was even thou, mine own familiar friend, who did also eat of my Bread.

Then Saul said: Bring me the holocaust, and the peace offerings. And he offered the holocaust. And when he had made an end of offering the holocaust, behold Samuel came: and Saul went forth to meet him and salute him. And Samuel said to him: What hast thou done? Forced by necessity, I offered the holo-caust. And Samuel said to Saul: Thou hast done foolishly, and hast not kept the commandments of the Lord thy God, which he commanded thee. And if thou hadst not done thus, the Lord would now have established thy kingdom over Israel for ever. But thy kingdom shall not continue. The Lord hath sought him a man according to his own heart: and him hath the Lord commanded to be prince over his people, because thou hast not ob-served that which the Lord commanded.

LESSON IV

From the Encyclical Letter of Pope Pius XI

But in what sense can it be said that our expia-tory practices can give consolation to Christ, since he is now reigning in heavenly joy? We answer in the words of Saint Augustine (from a passage entirely appropriate to this subject): Give me a lover, and he will feel the truth of what I say. Every soul which is on fire with the love of God, if it but turns its thoughts to the past, doth in its medita-tion perceive and contemplate Christ suffering for mankind; afflicted by grief in the midst of sorrows endured for us men and for our salvation; almost overcome by afflictions, vexations, and reproaches; yea, bruised by our sins; with whose stripes we are healed. And devout souls will have an apprecia-tion in proportion to their understanding of these mysteries, if they perceive that the sins and crimes of men (no matter when committed) were the real reason why the Son of God was condemned to death, and that sins committed in this present are able in some wise to cause the death of Christ, re-newing as they do, the cause of that selfsame death, with its sufferings and agonies, which was accom-plished on the Cross; for every sin must be said to renew, in some fashion, the Lord's passion, con-cerning which we read in the Scriptures: They crucify themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame.

R. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, * Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

Ÿ. The Lord is full of compassion and mercy, long-suffering and of great goodness.

R. Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

LESSON V

And since in the agony in the Garden the soul of Christ became sorrowful even unto death, in view of our own future sins which were foreseen by him, there can be no doubt that at the same time he was in some way consoled, through the pro- vision of our acts of reparation, when the Angel from heaven appeared unto him to comfort him in the sorrows of his Heart, which was so bowed down with weariness and grief. And so, even at this present time, we can and we ought to console, in a mystical but nonetheless real manner, that most Sacred Heart: which same is being wounded con- tinually by the sins of thankless men. It is in this sense, namely, that Christ is grieved over his aban- donment by his friends that we are accustomed to interpret the holy liturgy whenever we say in the words of the Psalmist: Thy rebuke hath broken my Heart; I am full of heaviness; I looked for some to have pity on me, but there was no man, neither found I any to comfort me.

R. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent; * Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

Ÿ. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

R. Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

LESSON VI

To the foregoing we should add that the expia- tory passion of Christ is renewed, and in a certain tur in corpore suo mystico, quod est Ecclesiā. Etenim, ut rursus sancti Augustīni verbis utāmur, «passus est Christus quidquid pati debuerat; jam de mensura passionum nihil deest. Ergo implētæ sunt passiōnes, sed in cāpite; restabant adhuc Christi passiōnes in corpore». Quod quidem Dōminus ipse Jesus declarāre dignātus est, cum ad Saulum «adhuc spirāntem minarum et cædis in discipulos» loquens: «Ego sum, inquit, Jesus quem tu persequeris», haud obscurē significans, commōtis in Ecclesiā insectatiōnibus, ipsum divinum oppugnari ac vexari Ecclesiæ Caput. Jure igitur meritōque Christus in corpore suo mystico adhuc patiēns, nos expiatiōnis suæ socios habere exoptat, idque etiā ipsa nostra cum eo necessitudo postulat; nam cum simus «corpus Christi et membra de membro», quidquid patitur caput, omnia cum eo membra patiāntur oportet.

℟. Omnes gentes quascūque fecisti, venient * Et adorabunt coram te, Dōmine.

℣. Et glorificabunt nomen tuum, quoniam magnus es tu, et faciens mirabilia.

manner continued, in his mystical body, which same is the Church. In this connection, once more the words of Saint Augustine are appropriate: Christ suffered all that he needed to suffer; nothing at all is lacking in the number of his sufferings; therefore his sufferings are completed in him as the Head; but there remaineth even yet the sufferings of Christ to be endured in the body. Which truth verily the Lord Jesus himself made known, at the time that Saul was breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples, to whom the Lord said: I am Jesus whom thou persecutest. By these words he plainly affirmed that persecutions visited on the Church are in reality directed against the Head of the Church. Meet it is therefore that Christ, thus still suffering in his mystical body, should desire to have us sharers in his own work of expiation, even as our own need moveth us to desire and seek union with him. And since we are the body of Christ, and members of his very flesh and bones, whatever the Head must suffer all the members of the body must needs suffer together with him.

Meditate on the boundless generosity which Christ the Preserver manifested to all his own people. For at one time, standing in the midst of the people, he cried out: If any man thirst, let him come to me and drink; thereby shewing how ready he was to welcome everyone, and help him in his every need. Consider how freely he giveth thee to drink of his Heart's precious blood, considering that his sacred side was set open, wherefrom he poured forth whatever blood was still left in his body.

In Evang. Dominica I post Pascha

And so that I may not be utterly ungrateful, often I call up before mine eyes those perennial fountains of gifts and of all good things, since from them that most sweet promise standeth out: Ye shall draw waters with joy out of the founts of the Saviour, and ye shall say in that day: Praise ye the Lord. There will I flee, to those thrice-blest holes in the rock which can never be demolished; there will I build for myself a most durable nest, holding nothing better, in all sorrows and perils that befall me, than to think on the wounds of the Lord.

Dixit autem Jónathas ad adolescentem armigerum suum: Veni, transeamus ad stationem incircumcisorum horum, si forte faciat Dóminus pro nobis, quia non est Dómino difficile salvare vel in multis vel in paucis. Dixitque ei armiger suus: Fac omnia, quæ placent ánimo tuo, perge quo cupis, et ero tecum ubicumque volueris. Et ait Jónathas: Ecce nos transimus ad viros istos. Cumque apparuerimus eis, si taliter locuti fuerint ad nos: Manete donec veniamus ad vos; stemus in loco nostro nec ascendamus ad eos. Si autem dixerint: Ascendite ad nos; ascendamus, quia tradidit eos Dóminus in manibus nostris: hoc erit nobis signum. Apparuit igitur uterque stationi Philístiim. And Jonathan said to the young man that bore his armour: Come, let us go over to the garrison of these uncircumcised, it may be the Lord will do for us, because it is easy for the Lord to save either by many, or by few. And his armourbearer said to him: Do all that pleaseth thy mind: go whither thou wilt, and I will be with thee wheresoever thou hast a mind. And Jonathan said: Behold we will go over to these men. And when we shall be seen by them, If they shall speak thus to us: Stay till we come to you: let us stand still in our place, and not go up to them. But if they shall say: Come up to us: let us go up, because the Lord hath delivered them into our hands, this shall be a sign unto us. So both of them discovered themselves to the garrison of the Philistines: and the Philistines said: Behold the Hebrews come forth out of the holes wherein they were hid.

And Jonathan said to his armourbearer: Let us go up, follow me: for the Lord hath delivered them into the hands of Israel. And Jonathan went up creeping on his hands and feet, and his armourbearer after him. And some fell before Jonathan, others his armourbearer slew as he followed him. And the first slaughter which Jonathan and his armourbearer made, was of about twenty men, within half an acre of land, which a yoke of oxen is wont to plough in a day. And there was a miracle in the camp, through the fields: yea and all the people of their garrison, who had gone out to plunder, were amazed, and the earth trembled: and it happened as a miracle from God.

LESSON IV

From the Encyclical Letter of Pope Pius XI

Anyone who will use his eyes and mind, if he but think of this world, whereof it is truly said: The whole world lieth in wickedness: can see how urgent, especially in these our own times, is the need for expiation or atonement. For there come to our ears from every side the cries of nations, whose rulers or governments have actually risen up, and conspired together, against the Lord, and against his Church. Nor is that other sight less sad, to wit, that even among the faithful, (washed as they are by Baptism in the blood of the Lamb without spot, and enriched by his grace,) we find so many of every station in life who are ignorant of divine things, and poisoned by false doctrine; and who do live a sinful life, far from their Father's house; without the light of the true Faith; without the joy of a hope in the future life; deprived of the strength and comfort which come with the Spirit of Love; so that it may be said of them quite truthfully: They sit in darkness and in the shadow of death.

R. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, * Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

LESSON V

Hisc vero malis véluti in cúmulum accédit cum eórum ignávia atque socórdia, qui, dormitántium et fugiéntium instar discipulórum, nutántes in fide, Christum angóribus oppréssum vel Sátanæ satellítibus circumvéntum mísero derelínquunt, tum eórum perfídia, qui, Judæ proditóris exéplum secúti, aut témere et sacrílege de altári libant, aut ad hóstium castra transfúgiunt. Atque ita vel invítum subit cogitátio ánimum, jam própíus adventáre témpora de quibus Dóminus Noster vaticínatus est: Et quóniam abundávit iníquitas, refrigéscet cáritas multórum. Quæ quidem ómnia quotquot pie commentáti erunt fidéles, fácere non póterunt, quin, Christi perdoléntis incénsi caritáte, vehementióre stúdio suas aliorúmque culpas éxpient, Christi honórem resárciant, æternámque próvehant animárum salútem.

R. Confíteor tibi, Pater, Dómine cæli et terræ, quia abscondísti hæc a sapiéntibus et prudéntibus * Et revelásti ea párvulis.

Y. Ita, Pater, quóniam sic fuit plácitum ante te.

R. Et revelásti ea párvulis.

LECTIO VI

Et sane illud Apóstoli: Ubi abundávit delíctum, superabundávit grátia, áliquo pacto ad hanc quoque ætátem nostram describéndam accommodáre licet: nam, aucta ádmodum perversitáte hóminum, mirífice item, Spíritu Sancto afflánte, número fidélium utriúsque sexus augétur, qui alacrióre ánimo pro tot illátis injúriis divíno Cordi satisfácere student, immo étiam se ipsos Christo víctimas offérre non dúbitant. Etenim quæ usque adhuc memorávimus si quis secum ánimo réputet amánte eadémque véluti in medúllis defíxa hábeat, fieri profécto non potest quin is non tam ab omni peccáto tamquam summo malo abhórreat atque abstíneat, quam se totum

To the aforesaid accumulation of evils must be added the sloth and indifference of many of his followers, who are like unto the disciples that fled from him or slept. These are such as are not firmly rooted in the Faith, and have therefore shamefully abandoned Christ at a time when he is burdened with sorros and attacked by the hosts of Satan. And other of his followers are like unto Judas the traitor, in that they walk in the footsteps of perfidy. These are such as approach the Sacrament of the Altar with sacrilegious boldness, or even go over to the camp of the enemy. And we are therefore moved to think that now is come the hour of which our Lord prophesied: Because iniquity shall abound, the love of the many shall grow cold. If those who remain faithful on fire with love at the sufferings of Christ will but meditate on these considerations, it is unthinkable that they will do other than strive with greater zeal to expiate both their own faults and the faults of others; and that they will thus seek to make reparation for the dishonour done to Christ; and so they will be filled with zeal for the eternal salvation of souls.

R. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent; * Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

Y. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

R. Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

LESSON VI

Surely we shall do well to apply to this our own age what the Apostle wrote: Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound. For even though the sinfulness of man doth greatly increase, by the grace of the Holy Spirit there doth also increase in number those of both sexes who most cheerfully do endeavour to make satisfaction to the divine Heart for the numerous injuries heaped thereupon; may more, they even cheerfully offer themselves as victims for sin. Verily, anyone that considereth in a spirit of love all the revelation which hath come into his mind up to this time, if he have impressed such things on the fleshly tablets of his own heart, as it were, cannot but abhor and flee sin as the greatest of all evils. Such an one will therefore offer himself wholly and completely to the will

LECTIO VII

Léctio sancti Evangelíi secúndum Joánnem

Joannes 19:31-37

In illo témpore: Judæi, quóniam parascève erat, ut non remanérent in cruce córpora sábbato (erat enim magnus dies ille sábbati) rogavérunt Pilátum, ut frangeréntur eórum crura et tolleréntur. Et reliqua.

Homília sancti Cyrilli Alexandríni

Comm. in Joann. Lib. 12 Cap. 19

Non hæc ait beátus Evangelísta, quasi pietátem ullam efferátis et crudélibus Judæis tríbuat, sed ut osténdat stulte eos et imperíte excoláre cúlicem, et camélum deglutíre sicut a Christo dictum est. Gravíssima enim et immánia scélera pro níhilo dúcere comperiúntur: mínima vero et exília caute ádmóndum ac sollicité obsérvant, suam utrobíque pandéntes inscítiam. Quod in promptu est osténdere. Ecce enim Christo interfécto sábbati honórem magni fáciunt, et incredíbili audácia, violáto legis auctóre, pietátem erga legem præ se ferunt.

of God, and by constant prayer, willing penances, and the patient endurance of all the ills that befall him will endeavour to repair the injuries done to the Majesty of God. In a word, he will so organize his life that all things in it may be motivated by the spirit of reparation.

R. All nations whom thou hast made shall come, * And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

Ÿ. Yea, they shall glorify thy Name, for thou art great, and doest wondrous things.

R. And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 19:31-37

At that time: The Jews, because it was the Preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the Sabbath Day, for that Sabbath Day was an high day, besought Pilate that their legs might broken, and that they might be taken away. And so on.

A Homily by St. Cyril of Alexandria

Comm. in Joann. Lib. 12 Cap. 19

The blessed Evangelist doth not record these things as if they were evidence of some godliness amidst all the savage cruelty which Jewry had manifested. Rather, by them he doth shew how foolishly and ignorantly a gnat can be carefully strained out, and a camel swallowed, as Christ himself had fore-said. For we perceive that they made light of most grievous and awful crimes, the while they took careful and anxious pains to observe mere trivialities; in the which consistency they did in both things but display their ignorance, as can be readily shewn. For lo! they put Christ to death, the while they give honour to the Great Sabbath. Thus, with incredible insolence, the make a shew of reverence for the Law concerning the Sabbath, whose very Author they in so doing do dishonour.

R. If I be lifted up, * I will draw all men unto me.

Ÿ. This he said, signifying what death he should die.

R. I will draw all men unto me.

R. Omnia traham ad meípsum.

LECTIO VIII

Magnum autem illíus præcípue sábbati diem cólere símulant, qui magnæ diéi Dóminum interemérunt, et grátiam se solis dignam flágitant, ut eórum nempe crura frangántur, intolerábili dolóre acerbiórem morte ipsa perníciam prope jam mórtuis moliéntes. Venérunt ergo mílites, et primi quidem fregérunt crura, et altérius qui crucifíxus est cum eo. Judæórum petitióni mílites obsecúti, qui símili crudelitátis furóre laborábant, duórum quidem latrónum, quippe qui vivi adhuc repérti essent, crura confríngunt. Sed, cum Jesum inclinásse caput comperísset, et jam exspirásse putárent, frustra ejus crura confríngi existimant, sed, cum adhuc mórtuum esse nonníhil diffidérent, láncea latus ejus perfódiunt, unde cruor aqua mixtus scatúriit, quod eulógiæ mýsticæ et sancti baptísmatis imágo quædam erat atque primitiæ.

R. Simus ergo imitatóres Dei * Et ambulémus in dilectiône.

ψ. Sicut et Christus diléxit nos et trádedit semetípsum pro nobis.

R. Et ambulémus in dilectiône.

ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et ambulémus in dilectiône.

LECTIO IX

Ex iis autem quæ contigérunt, sapientíssimus Evangelísta confírmatur audítóribus eum esse Christum, qui per sanctas olim prædictus est Scriptúras; consentánea enim divínis de eo oráculis evenérunt. nec enim os ejus confráctum est, et mílitum láncea transfíxus est, secúndum Scriptúras. Spectatórem vero ejus rei ait exstítisse discípulum ípsam qui testimónium pérhibet de his, et scire se vera testári, seípsum his verbis, non álium dénotans.

LESSON VIII

The pretend to shew especial reverence for that Great Sabbath Day—they who have put to death the Lord of that great day! And thereupon they earnestly beseech a favour worthy of such folk alone, namely, That the legs of the crucified ones may be broken! And thereby was inflicted an intolerable pain, a bitterer misfortune than death itself, on men who were already well nigh at the point of death! The Evangelist saith: Then came the soldiers and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with him. Thus it doth appear that the soldiers who went in answer to this request were labouring under a frenzy of cruelty like to that of Jewry itself, and therefore they brake the legs of the two thieves whom they found yet alive. But when they came to Jesus, whose head was bowed, they concluded that he was dead already, so that it was useless to go to the trouble of breaking his legs. But to make quite certain that he was dead indeed, they did pierce his side with a spear. And forthwith there came out blood and water: a figure of the mystical Banquet and of holy Baptism, and also the first-fruits of the same.

R. Be ye therefore followers of God; * And walk ye therefore in love.

ψ. For Christ also hath loved us and hath given himself for us.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And walk ye therefore in love.

LESSON IX

And from these things which came to pass, the most wise Evangelist proveth to his hearers that this is the Christ, who was long ago foretold by holy Scripture; for all that happened doth agree with what was prophesied through God concerning him. And so, according to the Scriptures, not a bone of him was broken, and he was pierced with the soldier's lance. The Evangelist doth certainly say that the one who saw this thing was the same disciple that gave testimony concerning these things, and that he knew that his testimony was

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 15:1-3

Et dixit Samuel ad Saul: Me misit Dóminus, ut úngerem te in regem super pópulum ejus Israëli; nunc ergo audi vocem Dómini. Hæc dicit Dóminus exercítuum: Recénsui quæcúmque fecit Amalec Israéli, quómodo réstitit ei in via, cum ascénderet de Ægýpto. Nunc ergo vade et pérquite Amalec et demolíre univérsa ejus: non parcas ei et non concupíscas ex rebus ipsíus áliquid; sed intérfice a viro usque ad mulierem et párvulum atque lacténtem, bovem et ovem, camélum et ásinum.

R. Fériam eis pactum sempitérnum et non désinam eis benefácere et tímórem meum dabo in corde eórum * Ut non recédant a me.

Y. Et lætábor super eis cum bene eis féceró in toto Cordé meo.

R. Ut non recédant a me.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 15:4-8

Præcépit ítaque Saul pópulo, et recénsuit eos quasi agnos: ducénta míllia péditum et decem míllia virórum Juda. Cumque venísset Saul usque ad civitátem Amalec, teténdit insídias in torrente. Dixítque Saul Cinæo: Abíte, recédite atque descéndite ab Amalec, ne forte involám te cum eo; tu enim fecísti misericórdiam cum ómnibus fíliis Israëli cum ascénderent de Ægýpto. Et recéssit Cinæus de médio Amalec. Percussítque Saul Amalec ab Hévila donec vénias ad Sur, quæ est e regióné Ægýpti. Et apprehéndit Agag

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 15:1-3

And Samuel said to Saul: The Lord sent me to anoint thee king over his People Israel: now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the Lord: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I have reckoned up all that Amalec hath done to Israel: I how he opposed them in the way when they came up out of Egypt. Now therefore go, and smite Amalec, and utterly destroy all that he hath: spare him not, nor covet any thing that is his: but slay both man and woman, child and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass.

R. I will make an everlasting Covenant with them, and I will not cease from doing them good, and I will put my fear in their hearts, * So that they shall not depart from me.

Y. Yea, I will rejoice over them, to do them good with my whole Heart.

R. So that they shall not depart from me.

LESSON II

1 Sam 15:4-8

So Saul commanded the people, and numbered them as lambs: two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand of the men of Juda. And when Saul was come to the city of Amalec, he laid ambushes in the torrent. And Saul said to the Cinite: Go, depart and get ye down from Amalec: lest I destroy thee with him. For thou hast shown kindness to all the children of Israel, when they came up out of Egypt. And the Cinite departed from the midst of Amalec. And Saul smote Amalec from Hevila, until thou comest to Sur, which is over against Egypt. And he took Agag the king of

1 Reg 15:9-11

Et pepércit Saul et pópulus Agag et óptimis grégibus óvium et armentórum et véstibus et ariétibus et univérsis, quæ pulchra erant, nec voluerunt dispérdere ea; quidquid vero vile fuit et réprobum, hoc demolíti sunt. Factum est autem verbum Dómini ad Sámuel, dicens: Poénitet me quod constituérim Saul regem, quia derelíquit me et verba mea ópere non implévit. Contristatúsque est Sámuel et clamávit ad Dóminum tota nocte.

℟. Cum essémus mórtui peccátis, convivificávit nos Deus in Christo * Propter nímiam caritátem suam qua diléxit nos.

℣. Neither was it mine adversary that did magnify himself against me, for then peradventure I would have hid myself from him.

℟. But it was even thou, mine own familiar friend, who did also eat of my Bread.

LESSON III

1 Sam 15:9-11

And Saul and the people spared Agag and the best of the flocks of sheep and of the herds, and the garments and the rams, and all that was beautiful, and would not destroy them: but every thing that was vile and good for nothing, that they destroyed. And the word of the Lord came to Samuel, saying: It repenteth me that I have made Saul king: for he hath forsaken me, and hath not executed my commandments. And Samuel was grieved, and he cried unto the Lord all night.

℟. And we, being dead in our sins, hath God quickened together with Christ, * For his great love wherewith he hath loved us.

℣. That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace.

℟. For his great love wherewith he hath loved us.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. For his great love wherewith he hath loved us.

LESSON IV

From a Sermon by St. Bernard the Abbot

Sermo 61 in Cantica Canticorum, nn. 3-5

For us who are so frail and weak, where is to be found a sure and certain place of abiding safety, or of everlasting rest? Where except in the Wounds of the Saviour? There alone I may dwell safely. There alone I may find a safety as great as his mighty power to save. The world may rage around me; the cavi peccatum grande: turbabitur conscientia, sed non perturbabitur, quoniam vulnerum Domini recordabor. Nempe vulneratus est propter iniquitates nostras. Quid tam ad mortem, quod non Christi morte solvatur? Si ergo in mentem venerit tam potens tamque efficax medicamentum, nulla jam possum morbi malignitate terreri.

R. Prope est Dominus omnibus invocantibus eum, * Omnibus invocantibus eum in veritate.

V. Miserator et misericors Dominus, pateriens et multum misericors.

R. Omnibus invocantibus eum in veritate.

LECTIO V

Ego vero fidenter quod ex me mihi deest, usurpo mihi ex visceribus Domini, quoniam misericordiae affluunt; nec desunt foramina, per quae effluant. Foderunt manus ejus et pedes, latiusque lancea foraverunt; et per has rimas licet mihi sugere mel de petra, oleumque de saxo durissimo; id est gustare et videre quoniam suavis est Dominus. Cogitabat cogitationes pacis, et ego nesciebam. Quis enim cognovit sensum Domini? aut quis consiliarius ejus fuit? At clavis reserans, clavus penetrans factus est mihi ut videam voluntatem Domini. Quidni videam per foramen? Clamat clavus, clamat vulnus, quod vere Deus sit in Christo mundum reconcilians sibi.

R. Confiteor tibi, Pater, Domine caeli et terrae, quia abscondisti haec a sapientibus et prudentibus * Et revelasti ea parvulis.

V. Ita, Pater, quoniam sic fuit placitum ante te.

body may weigh me down; the devil may lay snares for me; but if I hide me there I cannot fall, for I am founded on the firm Rock. If I have committed a great sin; if my conscience is sore troubled; I will not despair, for I have always in remembrance the Wounds of the Lord. For in all truth: He was wounded for our transgressions. And there is no sin so deadly that it cannot be remitted through Christ's death. If then I keep in remembrance a remedy so powerful and efficacious, I cannot in this present life be terrified by any evil, no matter how malignant.

R. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, * Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

V. The Lord is full of compassion and mercy, long-suffering and of great goodness.

R. Yea, unto all such as call upon him faithfully.

LESSON V

But as for me, since mercies thus abound, I take unto myself whatever is lacking in me; yea, I take it unto myself with confidence; I take it unto myself from the compassion of the Lord, with whom every kind of mercy aboundeth. For openings are not wanting, through which these mercies may flow forth. They have pierced his hands and his feet; yea, and his side too they have pierced with a spear. It is though these clefts that I am permitted to suck honey from the Rock, and oil out of the flinty Rock, and to taste and see how gracious the Lord is. His thoughts are thoughts of peace, and I knew it not. For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? But the nail which did pierce hath become unto me a key which doth unlock, so that the will of the Lord is set open unto me. How could I, with such an opening, do other than to see his will? For the nails cry aloud, and the Wounds speak, saying the truth: To wit, that God is in Christ reconciling the world unto himself.

R. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent; * Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

V. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

Quidni víscera per vúlnera páteant? In quo enim clárius quam in vulnéribus tuis eluxísset, quod tu, Dómine, suávis et mitis, et multæ misericórdiæ? Majórem enim miseratiónem nemo habet, quam ut ánimam suam ponat quis pro addíctis morti et damnátis. Meum proínde méritum, miserátio Dómini. Léctio sancti Evangélíi secúndum Joánnem

Joannes 19:31-37

In illo témpore: Judæi, quóniam parascève erat, ut non remanérent in cruce córpora sábbato (erat enim magnus dies ille sábbati) rogavérunt Pilátum, ut frangeréntur eórum crura et tolleréntur. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Augustíni Epíscopi

Tractatus 120 in Joánnem, nn. 2-3

Ad Jesum autem cum veníssent, ut viderunt eum jam mórtuum, non fregérunt ejus crura, sed unus mílitum lancea latus ejus aperúit, et contínuo exívit sanguis et aqua. Vigílanti verbo Evangélista usus est, ut non diceret:

R. Yea, thou hast revealed them unto babes.

LESSON VI

The iron entered into his soul, and came nigh unto his Heart, that he might truly know compassion for mine infirmities. The secrets of his Heart lie open, through the Wounds of his body. Thus is that great mystery of love laid open, there lie open the bowels of the mercy of our God, whereby the Day-Spring from on high hath visited us. But why should not the bowels of mercy lie open through the wounds? For in what hath it appeared more clearly than in thy wounds, that thou, O Lord, art sweet and gentle, and of great mercy? For greater pity hath no man, than that a man lay down his life for those who were doomed and condemned to death. From this pity of the Lord is all my merit. I am not entirely destitute of merit, so long as he is not wanting in compassion. And if the mercies of the Lord are from eternity unto eternity, I also will sing the mercies of the Lord forever.

R. All nations whom thou hast made shall come, * And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

V. Yea, they shall glorify thy Name, for thou art great, and doest wondrous things.

R. And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And they shall worship thee, O Lord.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 19:31-37

At that time: The Jews, because it was the Preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the Sabbath Day, for that Sabbath Day was an high day, besought Pilate that their legs might broken, and that they might be taken away. And so on.

A Homily by St. Augustine the Bishop

Tractatus 120 in Joannem, nn. 2-3

But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs: but one of the soldiers with a spear opened his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water. Note that the Evangelist maketh use of a word of special sig-latus ejus percússit, aut vulnerávit, aut quid aliud, sed apéruit, ut illic quodámmodo vitæ óstium panderétur, unde Sacraménta Ecclésiæ manáverunt, sine quibus ad vitam, quæ vera vita est, non intrátur. Ille sanguis in remissionem fusus est peccatórum. Aqua illa salutare témperat póculum, hæc et lavácrum præstat et potum. Hoc prænuntiábat quod Noë in látere arcæ óstium fácere jussus est, qua intrárent animália quæ non erant dilúvio peritúra, quibus præfigurabátur Ecclésia.

℟. Ego si exaltátus fúero a terra * Omnia traham ad meípsum.

℣. Hoc autem dicébat significans qua morte esset moritúrus.

℟. Omnia traham ad meípsum.

LECTIO VIII

Propter hoc prima múlter facta est de látere viri dormiéntis, et appelláta est vita matrêque vivórum. Magnum quippe significávit bonum, ante magnum prævaricatiónis malum. Hic secúndus Adam, inclináto cápite, in cruce dormívit, ut inde formarétur ejus conjux, quæ de látere dormiéntis efflúxit. O mors unde mórtui revivíscunt! Quid isto ságuine múndius? Quid vúlnerè isto salúbrius? Et qui vidit, inquit, testimónium perhíbuit, et verum est testimónium ejus; et ille scit quia vera dicit, ut et vos credátis. Non dixit: ut et vos sciátis, sed ut credátis. Scit enim qui vidit, cujus credat testimónio qui non vidit. Magis autem ad fidem pértinet crédere quam vidére.

℟. Simus ergo imitatóres Dei * Et ambulémus in dilectióne.

nificance. He saith not: Penetrated his side: nor yet: Wounded: nor any other thing; but rather: Opened: that thereby in a sense the door of life might be thrown open, from whence the Sacraments of the Church have flowed forth, without which there is no entrance into the life which is the only true life. For that blood was shed for the remission of sins; and that water hath brought into being the life-giving flagon, which same is both the laver of Baptism and the cup that giveth refreshment to them that thirst. All this was announced long before, to wit, when Noah was commanded to make a door in the side of the ark, through which might enter all living creatures which were not destined to perish in the flood; and this same is a figure of the Church.

℟. If I be lifted up, * I will draw all men unto me.

℣. This he said, signifying what death he should die.

℟. I will draw all men unto me.

LESSON VIII

Another figure is also to be found in the first woman. For she was made out of the side of the first man whilst he slept a deep sleep; and she was called: Life: or as it may be interpreted: The Mother of all living. Thus was indicated the great good which was later to come to pass, even before the great evil of transgression had come into being. Here, in the Gospel, the second Adam is shewn as bowing his head, and sleeping his deep sleep upon the Cross, that a bride might be formed for him out of that which came forth from his side as he slept. What a death, whereby the dead are raised anew to life! How clean and cleansing is this blood! What is more healthgiving than this wound! And he that saw it, saith he, bare record, and his record is true: and he knoweth that he saith true, that ye might believe. He said not: That ye might know; but: That ye might believe. For he knoweth, who hath seen, that he, who hath not seen, might believe his record. And believing belongeth more to the nature of faith than doth seeing.

℟. Be ye therefore followers of God; * And walk ye therefore in love.

✠. Sicut et Christus diléxit nos et trádedit semetípsum pro nobis.
 R. Et ambulémus in dilectióne.
 ✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
 R. Et ambulémus in dilectióne.

LECTIO IX

Duo testimónia de Scriptúris réddidit sín-gulis rebus quas factas fuisse narrávit. Nam quia díxerat: Ad Jesum autem cum venís-sent, ut vidérunt eum jam mórtuum, non fregérunt ejus crura, ad hoc pértinet testimó-nium: Os non comminuétis ex eo: quod præcéptum erat eis qui celebráre Pascha jussi sunt ovis immolatióne in vétéri lege, quæ Do-mínicæ Passiόνis umbra præcésserat; unde Pascha nostrum immolátus est Christus; de quo et Isaías prophéta prædíxerat: Sicut ovis ad immolándum ductus est. Item quia su-bjúnxerat dicens: Sed unus mílitum láncea latus ejus apérui, ad hoc pértinet álterum testimónium: Vidébunt in quem transfixé-runt, ubi promíssus est Christus, in ea qua crucifíxus est carne ventúrus.

LESSON IX

From the Scriptures he giveth two testimonies, one for each of the things which he hath recorded as having been done. To the words: When they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs: belongeth the testimony: A bone of him shall not be broken: which same cometh from the Mosaic injunction laid upon the Jews, who were commanded by the Old Law to celebrate the Passover by the sacrifice of a lamb, which same was a foreshadowing of the passing of Christ, whence we have the passage: Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us: concerning which the Prophet Isaiah also foretold: He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter. To the words: One of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side: belongeth the other testimony: They shall look on him whom they pierced: which same is a promise of the coming of Christ in that selfsame flesh wherein he was afterwards crucified.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 16:1-3

Dixítque Dóminus ad Samuélem: Usque-quo tu luges Saul, cum ego projécerim eum ne regnet super Israël? Imple cornu tuum óleo et veni, ut mittam te ad Isai Bethlehemí-tem; providi enim in fíliis ejus mihi regem. Et ait Samuel: Quómodo vadam? áudiet enim Saul et interficiet me. Et ait Dóminus: Vítulum de arménto tolles in manu tua et dices: Ad immolándum Dómino veni. Et vocábis Isai ad víctimam, et ego osténdam

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 16:1-3

And the Lord said to Samuel. How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, whom I have rejected from reign-ing over Israel? fill thy horn with oil, and come, that I may send thee to Isai the Bethlehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons. And Samuel said: How shall I go? for Saul will hear of it, and he will kill me. And the Lord said: Thou shalt take with thee a calf of the herd, and thou shalt say: I am come to sacrifice to the Lord. And thou shalt call Isai to the sacrifice, and I will show tibi quid fácias, et unges quemcúmque monstrávero tibi.

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ÿ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósco: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 16:4-7

Fecit ergo Samuel sicut locútus est ei Dóminus, venítque in Bétlehem, et admiráti sunt senióres civitátis occurréntes ei dixerúntque: Pacíficusne est ingrèssus tuus? Et ait: Pacíficus: ad immolándum Dómino veni: sanctificámini, et veníte mecum ut ímmolem. Sanctificávit ergo Isai et filios ejus et vocávit eos ad sacrificium. Cumque ingrèssi essent, vidit Eliab et ait: Num coram Dómino est Christus ejus? Et dixit Dóminus ad Samuélem: Ne respicias vultum ejus neque altitúdinem statúræ ejus, quóniam abjéci eum, nec juxta intúitum hóminis ego júdico; homo enim videt ea quæ parent, Dóminus autem intuétur cor.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratiónem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: * Bénedic et sanctifica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

Ÿ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctifica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 16:8-11

Et vocávit Isai Abínadab et addúxit eum coram Samuéle. Qui dixit: Nec hunc elégit Dóminus. Addúxit autem Isai Samma, de quo ait: Etiam hunc non elégit Dóminus.

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

Ÿ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

1 Sam 15:4-7

Then Samuel did as the Lord had said to him. And he came to Bethlehem, and the ancients of the city wondered, and meeting him, they said: Is thy coming hither peaceable? And he said: It is peaceable: I am come to offer sacrifice to the Lord, be ye sanctified, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Isai and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice. And when they were come in, he saw Eliab, and said: Is the Lord's anointed before him? And the Lord said to Samuel: Look not on his countenance, nor on the height of his stature: because I have rejected him, nor do I judge according to the look of man: for man seeth those things that appear, but the Lord beholdeth the heart.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ÿ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

He answered: There remaineth yet a young one, who keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said to Isai: Send, and fetch him, for we will not sit down till he come hither.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

V. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 17:1-7

Congregántes autem Philísthiim ágmina sua in práelium convenérunt in Socho Judæ, et castrametáti sunt inter Socho et Azéca in finibus Dommim. Porro Saul et filii Israël congregáti venérunt in Vallem terebínthi, et direxérunt áciem ad pugnándum contra Philísthiim. Et Philísthiim stabant super montem ex parte hac, et Israël stabat supra montem ex áltera parte, vallísque erat inter eos. Et egréssus est vir spúrius de castris Philistinórum nómine Góliath de Geth altitúdinis sex cubitórum et palmi. Et cassis área super caput ejus, et loríca squamáta induebátur; porro pondus lorícæ ejus quinque míllia síclórum æris erat. Et ócreas áreas habébat in crúribus, et clipeus áreus tegébat húmeros ejus. Hastíle autem hastæ ejus erat quasi liciatórium texéntium; ipsum autem ferrum hastæ ejus sexcéntos síclos habébat ferri; et ármiger ejus antecédébat eum.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 17:1-7

Now the Philistines gathering together their troops to battle, assembled at Socho of Juda, and camped between Socho and Azeca in the borders of Dommim. And Saul and the children of Israel being gathered together came to the valley of Terebinth, and they set the army in array to fight against the Philistines. And the Philistines stood on a mountain on the one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side: and there was a valley between them. And there went out a man baseborn from the camp of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth, whose height was six cubits and a span: And he had a helmet of brass upon his head, and he was clothed with a coat of mail with scales, and the weight of his coat of mail was five thousand sícles of brass: And he had greaves of brass on his legs, and a buckler of brass covered his shoulders. And the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and the head of his spear weighed six hundred sícles of iron: and his armourbearer went before him.

- R. Præparáte corda vestra Dómino, et servíte illi soli: * Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.
- Ψ. Convertímini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auférte deos aliénos de médio vestri.
- R. Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 17:8-11

Stansque clamábat advérsus phalángas Israëł et dicébat eis: Quare venístis paráti ad prælium? Numquid ego non sum Philisthæus, et vos servi Saul? Elígite ex vobis virum, et descéndat ad singuláre certámen: si quíverit pugnáre mecum et percússerit me, érimus vobis servi; si autem ego prævalúero et percússero eum, vos servi éritis et serviétis nobis. Et ajébat Philisthæus: Ego exprobrávi agmínibus Israëł hódie: Date mihi virum, et íneat mecum singuláre certámen. Audiens autem Saul et omnes Israëlítæ sermónes Philisthæi hujuscémodi, stupebant et metuébant nimis.

- R. Deus ómnium exaudítor est: ipse misit Angelum suum, et tulit me de óvibus patris mei: * Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.
- Ψ. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstiæ liberávit me.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 17:12-16

David autem erat fílius viri Ephrathæi, de quo supra dictum est, de Bétlehem Juda, cui nomen erat Isai, qui habébat octo fílios, et erat vir in diébus Saul senex et grandævus inter viros. Abiérunt autem tres fílii ejus majóres post Saul in prælium; et nómina trium filiórum ejus, qui perrexérunt ad bellum, Eliab primogénitus et secúndus Abínadab tertiúsque Samma; David autem erat mínimus. Tribus ergo majóribus secútis Saulem, ábiit David et revérsus est a Saul, ut

- Ψ. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.
- R. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

1 Sam 17:8-11

And standing he cried out to the bands of Israel, and said to them: Why are you come out prepared to fight? am not I a Philistine, and you the servants of Saul? Choose out a man of you, and let him come down and fight hand to hand. If he be able to fight with me, and kill me, we will be servants to you: but if I prevail against him, and kill him, you shall be servants, and shall serve us. And the Philistine said: I have defied the bands of Israel this day: Give me a man, and let him fight with me hand to hand. And Saul and all the Israelites hearing these words of the Philistine were dismayed, and greatly afraid.

- R. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's sheep, and * Anointed me with the oil of His mercy.
- Ψ. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear
- R. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

1 Sam 17:12-16

Now David was the son of that Ephrathite of Bethlehem Juda before mentioned, whose name was Isai, who had eight sons, and was an old man in the days of Saul, and of great age among men. And his three eldest sons followed Saul to the battle: and the names of his three sons that went to the battle, were Eliab the firstborn, and the second Abinadab, and the third Samma. But David was the youngest. So the three eldest having followed Saul, David went, and returned from Saul, to feed his father's flock at Bethlehem. Now the Philis-

R. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

LECTIO IV

Sermo sancti Augustíni Epíscopi

Sermo 197 de Temp. circa med.

Stabant filii Israël contra adversários quadraginta diébus. Quadraginta dies, propter quatuor témpora et quatuor partes orbis terræ, vitam præsentem significant, in qua contra Góliath vel exercitum ejus, id est, contra diábolum et ángelos ejus, Christianórum pópulus pugnare non désinit. Nec tamen vincere posset, nisi verus David Christus cum báculo, id est, cum crucis mystério descendísset. Ante advéntum enim Christi, fratres caríssimi, solútus erat diábolus; véniens Christus fecit de eo, quod in Evangélio dictum est: Nemo potest intrare in domum fortis et vasa ejus diríperé, nisi prius alligáverit fortem. Venit ergo Christus et alligávit diábolum.

R. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem millia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

Ψ. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percússit mille, et David decem millia?

tine came out morning and evening, and presented himself forty days.

R. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

Ψ. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LESSON IV

from the Sermons of St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo.)

Serm. 197. de Temp. circa med.

The children of Israel faced their enemies for forty days. These forty days, by reason of the four Seasons of the year, and of the four Continents of the globe, are a figure of this present life, during which the Christian world ceaseth not to be arrayed in battle against the devil and his angels, as it were against Goliath and the army of the Philistines. Neither can they hope to overcome him, were it not for the true David, that is, Christ, with His staff, that is, with the Mystery of His Cross. For before Christ came, my dearly beloved brethren, the devil was at large. But when Christ came, He did to him what is written in the Gospel, where it is said "How can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man?" Christ therefore came, and bound the devil.

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

Ψ. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

R. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo:
percussit Philisthæum, et abstulit
opprobrium ex Israël.

LECTIO V

Sed dicit áliquis: Si alligátus est, quare adhuc tantum prævalet? Verum est, fratres caríssimi, quia multum prævalet: sed tépidis, et negligéntibus, et Deum in veritate non timéntibus dominátur. Alligátus est enim tamquam innexus canis caténis et néminem potest mordére, nisi eum qui se illi mortífera securitate conjúnxerit. Jam vidéte, fratres, quam stultus est homo ille, quem canis in caténa pósitus mordet. Tu te illi per voluntates et cupiditates sæculi noli conjungere, et ille ad te non præsumit accédere. Latráre potest, sollicitáre potest; mordére omnino non potest, nisi voléntem. Non enim cogéndo, sed suadéndo nocet; nec extórquet a nobis consénsus, sed petit.

R. Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia veniant super vos, * Ubi ceciderunt fortes Israël.

Ÿ. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus, visitet Dóminus: a Gélboë autem
tránseat.

R. Ubi ceciderunt fortes Israël.

LECTIO VI

Venit ergo David et invénit Judæórum pópulum contra diábolum præliántem; et cum nullus esset qui præsumeret ad singuláre certámen accédere, ille qui figúram Christi gerébat, procéssit ad prælium, tulit báculum in manu sua et éxiit contra Góliath. Et in illo quidem tunc figurátum est, quod in Dómino Jesu Christo complétum est. Venit enim verus David Christus, qui contra spiritálem Góliath, id est, contra diábolum pugnatúrus crucem suam ipse portávit. Vidéte, fratres, ubi David Góliath percússerit: in fronte úti-que, ubi crucis signáculum non habébat. Sicut enim báculus crucis typum hábuit, ita étiam et lapis ille, de quo percússus est, Christum Dóminum figurábat.

R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON V

But some man will say: If he is bound, why is he still so powerful? It is quite true, my dearly beloved brethren, that he is very powerful but his lordship is over the lukewarm and the careless, and such as fear not God in truth. He is chained up like a dog, and can only bite those who are such suicidal fools as to go within the length of his tether. Look you, my brethren, what a dolt a man must be who getteth himself bitten by a dog that is chained up. Let not the desires and lusts of the world draw thee within reach of him, and he will not be able to get at thee. He can bark, he can whine but he can only bite those who are willing to be bitten. He assaileth us, not by violence, but by persuasion he asketh, not seizeth, our consent.

R. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

Ÿ. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON VI

David, then, came, and found the Jewish people set in battle array against the devil and since there was no one who dared to go to single combat, he, who was a type of Christ, sallied out to the battle, took his staff in his hand, and went forth against Goliath. In him was a shadow of a substance which is in Christ. Christ, the true David, when He went forth to fight against the spiritual Goliath, that is to say, against the devil, went forth bearing His Cross. Ye see, my brethren, in what part it was that David smote Goliath it was upon that forehead whereon the Cross had never been traced. And as the staff of David was a figure of the Cross of Christ, so was the stone wherewith the giant was smitten a figure of the Lord Himself.

- R. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.
- Ψ. Fecíque tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedi tibi ab ómnibus inimícis tuis.
- R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.
- Ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

LUC 5:1-11

In illo témpore: Cum turbæ irrúerent in Jesum, ut audírent verbum Dei, et ipse stabat secus stagnum Genésareth. Et réliqua.

Ubi Dóminus multis impartívit vária génera sanitátum, nec témpore, nec loco pótuit ab stúdio sanándi turba cohibéri. Vesper incúbuit, sequebántur: stagnum occúrrit, urgébant: et ídeo ascéndit in Petri navim. Hæc est illa navis, quæ adhuc secúndum Matthæum flúctuat, secúndum Lucam replétur pístibus: ut et princípia Ecclésiæ fluctuántis, et posterióra exuberántis agnóscas. Pisces enim sunt, qui hanc enávigant vitam. Ibi adhuc discípulis Christus dormit, hic præcipit; dormit enim tépidis, perféctis vígilat.

- R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

LUKE 5:1-11

At that time: As the people pressed upon Jesus, to hear the word of God, He stood by the lake of Genesareth. And so on.

Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan.Bk. iv. on Luke v.

When the Lord wrought so many works of healing, neither time nor place could restrain the people from seeking health. Evening came, and they still followed Him He went down to the lake, and they still pressed upon Him and therefore He entered into Peter's ship. This is that ship, which spiritually up to this very hour, according to the expression of Matthew, is buffeted by tempests, but still, according to Luke, is filled with fishes, this signifying, that, for a while, to labour is present to the Church, but, hereafter, it shall be to rejoice. The fishes are they which swim in the troublous waters of human life. In this ship also spiritually doth Christ, for His disciples, still sleep, and still command; for He sleepeth for the lukewarm, and watcheth for the perfect.

- R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

✠. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósko: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

℟. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO VIII

Non turbátur hæc navis, in qua prudéntia navigat, abest perfidia, fides aspirat. Quemádmódum enim turbari poterat, cui præerat is, in quo Ecclésiæ firmaméntum est? Illic ergo turbátio, ubi módica fides; hic securitas, ubi perfectá diléctio. Et si aliis imperátur ut laxent rétia sua, soli tamen Petro dicitur: Duc in altum; hoc est, in profúndum disputatiónum. Quid enim tam altum, quam altitúdinem divitiárum vidére, scire Dei Fílium, et professiõem diviná generatiónis assúmere? Quam licet mens non queat humana plene ratiónis investigatióne comprehendere, fidei tamen plenitúdo compléctitur.

✠. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo: Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi tres unum sunt.

℟. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

℟. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

Nam, etsi non licet mihi scire quemádmódum natus sit, non licet tamen nescire quod natus sit. Seriẽ generatiónis ignoro; sed auctórem generatiónis agnosco. Non interfúimus cum ex Patre Dei Fílius nasceretur; sed interfúimus cum a Patre Dei Fílius diceretur. Si Deo non crédimus, cui credémus? Omnia enim quæ crédimus, vel visu crédimus, vel audítu: visus sæpe fállitur, audítus in fide est.

Tē Deum

℟. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON VIII

O fear, then, for the ship where wisdom steereth, false teaching is not known, and faith swelleth the sails. How shall she be troubled, whose Lord is Himself the Church's sure Foundation It is where faith is weak that there is fear where love is perfect, there there is safety. To many it is commanded to loose their nets, but to Peter only to "Launch out into the deep," that is, into the depths of doctrine. What indeed is there so deep, as to gaze upon the depth of all riches, to recognise the Son of God, and to take up the confession of His Divine generation This is a thing which the mind is not able to grasp by the searchings of man's reason, but which is embraced by an hearty faith.

℟. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

✠. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

℟. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

Nor albeit, it is not given unto me to know how He was born, yet that born He was, I may not be ignorant. What the order of His generation was, I know not, but the Source of His generation I acknowledge. None hath beheld the Begetting of the Son of God by the Father, but the Church hath stood by to hear the Father testify that this is His beloved Son. (Luke iii. 22.) If we believe not God, whom shall we believe? For whatsoever we believe cometh either by sight or by hearing; sight is oftentimes deceived, but "faith cometh by hearing." (Rom. x. 17.)

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 17:25-26

Et dixit unus quispiam de Israël: Num vidistis virum hunc qui ascendit? Ad exprobrandum enim Israël ascendit. Virum ergo, qui percussit eum, dabit rex divitiis magnis et filiam suam dabit ei et domum patris ejus faciet absque tributo in Israël. Et ait David ad viros, qui stabant secum, dicens: Quid dabitur viro, qui percussit Philistheum hunc et tulerit opprobrium de Israël? Quis enim est hic Philistheus incircumciscus, qui exprobravit acies Dei viventis?

R. Recordare, Domine, testamenti tui, et dic Angelo percutienti: Cesset jam manus tua, * Ut non desoletur terra, et ne perdas omnem animam vivam.

V. Ego sum qui peccavi, ego qui inique egi: isti qui oves sunt, quid fecerunt? Avertatur, obsecro, furor tuus, Domine, a populo tuo.

R. Ut non desoletur terra, et ne perdas omnem animam vivam.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 17:31-33

Audita sunt autem verba, quæ locutus est David, et annuntiata in conspectu Saul. Ad quem cum fuisset adductus, locutus est ei: Non concidat cor cujusquam in eo: ego servus tuus vadam et pugnabo adversus Philistheum. Et ait Saul ad David: Non vales resistere Philistheo isti nec pugnare adversus eum, quia puer es, hic autem vir bellator est ab adulescentia sua.

R. Exaudisti, Domine, orationem servi tui, ut ædificarem templum nomini tuo: * Benedic et sanctifica domum istam in sempiternum, Deus Israël.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 17:25-26

And some one of Israel said: Have you seen this man that is come up, for he is come up to defy Israel. And the man that shall slay him, the king will enrich with great riches, and will give him his daughter, and will make his father's house free from tribute in Israel. And David spoke to the men that stood by him, saying: What shall be given to the man that shall kill this Philistine, and shall take away the reproach from Israel? for who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living God?

R. Remember, O Lord, thy covenant, and say unto the destroying Angel: Stay now thine hand; * That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that thou destroy not every living soul.

V. Even I it is that have sinned, and done evil indeed; but these sheep, what have they done? Let thine anger, I pray thee, O Lord, be turned away from thy people.

R. That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that Thou destroy not every living soul.

LESSON II

1 Sam 17:31-33

And the words which David spoke were heard, and were rehearsed before Saul. And when he was brought to him, he said to him: Let not any man's heart be dismayed in him: I thy servant will go, and will fight against the Philistine. And Saul said to David: Thou art not able to withstand this Philistine, nor to fight against him: for thou art but a boy, but he is a warrior from his youth.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

V. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

✠. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

℞. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israë̃l.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 17:34-36

Dixítque David ad Saul: Pascébat servus tuus patris sui gregem, et veniébat leo vel ursus et tollébat arietem de médio gregis, et persequébar eos et percutiébam eruebámque de ore eórum; et illi consurgébant advérsus me, et apprehendébam mentum eórum et suffocábam interficiébámque eos; nam et leónem et ursum interféci ego servus tuus. Erit ígitur et Philisthéus hic incircumcísus quasi unus ex eis.

℞. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratióem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

℞. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Sam 17:34-36

And David said to Saul: thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion, or a bear, and took a ram out of the midst of the flock: And I pursued after them, and struck them, and delivered it out of their mouth: and they rose up against me, and I caught them by the throat, and I strangled and killed them. For I thy servant have killed both a lion and a bear: and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be also as one of them. I will go now, and take away the reproach of the people: for who is this uncircumcised Philistine, who hath dared to curse the army of the living God?

℞. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

✠. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

℞. Toward this house, day and night.

℞. Toward this house, day and night.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 17:38-40

Et índuit Saul David vestiméntis suis et impósuit gáleam áream super caput ejus et vestívit eum loríca. Accíntus ergo David gládio ejus super vestem suam cœpit tentáre si armátus posset incédere, non enim habébat consuetúdinem. Dixítque David ad Saul: Non possum sic incédere, quia non usum hábeo. Et depósuit ea, et tulit báculum suum,

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 17:38-40

And Saul clothed David with his garments, and put a helmet of brass upon his head, and armed him with a coat of mail. And David having girded his sword upon his armour, began to try if he could walk in armour: for he was not accustomed to it. And David said to Saul: I cannot go thus, for I am not used to it. And he laid them off, And he took his staff, which he had always in his hands: and quem semper habébat in mánibus, et elégit sibi quinque limpidíssimos lápides de torrén- te et misit eos in peram pastorálem, quam habébat secum, et fundam manu tulit et pro- cecssit advérsus Philisthæum.

℞. Dómine, si convérsus fúerit pópulus tuus, et oráverit ad sanctuárium tuum: * Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

℣. Si peccáverit in te pópulus tuus, et convérsus égerit pœniténtiam, veniénsque oráverit in isto loco.

℞. Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 17:41-46

Ibat autem Philisthæus incédens et appro- pínquans advérsum David, et ármiger ejus ante eum. Cumque inspexísset Philisthæus et vidísset David, despéxit eum; erat enim adoléscent rufus et pulcher aspéctu. Et dixit Philisthæus ad David: Numquid ego canis sum, quod tu venis ad me cum báculo? Et maledíxit Philisthæus David in diis suis, di- xítque ad David: Veni ad me et dabo carnes tuas volatílibus cæli et béstiiis terræ. Dixit au- tem David ad Philisthæum: Tu venis ad me cum gládio et hasta et clípeo, ego autem vé- nio ad te in nómine Dómini exercítuum, Dei ágminum Israël, quibus exprobrásti hódie; et dabit te Dóminus in manu mea, et percú- tiam te et áuferam caput tuum a te et dabo cadáver a castrórum Philístiim hódie volatí- libus cæli et béstiiis terræ, ut sciat omnis terra quia est Deus in Israël.

chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them into the shepherd's scrip, which he had with him, and he took a sling in his hand, and went forth against the Philistine.

℞. Lord, when thy people shall turn again to thee, and shall pray unto thee in this house; * Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

℣. If thy people sin against thee, and turn again, and repent, and come and pray unto thee in this house.

℞. Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

LESSON II

1 Sam 17:41-46

And the Philistine came on, and drew nigh against David, and his armour-bearer before him. And when the Philistine looked, and beheld David, he despised him. For he was a young man, ruddy, and of a comely countenance. And the Philistine said to David: Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with a staff? And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. And he said to David: Come to me, and I will give thy flesh to the birds of the air, and to the beasts of the earth. And David said to the Philis- tine: Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, which thou hast defied. This day, and the Lord will deliver thee into my hand, and I will slay thee, and take away thy head from thee: and I will give the carcasses of the army of the Philistines this day to the birds of the air, and to the beasts of the earth: that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel.

℞. And it came to pass when the Lord would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind * Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

℣. And as they still went on, and talked, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder, and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

℞. Eliséus clamábat, dicens: Pater mi, pater mi, currus Israël, et auríga ejus.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 17:48-51

Cum ergo surrexisset Philisthæus et veníret et appropinquáret contra David, festinávit David et cucúrrit ad pugnam ex advérso Philisthæi. Et misit manum suam in peram tulítque unum lápidem et funda jecit et circumdúcens percússit Philisthæum in fronte; et infíxus est lapis in fronte ejus, et cécidit in fáciem suam super terram. Prævalúitque David advérsum Philisthæum in funda et lápide percussúmque Philisthæum interfécit. Cumque gládium non habéret in manu, David cucúrrit et stetit super Philisthæum et tulit gládium ejus et edúxit eum de vagína sua et interfécit eum, præcidítque caput ejus.

℞. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Ÿ. Fecítque tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedí tibi ab ómnibus inimícis tuis.

℞. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

℞. Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

LESSON III

1 Sam 17:48-51

And when the Philistine arose and was coming, and drew nigh to meet David, David made haste, and ran to the fight to meet the Philistine. And he put his hand into his scrip, and took a stone, and cast it with the sling, and fetching it about struck the Philistine in the forehead: and the stone was fixed in his forehead, and he fell on his face upon the earth. And David prevailed over the Philistine, with a sling and a stone, and he struck, and slew the Philistine. And as David had no sword in his hand, He ran, and stood over the Philistine, and took his sword, and drew it out of the sheath, and slew him, and cut off his head. And the Philistines seeing that their champion was dead, fled away.

℞. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Ÿ. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.

℞. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Porro, cum reverterétur, percússo Philisthæo, David, egréssæ sunt mulieres de univérsis úrbibus Israël cantántes chorósque

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 18:6-8

Now when David returned, after he slew the Philistine, the women came out of all the cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet king Saul, with timducéntes in occúrsum Saul regis in týmpanis lætítia et in sistris. Et præcinébant mulíeres ludéntes atque dicéntes: Percússit Saul mille, et David decem míllia. Irátus est autem Saul nimis, et displicuit in óculis ejus sermo iste, dixítque: Dedérunt David decem míllia et mihi mille dedérunt; quid ei súperest, nisi solum regnum?

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ψ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósko: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 18:9-13

Non rectis ergo óculis Saul aspiciébat David a die illa et deinceps. Post diem autem álteram invásit spíritus Dei malus Saul, et prophetábat in médio domus suæ; David autem psallébat manu sua sicut per singulos dies. Tenebátque Saul lanceam et misit eam putans quod confígere posset David cum parírete; et declinávit David a fácie ejus secúndo. Et tímuit Saul David eo quod Dóminus esset cum eo, et a se recessisset. Amóvit ergo eum Saul a se et fecit eum tribúnium super mille viros; et egrediebátur et intrábat in conspéctu pópuli.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratiónem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: * Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

Ψ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 18:14-17

brels of joy, and cornets. And the women sung as they played, and they said: Saul slew his thousands, and David his ten thousands. And Saul was exceeding angry, and this word was displeasing in his eyes, and he said: They have given David ten thousands, and to me they have given but a thousand; what can he have more but the kingdom?

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

Ψ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

1 Sam 18:9-13

And Saul did not look on David with a good eye from that day and forward. And the day after the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied in the midst of his house. And David played with his hand as at other times. And Saul held a spear in his hand, And threw it, thinking to nail David to the wall: and David stept aside out of his presence twice. And Saul feared David, because the Lord was with him, and was departed from himself. Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him a captain over a thousand men, and he went out and came in before the people.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ψ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Sam 18:14-17

In ómnibus quoque viis suis David prudénter agébat, et Dóminus erat cum eo. Vidit ítaque Saul quod prudens esset nimis et cœpit cavére eum. Omnis autem Israël et Juda diligébat David; ipse enim ingrediebátur et egrediebátur ante eos. Dixítque Saul ad David: Ecce fília mea major Merob, ipsam dabo tibi uxórem; tantúmmodo esto vir fortis et præliáre bella Dómini. Saul autem reputábat dicens: Non sit manus mea in eum, sed sit super eum manus Philisthinórum.

℟. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratióem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ,
* Super domum istam die ac nocte.

℣. Réspice, Dómine, de sanctuário tuo, et de excélsó cælórum habitáculo.

℟. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

And David behaved wisely in all his ways, and the Lord was with him. And Saul saw that he was exceeding prudent, and began to beware of him.
But all Israel and Juda loved David, for he came in and went out before them. And Saul said to David: Behold my elder daughter Merob, her will I give thee to wife: only be a valiant man, and fight the battles of the Lord. Now Saul said within himself:
Let not my hand be upon him, but let the hands of the Philistines be upon him.

℟. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

℣. Look down from thine high and holy place, O
Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

℟. Toward this house, day and night.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 19:1-3

Locútus est autem Saul ad Jónatham fílium
suum et ad omnes servos suos ut occíderent
David. Porro Jónathas fílius Saul diligébat David valde. Et indicávit Jónathas David dicens: Quærit Saul pater meus occidere te; quaprópter obsérva te, quæso, mane, et manébis clam, et abscondéris. Ego autem egrédiens stabo juxta patrem meum in agro ubicúmque fúeris; et ego loquar de te ad patrem

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 19:1-3

And Saul spoke to Jonathan his son and to all his servants, that they should kill David. But Jonathan the son of Saul loved David exceedingly.
And Jonathan told David, saying: Saul my father seeketh to kill thee: wherefore look to thyself, I beseech thee, in the morning, and thou shalt abide in a secret place and shalt be hid. And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art: and I will speak of thee to my father, and whatsoever I shall see, I will tell thee.

℟. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

℣. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

✠. Convertimini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auferte deos aliénos de médio vestri.

℟. Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 19:4-6

Locútus est ergo Jónathas de David bona ad Saul patrem suum dixítque ad eum: Ne pecces, rex, in servum tuum David, quia non peccávit tibi, et ópera ejus bona sunt tibi valde. Et pósuit ánimam suam in manu sua et percússit Philisthæum, et fecit Dóminus salutem magnam univérso Israël. Vidísti et lætátus es; quare ergo peccas in ságuine innoxio interficiens David, qui est absque culpa? Quod cum audísset Saul, placátus voce Jónathæ jurávit: Vivit Dóminus, quia non occidétur.

℟. Deus ómnium exaudítor est: ipse misit Angelum suum, et tulit me de óvibus patris mei: * Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.

✠. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu bestię liberávit me.

℟. Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 19:8-10

Motum est autem rursum bellum, et egréssus David pugnávit advérsus Philísthiim percussítque eos plaga magna, et fugérunt a fácie ejus. Et factus est spíritus Dómini malus in Saul. Sedébat autem in domo sua et tenébat lanceam; porro David psallébat manu sua. Nisúsque est Saul confígere David lancea in pariete, et declinávit David a fácie Saul; lancea autem, casso vúlnerē, perláta est in parietem. Et David fugit et salvátus est nocte illa.

℟. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu bestię liberávit me, * Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

℟. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

1 Sam 19:4-6

And Jonathan spoke good things of David to Saul his father: and said to him: Sin not, O king, against thy servant, David, because he hath not sinned against thee, and his works are very good towards thee. And he put his life in his hand, and slew the Philistine, and the Lord wrought great salvation for all Israel. Thou sawest it and didst rejoice. Why therefore wilt thou sin against innocent blood by killing David, who is without fault? And when Saul heard this he was appeased with the words of Jonathan, and swore: As the Lord liveth he shall not be slain.

℟. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's sheep, and * Anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

✠. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear

℟. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

1 Sam 19:8-10

And the war began again, and David went out and fought against the Philistines, and defeated them with a great slaughter, and they fled from his face. And the evil spirit from the Lord came upon Saul, and he sat in his house, and held a spear in his hand: and David played with his hand. And Saul endeavoured to nail David to the wall with his spear. And David slipt away out of the presence of Saul: and the spear missed him, and was fastened in the wall, and David fled and escaped that night.

℟. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 20:1-2

But David fled from Najoth, which is in Ramatha, and came and said to Jonathan: What have I done? what is my iniquity, and what is my sin against thy father, that he seeketh my life? And he said to him: God forbid, thou shalt not die: for my father will do nothing great or little, without first telling me: hath then my father hid this word only from me? no, this shall not be.

LESSON III

1 Sam 20:5-7

And David said to Jonathan: Behold tomorrow is the new moon, and I according to custom am wont to sit beside the king to eat: let me go then that I may be hid in the field till the evening of the third day. If thy father look and inquire for me, thou shalt answer him: David asked me that he might run to Bethlehem his own city: because there are solemn sacrifices there for all his tribe. If he shall say, It is well: thy servant shall have peace: but if he be angry, know that his malice is come to its height.

LECTIO I

De libro primo Regum

1 Reg 21:1-3

Venit autem David in Nobe ad Achímelech sacerdotem. Et obtúruit Achímelech, eo quod venisset David, et dixit ei: Quare tu solus, et nullus est tecum? Et ait David ad Achímelech sacerdotem: Rex præcepit mihi sermónem et dixit: Nemo sciat rem propter quam missus es a me, et cuiusmodi præcepta tibi déderim; nam et púeris condíxi in illum et illum locum. Nunc ergo, si quid habes ad manum, vel quinque panes, da mihi, aut quidquid invéneris.

℟. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

℣. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósco: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

℟. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

1 Reg 21:4-6

Et respóndens sacérdos ad David ait illi: Non hábeo láicos panes ad manum, sed tantum panem sanctum; si mundi sunt púeri, máxime a muliéribus? Et respóndit David sacerdoti et dixit ei: Equidem, si de muliéribus ágitur, continúimus nos ab heri et nudiu-stértius, quando egrediebámur, et fuérunt vasa puerórum sancta. Porro via hæc pollúta est, sed et ipsa hódie sanctificábitur in vasis. Dedit ergo ei sacérdos sanctificátum panem; neque enim erat ibi panis, nisi tantum panes propositiónis, qui subláti fuérant a fácie Dómini, ut poneréntur panes cálidi.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Samuel

1 Sam 21:1-3

And David came to Nobe to Achimelech the priest: and Achimelech was astonished at David's coming. And he said to him: Why art thou alone, and no man with thee? And David said to Achimelech the priest: The king hath commanded me a business, and said: Let no man know the thing for which thou art sent by me, and what manner of commands I have given thee: and I have appointed my servants to such and such a place. Now therefore if thou have any thing at hand, though it were but five loaves, give me, or whatsoever thou canst find.

℟. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger, * And done evil in thy sight.

℟. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

1 Sam 21:4-6

And the priest answered David, saying: I have no common bread at hand, but only holy bread, if the young men be clean, especially from women? And David answered the priest, and said to him: Truly, as to what concerneth women, we have refrained ourselves from yesterday and the day before, when we came out, and the vessels of the young men were holy. Now this way is defiled, but it shall also be sanctified this day in the vessels. The priest therefore gave him hallowed bread: for there was no bread there, but only the loaves of proposition, which had been taken away from before the face of the Lord, that hot loaves might be set up.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratióem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: *
Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israë̃l.

Ÿ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israë̃l.

LECTIO III

1 Reg 21:7-9

Erat autem ibi vir quidam de servis Saul in die illa intus in tabernáculo Dómini, et nomen ejus Doëg Idumæus potentissimus pastórum Saul. Dixit autem David ad Achímlech: Si habes hic ad manum hastam aut gládium? quia gládium meum et arma mea non tuli mecum; sermo enim regis urgébat. Et dixit sacerdos: Ecce hic gládus Góliath Philisthæi, quem percussisti in Valle terebínthi: est involútus pállio post ephod. Si istum vis tollere, tolle, neque enim hic est álius absque eo. Et ait David: Non est huic alter símilis: da mihi eum.

R. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratióem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ÿ. Réspice, Dómine, de sanctuário tuo, et de excélsó cælórum habitáculo.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ÿ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Sam 21:7-9

Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, within the tabernacle of the Lord: and his name was Doeg, an Edomite, the chiefest of Saul's herdsmen. And David said to Achimelech: Hast thou here at hand a spear, or a sword? for I brought not my own sword, nor my own weapons with me, for the king's business required haste. And the priest said: Lo, here is the sword of Goliath the Philistine whom thou slewest in the valley of Terebinth, wrapped up in a cloth behind the ephod: if thou wilt take this, take it, for here is no other but this. And David said: There is none like that, give it me.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Ÿ. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 1:1-4

Now it came to pass, after Saul was dead, that David returned from the slaughter of the Amalemanéret in Síceleg duos dies. In die autem tertia apparuit homo veniens de castris Saul veste conscissa et pulvere conspersus caput et, ut venit ad David, cecidit super faciem suam et adoravit. Dixitque ad eum David: Unde venis? Qui ait ad eum: De castris Israël fugi. Et dixit ad eum David: Quod est verbum quod factum est? Indica mihi. Qui ait: Fugit populus ex praelio, et multi corruentes e populo mortui sunt; sed et Saul et Jónathas filius ejus interiérunt.

R. Præparate corda vestra Dómino, et servite illi soli: * Et liberabit vos de manibus inimicorum vestrorum.

V. Convertimini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auferte deos aliénos de médio vestri.

R. Et liberabit vos de manibus inimicorum vestrorum.

LECTIO II

2 Reg 1:5-10

Dixitque David ad adolescentem qui nuntiabat ei: Unde scis quia mortuus est Saul et Jónathas filius ejus? Et ait adolescens qui nuntiabat ei: Casu veni in montem Gélboë, et Saul incumbébat super hastam suam. Porro currus et équites appropinquabant ei, et conversus post tergum suum vidénsque me vocávit; cui cum respondíssem: Adsum, dixit mihi: Quisnam es tu? Et ajo ad eum: Amalecites ego sum. Et locútus est mihi: Sta super me et interfice me, quóniam tenent me angustia, et adhuc tota ánima mea in me est. Stansque super eum, occidi illum, sciébam enim quod vivere non póterat post ruínam; et tuli diadéma, quod erat in cápite ejus et armíllam de bráchio illius et áttuli ad te dóminum meum huc.

R. Deus ómnium exaudítor est: ipse misit Angelum suum, et tulit me de óvibus patris mei: * Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.

cites, and abode two days in Siceleg. And on the third day, there appeared a man who came out of Saul's camp, with his garments rent, and dust strewed on his head: and when he came to David, he fell upon his face, and adored. And David said to him: From whence comest thou? And he said to him: I am fled out of the camp of Israel. And David said unto him: What is the matter that is come to pass? tell me. He said: The people are fled from the battle, and many of the people are fallen and dead: moreover Saul and Jonathan his son are slain.

R. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

V. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

R. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

2 Sam 1:5-10

And David said to the young man that told him: How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his son, are dead? And the young man that told him, said: I came by chance upon mount Gelboe, and Saul leaned upon his spear: and the chariots and horsemen drew nigh unto him, And looking behind him, and seeing me, he called me. And I answered, Here am I. And he said to me: Who art thou? And I said to him: I am an Amalecite. And he said to me: Stand over me, and kill me: for anguish is come upon me, and as yet my whole life is in me. So standing over him, I killed him: for I knew that he could not live after the fall: and I took the diadem that was on his head, and the bracelet that was on his arm and have brought them hither to thee, my lord.

R. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's sheep, and * Anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

V. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear

R. Et unxit me unctiōne misericordiæ suæ.

LECTIO III

2 Reg 1:11-15

Apprehēdens autem David, vestimēta sua scidit, omnēsque viri, qui erant cum eo, et planxerunt, et fleverunt, et jejunaverunt usque ad vesp̄eram super Saul, et super Jónathan filium ejus, et super pópulum Dómini et super domum Israhēl, eo quod corruissent gládio. Dixitque David ad jūvenem qui nuntiāverat ei: Unde es tu? Qui respondit: Fílius hóm̄inis advenæ Amalecítæ ego sum. Et ait ad eum David: Quare non timuisti mittere manum tuam, ut occideres christum Dómini? Vocānsque David unum de púeris suis ait: Accédens irrue in eum. Qui percussit illum, et mórtuus est.

R. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstie liberávit me, * Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

ψ. Misit Deus misericórdiam suam et veritátem suam: ánimam meam erípuit de médio catulórum leónum.

R. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

LECTIO IV

Ex libro Morálíum sancti Gregórii Papæ

Liber 4, Cap. 3 et 4

Quid est quod David, qui retribuētibz sibi mala non réddidit, cum Saul et Jónathas bello occumberent, Gélboë móntibus maledíxit, dicens: Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia véniant super vos: neque sint agri primitiárum: quia ibi abjéctus est clýpeus fórtius, clýpeus Saul, quasi non esset unctus óleo? Quid est quod Jeremías, cum prædicatióem suam cérneret audiéntium difficul-tate præpedíri, maledíxit dicens: Maledíctus

R. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

2 Sam 1:11-15

Then David took hold of his garments and rent them, and likewise all the men that were with him. And they mourned, and wept, and fasted until evening for Saul, and for Jonathan his son, and for the people of the Lord, and for the house of Israel, because they were fallen by the sword. And David said to the young man that told him: Whence art thou? He answered: I am the son of a stranger of Amalee. David said to him: Why didst thou not fear to put out thy hand to kill the Lord's anointed? And David calling one of his servants, said: Go near and fall upon him. And he struck him so that he died.

R. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

ψ. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LESSON IV

From the Book of Moral (Reflections upon Job), written by Pope St. Gregory the Great.

Bk. iv. ch. 3, 4

Thus was it that David, who rewarded no evil to them that did evil to him (Ps. vii. 5), when Saul and Jonathan had fallen in battle, cursed the mountains of Gilboa, saying Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you, nor fields of offerings; for there the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away, the shield of Saul, as though he had not been anointed with oil. Why was it that Jeremiah, when he saw that his preaching was thrown away upon his hearers, cursed and said Cursed be the man who brought tidings to vir, qui annuntiávit patri meo, dicens: Natus est tibi puer másculus?

R. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem míllia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

Ÿ. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percússit mille, et David decem míllia?

R. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

LECTIO V

Quid ergo montes Gélboë, Saul moriénte, deliquérunt, quátenus in eos nec ros nec plúvia cáderet et ab omni eos viriditátis gérmine senténtiæ sermo siccáret? Sed quia Gélboë interpretátur decúrsus, per Saul autem unctum et mórtuum mors nostri mediatóris exprimitur; non immérito per Gélboë montes supérba Judæórum corda signántur, quæ dum in hujus mundi desidériis défluunt, in Christi, id est, uncti se morte miscuéruunt: et quia in eis unctus rex corporáliter móritur, ipsi ab omni grátia rore siccántur.

R. Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia véniant super vos, * Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

Ÿ. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus, vísitet Dóminus: a Gélboë autem tránseat.

R. Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

LECTIO VI

De quibus et bene díctur, ut agri primitiárum esse non possint. Supérbæ quippe Hebræórum mentes primitívos fructus non ferunt: quia in Redemptóris advéntu ex parte máxima in perfídia remanéntes, primórdia fídei sequi noluérunt. Sancta namque Ecclésia in primítiis suis multítudine Géntium fœcundáta, vix in mundi fine Judæos quos my father, saying: A man-child is born unto thee? (xx. 15.)

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

Ÿ. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON V

He had the mountains of Gilboa to do with the death of Saul, that they should be condemned to have dew fall on them no more, neither rain, but should wither away, barren of the green glory of the springtime? But this word Gilboa signified bubbling fountain, and the death of Saul the Anointed of God is a type of the death of our Anointed Mediator. Thus we find in the mountains of Gilboa no unfit image of the proud hearts of the Jews, which had their spring in earthly desires, and took part in the death of the Anointed Saviour. And since among them their Anointed Monarch met His death, the dew of grace is upon them no more.

R. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

Ÿ. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON VI

And well is it said of them Let there be upon you no fields of offerings. The proud minds of the Hebrews bear yet no offering. Since the coming of their Redeemer, the most part of them remain still without belief in Him, and refuse to follow the promise of their ancient faith. The Holy Church hath borne for her first-born, holy unto the Lord, a multitude of the Gentiles, and will, but in the end of the world, embrace such Jews as she then invenerit, súscipit, et extrémá cóllogens, eos quasi relíquias frugum ponit.

R. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Y. Fecique tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedi tibi ab ómnibus inimícis tuis.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Y. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

LECTIO VII

Matt 5:20-24

In illo témpore: Dixit Jesus discípulis suis: Nisi abundáverit justítia vestra plus quam scribárum et pharisæórum, non intrábitis in regnum cælórum. Et reliqua.

Homília sancti Augustíni Epíscopi

Liber 1 de Sermóne Dómini in monte, cap. 9

Justítia pharisæórum est, ut non occídant: justítia eórum, qui intratúri sunt in regnum cælórum, ut non irascántur sine causa. Mínimum est ergo, non occidere; et qui illud sólverit, mínimus vocábitur in regno cælórum. Qui autem illud impléverit, ut non occídat, non contínuo magnus erit, et idóneus regno cælórum; sed tamen ascéndit áliquem gradum: perficiétur autem, si nec irascátur sine causa; quod si perfécerit, multo remótiór erit ab homicídio. Quaprópter qui docet ut non irascámur, non solvit legem ne occidámus, et in corde, dum non iráscimur, innocéntiam custodiámus.

shall find, and present them as the last gatherings of her harvest.

R. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Y. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Y. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 5:20-24

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: Unless your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo

Bk. I on the Lord's Sermon on the Mount, ch. 9

Thou shalt not kill, is of the righteousness of the Pharisees; Thou shalt not be angry with thy brother without a cause, is of the righteousness of them which shall enter into the kingdom of heaven. The least therefore is: "Thou shalt not kill, and whosoever shall break this commandment, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven." (v. 19.) But whosoever shall do it, and not kill, he is not therefore great, and meet for the kingdom of heaven; albeit, he hath risen a step; but he will have gotten farther, if he be not angry with his brother without a cause, which, if he do, he will be the farther off from manslaughter. Wherefore, He Which teacheth us that we are not to be angry without a cause, destroyeth not the law, Thou shalt not kill, but rather fulfilleth and increaseth it, making us not only to be free of the sin of outward killing, but also clean of anger within.

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicata sunt peccata mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitudinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ψ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognosco: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO VIII

Gradus itaque sunt in istis peccátis: ut primo quisque irascátur, et eum motum retíneat corde concéptum. Jam si extórserit vocem indignántis ipsa commótió, non significántem áliquid, sed illum ánimi motum ipsa erupti-one testántem, qua feriátur ille, cui iráscitur; plus est útiq̃ue, quam si surgens ira siléntio premerétur. Si vero non solum vox indignántis audiátur, sed étiam verbum, quo jam certam ejus vituperatióem, in quem profértur, désignet et notet; quis dúbitet, ámplius hoc esse, quam si solus indignatióis sonus ede-rétur?

R. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad álterum: * Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth: * Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

Ψ. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo: Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi tres unum sunt.

R. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth.

Ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

Vide nunc étiam tres reátus, judícii, concílii, et gehénnæ ignis. Nam in judício adhuc defénsiáni datur locus. In concílio autem, quamquam et judícium esse sóleat, tamen quia interésse áliquid hoc loco fatéri cogit ipsa distíctio, vidétur ad concílium pertinére sentétiæ pronatió; quando non jam cum

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

Ψ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON VIII

On sins of this kind there are diverse steps. First, there is the swelling feeling of anger. When this feeling appeareth in a man's heart, he keepeth it. Then the inward disturbance wringeth forth words of indignation, not themselves meaning aught, but showing the trouble of him who is provoked. And this is something more than anger kept covered under silence. Next, this audible outburst of indignation may contain direct and open reviling of him who hath roused it. And it cannot be doubted that this is something more than an empty cry of anger.

R. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

Ψ. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

R. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

Behold here the three degrees of guilt open respectively to the judgment, to the council, and to hellfire. In the judgment, there is still place for defence. In the council, albeit this also is in a sense a judgment, yet we may suppose this distinction from the judgment proper, that the council pronounceth sentence, not as the result of a ipso reo ágitur, utrum damnándus sit; sed inter se, qui júdicant, cónferunt quo supplício damnári opórteat, quem constat esse damnándum. Gehénna vero ignis, nec damnatióem habet dúbiam, sicut júdícium, nec damnáti poenam, sicut concílium: in gehénna quippe ignis, certa est damnátió, et poena damnáti.

trial whereat the accused is present, but as the result of a consultation among the judges, to what punishment he is to be sentenced of whom it is already established that he is guilty. When we get to hell-fire, there remaineth no longer any doubt about condemnation, as in the judgment, and no longer any doubt about sentence, as in the council. In hellfire the condemnation and the pain of him that is condemned are alike certain.

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 2:1-4

And after these things David consulted the Lord, saying: Shall I go up into one of the cities of Juda? And the Lord said to him: Go up. And David said: Whither shall I go up? And he answered him: Into Hebron. So David went up, and his two wives, Achinoam the Jezrahelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal of Carmel: And the men also that were with him, David brought up every man with his household: and they abode in the towns of Hebron. And the men of Juda came, and anointed David there, to be king over the house of Juda.

R. Remember, O Lord, thy covenant, and say unto the destroying Angel: Stay now thine hand; * That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that thou destroy not every living soul.

Ÿ. Even I it is that have sinned, and done evil indeed; but these sheep, what have they done? Let thine anger, I pray thee, O Lord, be turned away from thy people.

R. That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that Thou destroy not every living soul.

LESSON II

2 Sam 2:4-7

And it was told David, that the men of Jabes Galaad had buried Saul. David therefore sent messengers to the men of Jabes Galaad, and said to them: Blessed be you to the Lord, who have shown córdiam hanc cum dómino vestro Saul, et sepelístis eum. Et nunc retríbuet vobis quídem Dóminus misericórdiam et veritátem, sed et ego reddam grátiam, eo quod fecístis verbum istud. Conforténtur manus vestræ et estóte filii fortitúdinis; licet enim mórtuus sit dóminus vester Saul, tamen me unxit domus Juda in regem sibi.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratióem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: *
Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

Ps. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

2 Reg 2:8-11

Abner autem fílius Ner, princeps exércitus Saul, tulit Isboseth fílium Saul, et circumdúxit eum per castra, regémque constituit super Gálaad, et super Géssuri, et super Jézrahel, et super Ephraim, et super Bénjamin, et super Israël univérsum. Quadragínta annórum erat Isboseth fílius Saul cum regnáre coépisset super Israël, et duóbus annis regnávít. Sola autem domus Juda sequebátur David. Et fuit númerus diérum, quos commorátus est David ímperans in Hebron super domum Juda, septem annórum et sex ménsium.

R. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratióem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ps. Réspice, Dómine, de sanctuário tuo, et de excélsó cælórum habitáculo.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ps. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

this mercy to your master Saul, and have buried him. And now the Lord surely will render you mercy and truth, and I also will, requite you for this good turn, because you have done this thing. Let your hands be strengthened, and be ye men of valour: for although your master Saul be dead, yet the house of Juda hath anointed me to be their king

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ps. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

2 Sam 2:8-11

But Abner the son of Ner, general of Saul's army, took Isboseth the son of Saul, and led him about through the camp? And made him king over Galaad, and, over Gessuri, and over Jezrahel, and over Ephraim, and over Benjamin, and over all Israel. Isboseth the son of Saul was forty years old when he began to reign over, Israel, and he reigned two years: and only the house of Juda followed David. And the number of the days that David abode, reigning in Hebron over the house of Juda, was seven years and six months.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Ps. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

LECTIO I

De libro secundo Regum

2 Reg 3:6-10

Cum ergo esset prælum inter domum Saul et domum David, Abner filius Ner regébat domum Saul. Fúerat autem Sauli concubína nómine Respha, fília Aja. Dixítque Isboseth ad Abner: Quare ingrèssus es ad concubínam patris mei? Qui irátus nimis propter verba Isboseth ait: Numquid caput canis ego sum advèrsus Judam hódie, qui fécerim misericórdiam super domum Saul patris tui, et super fratres et próximos ejus, et non trádidi te in manus David? Et tu requisísti in me quod argúeres pro muliere hódie? Hæc fáciat Deus Abner, et hæc addat ei, nisi, quómodo jurávit Dóminus David, sic fáciam cum eo, ut transférátur regnum de domo Saul, et elevétur thronus David super Israël et super Judam a Dan usque Bersabée.

R. Dómine, si convèrsus fúerit pópulus tuus, et oráverit ad sanctuárium tuum: * Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

Ÿ. Si peccáverit in te pópulus tuus, et convèrsus égerit pœniténtiam, veniénsque oráverit in isto loco.

R. Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

LECTIO II

2 Reg 3:12-16

Misit ergo Abner nuntios ad David pro se dicentes: Cujus est terra? et ut loquerentur: Fac mecum amicitias, et erit manus mea tecum et reducám ad te univèrsam Israël. Qui ait: Optime: ego fáciam tecum amicitias, sed unam rem peto a te, dicens: Non vidébis faciém meam, ántequam addúxeris Michol fíliam Saul; et sic vénies, et vidébis me. Misit autem David nuntios ad Isboseth fílium Saul dicens: Redde uxórem meam Michol,

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 3:6-10

Now while there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner the son of Ner ruled the house of Saul. And Saul had a concubine named Respha, the daughter of Aia. And Isboseth said to Abner: Why didst thou go in to my father's concubine? And he was exceedingly angry for the words of Isboseth, and said: Am I a dog's head against Juda this day, who have shown mercy to the house of Saul thy father, and to his brethren and friends, and have not delivered thee into the hands of David, and hast thou sought this day against me to charge me with a matter concerning a woman? So do God to Abner, and more also, unless as the Lord hath sworn to David, so I do to him, That the kingdom be translated from the house of Saul, and the throne of David be set up over Israel, and over Juda from Dan to Bersabee.

R. Lord, when thy people shall turn again to thee, and shall pray unto thee in this house; * Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

Ÿ. If thy people sin against thee, and turn again, and repent, and come and pray unto thee in this house.

R. Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

LESSON II

2 Sam 3:12-16

Abner therefore sent messengers to David for himself, saying: Whose is the land? and that they should say: Make a league with me, and my hand shall be with thee: and I will bring all Israel to thee. And he said: Very well: I will make a league with thee: but one thing I require of thee, saying: Thou shalt not see my face before thou bring Michol the daughter of Saul: and so thou shalt come, and see me. And David sent messengers to Isboseth the son of Saul, saying: Restore my wife Michol, quam despóndi mihi centum præpútiis Philísthiim. Misit ergo Isboseth et tulit eam a viro suo Pháltiel, filio Lais. Sequebatúrque eam vir suus, plorans usque Bahúrim. Et dixit ad eum Abner: Vade et revértere. Qui revérsus est.

R. Factum est, dum tólleret Dóminus Elám per túrbinem in cælum, * Eliséus clamábat, dicens: Pater mi, pater mi, currus Israë́l, et auríga ejus.

Ÿ. Cumque pérgerent, et incedéntes sermocinárentur, ecce currus ígneus et equi ígnei divisérunt utrúmque, et ascéndit Elías per túrbinem in cælum.

R. Eliséus clamábat, dicens: Pater mi, pater mi, currus Israë́l, et auríga ejus.

LECTIO III

2 Reg 3:17-21

Sermónem quoque intulit Abner ad senióres Israë́l, dicens: Tam heri quam nudiustértius quærebátis David, ut regnáret super vos. Nunc ergo fácite, quóniam Dóminus locútus est ad David, dicens: In manu servi mei David salvábo pópulum meum Israë́l de manu Philísthiim, et ómnium inimicórum ejus. Locútus est autem Abner étiam ad Bénjamin. Et ábiit ut loquerétur ad David in Hebron ómnia quæ placúerant Israéli et univérso Bénjamin. Venítque ad David in Hebron cum vigínti viris, et fecit David Abner et viris ejus, qui vénerant cum eo, convívium. Et dixit Abner ad David: Surgam ut cóngregem ad te, dóminum meum regem, omnem Israë́l.

R. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Ÿ. Fecístique tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedi tibi ab ómnibus inimícis tuis.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

whom I espoused to me for a hundred foreskins of the Philistines. And Isboseth sent, and took her from her husband Phaltiel, the son of Lais. And her husband followed her, weeping as far as Bahurim: and Abner said to him: Go and return. And he returned.

R. And it came to pass when the Lord would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind * Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

Ÿ. And as they still went on, and talked, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder, and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

R. Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

LESSON III

2 Sam 3:17-21

Abner also spoke to the ancients of Israel, saying: Both yesterday and the day before you sought for David that he might reign over you. Now then do it: because the Lord hath spoken to David, saying: By the hand of my servant David I will save my people Israel from the hands of the Philistines, and of all their enemies. And Abner spoke also to Benjamin. And he went to speak to David in Hebron all that seemed good to Israel, and to all Benjamin. And he came to David in Hebron with twenty men: and David made a feast for Abner, and his men that came with him. And Abner said to David: I will rise, that I may gather all Israel unto thee, my lord the king.

R. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Ÿ. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 4:5-8

And the sons of Remmon the Berothite, Rechab and Baana coming, went into the house of Isboeth in the heat of the day: and he was sleeping upon his bed at noon. And the doorkeeper of the house, who was cleansing wheat, was fallen asleep. And they entered into the house secretly taking ears of corn, and Rechab and Baana his brother stabbed him in the groin, and fled away. For when they came into the house, he was sleeping upon his bed in a parlour, and they struck him and killed him: and taking away his head they went off by the way of the wilderness, walking all night. And they brought the head of Isboeth to David to Hebron: and they said to the king: Behold the head of Isboeth the son of Saul thy enemy who sought thy life: and the Lord hath revenged my lord the king this day of Saul, and of his seed.

℟. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger, * And done evil in thy sight.

℟. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

2 Sam 4:9-12

But David answered Rechab, and Baana his brother, the sons of Remmon the Berothite, and said to them: As the Lord liveth, who hath delivered my soul out of all distress, The man that annuntiáverat mihi et díxerat: Mórtuus est Saul; qui putábat se próspéra nuntiáre, ténuí et occídí eum in Síceleg, cui oportébat mercédem dare pro núnzio: quanto magis nunc, cum hómines ímpíi interfecérunt virum innóxiúm in domo sua super lectum suum, non quæram sánguinem ejus de manu vestra et áuferam vos de terra? Præcépít ítaque David púeris suis, et interfecérunt eos, præcidentésque manus et pedes eórum suspendérunt eos super piscínám in Hebron; caput autem Isboseth tulérunt et sepeliérunt in sepúlcro Abner in Hebron.

2 Reg 5:1-7

told me, and said: Saul is dead, who thought he brought good tidings, I apprehended, and slew him in Siceleg, who should have been rewarded for his news. How much more now when wicked men have slain an innocent man in his own house, upon his bed, shall I not require his blood at your hand, and take you away from the earth? And David commanded his servants and they slew them: and cutting off their hands and feet, hanged them up over the pool in Hebron: but the head of Isboseth they took and buried in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

℟. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

℟. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

2 Sam 5:1-7

Then all the tribes of Israel came to David in Hebron, saying: Behold we are thy bone and thy flesh. Moreover yesterday also and the day before, when Saul was king over us, thou wast he that did lead out and bring in Israel: and the Lord said to thee: Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be prince over Israel. The ancients also of Israel came to the king to Hebron, and king David made a league with them in Hebron before the Lord: and they anointed David to be king over Israel. David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years. In Hebron he reigned over Juda seven years and six months: and in Jerusalem he reigned three and thirty years over all Israel and Juda. And the king and all the men that were with him went to Jerusalem to the Jebusites the inhabitants of the land: and they said to David: Thou shalt not come in hither unless thou take away the blind and the lame that say: David shall not come in hither. But David took the castle of Sion, the same is the city of David.

Non ingrediétur David huc. Cepit autem David arcem Sion, hæc est cívitas David.

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 6:1-3

And David again gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand. And David arose and went, with all the people that were with him of the men of Juda to fetch the ark of God, upon which the name of the Lord of hosts is invoked, who sitteth over it upon the cherubims. And they laid the ark of God upon a new cart: and took it out of the house of Abinadab, who was in Gabaa: and Oza, and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drove the new cart.

R. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

ψ. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

R. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

2 Sam 6:4-7

And when they had taken it out of the house of Abinadab, who was in Gabaa, Ahio having care of the ark of God went before the ark. But David

Ahio præcedébat arcam. David autem et omnis Israël ludébant coram Dómino in ómnibus lignis fabrefáctis, et cítharis et lyris et týmpanis et sistris et cýmbalis. Postquam autem venérunt ad áream Nachon, exténdit Oza manum ad arcam Dei et ténuít eam, quóniam calcitrábant boves et declinavérunt eam. LESSON III

2 Sam 6:8-12

And David was grieved because the Lord had struck Oza, and the name of that place was called: The striking of Oza, to this day. And David was afraid of the Lord that day, saying: How shall the ark of the Lord come to me? And he would not have the ark of the Lord brought in to himself into the city of David: but he caused it to be carried into the house of Obededom the Gethite. And the ark of the Lord abode in the house of Obededom the Gethite three months: and the Lord blessed Obededom, and all his household. And it was told king David, that the Lord had blessed Obededom, and all that he had, because of the ark of God. So David went, and brought away the ark of God out of the house of Obededom into the city of David with joy. And there were with David seven choirs, and calves for victims.

R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON II

2 Sam 7:7-11

In all the places that I have gone through with all the children of Israel, did ever I speak a word to any one of the tribes of Israel, whom I commanded to feed my people Israel, saying: Why have you not built me a house of cedar? And now thus shalt thou speak to my servant David: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: a I took thee out of the pastures from following the sheep to be ruler over my people Israel: And I have been with thee wheresoever thou hast walked, and have slain all thy enemies from before thy face: and I have made thee a great man, like unto the name of the great ones that are

LESSON III

2 Sam 7:12-17

And when thy days shall be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build a house to my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom for ever. I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son: and if he commit any iniquity, I will correct him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men. But my mercy I will not take away from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I removed from before my face. And thy house shall be faithful, and thy kingdom for ever before thy face, and thy throne shall be firm for ever. According to all these words and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak to David.

R. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Factum est autem, vertén-te anno, eo témpo-re quo solent reges ad bella procédere, misit David Joab, et servos suos cum eo, et univérsum Israëĭ, et vastavérunt fílios Ammon, et obsedérunt Rabba; David autem remánsit in Jerúsalem. Dum hæc ageréntur, áccidit ut súrgeret David de strato suo post merídiem et deambuláret in solário domus régiæ: vidít-que mulierem se lavántem ex advérso super solárium suum; erat autem múl-lier pulchra valde. Misit ergo rex, et requisívit quæ esset múl-lier; nuntiatúmque est ei, quod ipsa es-set Bethsabée fília Eliám, uxor Uriá Hethæi. Missis itaque David núntiis, tulit eam.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 11:1-4

And it came to pass at the return of the year, at the time when kings go forth to war, that David sent Joab and his servants with him, and all Israel, and they spoiled the children of Ammon, and besieged Rabba: but David remained in Jerusalem. In the mean time it happened that David arose from his bed after noon, and walked upon the roof of the king's house: and he saw from the roof of his house a woman washing herself, over against him: and the woman was very beautiful. And the king sent, and inquired who the woman was. And it was told him, that she was Bethsabee the daughter of Eliam, the wife of Urias the Hethite. And David sent messengers, and took her.

℞. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

ψ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

℞. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

2 Sam 11:5-11

And she returned to her house having conceived. And she sent and told David, and said: I have conceived. And David sent to Joab, saying: Send me Urias the Hethite. And Joab sent Urias to David. And Urias came to David. And David asked how Joab did, and the people, and how the war was carried on. And David said to Urias: Go into thy Et ait David ad Uríam: Numquid non de via venísti? quare non descendísti in domum tuam? Et ait Urías ad David: Arca Dei et Israël et Juda hábitant in papiliónibus, et dóminus meus Joab et servi dómini mei super fáciem terræ manent; et ego ingrédíar domum meam, ut cómedam et bibam, et dórmiar cum uxóre mea? But Urias slept before the gate of the king's house, with the other servants of his lord, and went not down to his own house. And it was told David by some that said: Urias went not to his house. And David said to Urias: Didst thou not come from thy journey? why didst thou not go down to thy house? And Urias said to David: The ark of God and Israel and Juda dwell in tents, and my lord Joab and the servants of my lord abide upon the face of the earth: and shall I go into my house, to eat and to drink, and to sleep with my wife? LESSON III

Then David said to Urias: Tarry here today, and tomorrow I will send thee away. Urias tarried in Jerusalem that day and the next. And David called him to eat and to drink before him, and he made him drunk: and he went out in the evening, and slept on his couch with the servants of his lord, and went not down into his house. And when the morning was come, David wrote a letter to Joab: and sent it by the hand of Urias, Writing in the letter: Set ye Urias in the front of the battle, where the fight is strongest: and leave ye him, that he may be wounded and die. Wherefore as Joab was besieging the city, he put Urias in the place where he knew the bravest men were. And the men coming out of the city, fought against Joab, and there fell some of the people of the servants of David, and Urias the Hethite was killed also.

LECTIO I

De libro secúndo Regum

2 Reg 12:1-4

Misit ergo Dóminus Nathan ad David: qui, cum venisset ad eum, dixit ei: Duo viri erant in civitáte una, unus dives et alter pauper. Dives habébat oves et boves plúrimos valde, pauper autem nihil habébat omnínio præter ovem unam párvulam, quam émerat et nutrérat, et quæ créverat apud eum cum fíliis ejus simul de pane illíus cómedens et de cálice ejus bibens et in sinu illíus dórmienti; erát-que illic sicut fília. Cum autem peregrínus quidam venisset ad dívitem, parcens ille súmere de óvibus et de bobus suis, ut exhibéret convívium peregríno illi qui vénerat ad se, tulit ovem viri páuperis et præparávit cibos hómini qui vénerat ad se.

R. Præparáte corda vestra Dómino, et servíte illi soli: * Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

ψ. Convertímini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auférte deos aliénos de médio vestri.

R. Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 12:1-4

And the Lord sent Nathan to David: and when he was come to him, he said to him: There were two men in one city, the one rich, and the other poor. The rich man had exceeding many sheep and oxen. But the poor man had nothing at all but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up, and which had grown up in his house together with his children, eating of his bread, and drinking of his cup, and sleeping in his bosom: and it was unto him as a daughter. And when a certain stranger was come to the rich man, he spared to take of his own sheep and oxen, to make a feast for that stranger, who was come to him, but took the poor man's ewe, and dressed it for the man that was come to him.

R. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

ψ. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

R. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LECTIO II

2 Reg 12:5-9

Irátus autem indignatione David adversus hominem illum nimis, dixit ad Nathan: Vivit Dominus, quoniam filius mortis est vir qui fecit hoc: ovem reddet in quádruplum, eo quod fécerit verbum istud et non pepérecit. Dixit autem Nathan ad David: Tu es ille vir. Hæc dicit Dominus Deus Israël: Ego unxi te in regem super Israël et ego éruí te de manu Saul, et dedi tibi domum dómini tui, et uxóres dómini tui in sinu tuo dedíque tibi domum Israël et Juda; et, si parva sunt ista, adíciam tibi multo majóra. Quare ergo contempsísti verbum Dómini, ut fáceres malum in conspéctu meo? Uriám Hetháum percussísti gládio et uxórem illíus accepísti in uxórem tibi et interfecísti eum gládio filiórur Ammon.

R. Deus ómnium exaudítor est: ipse misit Angelum suum, et tulit me de óvibus patris mei: * Et unxit me unctione misericórdiæ suæ.

Tu enim fecísti abscóndite, ego autem fáciam verbum istud in conspéctu omnis Israël et in conspéctu solis. Et dixit David ad Nathan: Peccávi Dómino. Dixítque Nathan ad David: Dóminus quoque tránstulit peccátum tuum: non moriérís. LESSON II

2 Sam 12:5-9

And David's anger being exceedingly kindled against that man, he said to Nathan: As the Lord liveth, the man that hath done this is a child of death. He shall restore the ewe fourfold, because he did this thing, and had no pity. And Nathan said to David: Thou art the man. Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: I anointed thee king over Israel, and I delivered thee from the hand of Saul, And gave thee thy master's house and thy master's wives into thy bosom, and gave thee the house of Israel and Juda: and if these things be little, I shall add far greater things unto thee. Why therefore hast thou despised the word of the Lord, to do evil in my sight? Thou hast killed Urias the Hethite with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the children of Ammon.

R. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's sheep, and * Anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

Y. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear

R. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

2 Sam 12:10-16

Therefore the sword shall never depart from thy house, because thou hast despised me, and hast taken the wife of Urias the Hethite to be thy wife. Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will raise up evil against thee out of thy own house, and I will take thy wives before thy eyes I and give them to thy neighbour, and he shall lie with thy wives in the sight of this sun. For thou didst it secretly: but I will do this thing in the sight of all Israel, and in the sight of the sun. And David said to Nathan: I have sinned against the Lord. And Nathan said to David: The Lord also hath taken away thy sin: thou shalt not die. Nevertheless, because thou hast given occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme, for this thing, the child that is born to thee, shall surely die. And Nathan returned to his house. The Lord also struck the child which the wife of Urias had borne to David, and his life was

Apolog. 1, c. 2*

Unusquisque nostrum per singulas horas quam multa delínquit! nec tamen unusquisque de plebe peccátum suum confiténdum putat. Ille rex, tantus ac potens, ne exíguo quidem moménto manére penes se delícti passus est consciéntiam; sed, præmatúra confessióne atque imménso dolóre, réddidit peccátum suum Dómino. R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LESSON IV

From the Book On the Defense of David written by St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan.

i. 2

In how many things doth each one of us transgress every hour! And nevertheless not one of all us common men thinketh it well to confess his sin. Yet that strong and great King would not suffer the acknowledgment of his iniquity to remain, even for a moment, hidden in his own heart. With eager confession and bitter sorrow, he admitted that he had sinned against the Lord. Which of you will easily find me now some honoured and wealthy person, who will not take it ill if I rebuke him for a fault whereof he is guilty? But David, amid the splendours of a throne and' the certainty of Divine revelations, when he was rebuked by one of his subjects for his grievous transgression, was not roused to anger, but contrariwise, acknowledged his sin with groans and affliction.

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

Peccávit David, quod solent reges; sed poeniténtiam gessit, flevit, ingémuit, quod non solent reges. Conféssus est culpam, obsecrávit indulgéntiam, humi stratus deplorávit ærúnam, jejunávit, orávit, confessiónis suæ testimoniúm in perpétua sácula vulgáto dolore transmísit. R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON V

The heart-felt sorrow of David moved the Lord to compassion, so that Nathan said Because thou hast repented, the Lord also hath put away thy sin. The instant gift of pardon declareth the depth of the King's repentance, which was able to obtain the forgiveness of so grievous a transgression. Other men, when they be rebuked of Priests, do but aggravate the heinousness of their sins by the seeking to deny or to excuse them, and thereby make deeper their fall by means of that which should have helped them up. But the saints of the Lord who will to fight a good fight of godliness unto the end and to finish their course by saving their souls, howbeit, they may perchance have fallen like other men, have done so rather through man's weakness than through lust for iniquity, and rise more eager to go on than before. Shame goadeth them on to fly at higher things. So that not only is their fall to be reckoned to have nowise hampered them, but rather to have quickened their speed.

Ÿ. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON VI

David sinned; and so oftentimes do other kings. David repented with groaning and tears; and so do not oftentimes other kings. He admitted his guilt; he implored forgiveness; he cast himself down upon the ground, and there wept over his crime; he fasted; he prayed; by publishing his sorrow he left an everlasting witness of his acknowledgment. What meaner men blush to do, the King was not ashamed to own. They who are answerable to law are bold to deny their crimes, and too haughty to ask pardon. Not so he, though he could be haled

From the Holy Gospel according to Mark
Mark 8:1-9

In those days, the multitude being very great, and having nothing to eat, Jesus called His disciples unto Him, and saith unto them: I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now been with Me for three days, and have nothing to eat. And so on.

Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan.
Bk. vi. on Luke ix.

After that woman, who is a type of the Church, was healed of the issue of blood (Luke viii. 43-48); the Lord had sent His disciples to preach the kingdom of God (ix. 2). His heavenly tenderness gave food. But consider who they were unto whom He gave it. He gave it not to such as dwell at ease, not to men in cities, not to such as sit in places of worldly splendour, but to men seeking Christ in a desert place. Such as are not given to niceness are they whom Christ receiveth, and unto whom the Word of God speaketh, not of earthly things, but of the kingdom of God (11.) And if any bear in them the running sores of fleshly passion, He healeth them.

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ψ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósko: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO VIII

Cónsequens ígitur erat, ut quos a vúlnerum dolore sanáverat, eos alimóniis spiritalibus a jejúnio liberáret. Itaque nemo cibum accipit Christi, nisi fúerit ante sanátus; et illi qui vocántur ad cœnam, prius vocándo sanántur. Si claudus fuit, gradiéndi facultátem, ut veníret, accépit: si lúmine oculórum privátus, domum útique Dómini, nisi refúsa luce, intráre non pótuit.

R. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad álterum: * Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth: * Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

Ψ. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo: Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi tres unum sunt.

R. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth.

Ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

Ubíque ígitur mystérii ordo servátur, ut prius per remissionem peccatórum vulnéribus medicína tribuátur, post alimónia mensæ cæléstis exúberat; quamquam nondum validióribus hæc turba reficiátur aliméntis, neque Christi córpore et ságuine jejúna solidióri fidei corda pascántur. Lacte, inquit, vos potávi, non esca; nondum enim poterátis, sed nec adhuc quidem potéstis. In modum lactis quinque sunt panes: esca

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

Ψ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON VIII

And then it came to pass that, as He had healed them that had need of healing, He fed their hunger with ghostly meat. Thus it is that no man taketh Christ's meat, unless he be first healed, and they, that are bidden to the supper, are first cured by the invitation. The lame receive the power to walk, that they may be able to come; the blind cannot see the door of the house of the Lord, unless light be given them.

R. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

Ψ. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

R. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

Everywhere is preserved the order of the Sacraments. The sinful soul is first healed by the remission of sins, and afterward is filled at the Table of the Lord albeit this multitude now present is of such as do not yet feed on those strong meats, nor pasture their starving spirits upon the Body and Blood of Christ, as do they of a manlier faith. To use the words of Paul, I have fed you with milk and not with meat, for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. (1 Cor. iii. 2.) The five loaves are, as it were, your milk; the

LECTIO I

De libro secúndo Regum

2 Reg 13:22-25

Porro non est locútus Absalom ad Amnon nec malum nec bonum; óderat enim Absalom Amnon, eo quod violásset Thamar sorórem suam. Factum est autem post tempus biénii ut tonderéntur oves Absalom in Baálhasor, quæ est juxta Ephraim; et vocávit Absalom omnes fílios regis, venítque ad regem et ait ad eum: Ecce tondéntur oves servi tui; véniat, oro, rex cum servis suis ad servum suum. Dixítque rex ad Absalom: Noli, fili mi, noli rogáre ut veniámus omnes et gravémus te. Cum autem cógeret eum, et nolúisset ire, benedíxit ei.

R. Recordáre, Dómine, testaménti tui, et dic Angelo percutiénti: Cesset jam manus tua, * Ut non desolétur terra, et ne perdas omnem ánimam vivam.

Ÿ. Ego sum qui peccávi, ego qui iníque egi: isti qui oves sunt, quid fecerunt? Avertátur, óbsecro, furor tuus, Dómine, a pópulo tuo.

R. Ut non desolétur terra, et ne perdas omnem ánimam vivam.

LECTIO II

2 Reg 13:26-29

Et ait Absalom: Si non vis veníre, véniat, óbsecro, nobíscum saltem Amnon frater meus. Dixítque ad eum rex: Non est necesse ut vadat tecum. Coégit itaque Absalom eum et dimísit cum eo Amnon et unívrsos fílios regis. Fecerátque Absalom convívium quasi convívium regis. Præcéperat autem Absalom púeris suis dicens: Observáte: cum temuléntus fúerit Amnon vino, et díxero vobis: Percúti-

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 13:22-25

But Absalom spoke not to Amnon neither good nor evil: for Absalom hated Amnon because he had ravished his sister Thamar. And it came to pass after two years, that the sheep of Absalom were shorn in Baalhasor, which is near Ephraim: and Absalom invited all the king's sons: And he came to the king, and said to him: Behold thy servant's sheep are shorn. Let the king, I pray, with his servants come to his servant. And the king said to Absalom: Nay, my son, do not ask that we should all come, and be chargeable to thee. And when he pressed him, and he would not go, he blessed him.

R. Remember, O Lord, thy covenant, and say unto the destroying Angel: Stay now thine hand; * That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that thou destroy not every living soul.

Ÿ. Even I it is that have sinned, and done evil indeed; but these sheep, what have they done? Let thine anger, I pray thee, O Lord, be turned away from thy people.

R. That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that Thou destroy not every living soul.

LESSON II

2 Sam 13:26-29

And Absalom said: If thou wilt not come, at least let my brother Amnon, I beseech thee, come with us. And the king said to him: It is not necessary that he should go with thee. But Absalom pressed him, so that he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him. And Absalom made a feast as it were the feast of a king. And Absalom had commanded his servants, saying: Take notice when Amnon shall be drunk with wine, and when I shall say to R. Bénedic et sanctifica domum istam in sempiternum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

2 Reg 13:30-34

Cumque adhuc pérgerent in itínere, fama pervénit ad David dicens: Percússit Absalom omnes filios regis, et non remánsit ex eis saltem unus. Surréxit itaque rex et scidit vestiménta sua et cécidit super terram, et omnes servi illíus, qui assistébant ei, sciderunt vestiménta sua. Respóndens autem Jónadab fílius Sémmaa fratris David dixit: Ne æstimet dóminus meus rex quod omnes púeri filii regis occísi sint; Amnon solus mórtuus est, quóniam in ore Absalom erat pósitus ex die qua oppréssit Thamar sorórem ejus. Nunc ergo ne ponat dóminus meus rex super cor suum verbum istud dicens: Omnes filii regis occísi sunt, quóniam Amnon solus mórtuus est. Fugit autem Absalom.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ÿ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

2 Sam 13:30-34

And while they were yet in the way, a rumour came to David, saying: Absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is not one of them left. Then the king rose up, and rent his garments: and fell upon the ground, and all his servants, that stood about him, rent their garments. But Jonadab the son of Semmaa David's brother answering, said: Let not my lord the king think that all the king's sons are slain: Amnon only is dead, for he was appointed by the mouth of Absalom from the day that he ravished his sister Thamar. Now therefore let not my lord the king take this thing into his heart, saying: All the king's sons are slain: for Amnon only is dead. But Absalom fled away:

2 Reg 14:4-7

Cum ingressa fuisset mulier Thecuftis ad regem, cecidit coram eo super terram et adoravit et dixit: Serva me, rex. Et ait ad eam rex: Quid causae habes? Quae respondit: Heu, mulier vidua ego sum; mortuus est enim vir meus. Et ancillae tuae erant duo filii, qui rixati sunt adversum se in agro, nullusque erat qui eos prohibere posset, et percussit alter alterum et interfecit eum. Et ecce consurgens universa cognatio adversum ancillam tuam dicit: Trade eum qui percussit fratrem suum, ut occidamus eum pro anima fratris sui quem interfecit, et deleamus heredem. Et quaerunt extinguere scintillam meam quae relicta est, ut non supersit viro meo nomen, et reliquiae super terram.

R. Domine, si conversus fuerit populus tuus, et oraverit ad sanctuarium tuum: * Tu exaudies de caelo, Domine, et libera eos de manibus inimicorum suorum.

V. Si peccaverit in te populus tuus, et conversus egerit poenitentiam, veniensque oraverit in isto loco.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 14:4-7

And when the woman of Thecua was come in to the king, she fell before him upon the ground, and worshipped, and said: Save me, O king. And the king said to her: What is the matter with thee? She answered: Alas, I am a widow woman: for my husband is dead. And thy handmaid had two sons: and they quarrelled with each other in the field, and there was none to part them: and the one struck the other, and slew him. And behold the whole kindred rising against thy handmaid, saith: Deliver him that hath slain his brother, that we may kill him for the life of his brother, whom he slew, and that we may destroy the heir: and they seek to quench my spark which is left, and will leave my husband no name, nor remainder upon the earth.

R. Lord, when thy people shall turn again to thee, and shall pray unto thee in this house; * Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

V. If thy people sin against thee, and turn again, and repent, and come and pray unto thee in this house.

R. Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

LESSON II

2 Sam 14:10-14

And the king said: If any one shall say ought against thee, bring him to me, and he shall not touch thee any more. And she said: Let the king remember the Lord his God, that the next of kin be not multiplied to take revenge, and that they may not kill my son. And he said: As the Lord liveth, there shall not one hair of thy son fall to the earth. Then the woman said: Let thy handmaid speak one word to my lord the king. And he said: Speak. R. And it came to pass when the Lord would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind * Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

Ÿ. And as they still went on, and talked, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder, and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

R. Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

LESSON III

2 Sam 14:19-21

And the king said: Is not the hand of Joab with thee in all this? The woman answered, and said: By the health of thy soul, my lord, O king, it is neither on the left hand, nor on the right, in all these things which my lord the king hath spoken: for thy servant Joab, he commanded me, and he put all these words into the mouth of thy handmaid. That I should come about with this form of speech, thy servant Joab, commanded this: but thou, my lord, O king, art wise, according to the wisdom of an angel of God, to understand all things upon earth. And the king said to Joab: Behold I am appeased and have granted thy request: Go therefore and fetch back the boy Absalom

2 Sam 15:19-20

And the king said to Ethai the Gethite: Why comest thou with us? return and dwell with the king, for thou art a stranger, and art come out of thy own place. Yesterday thou camest, and today shalt thou be forced to go forth with us? but I shall go whither I am going: return thou, and take back thy brethren with thee, and the Lord will show thee mercy, and truth, because thou hast shown grace and fidelity.

R. Dóminus, qui erípuít me de ore leónis, et de manu béstiæ liberávit me, * Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

Ÿ. Misit Deus misericórdiam suam et veritátem suam: ánimam meam erípuít de médio catulórum leónum.

R. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

R. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LECTIO I

De libro secúndo Regum

2 Reg 16:5-8

Venit ergo rex David usque Bahúrim, et ecce egrediebátur inde vir de cognatióne domus Saul nómine Sémei fílius Gera; procedebátque egrédiens et maledicébat, mittebátque lápidés contra David et contra univérsoś servos regis David. Omnis autem pópulus et univérsi bellatóres a dextro et a sinístro látere regis incedébant. Ita autem loquebátur Sémei, cum malediceret regi: Egrédere, egrédere, vir sánguínus et vir Bélial: réddidit tibi Dóminus univérsum sánguínem domus Saul, quóniam invasísti regnum pro eo.

R. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem míllia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

Ÿ. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percússit mille, et David decem míllia?

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 16:5-8

And king David came as far as Bahurim: and behold there came out from thence a man of the kindred of the house of Saul named Semei, the son of Gera, and coming out he cursed as he went on, And he threw stones at David, and at all the servants of king David: and all the people, and all the warriors walked on the right, and on the left side of the king. And thus said Semei when he cursed the king: Come out, come out, thou man of blood, and thou man of Belial. The Lord hath repaid thee for all the blood of the house of Saul: because thou hast usurped the kingdom in his stead, and the Lord hath given the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy son: and behold thy evils press upon thee, because thou art a man of blood.

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

Ÿ. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

R. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo:
percussit Philisthæum, et abstulit
opprobrium ex Israël.

LECTIO II

2 Reg 16:9-10

Dixit autem Abísai fílius Sárviæ regi: Quare maledícit canis hic mórtuus dómīno meo regi? vadam et amputábo caput ejus. Et ait rex: Quid mihi et vobis est, fílii Sárviæ? Dimittite eum ut maledícat; Dóminus enim præcépit ei ut maledíceret David, et quis est qui áudeat dícere quare sic fécerit?

R. Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia véniat super vos, * Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

V. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus, vísitet Dóminus: a Gélboë autem
tránseat.

R. Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

LECTIO III

2 Reg 16:11-12

Et ait rex Abísai et univérsis servis suis: Ecce fílius meus, qui egréssus est de útero meo, quærit ánimam meam; quanto magis nunc fílius Jémini? Dimittite eum ut maledícat juxta præcéptum Dómini; si forte respiciat Dóminus afflictiónem meam et reddat mihi Dóminus bonum pro maledictiónē hac hodiérna.

R. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit
Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem
pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum
tuum in ætérnum.

V. Fecique tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedi tibi ab ómnibus inimícis tuis.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON II

2 Sam 16:9-10

And Abisai the son of Sarvia said to the king: Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? I will go, and cut off his head. And the king said: What have I to do with you, ye sons of Sarvia? Let him alone and let him curse: for the Lord hath bid him curse David: and who is he that shall dare say, why hath he done so?

R. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

V. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON III

2 Sam 16:11-12

And the king said to Abisai, and to all his servants: Behold my son, who came forth from my bowels, seeketh my life: how much more now a son of Jemini? let him alone that he may curse as the Lord hath bidden him. Perhaps the Lord may look upon my affliction, and the Lord may render me good for the cursing of this day.

R. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

V. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine
enemies.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to
the Holy Ghost.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou
wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

LECTIO I

De libro secúndo Regum

2 Reg 18:6-8

Egréssus est pópulus in campum contra Israēl, et factum est prælíum in saltu Ephraim. Et cæsus est ibi pópulus Israēl ab exercitu David, fáctaque est plaga magna in die illa vigínti míllium. Fuit autem ibi prælíum dispérsus super fáciem omnis terræ, et multo plures erant, quos saltus consúmpserat de pópulo, quam hi quos voráverat gládius in die illa.

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitúdine iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ÿ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósco: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

2 Reg 18:9-12

Accidit autem ut occurreret Absalom servus David sedens mulo; cumque ingræssus fuisset mulus subter condénsam quercum et magnam, adhæsit caput ejus quércui et, illo suspénso inter cælum et terram, mulus cui inséderat, pertransívit. Vidit autem hoc quíspiam, et nuntiávit Joab dicens: Vidi Absalom pendére de quercu. Et ait Joab viro qui nuntiáverat ei: Si vidísti, quare non confodísti eum cum terra et ego dedíssem tibi decem argénti siclos et unum bálteum? Qui dixit ad Joab: Si appénderes in mánibus meis mille argénteos, nequáquam mitterem manum

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Samuel

2 Sam 18:6-8

So the people went out into the field against Israel and the battle was fought in the forest of Ephraim. And the people of Israel were defeated there by David's army, and a great slaughter was made that day of twenty thousand men. And the battle there was scattered over the face of all the country, and there were many more of the people whom the forest consumed, than whom the sword devoured that day.

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

Ÿ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

2 Sam 18:9-12

And it happened that Absalom met the servants of David, riding on a mule: and as the mule went under a thick and large oak, his head stuck in the oak: and while he hung between the heaven and the earth, the mule on which he rode passed on. And one saw this and told Joab, saying: I saw Absalom hanging upon an oak. And Joab said to the man that told him: If thou sawest him, why didst thou not stab him to the ground, and I would have given thee ten sicles of silver, and belt? And he said to Joab: If thou wouldst have paid down in my hands a thousand pieces of silver, I would not lay my hands upon the king's son: for in our hearmeam in filium regis; audiéntibus enim nobis, præcepit rex tibi, et Abísai, et Ethái, dicens: Custodíte mihi púerum Absalom.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratióem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: *
Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

Ps. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

2 Reg 18:14-17

Et ait Joab: Non sicut tu vis, sed aggredíar eum coram te. Tulit ergo tres lánceas in manu sua et infíxit eas in corde Absalom; cumque adhuc palpitáret hærens in quercu, cucurrérunt decem júvenes armígeri Joab et percutiéntes interfecérunt eum. Cécinit autem Joab búccina et retínuít pópulum, ne persequerétur fugiéntem Israël, volens párcere multítudini. Et tulérunt Absalom et projecérunt eum in saltu in fóveam grandem et comportavérunt super eum acérvm lápidum magnum nimis.

R. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratióem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ps. Réspice, Dómine, de sanctuário tuo, et de excélso cælórum habitáculo.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ps. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

ing the king charged thee, and Abisai, and Ethai, saying: Save me the boy Absalom.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ps. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

2 Sam 18:14-17

And Joab said: Not as thou wilt, but will set upon him in thy sight. So he took three lances in his hand, and thrust them into the heart of Absalom: and whilst he yet panted for life, sticking on the oak, Ten young men, armourbearers of Joab, ran up, and striking him slew him. And Joab sounded the trumpet, and kept back the people from pursuing after Israel in their flight, being willing to spare the multitude. And they took Absalom, and cast him into a great pit in the forest, and they laid an exceeding great heap of stones upon him: but all Israel fled to their own dwellings.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Ps. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Ps. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

LECTIO I

Incipit liber tertius Regum

3 Reg 1:1-4

Et rex David senúerat habebátque ætátis plúrimos dies: cumque operirétur vèstibus, non calefiébat. Dixérunt ergo ei servi sui: Quærámus dómino nostro regi adolescéntulam vírginem, et stet coram rege et foveat eum dormiátque in sinu suo et caleficiat dóminum nostrum regem. Quæsiérunt ígitur adolescéntulam speciósam in ómnibus fínibus Israël et invenérunt Abísag Sunamítidem et adduxérunt eam ad regem. Erat autem puélla pulchra nimis dormiebátque cum rege et ministrábat ei; rex vero non cognóvit eam.

℣. Convertímini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auférte deos aliénos de médio vestri.

℟. Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

LECTIO II

3 Reg 1:5-8

Adonías autem fílius Haggith elevabátur, dicens: Ego regnábo. Fecítque sibi currus et équites et quinquagínta viros, qui cúrrent ante eum. Nec corrípuit eum pater suus aliquándo dicens: Quare hoc fecísti? Erat autem et ipse pulcher valde, secúndus natu post Absalom. Et sermo ei cum Joab filio Sárviæ et cum Abíathar sacerdote, qui adjuvábant partes Adoníæ. Sadoc vero sacérdos, et Banájas fílius Jójadæ, et Nathan prophéta, et Sémei et Rei, et robur exércitus David non erat cum Adonía.

℟. Deus ómnium exaudítor est: ipse misit Angelum suum, et tulit me de óvibus patris mei: * Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 1:1-4

Now king David was old, and advanced in years: and when he was covered with clothes, he was not warm. His servants therefore said to him: Let us seek for our lord the king, a young virgin, and let her stand before the king, and cherish him, and sleep in his bosom, and warm our lord the king. So they sought a beautiful young woman in all the coasts of Israel, and they found Abisag a Sunamitess, and brought her to the king. And the damsel was exceeding beautiful, and she slept with the king: and served him, but the king did not know her.

℟. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

℣. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

℟. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 1:5-8

And Adonias the son of Haggith exalted himself, saying: I will be king. And he made himself chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. Neither did his father rebuke him at any time, saying: Why hast thou done this? And he also was very beautiful, the next in birth after Absalom. And he conferred with Joab the son of Sarvia, and with Abiathar the priest, who furthered Adonias's side. But Sadoc the priest, and Banaías the son of Joiada, and Nathan the prophet, and Semei, and Rei, and the strength of David's army was not with Adonias.

℟. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's sheep, and * Anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

✠. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstia liberávit me.

℟. Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.

LECTIO III

3 Reg 1:11-15

Dixit itaque Nathan ad Bethsabée matrem Salomónis: Num audísti quod regnáverit Adonías filius Haggith, et dóminus noster David hoc ignórat? Nunc ergo veni, áccipe consílium a me et salva ánimam tuam filiúque tui Salomónis. Vade et ingrédere ad regem David et dic ei: Nonne tu, dómine mi rex, jurásti mihi ancíllæ tuæ dicens: Sálomon filius tuus regnabit post me et ipse sedébit in sólio meo? Quare ergo regnat Adonías? Et, adhuc ibi te loquente cum rege, ego véniam post te et complébo sermónes tuos. Ingréssa est itaque Bethsabée ad regem in cubículum.

℟. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstia liberávit me, * Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

℟. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

LECTIO IV

Ex Epístola sancti Hierónymi Presbýteri ad Nepotiánum

Epíst. 2, tom. 1

David annos natus septuagínta, bellicósus quondam vir, senectúte frígescénte, non póterat caleféri. Quæritur itaque puélla de univérsis fínibus Israhél Abísag Sunamítis, quæ cum rege dormíret, et seníle corpus calefáceret. Quæ est ista Sunamítis, uxor et virgo, tam fervens, ut frígídum calefáceret; tam sancta, ut caléntem ad libídinem non provocáret? Expónat sapientíssimus Sálomon

✠. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear

℟. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 1:11-15

And Nathan said to Bethsabee the mother of Solomon: Hast thou not heard that Adonias the son of Haggith reigneth, and our lord David knoweth it not? Now then come, take my counsel and save thy life, and the life of thy son Solomon. Go, and get thee in to king David, and say to him: Didst not thou, my lord O king, swear to me thy handmaid, saying: Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne? why then doth Adonias reign? And while thou art yet speaking there with the king, I will come in after thee, and will fill up thy words. So Bethsabee went in to the king into the chamber.

℟. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

✠. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

℟. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

℟. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LESSON IV

From the Epistle written to Nepotian by St. Jerome, Priest at Bethlehem.

Ep. ii. tom. i.

Then David, who had once been a man of war, was seventy years old, the chill of old age came upon him, and he could get no heat. So they sought out for him throughout all the coasts of Israel Abishag the Shunamite, to sleep with the king and to warm his aged body. Who is this Shunamite, wife and yet virgin, so hot, that she could heat the chilly, so holy, that her warmth provoked him not to lust. Let Solomon the Wise explain his father's enjoyment, and the "Peaceful One" tell of the warrior's patris sui delicias, et pacificus bellatoris viri narret amplexus: Pósside sapiéntiam, pósside intelligéntiam. Ne obliviscáris, et ne declináveris a verbis oris mei: neque derelínquas illam, et apprehéndet te: ama illam, et servábit te. Príncipium sapiéntiæ, pósside sapiéntiam, et in omni possessióne tua pósside intelligéntiam: circúmda illam, et exaltábit te; honóra illam, et amplexábitur te, ut det cápiti tuo corónam gratiárum. Coróna quoque deliciárum próteget te.

R. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem míllia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

ψ. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percússit mille, et David decem míllia?

R. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

LECTIO V

Omnes pene virtútes córporis mutántur in sénibus, et crescén-te sola sapiéntia, decréscunt cétera: jejúnia, vigiliæ, chaméuniæ, id est, super paviméntum dormitiónes, huc il-lúcq-ue discúrsus, peregrinórum suscéptio, defénsio páuperum, instántia oratiónum et perseverántia, visitatio languéntium, labor mánuum unde præbeántur eleemósynæ. Et, ne sermónem lóngius prótraham, cuncta ex-ercéntur, fracto córpore, minóra fiunt.

R. Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia véniant super vos, * Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

ψ. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus, visitet Dóminus: a Gélboë autem tránseat.

R. Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

LECTIO VI

embraces. “Get wisdom, get understanding, forget it not, neither decline from the words of my mouth, forsake her not, and she shall preserve thee love her, and she shall keep thee. Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore, get wisdom and with all thy getting, get understanding. Exalt her, and she shall promote thee. Honour her, and she shall embrace thee, and shall give to thine head an ornament of grace. She shall compass thee like acrown of delights.” (Prov. iv. 5-9.)

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

ψ. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON V

In old men almost all the powers of the body become weakened, and while wisdom only is increasing, all things else beside wisdom fail. Then faileth strength for fasting, for watching, for “chameuniae,” (that is, sleeping on the floor,) for wandering hither and thither, for receiving strangers, for defending the poor, for instance and constancy in prayer, for visiting the sick, for that work with the hands whence alms are given. I need not treat of this with long talk, but, in short, when the body is broken down, all the works of the body wax enfeebled.

R. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

ψ. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON VI

Nec hoc dico, quod in iuvenibus et adhuc solidioris ætatis, his dumtaxat, qui labore et ardentissimo studio, vitæ quoque sanctimonia, et orationis ad Dominum Jesum frequentia, scientiam consecuti sunt, frigeat sapientia, quæ in plerisque senibus ætate marcescit; sed quod adolescentia multa corporis bella sustineat, et inter incentiva vitiorum et carnis titillationes, quasi ignis in lignis viridibus suffocetur, ut suum non possit explicare fulgorem. Senectus vero rursus eorum qui adolescentiam suam honestis artibus instruxerunt, et in lege Domini meditati sunt die ac nocte, ætate fit doctior, usu tritior, processu temporis sapientior, et veterum studiorum dulcissimos fructus metit.

℟. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dominus, et posui te pascere gregem populi mei: * Et fui tecum in omnibus ubicumque ambulasti, firmans regnum tuum in æternum.

℣. Fecique tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnorum, qui sunt in terra: et requiem dedi tibi ab omnibus inimicis tuis.

℟. Et fui tecum in omnibus ubicumque ambulasti, firmans regnum tuum in æternum.

℣. Glória Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

℟. Et fui tecum in omnibus ubicumque ambulasti, firmans regnum tuum in æternum.

LECTIO VII

*Lectio sancti Evangelii secundum
Matthæum*

Matt 7:15-21

In illo tempore: Dixit Jesus discipulis suis: Attendite a falsis prophetis, qui veniunt ad vos in vestimentis ovium, intrinsecus autem sunt lupi rapaces. Et reliqua.

Homilia sancti Hilarii Episcopi Comment. in Matth. can. 6

Don't either do I say, on the other hand, that wisdom, which in many old men drivelleth into second childhood, is weak, or wanting in such of the young and stout, as win knowledge by work and earnest study, by holiness of life and instancy of prayer to the Lord Jesus, but this I do say, that the more spiritual faculties have in youth many wrestlings with the body to go through, and that, what with violent provocations to vice, and what with the sensual ticklings of the flesh, they are apt to be smothered like fire among green wood, and not able to blaze forth in all their brightness. But when old age cometh upon them, who have spent their youth in acquiring sound knowledge, and have meditated in the law of the Lord day and night, it hath this effect on them, to make them more learned by their increased years, more experienced by constant use, more wise, through the advance of time and, in short, doth offer them the rich harvest of their past diligence.

℟. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

℣. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.

℟. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 7:15-21

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. And so on.

*Homily by St. Hilary, Bishop of Poitiers.
Comment. on Matth. ch. vi.*

Blandiménta verbórum et mansuetúdinis simulatiónem ádmonet fructu operatiónis expéndi oportere; ut non qualem quis verbis réferat, sed qualem se rebus effíciat, spectemus; quia in multis vestítu óvium rábies lupína contégitur. Ergo ut spinæ uvas, ut tríbuli ficus non génerant, et ut iníquæ árbores utília poma non áfferunt; ita ne in istis quidem consístere docet boni óperis effectum, et idcirco omnes cognoscéndos esse de fructibus. Regnum enim cælórum sola verbórum offícia non óbtinent; neque qui díxerit: Dómine, Dómine, heres illús erit.

℞. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

℣. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósco: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

℞. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO VIII

Quid enim mériti est Dómino dícere, Dómine? Numquid Dóminus non erit, nisi fúerit dictus a nobis? Et quæ offícii sánc-titas est nóminis nuncupátió, cum cæléstis regni iter obediéntia pótius voluntátis Dei, non nuncupátió, repertúra sit? Multi mihi dicent in illa die: Dómine, Dómine, nonne in tuo nómine prophetávimus? Etiam nunc pseudopphetárum frauduléntiam et hypocritárum simulaménta condémnat, qui glóriam sibi ex verbi virtúte præsumunt, in doctrínæ prophetía, et dæmoniórum fuga, et istiúsmodi óperum virtútibus.

The Lord here warneth us that we must rate the worth of soft words and seeming meekness, by the fruits which they that manifest such things bring forth in their works, and that we should look, in order to see what a man is, not at his professions, but at his deeds. For there are many in whom sheep's clothing is but a mask to hide wolfish ravening. But "Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so, every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit." Thus, the Lord teacheth us, is it with men also; evil men bring not forth good fruits, and hereby are we to know them. Lip-service alone winneth not the kingdom of heaven, nor is every one that saith unto Christ: "Lord, Lord," an heir thereof.

℞. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

℞. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON VIII

What use is there in calling the Lord, Lord? Would He not be Lord all the same, whether or not we called Him so? What holiness is there in this ascription of a name, when the true way to enter into the kingdom of heaven is to do the will of our Father, Who is in heaven? "Many will say to Me in that day: Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy Name?" Already here doth the Lord rebuke the deceit of the false prophets, and the feigning of the hypocrites, who take glory to themselves because of the power of their words, their prophesying in teaching, their casting out of devils, and such-like mighty works.

℞. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

✠. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo:
Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi
tres unum sunt.

℞. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus
Sábaoth.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

℞. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

Because of all these things they promised unto themselves that they shall enter into the kingdom of heaven as though in their words and works any good thing were their own, and not all the mighty working of that God upon Whom they call, since reading bringeth knowledge of doctrine, and the Name of Christ driveth out devils. That which is needed on our part to win that blessed eternity, that of our own which we must give, is to will to do right, to turn away from all evil, to obey with our whole heart the commandments laid on us from heaven, and so to become the friends of God.
It should be ours rather to do God's will, than to boast of God's power. And we must put off from us and thrust away such as are by their wicked works already estranged from His friendship.

LECTIO I

De libro tértio Regum

3 Reg 1:28-31

Et respóndit rex David dicens: Vocáte ad me Bethsabée. Quæ cum fúisset ingrèssa coram rege et stetísset ante eum, jurávit rex, et ait:
Vivít Dóminus, qui éruit ánimam meam de omni angústia, quia, sicut jurávi tibi per Dó-minum Deum Israël dicens: Sálomon fílius tuus regnábit post me et ipse sedébit super sólum meum pro me, sic fáciám hódie. Summissóque Bethsabée in terram vultu, adorá-vit regem, dicens: Vivat dóminus meus David in ætérnum.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 1:28-31

And King David answered and said: Call to me Bethsabée. And when she was come in to the king, and stood before him, The king swore and said:
As the Lord liveth, who hath delivered my soul out of all distress, Even as I swore to thee by the Lord the God of Israel, saying: Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead, so will I do this day. And Bethsabée bowing with her face to the earth worshipped the king, saying: May my lord David live for ever

R. Recordáre, Dómine, testaménti tui, et dic Angelo percutiénti: Cesset jam manus tua, * Ut non desolétur terra, et ne perdas omnem ánimam vivam.

Ψ. Ego sum qui peccávi, ego qui iníque egi: isti qui oves sunt, quid fecerunt? Avertátur, óbsecro, furor tuus, Dómine, a pópulo tuo.

R. Ut non desolétur terra, et ne perdas omnem ánimam vivam.

LECTIO II

3 Reg 1:32-35

Dixit quoque rex David: Vocáte mihi Sadoc sacerdotem et Nathan prophétam et Banájam fílium Jójadæ. Qui cum ingrési fuissent coram rege, dixit ad eos: tóllite vobíscum servos Dómini vestri, et impónite Salomónem fílium meum super mulam meam, et dúcite eum in Gihon, et ungat eum ibi Sadoc sacerdos et Nathan prophéta in regem super Israël. Et canétis búccina, atque dicétis: Vivat rex Sálomon. Et ascendétis post eum, et véniet, et sedébit super sólium meum, et ipse regnábít pro me.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratióem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: * Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

Ψ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

3 Reg 1:38-40

Descéndit ergo Sadoc sacerdos, et Nathan prophéta, et Banájas fílius Jójadæ et Ceréthi, et Pheléthi: et imposuérunt Salomónem super mulam regis David, et adduxérunt eum in Gihon. Sumpsítque Sadoc sacerdos cornu ólei de tabernáculo, et unxit Salomónem: et cecinérunt búccina, et dixit omnis pópulus: Vivat rex Sálomon. Et ascéndit univérsa

R. Remember, O Lord, thy covenant, and say unto the destroying Angel: Stay now thine hand; * That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that thou destroy not every living soul.

Ψ. Even I it is that have sinned, and done evil indeed; but these sheep, what have they done? Let thine anger, I pray thee, O Lord, be turned away from thy people.

R. That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that Thou destroy not every living soul.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 1:32-35

King David also said: Call me Sadoc the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Banaías the son of Joiada. And when they were come in before the king, He said to them: Take with you the servants of your lord, and set my son Solomon upon my mule: and bring him to Gihon. And let Sadoc the priest, and Nathan the prophet anoint him there king over Israel: and you shall sound the trumpet, and shall say: God save king Solomon. And you shall come up after him, and he shall come, and shall sit upon my throne, and he shall reign in my stead: and I will appoint him to be ruler over Israel, and over Juda.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ψ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 1:38-40

So Sadoc the priest, and Nathan the prophet went down, and Banaías the son of Joiada, and the Cerethi, and Phelethi: and they set Solomon upon the mule of king David, and brought him to Gihon. And Sadoc the priest took a horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed Solomon: and they sounded the trumpet, and all the people said: God save king Solomon. And all the multitude went up after him, and the people played with pipes, and multitúdo post eum, et pópulus canéntium tñbiis, et lætántium gáudio magno: et insónuit terra a clamóre eórum.

LECTIO I

De libro tertio Regum

3 Reg 2:1-4

Appropinquavérunt autem dies David ut morerétur, præcepítque Salomóni fílio suo, dicens: Ego ingrédior viam univérse terræ: confortáre, et esto vir, et obsérva custódias Dómini Dei tui, ut ámbules in viis ejus: ut custódias cæremónias ejus, et præcépta ejus, et judícia, et testimónia, sicut scriptum est in lege Móysi; ut intéllegas univérsa quæ facis, et quocúmque te véteris; ut confírmet Dóminus sermónes suos, quos locútus est de me dicens: Si custodierint fílii tui vias suas, et ambuláverint coram me in veritáte in omni corde suo et in omni ánima sua, non auferétur tibi vir de sólio Israël.

R. Dómine, si convérsus fúerit pópulus tuus, et oráverit ad sanctuárium tuum: * Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

ψ. Si peccáverit in te pópulus tuus, et convérsus égerit pœniténtiam, veniénsque oráverit in isto loco.

R. Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 2:1-4

And the days of David drew nigh that he should die, and he charged his son Solomon, saying: I am going the way of all flesh: take thou courage, and show thyself a man. And keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and observe his ceremonies, and his precepts, and judgments, and testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses: that thou mayest understand all thou dost, and whithersoever thou shalt turn thyself: That the Lord may confirm his words, which he hath spoken of me, saying: If thy children shall take heed to their ways, and shall walk before me in truth, with all their heart, and with all their soul, there shall not be taken away from thee a man on the throne of Israel.

R. Lord, when thy people shall turn again to thee, and shall pray unto thee in this house; * Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

ψ. If thy people sin against thee, and turn again, and repent, and come and pray unto thee in this house.

R. Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

LECTIO II

3 Reg 2:5-6

Tu quoque nosti quæ fécerit mihi Joab fílius Sárviæ, quæ fécerit duóbus princípibus exércitus Israël, Abner fílio Ner, et Amasæ fílio Jether: quos occidit, et effúdit sánguinem belli in pace, et pósuit cruórem prálii in bálteo suo, qui erat circa lumbos ejus, et in calceaménto suo, quod erat in pédibus ejus. Fácies ergo juxta sapiéntiam tuam, et non dedúces cantiem ejus pacífice ad ínferos.

℞. Factum est, dum tólleret Dóminus Elíam per túrbinem in cælum, * Eliséus clamábat, dicens: Pater mi, pater mi, currus Israël, et auríga ejus.

℥. Cumque pérgerent, et incedéntes sermocinaréntur, ecce currus ígneus et equi ígnei divisérunt utrúmque, et ascéndit Elías per túrbinem in cælum.

℞. Eliséus clamábat, dicens: Pater mi, pater mi, currus Israël, et auríga ejus.

LECTIO III

3 Reg 2:7-9

Sed et fíliis Berzellái Galaadítis reddes grátiam, erúntque comedéntes in mensa tua; occurrúnt enim mihi quando fugiébam a fácie Absalom fratris tui. Habes quoque apud te Sémei fílium Gera fílii Jémini de Bahúrim, qui maledíxit mihi maledictióne péssima, quando ibam ad castra; sed quia descéndit mihi in occúrsum, cum transírem Jordá-nem, et jurávi ei per Dóminum, dicens: Non te interficiam gládio. Tu noli pati eum esse innóxium.

℞. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

℥. Fecíque tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedi tibi ab ómnibus inimícis tuis.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 2:5-6

Thou knowest also what Joab the son of Sarvia hath done to me, what he did to the two captains of the army of Israel, to Abner the son of Ner, and to Amasa the son of Jether: whom he slew, and shed the blood of war in peace, and put the blood of war on his girdle that was about his loins, and in his shoes that were on his feet. Do therefore according to thy wisdom, and let not his hoary head go down to hell in peace.

℞. And it came to pass when the Lord would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind * Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

℥. And as they still went on, and talked, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder, and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

℞. Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 2:7-9

But show kindness to the sons of Berzellai the Galaadite, and let them eat at thy table: for they met me when I fled from the face of Absalom thy brother. Thou hast also with thee Semei the son of Gera the son of Jemini of Bahurim, who cursed me with a grievous curse, when I went to the camp: but because he came down to meet me when I passed over the Jordan, and I swore to him by the Lord, saying: I will not kill thee with a sword: Do not thou hold him guiltless. But thou art a wise man, and knowest what to do with him, and thou shalt bring down his grey hairs with blood to hell.

℞. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

℥. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

And Solomon had under him all the kingdoms from the river to the land of the Philistines, even to the border of Egypt: and they brought him presents, and served him, all the days of his life. And the provision of Solomon for each day was thirty measures of fine flour, and threescore measures of meal, Ten fat oxen and twenty out of the pastures, and a hundred rams, besides venison of harts, roes, and buffles, and fatted fowls. For he had all the country which was beyond the river, from Thaphsa to Gazan, and all the kings of those countries: and he had peace on every side round about.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 4:30-34

And the wisdom of Solomon surpassed the wisdom of all the Orientals, and of the Egyptians, And he was wiser than all men: wiser than Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, and Chalcol, and Dorda the sons of Mahol, and he was renowned in all nations round about. Solomon also spoke three thousand parables: and his poems were a thousand and five. And he treated about trees from the cedar that is in Libanus, unto the hyssop that cometh out of the wall: and he discoursed of beasts, and of fowls, and of creeping things, and of fishes. And they came from all nations to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and from all the kings of the earth, who heard of his wisdom.

R. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

Ψ. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LECTIO I

De libro tertio Regum

3 Reg 5:1-4

Misit quoque Hiram, rex Tyri, servos suos ad Salomónem; audívit enim quod ipsum unxissent regem pro patre ejus; quia amicus fuerat Hiram David omni témpore. Misit autem Sálomon ad Hiram, dicens: Tu scis voluntátem David patris mei, et quia non potúerit ædificáre domum nómini Dómini Dei sui propter bella imminéntia per circúitum, donec daret Dóminus eos sub vestígio pedum ejus. Nunc autem réquiem dedit Dóminus Deus meus mihi per circúitum, et non est satan neque occúrsus malus.

- ℟. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem míllia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.
- ℣. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percússit mille, et David decem míllia?
- ℟. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

LECTIO II

3 Reg 5:5-6

Quam ob rem cógito ædificáre templum nómini Dómini Dei mei, sicut locútus est Dóminus David, patri meo, dicens: Fílius tuus, quem dabo pro te super sólium tuum, ipse ædificábit domum nómini meo. Præcipe ígitur ut præcédant mihi servi tui cedros de Líbano, et servi mei sint cum servis tuis; mercédem autem servórum tuórum dabo tibi quamcúmque petíeris; scis enim quómodo non est in pópulo meo vir qui nóverit ligna cædere sicut Sidónii.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 5:1-4

And Hiram king of Tyre sent his servants to Solomon: for he heard that they had anointed him king in the room of his father: for Hiram had always been David's friend. And Solomon sent to Hiram, saying: Thou knowest the will of David my father, and that he could not build a house to the name of the Lord his God, because of the wars that were round about him, until the Lord put them under the soles of his feet. But now the Lord my God hath given me rest round about: and there is no adversary nor evil occurrence.

- ℟. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.
- ℣. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?
- ℟. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 5:5-6

Wherefore I purpose to build a temple to the name of the Lord my God, as the Lord spoke to David my father, saying: my son, whom I will set upon the throne in thy place, he shall build a house to my name. Give orders therefore that thy servants cut me down cedar trees out of Libanus, and let my servants be with thy servants: and I will give thee the hire of thy servants whatsoever thou wilt ask, for thou knowest how there is not among my people a man that has skill to hew wood like to the Sidonians.

R. Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia
veniant super vos, * Ubi ceciderunt fortes Israël.

Ÿ. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus, visitet Dóminus: a Gélboë autem
tránseat.

R. Ubi ceciderunt fortes Israël.

LECTIO III

3 Reg 5:7-9

Cum ergo audísset Hiram verba Salomónis, lætátus est valde, et ait: Benedíctus Dóminus Deus hódie, qui dedit David fílium sapientíssimum super pópulum hunc plúrimum.
Et misit Hiram ad Salomónem, dicens: Audívi quæcúmque mandásti mihi: ego fáciam omnem voluntátem tuam in lignis cédrinis et abiégnis. Servi mei depónent ea de Líbano ad mare, et ego compónam ea in rátibus in mari usque ad locum quem significáveris mihi; et applicábo ea ibi, et tu tolles ea præbebísque necessária mihi ut detur cibus dómui meæ.

R. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit
Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem
pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus
ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum
tuum in ætérnum.

Ÿ. Fecístique tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedi tibi ab ómnibus inimicis tuis.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

R. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew,
neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

Ÿ. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 5:7-9

Now when Hiram had heard the words of Solomon, he rejoiced exceedingly, and said:
Blessed be the Lord God this day, who hath given to David a very wise son over this numerous people. And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying: I have heard all thou hast desired of me: and I will do all thy desire concerning cedar trees, and fir trees. My servants shall bring them down from Libanus to the sea: and I will put them together in floats in the sea, and convey them to the place, which thou shalt signify to me; and will land them there, and thou shalt receive them: and thou shalt allow me necessities, to furnish food for my household.

R. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Ÿ. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine
enemies.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LECTIO I

De libro tertio Regum

3 Reg 7:51; 8:1-2

Et perfecit omne opus, quod faciebat Salomon in domo Domini, et intulit quæ sanctificaverat David pater suus, argentum, et aurum, et vasa, reposuitque in thesauris domus Domini. Tunc congregati sunt omnes maiores natu Israël cum principibus tribuum et duces familiarum filiorum Israël ad regem Salomonem in Ierusalem, ut deferrent arcam foederis Domini de civitate David, id est de Sion. Convenitque ad regem Salomonem universus Israël in mense Ethanim in solenni die (ipse est mensis septimus).

R. Peccavi super numerum arenæ maris, et multiplicata sunt peccata mea: et non sum dignus videre altitudinem cæli præ multitudinem iniquitatis meæ: quoniam irritavi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ps. Quoniam iniquitatem meam ego cognosco: et delictum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccavi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

3 Reg 8:3-7

Veneruntque cuncti senes de Israël, et tulērunt arcam sacerdotēs, et portaverunt arcam Domini, et tabernaculum foederis et omnia vasa sanctuarii, quæ erant in tabernaculo, et ferēbant ea sacerdotēs et levitæ. Rex autem Salomon et omnis multitudo Israël, quæ convenerat ad eum, gradiebatur cum illo ante arcam, et immolabant oves et boves absque æstimatione et numero. Et intulērunt sacerdotēs arcam foederis Domini in locum suum, in oraculum templi, in Sanctum sanctorum, subter alas Chérubim; siquidem Chérubim

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 7:51; 8:1-2

And Solomon finished all the work that he made in the house of the Lord, and brought in the things that David his father had dedicated, the silver and the gold, and the vessels, and laid them up in the treasures of the house of the Lord. Then all the ancients of Israel with the princes of the tribes, and the heads of the families of the children of Israel were assembled to king Solomon in Jerusalem: that they might carry the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the city of David, that is, out of Sion. And all Israel assembled themselves to king Solomon on the festival day in the month of Ethanim, the same is the seventh month.

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

Ps. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 8:3-7

And all the ancients of Israel came, and the priests took up the ark, And carried the ark of the Lord, and the tabernacle of the covenant, and all the vessels of the sanctuary, that were in the tabernacle: and the priests and the Levites carried them. And king Solomon, and all the multitude of Israel, that were assembled unto him went with him before the ark, and they sacrificed sheep and oxen that could not be counted or numbered. And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord into its place, into the oracle of the temple, into the holy of holies under the wings of the cherubims. For the cherubims spread forth their expandébant alas super locum arcæ, et protegébant arcam, et vectes ejus désuper.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratiónem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: *
Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

Ps. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

3 Reg 8:9-12

In arca autem non erat áliud nisi duæ tabulæ lapídeæ, quas posúerat in ea Móyses in Horeb, quando pépigit Dóminus foedus cum filiis Israël, cum egredéréntur de terra Ægýpti. Factum est autem, cum exísset sacerdótes de sanctuário, nébula implévit domum Dómini, et non póterant sacerdótes stare et ministráre propter nébulam; impléverat enim glória Dómini domum Dómini. Tunc ait Sálomon: Dóminus dixit ut habitáret in nébula.

R. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratiónem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ps. Réspice, Dómine, de sanctuário tuo, et de excélso cælórum habitáculo.

Ps. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

wings over the place of the ark, and covered the ark, and the staves thereof above.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ps. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 8:9-12

Now in the ark there was nothing else but the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, when the Lord made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt. And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the sanctuary, that a cloud filled the house of the Lord, And the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of the Lord had filled the house of the Lord. Then Solomon said: The Lord said that he would dwell in a cloud.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Ps. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Ps. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

LECTIO I

De libro tértio Regum

3 Reg 9:1-5

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 9:1-5

And it came to pass when Solomon had finished the building of the house of the Lord, and the Factum est autem cum perfecisset Sálomon ædificium domus Dómini et ædificium regis et omne quod optáverat et volúerat fácere, apparuit ei Dóminus secúndo, sicut apparuerat ei in Gábaon. Dixítque Dóminus ad eum: Exaudívi oratióem tuam et deprecatióem tuam, quam deprecátus es coram me; sanctificávi domum hanc, quam ædificásti, ut pónerem nomen meum ibi in sempitérnum; et erunt óculi mei et cor meum ibi cunctis diébus. Tu quoque, si ambuláveris coram me sicut ambulávit pater tuus in simplicitáte cordis et in æquitáte, et féceris ómnia quæ præcépi tibi et legítima mea et judícia mea serváveris, ponam thronum regni tui super Israël in sempitérnum, sicut locútus sum David, patri tuo dicens: Non auferétur vir de genere tuo de sólio Israël.

R. Præparáte corda vestra Dómino, et servíte illi soli: * Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

Y. Convertímini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auférte deos aliénos de médio vestri.

R. Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

LECTIO II

3 Reg 9:6-9

Si autem aversióne avérsi fuéritis vos et filii vestri non sequéntes me nec custodiéntes mandáta mea et cæremónias meas quas propósui vobis, sed abiéritis et coluéritis deos aliénos et adoravéritis eos; áuferam Israël de superficie terræ quam dedi eis, et templum quod sanctificávi nómini meo prociám a conspéctu meo, erítque Israël in provérbium et in fábulam cunctis pópulis, et domus hæc erit in exéplum: omnis qui transierit per eam stupébit et sibilábit et dicet: Quare fecit Dóminus sic terræ huic et dómui huic? Et respondébunt: Quia dereliquerunt Dóminus Deum suum, qui edúxit patres eórum de terra Ægýpti, et secúti sunt deos aliénos et adoravérunt eos et coluérunť eos; idcíro king's house, and all that he desired, and was pleased to do, That the Lord appeared to him the second time, as he had appeared to him in Gabaon. And the Lord said to him: I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, which thou hast made before me: I have sanctified this house, which thou hast built, to put my name there for ever, and my eyes and my heart shall be there always. And if thou wilt walk before me, as thy father walked, in simplicity of heart, and in uprightness: and wilt do all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my ordinances and my judgments, I will establish the throne of thy kingdom over Israel for ever, as I promised David thy father, saying: There shall not fail a man of thy race upon the throne of Israel.

R. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

Y. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

R. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 9:6-9

But if you and your children revolting shall turn away from following me, and will not keep my commandments, and my ceremonies, which I have set before you, but will go and worship strange gods, and adore them: I will take away Israel from the face of the land which I have given them; and the temple which I have sanctified to my name, I will cast out of my sight; and Israel shall be a proverb, and a byword among all people. And this house shall be made an example of: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, and shall hiss, and say: Why hath the Lord done thus to this land, and to this house: And they shall answer: Because they forsook the Lord their God, who brought their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and followed strange gods, and adored them, and worshipped them: therefore hath the Lord brought upon them all this evil.

Explétis autem annis vigínti postquam ædificáverat Sálomon duas domos, id est domus Dómini et domum regis (Hiram rege Tyri præbén-te Salomóni ligna cédrina et abiégna et aurum iuxta omne quod opus habúerat), tunc dedit Sálomon Hiram vigínti óppida in terra Galilææ. Et egréssus est Hiram de Tyro ut vidéret óppida, quæ déderat ei Sálomon, et non placuérunt ei, et ait: Hæcine sunt civitatés, quas dedísti mihi, frater? Et appellávit eas terram Chabul usque in diem hanc. Misit quoque Hiram ad regem Salomónem centum vigínti talénta auri.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 9:10-14

And when twenty years were ended after Solomon had built the two houses, that is, the house of the Lord, and the house of the king, (Hiram the king of Tyre furnishing Solomon with cedar trees and fir trees, and gold according to all he had need of.) then Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. And Hiram came out of Tyre, to see the towns which Solomon had given him, and they pleased him not, And he said: Are these the cities which thou hast given me, brother? And he called them the land of Chabul, unto this day. And Hiram sent to king Solomon a hundred and twenty talents of gold.

℞. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

℞. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LESSON IV

From the Book upon "The City of God" written by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo

Bk. xvii, ch. 8

Things which were then still to come were in a certain manner imagined in Solomon, who built the temple, who had that peace which his name impli-suum (Sálonon quippe pacíficus est Latíne), et in exórdio regni sui mirábiliter laudábilis fuit. Sed eádem sua persóna per umbram futúri prænuntiábat étiam ipse Christum Dóminum nostrum, non exhibébat. Unde quædam de illo ita scripta sunt, quasi de ipso ista prædicta sint, dum Scriptúra sancta étiam rebus gestis prophétans, quodámodo in eo figúram delíneat futurórum.

R. Percussit Saul mille, et David decem millia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percussit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

Y. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percussit mille, et David decem millia?

R. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percussit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

LECTIO V

Nam præter libros divínæ históriæ, ubi regnásse narrátur, Psalmus étiam septuagésimus primus título nóminis ejus inscriptus est. In quo tam multa dicúntur, quæ omníno ei conveníre non possunt, Dómino autem Christo aptíssima perspicuitáte convéniunt: ut evidénter appáreat, quod in illo figúra qualiscúmque adumbráta sit, in isto autem ipsa véritas præsentáta.

R. Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia véniant super vos, * Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

Y. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus, vísitet Dóminus: a Gélboë autem tránsseat.

R. Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

LECTIO VI

Notum est enim quibus términis regnum conclúsum fúerit Salomónis: et tamen in eo Psalmo légitur, ut ália táceam: Dominábitur a mari usque ad mare, et a flúmine usque ad términos orbis terræ; quod in Christo vidé-eth (for the name Solomon signifieth “the Peaceful One”) and who, at the beginning of his reign, was marvellously praiseworthy. By these things he foreshadowed in his own person, though he set not forth with his mouth, our Lord Christ. Thus are some things written of Solomon which are, as it were, things written concerning Christ, the Holy Scripture in this way, by giving the history of things past, prophesying all the while of things to come.

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

Y. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON V

Nor besides the books of the Divine history wherein his reign is recorded, the 71st Psalm is superscribed with his name. In this Psalm are many things which cannot suit him, but are most clearly applicable to the Lord Christ, thus showing that Solomon was, as it were, a shadowy figure cast before, of that which was afterwards revealed in very truth in the Person of Christ.

R. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

Y. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON VI

Without going into the rest, I may say that it is known what were the limits of Solomon’s dominions, and yet in that Psalm we read: “He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth.” This we see fulfilled mus impléri. A flumine quippe dominándi sumpsit exórdium, ubi baptizátus a Joánne, eódem monstránte, coepit agnósci a discipulis, qui eum non solum magístrum, verum étiam Dóminum appellavérunt.

- ℟. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.
- ℣. Fecíque tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedi tibi ab ómnibus inimícis tuis.
- ℟. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.
- ℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℟. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

LECTIO VII

Léctio sancti Evangelíi secúndum Lucam

LUC 16:1-9

In illo témpore: Dixit Jesus discipulis suis parábolam hanc: Homo quidam erat dives, qui habébat villicum, et hic diffamátus est apud illum quasi dissipásset bona ipsíus. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Hierónymi Presbýteri

Epístola 151 ad Algasium, quæst. 6, tom. 3

Si dispensátor iníqui mammónæ, dómini voce laudátur, quod de re iníqua sibi justítiam præparárit; et passus dispéndia dóminus laudat dispensatóris prudéntiam, quod advérsus dóminum quidem fraudulénter, sed pro se prudénter égerit: quanto magis Christus, qui nullum damnum sustinére potest, et pronus est ad cleméntiam, laudábit discipulos suos, si in eos qui creditúri sibi sunt, miseri-córdes fúerint?

- ℟. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ in Christ. It was from the river, that is, from His Baptism by John in Jordan, that He began His assumption of dominion, for then it was when John bare testimony unto Him that His disciples began to acknowledge Him, calling Him, not Master only, but Lord.

- ℟. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.
- ℣. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.
- ℟. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.
- ℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- ℟. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 16:1-9

At that time, Jesus spake this parable unto His disciples: There was a certain rich man, which had a steward and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods. And so on.

Homily by St. Jerome, Priest at Bethlehem

Letter 151 to Algasia

The lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely though wickedly. The lord, although himself defrauded by it, could not but praise the shrewdness of his dishonest servant, because he had cheated him with profit to himself. How much more will our Master Christ, Who is above any defrauding by us, and is Himself the Great Forgiver, praise us if we win a blessing from Him by dealing indulgently with those who are to believe in Him?

- ℟. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitúdine iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

✠. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósco: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

℟. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO VIII

Dénique post parábolam íntulit: Et ego vobis dico, Fácite vobis amícos de iníquo mam-móná. Mammóná autem non Hebræórum, sed Syrórurum lingua divítie nuncupántur, quod de iniquitáte colléctæ sint. Si ergo iní-quitas bene dispensáta vértitur in justítiam; quanto magis sermo divínus, in quo nulla est iníquitas, qui et Apóstolis créditus est, si bene fúerit dispensátus, dispensatóres suos levábit in cælum?

℟. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad álterum: * Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth: * Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

Quam ob rem séquitur: Qui fidélis est in mínimo, hoc est, in carnálibus; et in multis fidélis erit, hoc est, in spirituálibus. Qui autem in parvo iníquus est, ut non det frátribus ad uténdum, quod a Deo pro ómnibus est creátum; iste et in spirituáli pecúnia dividén-da iníquus erit, ut non pro necessitáte, sed pro persónis doctrínam Dómini dívidat. multiplicity of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger, * And done evil in thy sight.

℟. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON VIII

After this parable the Lord saith: "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness." This word "mammon" is a Syriac, not an Hebrew, word, signifying ill-gotten gains. If then even ill-gotten gains can be so used by such as have them as to profit them, how much more can they who, like the Apostles, are "stewards of the mysteries of God," those true and blameless riches, how much more can they profit themselves, (1 Cor. iv. 1,) even everlastingly, by their right use of them?

℟. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

✠. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

℟. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

Therefore it is immediately written: "He that is faithful in that which is least, that is to say, in bodily things, is faithful also in much that is to say, in spiritual things." "And he that is unjust in the least", that is to say, by not giving to his needy brother succour of those things which are needful for the body, and which God hath made for all men, such an one is unjust also in much that is to say, he will deal out spiritual things unfairly, this to one and that to another, and not according to their true spiritual needs. "If therefore," saith the Lord, "ye have not been faithful in the "use of earthly riches which pass away, "who will commit

Videns autem regína Saba omnem sapiéntiam Salomónis et domum quam ædificáverat, et cibos mensæ ejus, et habitácula servórum, et órdenes ministrántium, vestésque eórum, et pincérnas, et holocáusta quæ offerébat in domo Dómini, non habébat ultra spíritum; dixítque ad regem: Verus est sermo, quem audívi in terra mea super sermónibus tuis, et super sapiéntia tua: et non credebam narrántibus mihi, donec ipsa veni, et vidi óculis meis, et probávi quod média pars

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 10:1-3

And the queen of Saba, having heard of the fame of Solomon in the name of the Lord, came to try him with hard questions. And entering into Jerusalem with a great train, and riches, and camels that carried spices, and an immense quantity of gold, and precious stones, she came to king Solomon, and spoke to him all that she had in her heart. And Solomon informed her of all the things she proposed to him: there was not any word the king was ignorant of, and which he could not answer her ℟. Remember, O Lord, thy covenant, and say unto the destroying Angel: Stay now thine hand; * That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that thou destroy not every living soul.

℣. Even I it is that have sinned, and done evil indeed; but these sheep, what have they done? Let thine anger, I pray thee, O Lord, be turned away from thy people.

℟. That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that Thou destroy not every living soul.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 10:4-7

And when the queen of Saba saw all the wisdom of Solomon, and the house which he had built, And the meat of his table, and the apartments of his servants, and the order of his ministers, and their apparel, and the cupbearers, and the holocausts, which he offered in the house of the Lord: she had no longer any spirit in her, And she said to the king: The report is true, which I heard in my own country, Concerning thy words, and concerning thy wisdom. And I did not believe them that told me, till I came myself, and saw with my own eyes, and have found that the half hath not been told

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ψ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 10:8-11

Blessed are thy men, and blessed are thy servants, who stand before thee always, and hear thy wisdom. Blessed be the Lord thy God, whom thou hast pleased, and who hath set thee upon the throne of Israel, because the Lord hath loved Israel for ever, and hath appointed thee king, to do judgment and justice. And she gave the king a hundred and twenty talents of gold, and of spices a very great store, and precious stones: there was brought no more such abundance of spices as these which the queen of Saba gave to king Solomon. The navy also of Hiram, which brought gold from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plenty of thyine trees, and precious stones.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Rex autem Sálomon adamávit mulieres alienígenas multas, filiam quoque pharaónis, et Moabítidas, et Ammonítidas, Idumæas, et Sidónias, et Hethæas: de géntibus super quibus dixit Dóminus filiis Israë! Non ingrediémmini ad eas, neque de illis ingrediéntur ad vestras; certíssime enim avértent corda vestra ut sequámini deos eárum. His itaque copulátus est Sálomon ardentíssimo amóre: fuerúntque ei uxóres quasi regínæ septingéntæ, et concubínæ trecéntæ; et avertérunt mulieres cor ejus. Cumque jam esset senex, depravátum est cor ejus per mulieres, ut sequerétur deos aliénos; nec erat cor ejus perfectum cum Dómino Deo suo, sicut cor David patris ejus.

R. Dómine, si convérsus fúerit pópulus tuus, et oráverit ad sanctuárium tuum: * Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

Ÿ. Si peccáverit in te pópulus tuus, et convérsus égerit pœniténtiam, veniénsque oráverit in isto loco.

R. Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

LECTIO II3 Reg 11:5-8

Sed colébat Sálomon Astárthen deam Sidoniórum, et Moloch idólum Ammonitárum. Fecítque Sálomon quod non placúerat coram Dómino, et non adimplévit ut sequerétur Dóminum sicut David pater ejus. Tunc ædificávit Sálomon fanum Chamos idólo Moab in monte, qui est contra Jerúsalem, et Moloch idólo filiórum Ammon. Atque in hunc modum fecit univérsis uxóribus suis alienígenis, quæ adolébant thura, et immolábant diis suis.

LESSON I*Lesson from the first book of Kings1 Kgs 11:1-4

Of the nations concerning which the Lord said to the children of Israel: You shall not go in unto them, neither shall any of them come in to yours: for they will most certainly turn away your heart to follow their gods. And to these was Solomon joined with a most ardent love. And he had seven hundred wives as queens, and three hundred concubines: and the women turned away his heart. And when he was now old, his heart was turned away by women to follow strange gods: and his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David his father.

And king Solomon loved many strange women besides the daughter of Pharaoh, and women of Moab, and of Ammon, and of Edom, and of Sidon, and of the Hethites:

R. Lord, when thy people shall turn again to thee, and shall pray unto thee in this house; * Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

Ÿ. If thy people sin against thee, and turn again, and repent, and come and pray unto thee in this house.

R. Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

LESSON II1 Kgs 11:5-8

But Solomon worshipped Astarthe the goddess of the Sidonians, and Moloch the idol of the ammonites. And Solomon did that which was not pleasing before the Lord, and did not fully follow the Lord, as David his father. Then Solomon built a temple for Chamos the idol of Moab, on the hill that is over against Jerusalem, and for Moloch the idol of the children of Ammon. And he did in this manner for all his wives that were strangers, who burnt incense, and offered sacrifice to their gods.

Igitur irátus est Dóminus Salomóni, quod avérsa esset mens ejus a Dómino Deo Israël, qui apparúerat ei secúndo, et præcéperat de verbo hoc ne sequerétur deos aliénos: et non custodívit quæ mandávit ei Dóminus. Dixit itaque Dóminus Salomóni: Quia habuísti hoc apud te, et non custodísti pactum meum, et præcépta mea quæ mandávi tibi, disrúmpens scindam regnum tuum, et dabo illud servo tuo. Verúmtamen in diébus tuis non faciám, propter David patrem tuum.

- ℣. And as they still went on, and talked, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder, and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.
- ℞. Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 11:9-12

And the Lord was angry with Solomon, because his mind was turned away from the Lord the God of Israel, who had appeared to him twice, And had commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not follow strange gods: but he kept not the things which the Lord commanded him. The Lord therefore said to Solomon: Because thou hast done this, and hast not kept my covenant, and my precepts, which I have commanded thee, I will divide and rend thy kingdom, and will give it to thy servant. Nevertheless in thy days I will not do it, for David thy father's sake: but I will rend it out of the hand of thy son

- ℞. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.
- ℣. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.

De libro tertio Regum

3 Reg 11:26-28

Jeróboam quoque fílius Nabat Ephrathæus de Saréda servus Salomónis, cujus mater erat nómine Sarva, múlter vídua, levávit manum contra regem. Et hæc causa rebelliónis advérsum eum, quia Sálomon ædificávit Mello, et coæquávit voráginem civitatís David patris sui. Erat autem Jeróboam vir fortis et potens; vidénsque Sálomon adolescéntem bonæ índolis et indústrium, constitúerat eum præfèctum super tribúta univérsæ domus Joseph.

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitatís meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ps. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósko: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

3 Reg 11:29-31

Factum est igitur in témpore illo, ut Jeróboam egredérétur de Jerúsalem, et inveníret eum Ahías Silónites prophéta in via opértus pállio novo; erant autem duo tantum in agro. Apprehendénsque Ahías pállium suum novum, quo coopértus erat, scidit in duódecim partes, et ait ad Jeróboam: Tolle tibi decem scissúras; hæc enim dicit Dóminus Deus Israél: Ecce ego scindam regnum de manu Salomónis, et dabo tibi decem tribus.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratiónem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: * Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israél.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 11:26-28

Jeroboam also the son of Nabat an Ephrathite of Sareda, a servant of Solomon, whose mother was named Sarua, a widow woman, lifted up his hand against the king. And this is the cause of his rebellion against him, for Solomon built Mello, and filled up the breach of the city of David his father. And Jeroboam was a valiant and mighty man: and Solomon seeing him a young man ingenious and industrious, made him chief over the tributes of all the house of Joseph.

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

Ps. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 11:29-31

So it came to pass at that time, that Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, and the prophet Ahias the Silonite, clad with a new garment, found him in the way: and they two were alone in the field. And Ahias taking his new garment, wherewith he was clad, divided it into twelve parts: And he said to Jeroboam: Take to thee ten pieces: for thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: Behold I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give thee ten tribes.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 11:40-43

Solomon therefore sought to kill Jeroboam: but he arose, and fled into Egypt to Sesac the king of Egypt, and was in Egypt till the death of Solomon. And the rest of the words of Solomon, and all that he did, and his wisdom: behold they are all written in the book of the words of the days of Solomon. And the days that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel, were forty years. And Solomon slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David his father, and Roboam his son reigned in his stead.

Cum ergo illa intráret et dissimuláret se esse quæ erat, audívit Ahías sónitum pedum ejus introëuntis per óstium, et ait: Ingrédere, uxor Jeróboam: quare áliam te esse símulas? Ego autem missus sum ad te durus núntius.

R. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem millia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 14:5-6

And the Lord said to Ahias: Behold the wife of Jeroboam cometh in, to consult thee concerning her son that is sick: thus and thus shalt thou speak to her. So when she was coming in, and made as if she were another woman, Ahias heard the sound of her feet coming in at the door, and said: Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam: why dost thou feign thyself to be another? But I am sent to thee with heavy tidings.

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

ψ. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath

LECTIO II

3 Reg 14:7-9

Vade et dic Jeróboam: Hæc dicit Dóminus Deus Israëł: Quia exaltávi te de médio pópuli, et dedi te ducem super pópulum meum Israëł, et scidi regnum domus David, et dedi illud tibi, et non fuísti sicut servus meus David, qui custodívit mandáta mea, et secútus est me in toto corde suo, fáciens quod plácitum esset in conspéctu meo; sed operátus es mala super omnes, qui fuérunt ante te, et fecísti tibi deos aliénos et conflátiles, ut me ad iracúndiam provocáres; me autem projecísti post corpus tuum.

℣. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus, vísitet Dóminus: a Gélboë autem tránseat.

℞. Ubi ceciderunt fortes Israëł.

LECTIO III

3 Reg 14:10-12

Idcirco ecce ego indúcam mala super domum Jeróboam, et percútiám de Jeróboam mingéntem ad paríetem, et clausum, et novíssimum in Israëł; et mundábo relíquias domus Jeróboam, sicut mundári solet finis usque ad purum. Qui mórtui fuérunt de Jeróboam in civitáte, cómedent eos canes; qui autem mórtui fuérunt in agro, vorábunt eos aves cæli: quia Dóminus locútus est. Tu ígitur surge, et vade in domum tuam, et in ipso intróitu pedum tuórum in urbem, moriétur puer.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 14:7-9

Go, and tell Jeroboam: Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: Forasmuch as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people Israel: And rent the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it to thee, and thou hast not been as my servant David, who kept my commandments, and followed me with all his heart, doing that which was well pleasing in my sight: But hast done evil above all that were before thee, and hast made thee strange gods and molten gods, to provoke me to anger, and hast cast me behind thy back

℣. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

℞. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 14:10-12

Therefore behold I will bring evils upon the house of Jeroboam, and will cut of from Jeroboam him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the last in Israel: and I will sweep away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as dung is swept away till all be clean. Them that shall die of Jeroboam in the city, the dogs shall eat: and them that shall die in the field, the birds of the air shall devour: for the Lord hath spoken it. Arise thou therefore, and go to thy house: and when thy feet shall be entering into the city, the child shall die,

LECTIO I

De libro tértio Regum

3 Reg 18:21-22

Accédens autem Elías ad omnem pópulum ait: Usquequo claudicátis in duas partes? Si Dóminus est Deus, sequímini eum; si autem Baal, sequímini illum. Et non respóndit ei pópulus verbum. Et ait rursus Elías ad pópulum: Ego remánsi prophéta Dómini solus, prophétæ autem Baal quadringénti et quin-quagínta viri sunt.

℟. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitúdine iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

✠. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósco: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

℟. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

3 Reg 18:23-24

Dentur nobis duo boves; et illi éligant sibi bovem unum, et in frusta cædéntes ponant super ligna, ignem autem non suppónant;

LESSON I

Lesson from the first book of Kings

1 Kgs 18:21-22

And Elias coming to all the people, said: How long do you halt between two sides? if the Lord be God, follow him: but if Baal, then follow him. And the people did not answer him a word. And Elias said again to the people: I only remain a prophet of the Lord: but the prophets of Baal are four hundred and fifty men.

℟. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

℟. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

1 Kgs 18:23-24

Let two bullocks be given us, and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces and lay it upon wood, but put no fire under: and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and et ego fáciam bovem álterum et impónam super ligna, ignem autem non supponám. Invocáte nómina deórum vestrórum, et ego invocábo nomen Dómini mei; et Deus, qui exaudíerit per ignem, ipse sit Deus. Respóndens omnis pópulus ait: Optima propositio.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratióem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: *
Bénedic et sanctifica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

V. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctifica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

3 Reg 18:25-27

Dixit ergo Elías prophétis Baal: Elígite vobis bovem unum et fácite primi, quia vos plures estis, et invocáte nómina deórum vestrórum, ignémque non supponátis. Qui, cum tulíssent bovem quem déderat eis, fecérunt, et invocábant nomen Baal de mane usque ad merídiem, dicéntes: Baal, exáudi nos. Et non erat vox, nec qui respondéret. Transiliebántque altáre quod fécerant. Cumque esset jam merídiēs, illudébat illis Elías, dicens: Clamáte voce majóre.

R. Audi, Dómine, hymnum et oratióem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hódie, ut sint óculi tui apérti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

V. Réspice, Dómine, de sanctuário tuo, et de excélsō cælórum habitáculo.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

put no fire under it. Call ye on the names of your gods, and I will call on the name of my Lord: and the God that shall answer by fire, let him be God. And all the people answering said: A very good proposal.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

V. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

1 Kgs 18:25-27

Then Elias said to the prophets of Baal: Choose you one bullock and dress it first, because you are many: and call on the names of your gods, but put no fire under. And they took the bullock which he gave them, and dressed it: and they called on the name of Baal from morning even till noon, saying: O Baal, hear us. But there was no voice, nor any that answered: and they leaped over the altar that they had made. And when it was now noon, Elias jested at them, saying: Cry with a louder voice: for he is a God, and perhaps he is talking, or is in an inn, or on a journey, or perhaps he is asleep, and must be awaked.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

V. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Lectiones I–VI: de Scriptura occurrente.

LECTIO I

Incipit liber quartus Regum

4 Reg 1:1-4

Prævaricatus est autem Moab in Israël, postquam mortuus est Achab. Ceciditque Ochozias per cancellos coenaculi sui, quod habebat in Samaria, et ægrotavit; misitque nuntios dicens ad eos: Ite, consulite Beëlzebub deum Accaron, utrum vivere queam de infirmitate mea hac. Angelus autem Domini locutus est ad Elíam Thesbíten dicens: Surge et ascende in occursum nuntiorum regis Samariæ et dices ad eos: Numquid non est Deus in Israël, ut eátis ad consulendum Beëlzebub deum Accaron? Quam ob rem hæc dicit Dominus: De lectulo, super quem ascendisti, non descendes, sed morte morieris.

- ℟. Præparate corda vestra Domino, et servite illi soli: * Et liberabit vos de manibus inimicorum vestrorum.
- ℣. Convertimini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auferte deos alienos de medio vestri.
- ℟. Et liberabit vos de manibus inimicorum vestrorum.

LECTIO II

4 Reg 1:4-6

Et abiit Elías. Reversique sunt nuntii ad Ochoziam. Qui dixit eis: Quare reversi estis? At illi responderunt ei: vir occurrit nobis et dixit ad nos: Ite et revertimini ad regem qui misit vos, et dicetis ei: Hæc dicit Dominus: Numquid quia non erat Deus in Israël, mittis ut consulatur Beëlzebub deus Accaron? Idcirco de lectulo, super quem ascendisti, non descendes, sed morte morieris.

- ℟. Deus omnium exauditor est: ipse misit Angelum suum, et tulit me de ovibus Lessons I–VI: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 1:1-4

And Moab rebelled against Israel, after the death of Achab. And Ochozias fell through the lattices of his upper chamber which he had in Samaria, and was sick: and he sent messengers, saying to them: Go, consult Beelzebub, the god of Accaron, whether I shall recover of this my illness. And an angel of the Lord spoke to Elias the Thesbite, saying: Arise, and go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say to them: Is there not a God in Israel, that ye go to consult Beelzebub the god of Accaron? Wherefore thus saith the Lord: From the bed, on which thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down, but thou shalt surely die.

- ℟. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.
- ℣. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.
- ℟. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 1:4-6

And Elias went away. And the messengers turned back to Ochozias. And he said to them: Why are you come back? But they answered him: A man met us, and said to us: Go, and return to the king, that sent you, and you shall say to him: Thus saith the Lord: Is it because there was no God in Israel that thou sendest to Beelzebub the god of Accaron? Therefore thou shalt not come down from the bed, on which thou art gone up, but then shalt surely die.

- ℟. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's patris mei: * Et unxit me unctiōne misericordiæ suæ.

✠. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstia liberávit me.

℟. Et unxit me unctiōne misericordiæ suæ.

LECTIO III

4 Reg 1:7-10

Qui dixit eis: Cujus figuræ et hábitus est vir ille, qui occurrít vobis et locútus est verba hæc? At illi dixerunt: Vir pilósus et zona pellicea accinctus rénibus. Qui ait: Elías Thesbítus est. Misítque ad eum quinquagenárium príncipem et quinquaginta qui erant sub eo. Qui ascéndit ad eum sedentíque in vértice montis ait: Homo Dei, rex præcépit ut descendas. Respondénsque Elías dixit quinquagenário: Si homo Dei sum, descéndat ignis de cælo, et dévoret te et quinquaginta tuos. Descéndit itaque ignis de cælo, et devorávit eum et quinquaginta qui erant cum eo.

℟. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstia liberávit me, * Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

℟. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 1:7-10

And he said to them: What manner of man was he who met you, and spoke these words? But they said: A hairy man with a girdle of leather about his loins. And he said: It is Elias the Thesbite. And he sent to him a captain of fifty, and the fifty men that were under him. And he went up to him, and as he was sitting on the top of a hill, said to him: Man of God, the king hath commanded that thou come down. And Elias answering, said to the captain of fifty: If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee, and thy fifty. And there came down fire from heaven, and consumed him, and the fifty that were with him.

℟. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

✠. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

℟. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

℟. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LESSON IV

From the sermons of St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo 201st for the Season.

Dearly beloved brethren, in the Lessons which are now being read to us day by day, I have often warned you that we must not follow the deathful letter, to the abandonment of the quickening spirit. For it is thus that the Apostle saith: "The letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life." (2 Cor. iii. 6.) If we will understand only the plain meaning of aut prope nullam ædificatiónem de divínis lectiõibus capiémus. Illa enim ómnia quæ recitántur, typus erant et imágo futurórum. In Judæis enim figuráta, in nobis, grátia Dei donánte, compléta sunt.

R. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem millia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

Ÿ. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percússit mille, et David decem millia?

R. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

LECTIO V

Beátus enim Elías typum hábuit Dómini Salvatóris. Sicut enim Elías a Judæis persecutiónem passus est; ita et verus Elías Dóminus noster ab ipsis Judæis reprobátus est et contéptus. Elías reliquit gentem suam; et Christus deseruit synagógam. Elías ábiit in désertum; et Christus venit in mundum. Elías in déserto corvis ministrántibus pascebátur; et Christus in déserto mundi hujus Géntium fide refícitur.

R. Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia véniant super vos, * Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

Ÿ. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus, vísitet Dóminus: a Gélboë autem tránseat.

R. Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

LECTIO VI

Corvi enim illi qui beáto Elíæ, jubénte Dómino, ministrábant, Géntium pópulum figurábant. Propterea et de géntium Ecclésia dicitur: Nigra sum et formósa, filia Jerúsalem. Unde est Ecclésia nigra et formósa? Nigra per natúram, formósa per grátiam. Unde nigra? Ecce in iniquitátibus concéptus sum, et in delíctis péperit me mater mea. Unde for-the letter, we shall get little or no edification from our readings in the Divine Scriptures. All those things whereof we hear were types and images of things.

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

Ÿ. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON V

The Blessed Elias was a type of the Lord our Saviour. Just as Elias was rejected by the Jews, so was the true Elias, even our Lord, rejected and despised by the same Jews. Elias went away out of his own country, and Christ hath left the synagogue. Elias went into the desert, and Christ hath come into the world. Elias, when he was in the desert, was fed by ravens, and Christ in the desert of this world is comforted by the faith of the Gentiles.

R. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

Ÿ. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON VI

For the ravens which, at the command of the Lord, ministered unto Elias, were a type of the flock of Gentiles. Wherefore also it is said for the Gentile Church: "I am black, but comely, O daughters of Jerusalem!" (Cant. i. 4.) Why is the Church black but comely? She is black by nature, but comely by grace. Why is she black by nature? Because she must needs own: "Behold, I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me." (Ps. 1. 7.)

mósa? Aspérget me hyssópo, et mundábor: lavábis me, et super nivem dealbábor.

R. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dóminus, et pósui te páscere gregem pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Ÿ. Fecíque tibi nomen grande, juxta nomen magnórum, qui sunt in terra: et réquiem dedi tibi ab ómnibus inimícis tuis.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

Quod a flente Dómino illa Jerosolymórum subvérso describitur, quæ a Vespasiáno et Tito Románis princípibus facta est, nullus qui históriam eversionis ejúsdem legit, ignórat. R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

LUKE 19:41-17

At that time: When Jesus was come near to Jerusalem, He beheld the city, and wept over it, saying: If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory the Great.

39 on the Gospels.

No man that hath read the history of the destruction of Jerusalem by the Roman Princes Vespasian and Titus, can be ignorant that it was of that destruction that the Lord spoke when He wept over the ruin of the city. It is these Princes that are pointed at where it is said "For the days shall come upon thee that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee." The truth of what followeth: "They shall not leave in thee one stone upon another" is even now fulfilled in the change of site of the city, which hath been re-built round about that place without the gates, where the Lord was crucified, while the ancient city hath been, as I am told, rooted up from the very foundations.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malígnum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infrúnito ne tradas me, Dómine.

✠. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

℟. Et ánimo irreverénti et infrúnito ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO VIII

Cui ex qua culpa eversiónis suæ pœna fúerit illáta, subjúngitur: Eo quod non cognóveris tempus visitatiónis tuæ. Creátor quippe hóminum per incarnatiónis suæ mystérium hanc visitáre dignátus est; sed ipsa timóris et amóris ílius recordáta non est. Unde étiam per prophétam in increpatióné cordis humáni aves cæli ad testimónium deducúntur, dum dícitur: Milvus in cælo cognóvit tempus suum, turtur et hirúndo et cicónia custodiérunt tempus advéntus sui; pópulus autem meus non cognóvit judícium Dómini.

℟. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad álterum: * Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth: * Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

✠. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo: Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi tres unum sunt.

℟. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

℟. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

Flevit etenim prius Redémptor ruínam pérfidæ civitátis, quam ipsa sibi cívitas non cognoscébat esse ventúram. Cui a flente Dómino recte dícitur: Quia si cognovísset, et tu; subáudi, fleres; quæ modo, quæ nescis quod ímminet, exsúltas. Unde et súbditur: Et quidem in hac die tua, quæ ad pacem tibi. Cum but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

✠. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

℟. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON VIII

What the sin of Jerusalem was which brought upon her the punishment of this destruction, we find written after: "Because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation." The Maker of men, through the mystery of His Incarnation, was pleased to visit her, but she remembered not to fear and to love Him. Hence also the Prophet Jeremiah, rebuking the hardness of man's heart, calleth the birds of the air to testify against it, saying "The stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed time and the turtle, and the swallow, and the crane, observe the time of their coming but my people know not the judgment of the Lord." (viii. 7.)

℟. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

✠. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

℟. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

The Saviour wept over the ruin of the unfaithful city, while she herself as yet knew not that it was coming. If thou hadst known, said He, even thou and we may understand Him to have meant thou wouldest thyself have wept, in place of making merry as thou now dost, knowing not what hangeth over thee. And hence He saith farther:

LECTIO I

De libro quarto Regum

4 Reg 2:5-7

Accessérunt filii prophetárum qui erant in Jéricho, ad Eliséus, et dixerunt ei: Numquid nosti quia Dóminus hódie tollet dómimum tuum a te? Et ait: Et ego novi: siléte. Dixit autem ei Elías: Sede hic, quia Dóminus misit me usque ad Jordánem. Qui ait: Vivit Dóminus, et vivit ánima tua, quia non derelínquam te. Iérunt ígitur ambo páriter. Et quinquagínta viri de filiis prophetárum secúti sunt eos, qui et stetérunt e contra longē; illi autem ambo stabant super Jordánem.

R. Recordáre, Dómine, testaménti tui, et dic Angelo percutiénti: Cesset jam manus tua, * Ut non desolétur terra, et ne perdas omnem ánimam vivam.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 2:5-7

The sons of the prophets that were at Jericho, came to Eliseus, and said to him: Dost thou know that this day the Lord will take away thy master from thee? And he said: I also know it: hold your peace. And Elias said to him: Stay here, because the Lord hath sent me as far as the Jordan. And he said: As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee; and they two went on together, And fifty men of the sons of the prophets followed them, and stood in sight at a distance: but they two stood by the Jordan.

R. Remember, O Lord, thy covenant, and say unto the destroying Angel: Stay now thine hand; * That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that thou destroy not every living soul.

Ψ. Even I it is that have sinned, and done evil indeed; but these sheep, what have they done? Let thine anger, I pray thee, O Lord, be turned away from thy people.

R. That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that Thou destroy not every living soul.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 2:8-10

And Elias took his mantle and folded it together, and struck the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, and they both passed over on dry ground. And when they were gone over, Elias said to Eliseus: Ask what thou wilt have me to do for thee, before I be taken away from thee. And Eliseus said: I beseech thee that in me may be thy

Ψ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 2:11-13

And as they went on, walking and talking together, behold a fiery chariot, and fiery horses parted them both asunder: and Elias went up by a whirlwind into heaven. And Eliseus saw him, and cried: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the driver thereof. And he saw him no more: and he took hold of his own garments, and rent them in two pieces. And he took up the mantle of Elias, that fell from him: and going back, he stood upon the bank of the Jordan,

LESSON I*Lesson from the second book of Kings2 Kgs 3:6-9

And king Joram went out that day from Samaria, and mustered all Israel. And he sent to Josaphat king of Juda, saying: The king of Moab is revolted from me, come with me against him to battle. And he answered: I will come up: he that is mine, is thine: my people, thy people: and my horses, thy horses. And he said: Which way shall we go up? But he answered: By the desert of Edom. So the king of Israel, and the king of Juda, and the king of Edom went, and they fetched a compass of seven days' journey, and there was no water for the army, and for the beasts, that followed them.

R. Lord, when thy people shall turn again to thee, and shall pray unto thee in this house; * Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 3:13-18

And the king of Israel said to him: Why hath the Lord gathered together these three kings, to deliver them into the hands of Moab? And Eliseus said to him: As the Lord of hosts liveth, in whose sight I stand, if I did not reverence the face of Josaphat king of Juda, I would not have hearkened to thee, nor looked on thee. But now bring me hither a minstrel. And when the minstrel played, the hand of the Lord came upon him, and he said: Thus saith the Lord: Make the channel of this torrent full of ditches. For thus saith the Lord: You shall not see wind, nor rain: and yet this channel shall be filled with waters, and you shall drink, you and your families, and your beasts. And this is a small thing in the sight of the Lord: moreover he will deliver also Moab into your hands.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 4:1-4

Now a certain woman of the wives of the prophets cried to Eliseus, saying: thy servant my husband is dead, and thou knowest that thy servant was one that feared God, and behold the creditor is come to take away my two sons to serve him. And Eliseus said to her: What wilt thou have me to do for thee? Tell me, what hast thou in thy house? And she answered: I thy handmaid have nothing in my house but a little oil, to anoint me. And he said to her: Go, borrow of all thy neighbours empty vessels not a few. And go in, and shut thy door, when thou art within, and thy sons: and pour out thereof into all those vessels: and when they are full take them away

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger, * And done evil in thy sight.

Ÿ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

4 Reg 8:4-6

Rex autem loquebátur cum Giézi púero vi-ri Dei dicens: Narra mihi ómnia magnália, quæ fecit Eliséus. Cumque ille narráret regi quómodo mórtuum suscitásset, appáruit múlíer, cujus vivificáverat fílium, clamans ad regem pro domo sua, et pro agris suis. Dixítque Giézi: Dómine mi rex, hæc est múlíer, et hic est fílius ejus quem suscitávit Eliséus. Et interrogávit rex mulierem, quæ narrávit ei, dedítque ei rex eunúchum unum dicens: Restítue ei ómnia quæ sua sunt, et unívérso réditus agrórum, a die qua relíquit terram usque ad præsens.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 8:1-3

And Eliseus spoke to the woman, whose son he had restored to life, saying: Arise, and go thou and thy household, and sojourn wheresoever thou canst find: for the Lord hath exiled a famine, and it shall come upon the land seven years. And she arose, and did according to the word of the man of God: and going with her household, she sojourned in the land of the Philistines many days. And when the seven years were ended, the woman returned out of the land of the Philistines, and she went forth to speak to the king for her house, and for her lands.

℟. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

℣. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

℟. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 8:4-6

And the king talked with Giezi, the servant of the man of God, saying: Tell me all the great things that Eliseus hath done. And when he was telling the king how he had raised one dead to life, the woman appeared, whose son he had restored to life, crying to the king for her house, and her lands. And Giezi said: My lord O king, this is the woman, and this is her son, whom Eliseus raised to life. And the king asked the woman: and she told him. And the king appointed her an eunuch, saying: Restore her all that is hers, and all the revenues of the lands, from the day that she left the land, to this present.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 8:7-10

Eliseus also came to Damascus, and Benadad king of Syria was sick: and they told him, saying: The man of God is come hither. And the king said to Hazael: Take with thee presents, and go to meet the man of God, and consult the Lord by him, saying: Can I recover of this my illness? And Hazael went to meet him, taking with him presents, and all the good things of Damascus, the burdens of forty camels. And when he stood before him, he said: thy son Benadad the king of Syria hath sent me to thee, saying: Can I recover of this my illness? And Eliseus said to him: Go tell him: Thou shalt recover: but the Lord hath shown me that he shall surely die.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 9:1-5

And Eliseus the prophet called one of the sons of the prophets, slid said to him: Gird up thy loins, and take this little bottle of oil in thy hand, and go to Ramoth Galaad. And when thou art come thither, thou shalt see Jehu the son of Josaphat the son of Namsi: and going in thou shalt make him rise up from amongst his brethren, and carry him into an inner chamber. Then taking the little bottle of oil, thou shalt pour it on his head, and shalt say: Thus saith the Lord: I have anointed thee king over Israel. And thou shalt open the door and flee, and shalt not stay there. So the young man, the servant of the prophet, went awry to Ramoth Galaad, And went in thither: and behold the captains of the army were sitting; and he said: I have a word to thee, O prince. And Jehu said: Unto whom of us all? And he said: To thee, O prince.

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

LECTIO I

De libro quarto Regum

4 Reg 9:29-34

Anno undécimo Joram filii Achab regnâvit Ochozias super Judam, venítque Jehu in Jézrahel. Porro Jézabel, intróitu ejus audíto, depínxit óculos suos stíbio et ornávit caput suum et respéxit per fenéstram ingrediéntem Jehu per portam et ait: Numquid pax potest esse Zambri, qui interfécit dóminum suum? Levávitque Jehu fáciem suam ad fenéstram et ait: Quæ est ista? Et inclinavérunt se ad eum duo vel tres eunúchi. At ille dixit eis: Præcipítate eam deórsum; et præcipitavérunt eam, aspersúsque est sángine páries, et equórum úngulæ conculcavérunt eam. Cumque introgréssus esset ut coméderet biberétque, ait: Ite et vidéte maledíctam illam et sepelíte eam, quia fília regis est.

℟. Præparáte corda vestra Dómino, et servíte illi soli: * Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 9:29-34

In the eleventh year of Joram the son of Achab, Ochozias reigned over Juda, And Jehu came into Jezrahel. But Jezabel hearing of his coming in, painted her face with stibic stone, and adorned her head, and looked out of a window At Jehu coming in at the gate, and said: Can there be peace for Zambri, that hath killed his master? And Jehu lifted up his face to the window, and said: Who is this? And two or three eunuchs bowed down to him. And he said to them: Throw her down headlong: and they threw her down, and the wall was sprinkled with her blood, and the hoofs of the horses trod upon her. And when he was come in, to eat, and to drink, he said: Go, and see after that cursed woman, and bury her: because she is a king's daughter.

℟. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

℣. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

℟. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 9:35-37; 10:1-3

And when they went to bury her, they found nothing but the skull, and the feet, and the extremities of her hands. And coming back they told him. And Jehu said: It is the word of the Lord, which he spoke by his servant Elias the Thesbite, saying: In the field of Jezrahel the dogs shall eat the flesh of Jezabel, And the flesh of Jezabel shall be as dung upon the face of the earth in the field of Jezrahel, so that they who pass by shall say: Is this that same Jezabel? LECTIO III

4 Reg 10:4-7

Timuerunt illi vehementer et dixerunt: Ecce duo reges non poterunt stare coram eo, et quomodo nos valerimus resistere? Miserunt ergo praepositi domus et praefecti civitatis et majores natu et nutricii ad Jehu dicentes: Servi tui sumus: quaecumque jussis faciemus, nec constituemus nobis regem: quaecumque tibi placent, fac. Rescripsit autem eis litteras secundo dicens: Si mei estis et obeditis mihi, tollite capita filiorum domini vestri et venite ad me hac eadem hora cras in Jezrahel. Porro filii regis, septuaginta viri, apud optimates civitatis nutriebantur. Cumque venissent litterae ad eos, tulerunt filios regis et occiderunt septuaginta viros et posuerunt capita eorum in cophinis et miserunt ad eum in Jezrahel.

R. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's sheep, and * Anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

V. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear

R. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 10:4-7

But they were exceedingly afraid, and said: Behold two kings could not stand before him, and how shall we be able to resist? Therefore the overseers of the house, and the rulers of the city, and the ancients, and the tutors sent to Jehu, saying: We are thy servants, whatsoever thou shalt command us we will do, neither will we make us a king: do thou all that pleaseth thee. And he wrote letters the second time to them, saying: If you be mine, and will obey me, take the heads of the sons of your master, and come to me to Jezrahel by tomorrow this time. Now the king's sons, being seventy men, were brought up with the chief men of the city. And when the letters came to them, they took the king's sons, and slew seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets, and sent them to him to Jezrahel.

R. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

V. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

R. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

LECTIO IV

Sermo sancti Joánnis Chrysóstomi

Homilia 25 in Epístola ad Romanos

Non putémus nos excusatiónem habitúros, si quando delictórum sócios invenérimus: nam istud, supplícium magis augébit. Quandóquidem et serpens magis púnitus est quam múlter, quemádmódum et múlter plus quam vir. Et Jézabel majóres póenas dedit, quam Achab víneæ raptor; ipsa quippe univérsum istud negótium texúerat, regíque lapsus occasiódinem déderat. Igitur et tu quoque, si réliquis perditionis causa fúeris, gravióra patiéris quam qui per te subvérsi sunt. Neque enim peccáre tantum in se perditionis habet, quantum quod réliqui ad peccándum inducúntur.

R. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem míllia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philistháum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

R. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philistháum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

LECTIO V

Itaque, si quando peccántes vidérimus, non solum non impellámus, sed et extrahámus ex ipso malítiæ bátrathro, ne et aliénæ perditionis póenas demus. Recordémur quoque perpétuo terríbilis illús tribunális, flúminis ígnei, vinculórum insolubílium, profundárum tenebrárum, stridórum déntium, venenosíque vermis. Sed dices: Benígnus est Deus. R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom,
Patriarch of Constantinople.*

Hom. 25 on the Epistle to the Romans.

Let us not dream that we are ourselves to be held less guilty, when we find that we have not been alone in sin. On the contrary, such fellowship addeth to our punishment. The serpent was more heavily punished than Eve, and Eve than Adam, and Jezebel suffered more than Ahab, who took the vineyard of Naboth. She it had been that planned the whole matter, and opened the way for her husband's crime. Even so thou also, who shalt have caused another's perdition, shalt suffer more grievously than shall they, whom thou hast ruined. Since, for a man to commit sin himself is less wicked than to lead others into sin.

R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

Ÿ. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON V

If, therefore, we should see others sinning, let us not only not help them, but let us do what in us lieth to draw them out of the bottomless pit of destruction, lest we should suffer as accomplices in their trespass. Let our memory never forget that right awful judgment-seat, the river of fire, the chains that can never be unlocked, the darkness that cannot be pierced, the sound of teeth gnashing, the deadly worm. But thou sayest God is good. Are then all these things but idle words? Is there no punishment for the rich man which giveth no

They that have denied to Christ the necessities of life, are they not to depart from Him into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels? (Matth. xxv. 41-46.) The man that cometh in to the marriage-supper, not having a wedding garment, shall he, or shall he not, be bound hand and foot, and taken away, and cast into outer darkness? (Matth. xxii. 11-13.) The servant that hath no compassion on his fellow-servant, which oweth him an hundred pence, shall he, or shall he not, be delivered to the tormentors? (Matth. xviii. 23-35.) LESSON VI

But these are perhaps only threats on God's part, no doubt, quoth thou. I ask thee: How darest thou say such a thing out loud, and deliver this judgment from thine own imagining? For sooth, I can prove to thee, from the things which God hath done, that thou art wrong. If thou wilt not believe for things to come, at least believe for things past. Of them at least it cannot be said that they are nought but threats and mere words, for they have happened, and actually been realised in fact. Who was He which brought in a great flood, until the whole land was standing water, and our whole race perished, save eight persons? Who was He which rained upon Sodom brimstone and fire out of heaven? (Gen. xix. 24.) Who was He which overthrew all the host of Egypt in the Red Sea? (Ex. xiv. 27.) Who was He which sent out a fire and consumed them that were of the faction of Abiram? (Num. xvi. 35.) Who was He which sent a pestilence upon Israel, because David had sinned, and, from the morning even to the time appointed, there died of the people seventy thou-

Luc 18:9-14

In illo témpore: Dixit Jesus ad quosdam, qui in se confidébant tamquam justi et aspernábantur céteros, parábolam ístam: Duo hómines ascendérunt in templum ut orárent: unus pharisæus, et alter publicánus. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Augustíni Epíscoli

Sermo 36 de Verbis Domini, circa medium

Díceret saltem pharisæus: Non sum sicut multi hómines. Quid est, céteri hómines, nisi omnes præter ipsum? Ego, inquit, justus sum, céteri peccatóres. Non sum sicut céteri hómines, injústi, raptóres, adúlteri. Et ecce tibi ex vicíno publicáno majóris tumóris oc-cásio: Sicut, inquit, publicánus iste. Ego, inquit, solus sum: iste de céteris est. Non sum, inquit, talis, qualis iste, per justítias meas, quibus iníquus non sum.

- R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu maligno: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malignum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me sand men? (2 Kgs xxiv.) Was it not God, and none other, Which brought upon them all these things, and more also?

- R. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.
- V. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.
- R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.
- V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke
Luke 18:9-14

At that time: Jesus spoke this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others: Two men went up into the Temple to pray, the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo

Serm 36 of the Word of the Lord

The Pharisee might at least have said: "I am not as many men are." But what meaneth "other men"? All other men except himself. "I," said he, "am righteous; others are sinners." "I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers," and then he took occasion, from the neighborhood of the publican, to plume himself "or even," quoth he, "as this publican." "I am alone," he thought, "that publican" is one of the others. Mine own righteousness maketh the gulf between me and the wicked, such as he is.

- R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

✠. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

✠. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO VIII

nóluit Deum rogáre, sed se laudáre. Parum est, non Deum rogáre, sed se laudáre; insuper et rogánti insultáre. Publicánus autem de longínquo stabat et Deo tamen ipse ap-propinquábat: cordis consciéntia eum remo-vébat, píetas applicábat. Publicánus autem de longínquo stabat, sed Dóminus eum de propínquo attendébat.

✠. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad

✠. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

✠. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

✠. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

✠. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON VIII

*"I fast twice in the week; I give tithes of all that I possess." If we look in his prayer to find what he went to the Temple to pray to God for, we shall find nothing. He went up to pray, but his prayer was not a request of anything from God, but a glorification of himself. It was little enough not to pray to God, but he also glorified himself and despised his neighbour. But the publican stood afar off and yet drew nigh to God. Self-knowledge bade him keep at a distance, but his earnestness made him close.
The publican stood afar off, but the Lord was at hand to hear him.*

✠. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

✠. There are Three That bear record in heaven:
the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

✠. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

✠. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

Excelsus enim Dóminus, et humília réspicit; excélsos autem, qualis erat ille pharisæus, a longe cognóscit. Excélsa quidem Deus a longe cognóscit, sed non ignóscit. Adhuc audi humilitátem publicáni. Parum est, quia de longínquo stabat: nec óculos suos ad cælum levábat: ut aspicerétur, non aspiciébat; respícere sursum non audébat: premébat consciéntia, spes sublevábat. Adhuc audi: Percutiébat pectus suum. Poenas a se ipso exigébat; proptérea Dóminus confiténti parcébat. Percutiébat pectus suum, dicens: Dómine, propítius esto mihi peccatóri. Ecce qui rogat. Quid miráris, si Deus ignóscit, quando ipse agnóscit?

Te Deum

“Though the Lord be high, yet hath He respect unto the lowly” but the proud, such as was this Pharisee, “He knoweth afar off.” (Ps. cxxxvii. 6.) He knoweth the proud, all the same, but they are afar off from Him. Consider now the lowliness of the publican. It was not only that he stood afar off, but “he would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven”. He looked carefully, lest he should look up, he dared not to lift up his eyes unto heaven. Self-knowledge kept him down, though hope raised him up. Consider again, how that he “smote upon his breast.” He afflicted himself, and therefore the Lord had compassion upon his acknowledgment of guilt.” He smote upon his breast, saying Lord, be merciful to me a sinner.” Hearken here to a prayer and wonderest thou that when the sinner remembereth, God forgetteth.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 12:1-3

In the seventh year of Jehu Joas began to reign: and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Sebia of Bersabee. And Joas did that which was right before the Lord all the days that Joiada the priest taught him. But yet he took not away the high places: for the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places.

- R. Lord, when thy people shall turn again to thee, and shall pray unto thee in this house; * Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.
- Ÿ. If thy people sin against thee, and turn again, and repent, and come and pray unto thee in this house.

℟. Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

Igitur usque ad vigésimum tértium annum regis Joas, non instauravérunt sacerdótes sartatécta templi. Vocavítque rex Joas Jójadam pontíficem et sacerdótes, dicens eis: Quare sartatécta non instaurátis templi? Nolíte ergo ámplius accípere pecúniā juxta órđinem vestrum; sed ad instauratiónem templi réd-dite eam. Prohibitíque sunt sacerdótes ultra accípere pecúniā a pópulo, et instauráre sartatécta domus.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 12:4-5

And Joas said to the priests: O All the money of the sanctified things, which is brought into the temple of the Lord by those that pass, which is offered for the price of a soul, and which of their own accord, and of their own free heart they bring into the temple of the Lord: Let the priests take it according to their order, and repair the house, wheresoever they shall see any thing that wanteth repairing.

℟. And it came to pass when the Lord would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind * Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

℣. And as they still went on, and talked, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder, and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

℟. Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 12:6-8

Now till the three and twentieth year of king Joas, the priests did not make the repairs of the temple. And king Joas called Joiada the high priest and the priests, saying to them: Why do you not repair the temple? Take you therefore money no more according to your order, but restore it for the repairing of the temple. And the priests were forbidden to take any more money of the people, and to make the repairs of the house.

℟. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

4 Reg 17:6-9

Anno autem nono Osée, cepit rex Assyriorum Samariam et transtulit Israël in Assyrios: posuitque eos in Hala et in Habor juxta fluvium Gozan, in civitatibus Medorum. Factum est enim, cum peccassent filii Israël Dómino Deo suo, qui eduxerat eos de terra Ægypti, de manu pharaónis regis Ægypti, coluerunt deos alienos. LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 17:6-9

And in the ninth year of Osee, the king of the Assyrians took Samaria, and carried Israel away to Assyria: and he placed them in Hala and Habor by the river of Gozan, in the cities of the Medes. For so it was that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and they worshipped strange gods. And they walked according to the way of the nations which the Lord had destroyed in the sight of the children of Israel and of the kings of Israel: because they had done in like manner. And the children of Israel offended the Lord their God with things that were not right: and built them high places in all their cities from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.

℟. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

℣. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

℟. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 17:13-15

And the Lord testified to them in Israel and in Juda by the hand of all the prophets and seers, saying: Return from your wicked ways, and keep my precepts, and ceremonies, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers: and as I have sent to you in the hand of my servants the prophets. And they hearkened not, but hardened their necks like to the neck of their fathers, who would not obey the Lord their God. And they rejected his ordinances and the covenant that he made with their fathers, and the testimonies which he testified against them: and they followed vanities, and acted vainly: and they followed the nations that quibus contestátus est eos, secutíque sunt vanitátes, et vane egérunt.

LECTIO III

4 Reg 17:18-21

Iratúsque est Dóminus vehementer Israéli, et ábstulit eos a conspéctu suo; et non remánsit nisi tribus Juda tantúmmodo. Sed nec ipse Juda custodívit mandáta Dómini Dei sui: verum ambulávit in erróribus Israël, quos operátus fuerat. Projecítque Dóminus omne semen Israël, et afflíxit eos, et trádidit eos in manu diripiéntium, donec proíceret eos a fácie sua: ex eo jam témpore, quo scissus est Israël a domo David, et constituérunt sibi regem Jeróboam fílium Nabat.

Ÿ. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear

R. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 17:18-21

And the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them from his sight, and there remained only the tribe of Juda. But neither did Juda itself keep the commandments of the Lord their God: but they walked in the errors of Israel, which they had wrought. And the Lord cast off all the seed of Israel, and afflicted them and delivered them into the hand of spoilers, till he cast them away from his face: Even from that time, when Israel was rent from the house of David, and made Jeroboam son of Nabat their king: for Jeroboam separated Israel from the Lord, and made them commit a great sin.

R. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

Ÿ. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LECTIO I

De libro quarto Regum

4 Reg 17:21-23

Separávit Jeróboam Israël a Dómino, et peccáre eos fecit peccátum magnum. Et ambuláverunt filii Israël in univérsis peccátis Jeróboam quæ fécerat, et non recessérunt ab eis, úsquequo Dóminus auféret Israël a fácie sua, sicut locútus fúerat in manu ómnium servórum suórum prophetárum; translátusque est Israël de terra sua in Assýrios, usque in diem hanc.

- R. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem míllia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.
- Ÿ. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percússit mille, et David decem míllia?
- R. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

LECTIO II

4 Reg 17:24-25

Addúxit autem rex Assyriórum de Babylóne et de Cutha et de Avah et de Emath et de Sephárvaim, et collocávit eos in civitatibus Samariæ pro fíliis Israël: qui possederunt Samariám, et habitáverunt in úrbibus ejus. Cumque ibi habitáre coépissent, non timébant Dóminum, et immísit in eos Dóminus leónes, qui interficiébant eos.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 17:21-23

Jeroboam separated Israel from the Lord, and made them commit a great sin. And the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam, which he had done: and they departed not from them, Till the Lord removed Israel from his face, as he had spoken in the hand of all his servants the prophets: and Israel was carried away out of their land to Assyria, unto this day.

- R. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.
- Ÿ. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?
- R. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 17:24-25

And the king of the Assyrians brought people from Babylon, and from Cutha, and from Avah, and from Emath, and from Sepharvaim: and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel: and they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities thereof. And when they began to dwell there, they feared not the Lord: and the Lord sent lions among them, which killed them.

- R. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.
- Ÿ. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa
- R. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LECTIO III

4 Reg 17:26-27

Nuntiátumque est regi Assyriórum et dictum: gentes, quas transtulísti, et habitáre fecísti in civitatibus Samariæ, ignórant legítima Dei terræ: et immísit in eos Dóminus leónes, et ecce interficiunt eos, eo quod ignórent ritum Dei terræ. Præcépit autem rex Assyriórum, dicens: Dúcite illuc unum de sacerdotibus, quos inde captívos adduxístis; et vadat, et hábitet cum eis: et dóceat eos legítima Dei terræ.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 17:26-27

And it was told the king of the Assyrians, and it was said: The nations which thou hast removed, and made to dwell in the cities of Samaria, know not the ordinances of the God of the land: and the Lord hath sent lions among them: and behold they kill them, because they know not the manner of the God of the land. And the king of the Assyrians commanded, saying: Carry thither one of the priests whom you brought from thence captive, and let him go, and dwell with them: and let him teach them the ordinances of the God of the land.

- R. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.
- ψ. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.
- R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.
- ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 18:1-5

In the third year of Osee the son of Ela king of Israel, reigned Ezechias the son of Achaz king of Juda. He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned nine and twenty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Abi the daughter of Zacharias. And he did that which was good before the Lord, according to all that David his father had done. He destroyed the high places, and broke the statues in pieces, and

ψ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósko: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

4 Reg 18:5-8

Itaque post eum non fuit símilis ei de cunctis régibus Juda, sed neque in his qui ante eum fuérunt. Et adhésit Dómino, et non recéssit a vestígiis ejus, fecítque mandáta ejus, quæ præcéperat Dóminus Móysi. Unde et erat Dóminus cum eo, et in cunctis ad quæ procedébat, sapiénter se agébat. Rebellávit quoque contra regem Assyriórum, et non servívit ei. Ipse percússit Philisthæos usque ad Gazam, et omnes téminos eórum, a turre custódum usque ad civitátem munítam.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratiónem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: * Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

ψ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

4 Reg 18:9-12

Anno quarto regis Ezechíæ, qui erat annus séptimus Osée filii Ela regis Israël, ascéndit Salmánasar rex Assyriórum in Samaríam, et oppugnávit eam, et cepit, nam post annos tres, anno sexto Ezechíæ, id est nono anno cut down the groves, and broke the brazen serpent, which Moses had made: for till that time the children of Israel burnt incense to it: and he called its name Nohestan. He trusted in the Lord the God of Israel:

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger; * And done evil in thy sight.

ψ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 18:5-8

so that after him there was none like him among all the kings of Juda, nor any of them that were before him: And he stuck to the Lord, and departed not from his steps, but kept his commandments, which the Lord commanded Moses. Wherefore the Lord also was with him, and in all things, to which he went forth, he behaved himself wisely. And he rebelled against the king of the Assyrians, and served him not. He smote the Philistines as far as Gaza, and all their borders, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

ψ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 18:9-12

In the fourth year of king Ezechias, which was the seventh year of Osee the son of Ela king of Israel, Salmanasar king of the Assyrians came up to Samaria, and besieged it, And took it. For after three years, in the sixth year of Ezechias, that is,

Osee regis Israël, capta est Samaría. Et transtulit rex Assyriorum Israël in Assyrios, collocavitque eos in Hala et in Habor fluvii Gozan, in civitatibus Medorum, quia non audierunt vocem Domini Dei sui, sed prætergressi sunt pactum ejus; omnia, quæ præceperat Moyses servus Domini, non audierunt, neque fecerunt.

R. Audi, Domine, hymnum et orationem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hodie, ut sint oculi tui aperti, et aures tuæ inténtæ, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ps. Réspice, Domine, de sanctuário tuo, et de excélsio cælórum habitáculo.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ps. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

in the ninth year of Osee king of Israel, Samaria was taken: And the king of the Assyrians carried away Israel into Assyria, and placed them in Hale, and in Habor by the rivers of Gozan in the cities of the Medes: Because they hearkened not to the voice of the Lord their God, but transgressed his covenant: all that Moses the servant of the Lord commanded, they would not hear nor do.

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Ps. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Ps. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

LECTIO I

De libro quarto Regum

4 Reg 20:1-3

In diébus illis ægrotáret Ezechías usque ad mortem, et venit ad eum Isaías fílius Amos prophéta dixítque ei: Hæc dicit Dóminus Deus: Præcipe dómui tuæ, moriérís enim tu et non vives. Qui convértit fáciem suam ad parietem et orávit Dóminum, dicens: Obsecro, Dómine: meménto, quæso, quómodo ambuláverim coram te in veritáte et in corde perfécto et quod plácitum est coram te fécerim. Flevit itaque Ezechías fletu magno.

R. Præparáte corda vestra Dómino, et servíte illi soli: * Et liberábit vos de manibus inimicórum vestrórum.

Ps. Convertímini ad eum in toto corde vestro, et auférte deos aliénos de médio vestri.

Lessons I–VI: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 20:1-3

In those days Ezechias was sick unto death: and Isaiahs the son of Amos the prophet came and said to him: Thus saith the Lord God: Give charge concerning thy house, for thou shalt die, and not live. And he turned his face to the wall, and prayed to the Lord, saying: I beseech thee, O Lord, remember how I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is pleasing before thee. And Ezechias wept with much weeping.

R. Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him Only * And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

Ps. Return unto Him with all your hearts, and put away the strange gods from among you.

R. And He will deliver you out of the hand of your enemies.

R. Et liberábit vos de mánibus inimicórum vestrórum.

LECTIO II

4 Reg 20:4-7

Et ántequam egrederétur Isaías médiam partem átrii, factus est sermo Dómini ad eum, dicens: Revértere et dic Ezechíæ duci pó-puli mei: Hæc dicit Dóminus Deus David patris tui: Audívi oratiónem tuam et vidi lá-crimas tuas et ecce sanávi te: die tértio ascén-des templum Dómini, et addam diébus tuis quíndecim annos; sed et de manu regis Assy-riórúrum liberábo te et civitátem hanc et pró-tegam urbem istam propter me et propter David servum meum. Dixítque Isaías: Affér-te massam ficórum. Quam cum attulís-sent et posuís-sent super ulcus ejus, curátus est.

R. Deus ómnium exaudítor est: ipse misit Angelum suum, et tulit me de óvibus patris mei: * Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.

Ÿ. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstiæ liberávit me.

R. Et unxit me unctióne misericórdiæ suæ.

LECTIO III

4 Reg 20:8-11

Díxerat autem Ezechías ad Isaías: Quod erit signum quia Dóminus me sanábit, et quia ascensúrus sum die tértia templum Dómini? Cui ait Isaías: Hoc erit signum a Dómino, quod factúrus sit Dóminus sermónem quem locútus est: vis ut ascéndat umbra decem lí-neis, an ut revertátur tótidem grádibus? Et ait Ezechías: Fácile est umbram créscere de-cem líneis, nec hoc volo ut fiat; sed ut rever-tátur retrórsum decem grádibus. Invocávit itaque Isaías prophéta Dóminum, et redúxit umbram per líneas, quibus jam descénderat in horológio Achaz, retrórsum decem grádi-bus.

R. Dóminus, qui erípuit me de ore leónis, et de manu béstiæ liberávit me, * Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 20:4-7

And before Isaías was gone out of the middle of the court, the word of the Lord came to him, say-ing: Go back, and tell Ezechias the captain of my people: Thus saith the Lord the God of David thy father: I have heard thy prayer, and I have seen thy tears: and behold I have healed thee; on the third day thou shalt go up to the temple of the Lord. And I will add to thy days fifteen years: and I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians, and I will protect this city for my own sake, and for David my servant's sake. And Isaías said: Bring me a lump of figs. And when they had brought it, and laid it upon his boil. he was healed.

R. God, Which heareth all, even He sent His Angel, and took me from keeping my father's sheep, and * Anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

Ÿ. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear

R. And anointed me with the oil of His mercy.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 20:8-11

And Ezechias had said to Isaías: What shall be the sign that the Lord will heal me, and that I shall go up to the temple of the Lord the third day? And Isaías said to him: This shall be the sign from the Lord, that the Lord will do the word which he hath spoken: Wilt thou that the shadow go forward ten lines, or that it go back so many degrees? And Ezechias said: It is an easy matter for the shadow to go forward ten lines: and I do not desire that this be done, but let it return back ten degrees. And Isaías the prophet called upon the Lord, and he brought the shadow ten degrees backwards by the lines, by which it had already gone down in the dial of Achaz.

R. The Lord That delivered me out of the mouth of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear * He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

✠. Misit Deus misericórdiam suam et veritátem suam: ánimam meam erípuit de médio catulórum leónum.

℞. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Ipse me erípiet de mánibus inimicórum meórum.

LECTIO IV

*Ex Expositione sancti Hierónymi Presbíteri in Isaiam Prophétam
Lib. 11 in Isaíæ cap. 38*

Ne elevarétur cor Ezechíæ post incredíbiles triúmphos et de média captivité victóriam, infirmitáte cóporis sui visitátur, et audit se esse moritúrum; ut convérsus ad Dóminum flectat senténtiam ejus. Quod quidem et in Jona prophéta légimus, et in comminatióibus contra David: quæ dicúntur futúra, nec facta sunt, non Deo mutánte senténtiam, sed provocánte humánum genus ad notítiam sui. Dóminus enim poénitens est super malítiis. Convertítque Ezechías fáciem suam ad paríetem, quia ad templum ire non póterat. Ad paríetem autem templi, juxta quod Sálomon palátium exstrúxerat; vel absolúte ad paríetem, ne lácrimas suas assidéntibus ostentáre viderétur.

℞. Percússit Saul mille, et David decem míllia: * Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

✠. Nonne iste est David, de quo canébant in choro, dicéntes: Saul percússit mille, et David decem míllia?

℞. Quia manus Dómini erat cum illo: percússit Philisthæum, et ábstulit oppróbrium ex Israël.

✠. God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth, and delivered my soul from among the lion's whelps.

℞. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. He will deliver me out of the hand of mine enemies.

LESSON IV

*From the Exposition of the Prophet Isaiah written by St. Jerome, Priest at Bethlehem.
Bk. ii. on Is. xxxviii.*

Lest the heart of Hezekiah should be puffed up by his strange and unlooked for triumphs, and by his victory when he was but a prisoner, he was visited by bodily weakness, and told that he was to die that he might betake himself to the Lord, and turn Him from carrying out the sentence. We read of a like case in the history of the Prophet Jonah (ii. 4, 10.) And in regard to the threatening made against David (2 Kgs (Sam.) xxiv. 16) - when punishments were foretold which were not brought to pass. This is not because that God is a Being capable of changing His mind, but because He willeth to mankind to know Him, how that "He [is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and] repenteth Him of the evil." (Joel ii. 13.) Hezekiah turned his face unto the wall, not being able to go up to the Temple. This may either mean that he turned towards the wall of the Temple, hard by which Solomon had built a palace, or simply, that he turned his face to the wall, so as not to parade his tears before his attendants.

℞. Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. * Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

✠. Is not this David? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying: Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

℞. Because the hand of the Lord was with him, he smote the Philistine, and took away the reproach from Israel.

LECTIO V

Audiénsque se esse moritúrum, non precátur vitam et annos plúrimos, sed in Dei iudício, quid velit præstare, dimittit. Noverat enim idcirco Deo placuisse Salomónem, quod annos vitæ non petierit ampliôres; sed itúrus ad Dóminum narrat ópera sua, quómodo ambuláverit coram eo in veritaté et in corde perfectó. Felix consciéntia, quæ afflictiónis témpore bonórum óperum recordátur. Beáti enim mundo corde: quóniam ipsi Deum vidébunt. Et quómodo álibi scribitur: Quis gloriábitur purum habére se cor? Quod ita sólvitur: perfectiónem cordis in eo nunc dici, quod idóla destrúxerit, templi valvas aperúerit, serpéntem æneum comminúerit, et cétera fécerit quæ Scriptúra comémorat.

℞. Montes Gélboë, nec ros nec plúvia

Israël.

℣. Omnes montes, qui estis in circúitu ejus,

℞. Ubi cecidérunt fortes Israël.

LECTIO VI

Flevit autem fletu magno, propter promissiónem Dómini ad David, quam vidébat in sua morte peritúram. Eo enim témpore Ezechías

LESSON V

Having been told that he was about to die, he prayed not for life and many years, but left it to God to do as in His good judgment He was pleased to will. He knew how this had pleased God on the part of Solomon. (3 (1) Kings iii. 11.) So, when he betook him to the Lord, he only made mention of his works, how he had walked before Him in truth, and with a perfect heart. Happy is he whose conscience in the hour of affliction can assure him of good works. Yea, "blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God" (Matth. v. 8.) It is indeed written in another place "Who can say, I have made my heart clean, I am pure from my sin?" (Prov. xx. 9.) How then could Hezekiah say that he had walked with a perfect heart But the answer is, that by this is meant that he had destroyed the idols, opened the doors of the Temple, broken in pieces the brazen serpent, and done the rest of the things whereof the Scripture maketh mention.

℞. Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you * For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

℣. All ye mountains that stand round about, the Lord look upon you but let Him pass by Gilboa

℞. For there are the mighty of Israel fallen.

LESSON VI

"And Hezekiah wept sore." He had then no children, and it seemed as though the promise which God had made unto David, [that "his seed should endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before" Him, (Ps. lxxxviii. 29,)] was about to fail in his own death. It is written that "Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign," (xxi. 1) - whence it is evident that Hezekiah begat him not till after three years of his new lease of life. Sore therefore wept he, when all hope was torn from him that the Messiah should spring from his seed. Others again remark that he wept sore, since death terrifieth sometimes even the saints, since they know not what sentence is about to be pronounced upon them, and what place shall be allotted them in the inscrutable judgment.

fílios non habébat; nam post mortem ejus Manásses cum duódecim esset annórum, regnare cœpit in Judæa: ex quo perspicuum est, post tertium annum concessæ vitæ Manássen esse generátum. Ergo iste omnis est fletus, quod desperábat Christum de suo semine nascitúrum. Alii ásserunt, quamvis sanctos viros morte terréri, propter incertum júdicii et ignoratióem senténtiæ Dei, quam sedem habitúri sint.

R. Ego te tuli de domo patris tui, dicit Dóminus, et pósui te pascere gregem pópuli mei: * Et fui tecum in ómnibus ubicúmque ambulásti, firmans regnum tuum in ætérnum.

R. Thus saith the Lord: I took thee out of thy father's house, and appointed thee to be ruler over My people, over Israel. * And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Ψ. And I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, to establish thy kingdom for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Mark

Mark 7:31-37

At that time: Jesus, departing from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of Decapolis. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory the Great

Hom. x. Bk. i. on Ezekiel

What signifieth it that when God, the Maker of all, would heal a deaf and dumb man, "He put His Fingers into his ears, and He spit, and touched his tongue." What is figured by the Fingers of the Redeemer but the gifts of the Holy Ghost? Hence it is written in another place (Luke xi. 20) that after He had cast out an evil spirit, He said: "If I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you." Which words are thus given by another Evangelist (Matth. xii. 28): "If I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, gitur, quia dígitus Spíritus vocátur. Dígitos ergo in aurículas mittere, est per dona Spíritus Sancti mentem surdi ad obediéndum aperíre.

R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu maligno: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malignum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

Ÿ. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

R. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO VIII

Quid est vero, quod éxspuens linguam ejus tétigit? Salíva nobis est ex ore Redemptóris, accépta sapiéntia in elóquio divíno. Salíva quippe ex cápíte défluit in ore. Ea ergo sapiéntia, quæ ipse est, dum lingua nostra tángitur, mox ad prædicatiónis verba formátur. Qui suspiciens in cælum, ingémuit: non quod ipse necessárium gémitum habéret, qui dabat quod postulábat; sed nos ad eum gémere, qui cælo præsidet, dócuit: ut et aures nostræ per donum Spíritus Sancti aperíri, et lingua per salívam oris, id est, per sciéntiam divínæ locutiónis, solvi débeat ad verba prædicatiónis.

R. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad álterum: * Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth: * Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

Ÿ. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo: Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi tres unum sunt.

R. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth.

then the kingdom of God is come unto you.” By setting these two passages together we see that the Spirit is called the Finger. For our Lord, then, to put His Fingers into the deaf man’s ears was by the gift of the Holy Spirit to enlighten his dark mind unto obedience.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

Ÿ. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

R. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON VIII

That signifieth it also that “He spit and touched his tongue.” We receive spittle out of the Redeemer’s mouth upon our tongues when we receive wisdom to speak God’s truth. Spittle is a secretion of the head which floweth into the mouth. And so, that wisdom, which is Himself, the great Head of His Church, as soon as it hath touched our tongue, doth straightway take the form of preaching. “And looking up to heaven, He sighed,” not that He had any need to sigh, Who gave whatsoever He asked, but that He was fain to teach us to look up and sigh toward Him Whose throne is in heaven, confessing our need, that our ears should be opened by the gift of the Holy Spirit, and our tongue loosed by the spittle of our Saviour’s Mouth, that is, by knowledge of His Divine Word, before we can use it to preach to others.

R. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

Ÿ. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

R. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

Cui mox, Ephphétha, id est, Adaperíre dicitur: et statim apértæ sunt aures ejus, et solútum est vínculum linguæ ejus. Qua in re notándum est, quia propter clausas aures dictum est, Adaperíre. Sed cui aures cordis ad obediéndum apértæ fúerint, ex subsequénti procul dúbio étiam linguæ ejus vínculum solvitur; ut bona quæ ipse fécerit, étiam faciéndá áliis loquátur. Ubi bene ádditur: Et loquebátur recte. Ille enim recte lóquitur, qui prius obediéndó fécerit quæ loquéndó ádmonet esse faciéndá.

Tè Deum

℟. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

“And He said unto him: Ephphatha, that is, be opened. And straightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed.” Herein we must remark the command, “Be opened” was addressed to the deaf ears, but the tongue also was immediately loosed. Just so, when the ears of a man’s heart have been opened to learn the obedience of faith, the string of his tongue also is thereupon loosed, that he may exhort others to do the good things which himself doth. It is well added “And he spake plain.” He only doth well preach obedience to others who hath first learnt himself to obey.

De libro quarto Regum

4 Reg 22:1-5

Octo annórum erat Josías cum regnáre cœpisset: trigínta et uno anno regnávít in Jerúsalem. Nomen matris ejus Idida fília Hadaía de Bésecath. Fecítque quod plácitum erat coram Dómino et ambulávit per omnes vías David patris sui: non declinávit ad dexteram, sive ad sinistram. Anno autem octavo décimo regis Josíæ misit rex Saphan fílium Aslía fílii Méssulam scribam templi Dómini, dicens ei: Vade ad Helcíam sacerdotem ma-

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 22:1-5

Josias was eight years old when he began to reign: he reigned one and thirty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Idida, the daughter of Hadaia, of Besecath. And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the ways of David his father: he turned not aside to the right hand, or to the left. And in the eighteenth year of king Josias, the king sent Saphan the son of Assia, the son of Messulam, the scribe of the temple of the Lord, saying to him: Go to gnum, ut conflétur pecúnia, quæ illáta est in templum Dómini, quam collegérunt janitores templi a pópulo, detúrque febris per prapósitos domus Dómini; qui et distríbuant eam his qui operántur in templo Domini.

R. Recordáre, Dómine, testaménti tui, et dic Angelo percutiénti: Cesset jam manus tua, * Ut non desolétur terra, et ne perdas omnem ánimam vivam.

Ÿ. Ego sum qui peccávi, ego qui iníque egi: isti qui oves sunt, quid fecérunt? Avertátur, óbsecro, furor tuus, Dómine, a pópulo tuo.

R. Ut non desolétur terra, et ne perdas omnem ánimam vivam.

LECTIO II

4 Reg 22:8-10

Dixit autem Helcías pontifex ad Saphan scribam: Librum legis réperi in domo Dómini. Dedítque Helcías volúmen Saphan, qui et legit illud. Venit quoque Saphan scriba ad regem, et renuntiávit ei quod præceperat, et ait: Conflavérunt servi tui pecúniam, quæ repérta est in domo Dómini, et dedérunt ut distribuerétur fabris a præfectis óperum templi Dómini. Narrávit quoque Saphan scriba regi, dicens: Librum dedit mihi Helcías sacerdos.

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratiónem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: * Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

Ÿ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

4 Reg 22:10-13

Quem cum legísset Saphan coram rege, et audísset rex verba libri legis Dómini, scidit

Helcias the high priest, that the money may be put together which is brought into the temple of the Lord, which the doorkeepers of the temple have gathered of the people. And let it be given to the workmen by the overseers of the house of the Lord: and let them distribute it to those that work in the temple of the Lord, to repair the temple:

R. Remember, O Lord, thy covenant, and say unto the destroying Angel: Stay now thine hand; * That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that thou destroy not every living soul.

Ÿ. Even I it is that have sinned, and done evil indeed; but these sheep, what have they done? Let thine anger, I pray thee, O Lord, be turned away from thy people.

R. That the land be not utterly laid waste, and that Thou destroy not every living soul.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 22:8-10

And Helcias the high priest said to Saphan the scribe: I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord: and Helcias gave the book to Saphan, and he read it. And Saphan the scribe came to the king, and brought him word again concerning that which he had commanded, and said: thy servants have gathered together the money that was found in the house of the Lord, and they have given it to be distributed to the workmen, by the overseers of the works of the temple of the Lord. And Saphan the scribe told the king, saying: Helcias the priest hath delivered to me a book.

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ÿ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

De libro quarto Regum

4 Reg 23:2-3

Ascéndit rex templum Dómini, et omnes viri Iuda, universíque qui habitábant in Jerúsalem cum eo, sacerdótes et prophétæ, et omnis pópulus a parvo usque ad magnum: legítque, cunctis audiéntibus, omnia verba libri foéderis, qui invéntus est in domo Domini. Stetítque rex super gradum: et foédus percússit coram Dómino, ut ambulárent post Dóminum, et custodírent prǎcēpta ejus, et testimónia, et cæremónias in omni corde, et in tota ánima, et suscitárent verba foéderis hujus, quæ scripta erant in libro illo: Acquievítque pópulus pacto.

R. Dómine, si convérsus fúerit pópulus tuus, et oráverit ad sanctuárium tuum: * Tu exáudies de cælo, Dómine, et líbera eos de mánibus inimicórum suórum.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 23:2-3

And the king went up to the temple of the Lord, and all the men of Iuda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him, the priests and the prophets, and all the people both little and great: and in the hearing of them all he read all the words of the book of the covenant, which was found in the house of the Lord. And the king stood upon the step: and made a covenant with the Lord, to walk after the Lord, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies and his ceremonies, with all their heart, and with all their soul, and to perform the words of this covenant, which were written in that book: and the people agreed to the covenant.

R. Lord, when thy people shall turn again to thee, and shall pray unto thee in this house; * Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

✠ Si peccáverit in te pópulus tuus, et

℞. Then hear Thou in heaven, O Lord, and deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 23:4-5

And the king commanded Helcias the high priest, and the priests of the second order, and the doorkeepers, to cast out of the temple of the Lord all the vessels that had been made for Baal, and for the grove, and for all the host of heaven: and he burnt them without Jerusalem in the valley of Cedron, and he carried the ashes of them to Bethel. And he destroyed the soothsayers, whom the kings of Juda had appointed to sacrifice in the high places in the cities of Juda, and round about Jerusalem: them also that burnt incense to Baal, and to the sun, and to the moon, and to the twelve signs, and to all the host of heaven.

℞. And it came to pass when the Lord would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind * Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

✠ And as they still went on, and talked, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder, and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

℞. Elisha cried, and said: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 23:6-8

And he caused the grove to be carried out from the house of the Lord without Jerusalem to the valley of Cedron, and he burnt it there, and reduced it to dust, and cast the dust upon the graves of the common people. He destroyed also the pavilions of the effeminate, which were in the house of the Lord, for which the women wove as it were little dwellings for the grove. And he gathered together all the priests out of the cities of Juda: and he defiled the high places, where the priests offered sacrifice, from Gabaá to Bersabee: and he broke down the altars of the gates that were in the en-

LESSON I

Lesson from the second book of Kings

2 Kgs 24:18-20; 25:1-3

Sedecias was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Amital, the daughter of Jeremiah of Lobna. And he did evil before the Lord, according to all that Joakim had done. For the Lord was angry against Jerusalem and against Juda, till he cast them out from his face: and Sedecias revolted from the king of Babylon. And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon came, he and all his army against Jerusalem: and they surrounded it: and raised works round about it. And the city was shut up and besieged till the eleventh year of king Sedecias, The ninth day of the month: and a famine prevailed in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land.

LESSON II

2 Kgs 25:4-7

And a breach was made into the city: and all the men of war fled in the night between the two walls by the king's garden, (now the Chaldees besieged the city round about,) and Sedecias fled by the way that leadeth to the plains of the wilderness. And the army of the Chaldees pursued after the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho: and all the warriors that were with him were scattered, and left him: So they took the king, and brought him to the king of Babylon to Reblatha, and he gave judgment upon him. And he slew the sons of Sedecias before his face, and he put out his eyes, and bound him with chains, and brought him to Babylon.

LESSON III

2 Kgs 25:8-13

In the fifth month, the seventh day of the month, that is, the nineteenth year of the king of Babylon, came Nabuzardan commander of the army, a servant of the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem. And

Bk. iii. ch. 43 on Luke x.

Blessed were the eyes not of Scribes and Pharisees, which saw but the Body of the Lord, but those eyes, eyes blessed indeed, which were able to see those things whereof it is written “Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes.” Blessed are the eyes of those little ones unto whom it seemeth good in the eyes of the Son to reveal Himself and the

LECTIO IX

Father also. Abraham rejoiced to see the day of Christ and he saw it, and was glad. (John viii. 56.) Isaiah, and Micah, and many among the Prophets, saw the glory of the Lord, wherefore also they be called Seers, but all they beheld it and hailed it afar off, seeing but as through a glass, darkly. (1 Cor. xiii. 12.)

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

ψ. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

R. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON VIII

Otherwise were the Apostles, who saw the Lord face to Face, eating with Him, and learning from Him by asking whatsoever they listed. For them there was no need to be taught by Angels, or the shifting fabric of visions. They whom Luke doth call Prophets and kings, Matthew nameth as "Prophets and righteous men" (xiii. 17.) Righteous men are indeed mighty kings, who know how to lord it over their own rebellious temptations, instead of falling under them to become their slaves.

R. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

ψ. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

R. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

“And, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted Him, saying Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?” This lawyer, who stood up to ask the Lord a tempting question touching eternal life, took the subject of his asking, as I think, from the words which the Lord had just uttered, when He said “Rejoice, because your names are written in heaven”. But his attempt was a proof of the truth of that which the Lord immediately added “I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes!”

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 17:11-19

It came to pass, as Jesus went to Jerusalem, that He passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee. And, as He entered into a certain village, there met Him ten men that were lepers. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo

Bk. ii, Gospel Questions, ch. 40

The ten lepers “lifted up their voices and said: Jesus, Master, have mercy on us. And when He saw them, He said unto them: Go, show yourselves unto the Priests. And it came to pass that, as they went, they were cleansed.” Question: why did the Lord send them unto the Priests, that, as they went, they might be cleansed? Lepers were the only class among those upon whose bodies He cerdótribus, et offer pro te sacrificium, quod præcepit Móyses, in testimónium illis. Quæréndum igitur est, quid ipsa lepra significet: non enim sanáti, sed mundáti dicúntur, qui ea caruérent. Colóris quippe vítium est, non valetúdinis, aut integritátis sénsuum atque membrórum.

R. Quis mihi tríbuat, ut in inférno prótegas me et abscondas me, donec pertránsseat furor tuus, Dómine, nisi tu, qui solus es Deus? * Et constitúas mihi tempus, in quo recordéris mei?

R. Et constitúas mihi tempus, in quo recordéris mei?

LECTIO VIII

Leprósi ergo non absúrde intélligi possunt, qui sciéntiam veræ fidei non habéntes, várias doctrínas profiténtur erróris. Non enim abscondunt imperfíam suam; sed pro summa perfítia próferunt in lucem, et jactántia sermónis osténtant. Nulla porro falsa doctrína est, quæ non áliqua vera intermísceat. Vera ergo falsis inordináte permíxta, in una disputatióne vel narratióne hóminis, tamquam in uníus córporis colóre apparéntia, significant lepram, tamquam veris falsisque colórum variántem atque maculántem.

R. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad álterum: * Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth: * Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

V. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo: Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi tres unum sunt.

worked mercy, whom we find that He sent unto the Priests. It is written in another place that He said to a leper whom He had cleansed: "Go, and show thyself to the Priest, and offer for thy cleansing according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them" (Luke v. 14, Lev. xiv. seq.) We ask then, of what leprosy was a type, whereof they that were ridded were called, not "healed," but "cleansed." It is a disease which doth first appear in the skin, but destroyeth not immediately the strength, nor the use of feeling and the limbs.

R. O that Thou wouldest hide me in the grave; that Thou wouldest keep me secret, until thy wrath be past, even thine, O Lord, Thou That alone art God; * That Thou wouldest appoint me a set time, and remember me!

V. Are thy days as the days of man, that Thou inquirest after mine iniquity, and there is none that can deliver out of thine hand.

R. That Thou wouldest appoint me a set time, and remember me!

LESSON VIII

The lepers, therefore, we may not absurdly suppose such to be figured as have not the knowledge of the true faith, but do show forth diverse-coloured teachings of error. They hide not their witlessness, but do use all such wit as they have to make it manifest, and proclaim it in high-sounding phrases. There is no false doctrine but hath some truth mixed up with it. A man's discourse then, with some truths in it unequally mingled with falsehoods, and all confounded in one mass, is like to the body of one that is stricken with leprosy, whereon all manner of foul colours do appear in this and that place along with the true colour of skin.

R. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

V. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

R. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

Hi autem tam vitándi sunt Ecclésiæ, ut, si fieri potest, lóngius remóti, magno clamóre Christum interpéllent; sicut isti decem steterunt a longe, et levaverunt vocem, dicentes: Jesu præcéptor, miserere nostri. Nam et quod præcéptorem vocant, quo nómine nescio utrum quisquam Dóminum interpellaverit pro medicína corporáli; satis puto significáre, lepram falsam esse doctrínam, quam bonus præcéptor abstérgit.

Tè Deum

℞. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

Such men as these are banished out of the walls of the Church, to the end that haply when they stand afar off they may lift up their voices and cry to Christ for pardon, just as those ten men that were lepers, which stood afar off, outside the village, lifted up their voices and said "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us." That they styled Him Master, by which title I know not if any besought the Lord for bodily healing, I think doth sufficiently show that leprosy signifieth false doctrine, whereof the Good Master doth cleanse us.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 6:24–33

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: No man can serve two masters. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo.

Bk. ii. on the Lord's Sermon on the Mount, ch. xiv. "No man can serve two masters," and this is further explained "for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other." These words we ought carefully to weigh, for the Lord sheweth straightway who be the two masters whom we have choice of: "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." Mammon is a term which the Hebrews are said to use for riches. It is also a Carthaginian word for the Punic for "gain" is "mammon."

LECTIO VIII

Sed qui servit mammónæ, illi útique servit, qui rebus istis terrénis mérito suæ perversitátis præpósitus, magistrátus hujus sæculi a Dómino díctur. Aut enim unum ódio habébit homo, et álterum díliget, id est, Deum; aut álterum patiétur, et álterum contémnet. Patiétur enim durum et perniciosum dóminum, quisquis servit mammónæ; sua enim cupiditate implicátus, súbditur diabolo, et non eum díligit. Quis enim est qui díligat diábolum? sed tamen pátitur.

LESSON VIII

He which serveth mammon, serveth that evil one who hath perversely chosen to be lord of these earthly things, and is called by the Lord “the prince of this world.” (John xiv. 30.) Of these two masters, either a man will hate the one and love the other, that is God or he will hold to the one and despise the other. He which serveth mammon holdeth to an hard and destroying master, for he is led captive by his lust, and sold a slave to the devil, and him loveth no man is there any man that loveth the devil And yet there be that hold to him.

℟. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

“Therefore, I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on”; lest, albeit such things are not idle, but needful to be sought after, yet the seeking for things even needful should divide the heart and our intention should be corrupted when we do something as it were mercifully that is, lest, when we would seem to be seeking another’s good, it should be profit to ourselves, rather than benefit to him, that we seek and therefore we seem not to ourselves to sin, because we would seek things not idle, but needful.

Ideo, inquit, dico vobis, non habere sollicitudinem animæ vestræ quid edatis, neque corpori vestro quid induatis; ne forte, quamvis jam superflua non quærantur, propter ipsa necessaria cor duplicetur, et ad ipsa conquirenda, nostra detorqueatur intentio, cum aliquod quasi misericorditer operamur: id est, ut cum consilium alicui videri volumus, nostrum emolumentum ibi potius, quam illius utilitatem attendamus; et ideo nobis non videamur peccare, quia non superflua, sed necessaria sunt, quæ consequi volumus.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 7:11-16

At that time: Jesus went into a city called Nain and His disciples went with Him, and much people. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo

44th Discourse on the Words of the Lord

That her son was called again to life was the joy of that widowed mother; that souls of men are every day called to life is the joy of our Mother the Church. He was dead in body they have been dead in mind. His death was outward, and was outwardly bewailed; their inward. Death hath been neither mourned for nor seen. But He hath sought for them, Who hath seen that they are dead, and He only hath seen that they are dead, Who hath been able to make them alive. If He had not come to raise the dead, the Apostle had not said: "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light." (Eph. v. 14.)

R. O that Thou wouldst hide me in the grave; that Thou wouldst keep me secret, until thy wrath be past, even thine, O Lord, Thou That alone art God; * That Thou wouldst appoint me a set time, and remember me!

✠. Numquid sicut dies hóminis dies tui, ut quæras iniquitátem meam; cum sit nemo, qui de manu tua possit erüere.

℟. Et constítuas mihi tempus, in quo recordéris mei?

LECTIO VIII

Tres autem mórtuos invenímus a Dómino resuscitátos visibíliter, míllia invisibíliter. Quot autem mórtuos visibíliter suscitáverit, quis novit? Non enim ómnia, quæ fecit, scripta sunt. Joánnes hoc dixit: Multa ália fecit Jesus, quæ si scripta essent, árbitor totum mundum non posse libros cápere. Multi ergo sunt álii sine dúbio suscitáti, sed non tres frustra commemoráti. Dóminus enim noster Jesus Christus ea quæ faciébat corporáliter, étiam spiritalíter volébat intélligi. Neque enim tantum mirácula propter mirácula faciébat; sed ut illa, quæ faciébat, mira essent vidéntibus, vera essent intelligéntibus.

℟. Duo Séraphim clamábant alter ad álterum: * Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth: * Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

✠. Tres sunt qui testimónium dant in cælo: Pater, Verbum, et Spíritus Sanctus: et hi tres unum sunt.

℟. Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus Dóminus Deus Sábaoth.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

℟. Plena est omnis terra glória ejus.

LECTIO IX

Quemádmódum qui videt líteas in códice óptime scripto, et non novit légere, laudat quidem antiquárii manum, admirans ápicum pulchritúdinem; sed quid sibi velint, quid índicent illi ápices, nescit, et est óculis laudátor, mente non cógnitor. Alius autem et laudat artificium, et capit intelléctum: ille útiq;e, qui non solum vidére quod comúné est ómnibus, potest, sed étiam légere;

✠. Are thy days as the days of man, that Thou inquirest after mine iniquity, and there is none that can deliver out of thine hand.

℟. That Thou wouldest appoint me a set time, and remember me!

LESSON VIII

We find written how the Lord raised from the dead three persons visibly, but thousands invisibly. But how many they may have been whom He raised visibly, who knoweth For all the things which He did are not written. John saith thus: "There are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written." (xxi. 25.) There were then, doubtless, many more raised to life, but it is not meaningless that three are recorded. For our Lord Jesus Christ hath willed that those things which He did carnally, we should understand also spiritually. He worked not miracles only for the sake of working wonders, but that His works might be at once wonderful to them that beheld, and true to them that understand them.

℟. One Seraph cried unto another: * Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.

✠. There are Three That bear record in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these Three are One.

℟. Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God of hosts.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. The whole earth is full of His glory.

LESSON IX

Even as one that looketh upon a scroll right fairly written, and knoweth not how to read therein, praiseth the hand of the old scribe when he seeth the beauty of the points, but what it saith, what those points mean, he knoweth not, and praiseth by the eye, without understanding by the mind, and as, on the other hand, he that can not only gaze on it, as can all men, but also can read it, praiseth the penmanship, and catcheth the sense likewise, quod qui non dídicit, non potest. Ita qui vidérunt Christi mirácula, et non intellexérunt quid sibi vellent, et quid intelligentibus quodámmodo innúerent, miráti sunt tantum quia facta sunt; álíi vero et facta miráti, et intellécta assecúti. Tales nos in schola Christi esse debémus.

Te Deum

which the unlearned cannot do even so, there were some that saw the miracles which Christ did, and understood not what they meant, nor what they, as it were, hinted to such as did understand them, and these only marvelled to see them wrought. And other some there were which saw the works, and marvelled, and understood them, and profited by them. And it is as these last that we ought to be in the school of Christ.

LECTIO I

Incipiunt Parabolæ Salomónis

PROV 1:1-6

Parabolæ Salomónis, filii David regis Israël, ad sciendam sapiéntiam et disciplinam, ad intelligenda verba prudéntiæ et suscipiendam eruditiónem doctrinæ, justítiam et judícium et æquitátem, ut detur párvulis astútia, adoléscenti sciéntia et intelléctus. Audiens sapiéns sapiéntior erit, et intéllegens gubernácula possidébit: animadvértet parabolam et interpretatióem, verba sapiéntum et ænigmata eórum.

- R. In princípíio Deus ántequam terram fáceret, priúsqvam abyíssos constitúeret, priúsqvam prodúceret fontes aquárum, * Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.
- Y. Quando præparábat cælos, áderam, cum eo cuncta compónens.
- R. Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

LECTIO II

PROV 1:7-14

Tímor Dómini princípium sapiéntiæ. Sapiéntiam atque doctrinam stulti despíciunt. Audi, fili mi, disciplinam patris tui et ne dimittas legem matris tuæ, ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo et torques collo tuo. Fili mi, si te lactáverint peccatóres, ne acquiéscas eis: si dixerint: Veni nobíscum, insidiémur sánguini, abscondámus tendículas contra insóntem frustra, deglutiamus eum sicut inférnus vi-

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Proverbs

PROV 1:1-6

The parables of Solomon, the son of David, king of Israel. To know wisdom, and instruction: To understand the words of prudence: and to receive the instruction of doctrine, justice, and judgment, and equity: To give subtilty to little ones, to the young man knowledge and understanding. A wise man shall hear and shall be wiser: and he that understandeth, shall possess governments. He shall understand a parable, and the interpretation, the words of the wise, and their mysterious sayings.

- R. God possessed me in the beginning, before He made the earth, before He created the depths, before He caused the fountains of water to spring. * Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.
- Y. When He prepared the heavens, I was there with Him, ordering all things.
- R. Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

LESSON II

PROV 1:7-14

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Fools despise wisdom and instruction. My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother: That grace may be added to thy head, and a chain of gold to thy neck. My son, if sinners shall entice thee, consent not to them. If they shall say: Come with us, let us lie in wait for blood, let us hide snares for the innocent without cause: Let us swallow him up alive like hell, and whole as one that goeth down into the pit. We véntem et íntegrum quasi descendéntem in lacum; omnem pretiósam substántiam repe-riémus, implébimus domos nostras spóliis: sortem mitte nobíscum, marsúpium unum sit ómnium nostrum.

R. Gyrum cæli circuívi sola, et in flúctibus maris ambulávi, in omni gente et in omni pópulo primátum ténui: * Superbórum et sublímium colla própria virtúte calcávi.

Ÿ. Ego in altíssimis hábito, et thronus meus in coluḿna nubis.

R. Superbórum et sublímium colla própria virtúte calcávi.

LECTIO III

Prov 1:15-19

Fili mi, ne ámbules cum eis: próhibe pedem tuum a sémitis eórum; pedes enim illórum ad malum currunt, et festínant ut effúndant sánguinem. Frustra autem jácitur rete ante óculos pennatórum. Ipsi quoque contra sánguinem suum insidiántur et moliúntur fraudes contra ánimas suas. Sic sémitæ omnis avári: ánimas possidéntium rápiunt.

R. Emítte, Dómine, sapiéntiam de sede magnitúdinis tuæ, ut mecum sit et mecum labóret: * Ut sciam, quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

Ÿ. Da mihi, Dómine, sédium tuárum assistrícem sapiéntiam.

R. Ut sciam quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Ut sciam quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

LECTIO IV

Ex Tractatu sancti Ambrósii Epíscopi in Psalmum centésimum decimum octavum

Sermo 5, n. 36-37

Inítium esse sapiéntiæ timórem Dómini, dicit prophéta. Quid est autem inítium sapién-shall find all precious substance, we shall fill our houses with spoils. Cast in thy lot with us, let us all have one purse.

R. I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked on the waves of the sea. In every nation and in every people, I held the first place. * In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

Ÿ. I dwell in the highest places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar.

R. In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

LESSON III

Prov 1:15-19

My son, walk not thou with them, restrain thy foot from their paths. For their feet run to evil, and make haste to shed blood. But a net is spread in vain before the eyes of them that have wings. And they themselves lie in wait for their own blood, and practise deceits against their own souls. So the wage of every covetous man destroy the souls of the possessors.

R. O send out wisdom from the throne of thy glory, O Lord, to be with me, and to labour with me, * That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ÿ. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

LESSON IV

From the Treatise of St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan, upon the 18-th Psalm.

Sermon v. 6

The Prophet saith that “the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.” And what is the first tia, nisi sæculo renuntiāre? Quia sápere sæculária, stultítia est. Dénique sapiéntiam hujus mundi, stultítiam esse apud Deum, Apóstolus dicit. Sed et ipse timor Dómini, nisi secúndum sciéntiam sit, nihil prodest, immo obest plúrimum. Siquidem Judæi habent zelum Dei; sed quia non habent secúndum sciéntiam, in ipso zelo et timóre majórem cóntrahunt divinitátis offénsam. Quod circumcídunt infántulos suos, quod sábbata custódiunt, timórem Dei habent; sed quia nesciunt legem spiritálem esse, circumcídunt corpus, non cor suum.

R. Da mihi, Dómine, sédium tuárum assístricem sapiéntiam, et noli me reprobáre a púeris tuis: * Quóniam servus tuus sum ego, et fílius ancíllæ tuæ.

Ÿ. Mitte illam de sede magnitúdinis tuæ, ut mecum sit et mecum labóret.

R. Quóniam servus tuus sum ego, et fílius ancíllæ tuæ.

LECTIO V

Et quid de Judæis dico? Sunt étiam in nobis qui habent timórem Dei, sed non secúndum sciéntiam, statuéntes durióra præcépta, quæ non possit humána condítio sustinére. Timor in eo est, quia vidéntur sibi consúlere disciplínæ, opus virtútis exígere; sed inscítia in eo est, quia non compatiúntur natúræ, non æstimant possibilitátem. Non sit ergo irrationábilis timor. Etenim vera sapiéntia a timóre Dei incípit, nec est sapiéntia spiritális sine timóre Dei; ita timor sine sapiéntia esse non debet.

R. Inítium sapiéntiæ timor Dómini: * Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

Ÿ. Diléctio illíus custódia legum est: quia omnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.

R. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

act of wisdom but to renounce the world since to love the things of the world is folly. So indeed saith the Apostle "The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God." (i Cor. iii. 19.) But the very fear of the Lord itself is useless, nay, harmful, if it be not according to knowledge. The Jews have a truly fervent zeal for God, but since they have not knowledge, their very zeal and fear do cause them to do things contrary to God's will. That they circumcise their children, that they keep holy the Sabbath-Day, sheweth how they fear the Lord, but knowing not the spiritual meaning of the Law, they circumcise the body and not the heart.

R. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

Ÿ. O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.

R. For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LESSON V

But wherefore should I speak of Jews There are those among ourselves who have the fear of God, but not according to knowledge, and set up hard ordinances which the weakness of man is not able to bear. They fear God in this, that they seem to themselves to be looking to discipline, and to be enforcing the practice of godliness, but they lack knowledge, in that they feel not for the weakness of nature, nor consider whether a thing can, or cannot be done. Let not then the fear of God be unreasonable. True wisdom beginneth with the fear of God, neither is it spiritual wisdom without the fear of God, but neither ought the fear of God to be without wisdom.

R. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

Ÿ. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

R. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LECTIO VI

Basis quædam verbi est timor sanctus. Sicut enim simulacrum aliquod in basi statuitur, et tunc majorem habet gratiam, cum in basi statua fuerit collocata, standique accipit firmitatem: ita verbum Dei in timore sancto melius statuitur, fortius radicatur in pectore timentis Dominum; ne labatur verbum de corde viri, ne veniant volucres et auferant illud de incuriosi et dissimulantis affectu.

- ℞. Verbum iniquum et dolosum longe fac a me, Domine: * Divitias et paupertatem ne dederis mihi, sed tantum victui meo tribue necessaria.
- ℣. Duo rogavi te, ne deneges mihi antequam moriar.
- ℞. Divitias et paupertatem ne dederis mihi, sed tantum victui meo tribue necessaria.
- ℣. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.
- ℞. Divitias et paupertatem ne dederis mihi, sed tantum victui meo tribue necessaria.

LESSON VI

Holy fear is the foundation of all good instruction. Just as a statue is set up upon a pedestal, and thereby receiveth both beauty and strength, even so doth it become the word of God to be set forth based upon an holy fear, and it is in the heart of him that feareth that it getteth the firmest root, even an home wherefrom it droppeth not, neither do the fowls of the air come and carry it away, as from the heart of him that is careless and deceiving.

- ℞. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. * Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.
- ℣. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.
- ℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.
- ℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- ℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

LECTIO I

De Parabolis Salomonis

Prov 3:1-6

Fili mi, ne obliviscaris legis meæ, et præcepta mea cor tuum custodiat; longitudinem enim dierum et annos vitæ et pacem apponent tibi. Misericordia et veritas te non deserant: circumda eas gutturi tuo et describe in tabulis cordis tui, et invenies gratiam et disciplinam bonam coram Deo et hominibus. Habe fiduciam in Domino ex toto corde tuo et ne innitaris prudentiæ tuæ; in omnibus viis tuis coga illum, et ipse diriget gressus tuos.

- ℞. Ne derelinquas me, Domine, pater et dominator vitæ meæ, ut non corruam in conspectu adversariorum meorum: * Ne gaudeat de me inimicus meus.
- ℣. Apprehende arma et scutum et exsurge in adiutorium mihi.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Proverbs

Prov 3:1-6

My son, forget not my law, and let thy heart keep my commandments. For they shall add to thee length of days, and years of life and peace. Let not mercy and truth leave thee, put them about thy neck, and write them in the tables of thy heart: And thou shalt find grace and good understanding before God and men. Have confidence in the Lord with all thy heart, and lean not upon thy own prudence. In all thy ways think on him, and he will direct thy steps.

- ℞. O Lord, Father and Governor of my life, leave me not, lest I fall before mine adversaries, * and mine enemy rejoice over me.
- ℣. Take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for mine help.
- ℞. Lest mine enemy rejoice over me.

R. Ne gáudeat de me inimícus meus.

LECTIO II

Prov 3:7-10

Ne sis sápiens apud temetípsum, time Deum et recéde a malo; sánitas quippe erit umbilíco tuo et irrigátio óssium tuórum. Honóra Dóminum de tua substántia et de primítiis ómnium frugum tuárum da ei; et implebúntur hórrea tua saturitáte, et víno torculária tua redundábunt.

R. Magna enim sunt iudícia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabília verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

V. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvexísti eos per aquam nímiám.

R. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Prov 3:11-15

Disciplínám Dómini, fili mi, ne abícias, nec defícias cum ab eo corríperis; quem enim díligit Dóminus corripit, et quasi pater in fílio cómplacet sibi. Beátus homo qui invénit sapiéntiam et qui áffluit prudéntia. Mélior est acquisitio ejus negotiatióne argénti, et auri primi et puríssimi fructus ejus; pretiósior est cunctis ópibus, et ómnia quæ desiderántur, huic non valent comparári.

R. Quæ sunt in corde hóminum, óculi tui vident, Dómine, et in libro tuo ómnia scribéntur: * Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

V. Omnia enim corda scrutátur, et univérsas méntium cogitatiónes intéllegit.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

LESSON II

Prov 3:7-10

Be not wise in thy own conceit: fear God, and depart from evil: For it shall be health to thy navel, and moistening to thy bones. Honour the Lord with thy substance, and give him of the first of all thy fruits: And thy barns shall be filled with abundance, and thy presses shall run over with wine.

R. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

V. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

R. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Prov 3:11-15

My son, reject not the correction of the Lord: and do not faint when thou art chastised by him: For whom the Lord loveth, he chastiseth: and as a father in the son he pleaseth himself. Blessed is the man that findeth wisdom and is rich in prudence: The purchasing thereof is better than the merchandise of silver, and her fruit than the chiefest and purest gold: She is more precious than all riches: and all the things that are desired, are not to be compared with her.

R. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

V. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Prov 5:1-6

Fili mi, atténde ad sapiéntiam meam, et prudéntiæ meæ inclína aurem tuam, ut custódias cogitatiónes, et disciplínam lábia tua consérvent. Ne atténdas falláciæ mulieris; favus enim distíllans lábia meretrícis, et nítídus óleo guttur ejus; novíssima autem illíus amára quasi absýnthium et acúta quasi gládus biceps; pedes ejus descéndunt in mortem, et ad ínferos gressus illíus pénetrant; per sémitam vitæ non ámbulant, vagi sunt gressus ejus et investigábiles.

℟. Præbe, fili, cor mihi, et óculi tui vias meas custódiant: * Ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo.

℟. Ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo.

LECTIO II

Prov 5:7-13

Nunc ergo, fili mi, audi me, et ne recédas a verbis oris mei. Longe fac ab ea viam tuam et ne appropínques fõribus domus ejus; ne des aliénis honórem tuum, et annos tuos crudéli; ne forte impleántur extránei víribus tuis, et labóres tui sint in domo aliéna, et gemas in novíssimis, quando consúmpseris carnes tuas et corpus tuum, et dicas: Cur detestátus sum disciplínam, et increpatiónibus non acquiévit cor meum; nec audívi vocem docéntium me, et magístris non inclinávi aurem meam?

℟. Inítium sapiéntiæ timor Dómini: * Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

℣. Diléctio illíus custódia legum est: quia omnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Proverbs

Prov 5:1-6

My son, attend to my wisdom, and incline thy ear to my prudence. That thou mayst keep thoughts, and thy lips may preserve instruction. Mind not the deceit of a woman. For the lips of a harlot are like a honeycomb dropping, and her throat is smoother than oil. But her end is bitter as wormwood, and sharp as a two-edged sword. Her feet go down into death, and her steps go in as far as hell. They walk not by the path of life, her steps are wandering, and unaccountable.

℟. My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways. * For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

℣. My son, attend unto my wisdom, and incline thine ear unto my sayings.

℟. For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

LESSON II

Prov 5:7-13

Now therefore, my son, hear me, and depart not from the words of my mouth. Remove thy way far from her, and come not nigh the doors of her house. Give not thy honour to strangers, and thy years to the cruel. Lest strangers be filled with thy strength, and thy labours be in another man's house, And thou mourn it the last, when thou shalt have spent thy flesh and thy body, and say: Why have I hated instruction, and my heart consented not to reproof, And have not heard the voice of them that taught me, and have not inclined my ear to masters?

℟. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

℣. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

R. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sǎculum sǎculi.

LECTIO III

Prov 5:20-23

Quare sedúceris, fili mi, ab aliéna, et fovéris in sinu altérius? Réspicit Dóminus vías hóminis, et omnes gressus ejus considerat; iniquitátes suæ cápiunt ímpium, et fúnibus peccatórum suórum constríngitur; ipse moriétur, quia non hábuit disciplínam, et in multitudíne stultítiæ suæ decipiétur.

R. Verbum iníquum et dolósum longe fac a me, Dómine: * Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

Y. Duo rogávi te, ne déneges mihi ántequam móriar.

R. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

Y. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

R. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LESSON III

Prov 5:20-23

Why art thou seduced, my son, by a strange woman, and art cherished in the bosom of another? The Lord beholdeth the ways of man, and considereth all his steps. His own iniquities catch the wicked, and he is fast bound with the ropes of his own sins. He shall die, because he hath not received instruction, and in the multitude of his folly he shall be deceived.

R. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. * Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

Y. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.

R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

Y. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Proverbs

Prov 8:1-6

Doth not wisdom cry aloud, and prudence put forth her voice? Standing in the top of the highest places by the way, in the midst of the paths. Beside the gates of the city, in the very doors she speaketh, saying: O ye men, to you I call, and my voice is to the sons of men. O little ones, understand subtilty, and ye unwise, take notice. Hear, for I will speak of great things: and my lips shall be opened to preach right things.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And

LECTIO II

Prov 8:7-11

Veritátem meditábitur guttur meum, et lábia mea detestabúntur ímpium; justí sunt omnes sermónes mei, non est in eis pravum quid, neque perversum: recti sunt intellegéntibus, et æqui inveniéntibus sciéntiam. Accípíte disciplínam meam, et non pecúniám, doctrínam magis quam aurum elígite; mélior est enim sapiéntia cunctis pretiosíssimis, et omne desiderábile ei non potest compará-ri.

℟. Magna enim sunt iudícia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabília verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

✠. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvexísti eos per aquam nímiám.

℟. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Prov 8:12-17

Ego sapiéntia hábito in consílio, et erudítis intérsus cogitatiónibus; timor Dómini odit malum, arrogántiam, et supérbiam, et viam pravam, et os bílingue detéstor; meum est consílium et æquitas, mea est prudéntia, mea est fortitúdo; per me reges regnant, et legum conditóres justa decérnunt; per me príncipes ímperant, et poténtes decérnunt justítiam; ego diligéntes me diligo, et qui mane vígilant ad me, invénient me.

℟. Quæ sunt in corde hóminum, óculi tui vident, Dómine, et in libro tuo ómnia scribéntur: * Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

✠. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

℟. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON II

Prov 8:7-11

My mouth shall meditate truth, and my lips shall hate wickedness. All my words are just, there is nothing wicked nor perverse in them. They are right to them that understand, and just to them that find knowledge. Receive my instruction, and not money: choose knowledge rather than gold. For wisdom is better than all the most precious things: and whatsoever may be desired cannot be compared to it.

℟. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

✠. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

℟. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Prov 8:12-17

I wisdom dwell in counsel, and am present in learned thoughts. The fear of the Lord hateth evil: I hate arrogance, and pride, and every wicked way, and a mouth with a double tongue. Counsel and equity is mine, prudence is mine, strength is mine. By me kings reign, and lawgivers decree just things, By me princes rule, and the mighty decree justice. I love them that love me: and they that in the morning early watch for me, shall find me.

℟. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

✠. Omnia enim corda scrutátur, et univérsas méntium cogitátiones intélligit.

℟. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

✠. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.

℟. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

LECTIO I

De Parábolis Salomónis

PROV 10:1-5

Fílius sápiens lætíficat patrem, fílius vero stultus mæstítia est matris suæ. Nihil próderunt thesáuri impietátis, justítia vero liberábit a morte. Non afflíget Dóminus fame ánimam justí, et insídias impiórum subvértet. Egestátem operáta est manus remíssa, manus autem fórtium divítias parat. Qui nítitur mendáciis, hic pascit ventos, idem autem ipse séquitur aves volántes. Qui cóngregat in messe, fílius sápiens est; qui autem stertit æstáte, fílius confusiónis.

℟. In princípíus Deus ántequam terram fáceret, priúsqvam abýssos constitúeret, priúsqvam producéret fontes aquárum, * Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

✠. Quando præparábat cælos, áderam, cum eo cuncta compónens.

℟. Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

LECTIO II

PROV 10:6-10

Benedíctio Dómini super caput justí, os autem impiórum óperit iniquitas. Memória justí cum láudibus, et nomen impiórum putrésceat. Sápiens corde præcépta súscipit, stultus cæditur lábiis. Qui ámbulat simplíciter, ámbulat confidénter; qui autem deprávat vías

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Proverbs

PROV 10:1-5

A wise son maketh the father glad: but a foolish son is the sorrow of his mother. Treasures of wickedness shall profit nothing: but justice shall deliver from death. The Lord will not afflict the soul of the just with famine, and he will disappoint the deceitful practices of the wicked. The slothful hand hath wrought poverty: but the hand of the industrious getteth riches. He that trusteth to lies feedeth the winds: and the same runneth after birds that fly away. He that gathered in the harvest is a wise son: but he that snorteth in the summer, is the son of confusion.

℟. God possessed me in the beginning, before He made the earth, before He created the depths, before He caused the fountains of water to spring. * Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

✠. When He prepared the heavens, I was there with Him, ordering all things.

℟. Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

LESSON II

PROV 10:6-10

The blessing of the Lord is upon the head of the just: but iniquity covereth the mouth of the wicked. The memory of the just is with praises: and the name of the wicked shall rot. The wise of heart receiveth precepts: a fool is beaten with lips. He that walketh sincerely, walketh confidently:

suas, manifestus erit. Qui annuit óculo dabit dolórem, et stultus lábiis verberábitur.

R. Gyrum cæli circuívī sola, et in flúctibus maris ambulávi, in omni gente et in omni pópulo primátum ténui: * Superbórum et sublímium colla própria virtúte calcávi.

Ÿ. Ego in altíssimis hábito, et thronus meus in coluḿna nubis.

R. Superbórum et sublímium colla própria virtúte calcávi.

LECTIO III Prov 10:11-16

Vena vitæ os iusti, et os impiórum óperit iniquitátem. Odium súscitat rixas, et univérsa delícta óperit caritas. In lábiis sapiéntis invenítur sapiéntia, et virga in dorso ejus qui índiget corde. Sapiéntes abscondunt sciéntiam, os autem stulti confusióni próximum est. Substántia dívitis urbs fortitúdinis ejus, pavor páuperum egéstas eórum. Opus iusti ad vitam, fructus autem ímpii ad peccátum.

R. Emítte, Dómine, sapiéntiam de sede magnitúdinis tuæ, ut mecum sit et mecum labóret: * Ut sciam, quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

Ÿ. Da mihi, Dómine, sédium tuárum assistrícem sapiéntiam.

R. Ut sciam quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Ut sciam quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

but he that perverteth his ways, shall be manifest. He that winketh with the eye shall cause sorrow: and the foolish in lips shall be beaten.

R. I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked on the waves of the sea. In every nation and in every people, I held the first place. * In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

Ÿ. I dwell in the highest places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar.

R. In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

LESSON III Prov 10:11-16

The mouth of the just is a vein of life: and the mouth of the wicked covereth iniquity. Hatred stirreth up strifes: and charity covereth all sins. In the lips of the wise is wisdom found: and a rod on the back of him that wanteth sense. Wise men lay up knowledge: but the mouth of the fool is next to confusion. The substance of a rich man is the city of his strength: the fear of the poor is their poverty. The work of the just is unto life: but the fruit of the wicked, unto sin.

R. O send out wisdom from the throne of thy glory, O Lord, to be with me, and to labour with me, * That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ÿ. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

LECTIO I

De Parabolis Salomónis

Prov 14:1-5

Sápiens múlter ædificat domum suam, insípiens exstrúctam quoque mánibus déstruet. Ambulans recto itínere et timens Deum despícitur ab eo qui infámi gráditur via. In ore stulti virga supérbiæ, lábia autem sapiéntium custódiunt eos. Ubi non sunt boves, præsépe vácuum est; ubi autem plúrimæ ségetes, ibi manifestá est fortitúdo bovis. Testis fidelis non mentítur, profert autem mendácium dolósus testis.

℟. Da mihi, Dómine, sédium tuárum assistrícem sapiéntiam, et noli me reprobáre a púeris tuis: * Quóniam servus tuus sum ego, et fílius ancíllæ tuæ.

℣. Mitte illam de sede magnitúdinis tuæ, ut mecum sit et mecum labóret.

℟. Quóniam servus tuus sum ego, et fílius ancíllæ tuæ.

LECTIO II

Prov 14:6-11

Quærit derísor sapiéntiam et non ínvenit, doctrína prudéntium fácilis. Vade contra virum stultum, et nescit lábia prudéntiæ. Sapiéntia cállidi est intellégere viam suam, et imprudéntia stultórum errans. Stultus illúdet peccátum, et inter justos morábitur grátia. Cor, quod novit amaritúdinem ánimæ suæ, in gáudio ejus non miscébitur extráneus. Domus impiórum delébitur, tabernácula vero justórum germinábunt.

℟. Inítium sapiéntiæ timor Dómini: * Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sáeculum sáeculi.

℣. Diléctio illíus custódia legum est: quia ómnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Proverbs

Prov 14:1-5

A wise woman buildeth her house: but the foolish will pull down with her hands that also which is built. He that walketh in the right way, and feareth God, is despised by him that goeth by an infamous way. In the mouth of a fool is the rod of pride: but the lips of the wise preserve them. Where there are no oxen, the crib is empty: but where there is much corn, there the strength of the ox is manifest. A faithful witness will not lie: but a deceitful witness uttereth a lie.

℟. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

℣. O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.

℟. For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LESSON II

Prov 14:6-11

A scorner seeketh wisdom, and findeth it not: the learning of the wise is easy. Go against a foolish man, and he knoweth not the lips of prudence. The wisdom of a discreet man is to understand his way: and the imprudence of fools erreth. A fool will laugh at sin, but among the just grace shall abide. The heart that knoweth the bitterness of his own soul, in his joy the stranger shall not intermeddle. The house of the wicked shall be destroyed: but the tabernacles of the just shall flourish.

℟. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

℣. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

℟. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

R. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sǎculum sǎculi.

LECTIO III

Prov 14:12-16

Est via, quæ vidétur hómini justa, novíssima autem ejus dedúcut ad mortem. Risus dolóre miscébitur, et extréma gáudii luctus óccupat. Viis suis replébitur stultus, et super eum erit vir bonus. Innocens credit omni verbo, astútus consíderat gressus suos. Fílio dolóso nihil erit boni, servo autem sapiénti prósperi erunt actus et dirigétur via ejus.
Sápiens timet et declínat a malo, stultus trán-silit et confídít.

R. Verbum iníquum et dolósum longe fac a me, Dómine: * Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbeue necessária.

ψ. Duo rogávi te, ne déneges mihi ántequam móriar.

R. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbeue necessária.

ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi,
sed tantum víctui meo tríbeue necessária.

LESSON III

Prov 14:12-16

There is a way which seemeth just to a man: but the ends thereof lead to death. Laughter shall be mingled with sorrow, and mourning taketh hold of the end of joy. A fool shall be filled with his own ways, and the good man shall be above him. The innocent believeth every word: the discreet man considereth his steps. No good shall come to the deceitful son: but the wise servant shall prosper in his dealings, and his way shall be made straight. A wise man feareth and declineth from evil: the fool leapeth over and is confident.

R. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. *
Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

ψ. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.

R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

LECTIO I

De Parábolis Salomónis

Prov 16:1-5

Hóminis est ánimam præparáre, et Dómini gubernáre linguam. Omnes viæ hóminis patent óculis ejus: spirítuum ponderátor est Dóminus. Revéla Dómino ópera tua, et dirigéntur cogitatiónes tuæ. Univérsa propter semetípsum operátus est Dóminus, ímpium quoque ad diem malum. Abominátio Dómini est omnis árrogans, étiam si manus ad manum fúerit, non est ínnocens.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Proverbs

Prov 16:1-5

It is the part of man to prepare the soul: and of the Lord to govern the tongue. All the ways of a man are open to his eyes: the Lord is the weigher of spirits. Lay open thy works to the Lord: and thy thoughts shall be directed. The Lord hath made all things for himself: the wicked also for the evil day. Every proud man is an abomination to the Lord: though hand should be joined to hand, he is not innocent.

R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitatu maligno: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malignum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

ψ. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

R. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO II

Prov 16:5-9

Inítium viæ bonæ fácere justítiam, accépta est autem apud Deum magis quam immoláre hóstias. Misericórdia et veritáte redímítur iníquitas, et in timóre Dómini declinátur a malo. Cum placúerint Dómino viæ hómínis, inimícos quoque ejus convértet ad pacem. Mélius est parum cum justítia, quam multi fructus cum iniquitáte. Cor hómínis dispónit viam suam, sed Dómini est dirígere gressus ejus.

R. Magna enim sunt judícia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabilia verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

ψ. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvexísti eos per aquam níciam.

R. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Prov 16:10-15

Divinatio in lábiis regis, in judicio non errábit os ejus. Pondus et statéra judícia Dómini sunt, et ópera ejus omnes lápides sácculi. Abominábiles regi qui agunt ímpie, quóniam justítia firmátur sólíum. Volúntas regum lábia justa, qui recta lóquitur diligétur. Indignatio regis núntii mortis, et vir sápiens placábit eam. In hilaritáte vultus regis vita, et cleméntia ejus quasi imber serótínus.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

ψ. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

R. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON II

Prov 16:5-9

The beginning of a good way is to do justice; and this is more acceptable with God, than to offer sacrifices. By mercy and truth iniquity is redeemed: and by the fear of the Lord men depart from evil. When the ways of man shall please the Lord, he will convert even his enemies to peace. Better is a little with justice, than great revenues with iniquity. The heart of man disposeth his way: but the Lord must direct his steps.

R. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

ψ. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

R. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Prov 16:10-15

Divination is in the lips of the king, his mouth shall not err in judgment. Weight and balance are judgments of the Lord: and his work all the weights of the bag. They that act wickedly are abominable to the king: for the throne is established by justice. Just lips are the delight of kings: he that speaketh right things shall be loved. The wrath of a king is as messengers of death: and the wise man will pacify it. In the cheerfulness of the king's countenance is life: and his clemency is like the latter rain.

R. Quæ sunt in corde hóminum, óculi tui vident, Dómine, et in libro tuo ómnia scribéntur: * Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

Ÿ. Omnia enim corda scrutátur, et univérſas méntium cogitatiónes intéllegit.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

R. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ÿ. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Dominica II Augusti

Second Sunday of August

LECTIO I

Incipit liber Ecclesiástes

Eccl 1:1-7

Verba Ecclesiástæ, fílii David, regis Jerúsalem. Vánitas vanitátum, dixit Ecclesiástes; vánitas vanitátum, et ómnia vánitas. Quid habet ámplius homo de univérſo labóre suo quo labórat sub sole? Generátio præterit, et generátio ádvenit; terra autem in ætérnum stat. Oritur sol et óccidit et ad locum suum revértitur; ibíque renáscens gyrat per merídiem et fléctitur ad aquilónem. Lustrans univérſa in circúitu pergit spíritus et in círculos suos revértitur. Omnia flúmina intrans in mare, et mare non redúndat; ad locum unde éxeunt flúmina revertúntur, ut íterum fluant.

R. In princípíio Deus ántequam terram fáceret, priúsqvam abýssos constitúeret, priúsqvam producéret fontes aquárum, * Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

Ÿ. Quando præparábat cælos, áderam, cum eo cuncta compónens.

R. Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

LECTIO II

Eccl 1:8-11

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiastes

Eccl 1:1-7

The words of Ecclesiastes, the son of David, king of Jerusalem. Vanity of vanities, said Ecclesiastes vanity of vanities, and all is vanity. What hath a man more of all his labour, that he taketh under the sun? One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth standeth for ever. The sun riseth, and goeth down, and returneth to his place: and there rising again, Maketh his round by the south, and turneth again to the north: the spirit goeth forward surveying all places round about, and returneth to his circuits. All the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea doth not overflow: unto the place from whence the rivers come, they return, to flow again.

R. God possessed me in the beginning, before He made the earth, before He created the depths, before He caused the fountains of water to spring. * Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

Ÿ. When He prepared the heavens, I was there with Him, ordering all things.

R. Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

LESSON II

Eccl 1:8-11

Cunctæ res difficîles: non potest eas homo explicâre sermone. Non saturatur oculus visu, nec auris auditu impletur. Quid est quod fuit? Ipsum quod futurum est. Quid est quod factum est? Ipsum quod faciendum est. Nihil sub sole novum, nec valet quisquam dicere: Ecce hoc recens est; jam enim præcessit in sæculis quæ fuerunt ante nos. Non est priorum memoria; sed nec eorum quidem quæ postea futura sunt, erit recordatio apud eos qui futuri sunt in novissimo.

- R. Gyrum cæli circuívi sola, et in fluctibus maris ambulavi, in omni gente et in omni populo primatum tenui: * Superborum et sublimium colla propria virtute calcavi.
- Y. Ego in altissimis habito, et thronus meus in columna nubis.
- R. Superborum et sublimium colla propria virtute calcavi.

LECTIO III

Eccl 1:12-17

Ego Ecclesiastes fui rex Israël in Jerúsalem; et proposui in ánimo meo quærere et investigare sapienter de omnibus quæ fiunt sub sole. Hanc occupationem pessimam dedit Deus filiis hominum, ut occuparentur in ea. Vidi cuncta quæ fiunt sub sole, et ecce universa vanitas et afflictio spiritus. Perversi difficile corriguntur, et stultorum infinitus est numerus. Locutus sum in corde meo dicens: Ecce magnus effectus sum et præcessi omnes sapientia qui fuerunt ante me in Jerúsalem; et mens mea contemplata est multa sapienter, et didici. Dedique cor meum ut scirem prudentiam atque doctrinam, errorésque et stultitiam.

- R. Emítte, Dómine, sapiéntiam de sede magnitúdinis tuæ, ut mecum sit et mecum labóret: * Ut sciam, quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

All things are hard: man cannot explain them by word. The eye is not filled with seeing, neither is the ear filled with hearing. What is it that hath been? the same thing that shall be. What is it that hath been done? the same that shall be done. Nothing under the sun is new, neither is any man able to say: Behold this is new: for it hath already gone before in the ages that were before us. There is no remembrance of former things: nor indeed of those things which hereafter are to come, shall there be any remembrance with them that shall be in the latter end.

- R. I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked on the waves of the sea. In every nation and in every people, I held the first place. * In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.
- Y. I dwell in the highest places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar.
- R. In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

LESSON III

Eccl 1:12-17

I Ecclesiastes was king over Israel in Jerusalem, And I proposed in my mind to seek and search out wisely concerning all things that are done under the sun. This painful occupation hath God given to the children of men, to be exercised therein. I have seen all things that are done under the sun, and behold all is vanity, and vexation of spirit. The perverse are hard to be corrected, and the number of fools is infinite. I have spoken in my heart, saying: Behold I am become great, and have gone beyond all in wisdom, that were before me in Jerusalem: and my mind hath contemplated many things wisely, and I have learned. And I have given my heart to know prudence, and learning, and errors, and folly: and I have perceived that in these also there was labour, and vexation of spirit.

- R. O send out wisdom from the throne of thy glory, O Lord, to be with me, and to labour with me, * That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

- ✠ Da mihi, Dómine, sédium tuárum assistrícem sapiéntiam.
- ℞. Ut sciam quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.
- ✠ Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℞. Ut sciam quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

*From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom,
Patriarch of Constantinople.
Sermon against concubinage*

While Solomon was given up to the lust of the world, he deemed the same a great and noble pursuit, and expended thereon great labour and care.
He built magnificent palaces, he heaped up gold in plenty, he gathered together choirs of singers, and all sorts of servants to minister to the luxury of his table and of his fare. He sought enjoyment for his heart from the charm of gardens and of fair bodies. In short, he gave himself up to the study of all kinds of pleasure and recreation.

- ℞. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.
- ✠ O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.
- ℞. For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LESSON V

But when he came to himself again, and was once more able, as it were, out of that dark pit, to look upon the light of true wisdom, he uttered that saying, so high, so worthy of heaven “Vanity of vanities; all is vanity.” And ye also, if ever ye will shake yourselves clear of your debasing habit, will utter this cry, and an higher cry than this, as ye turn from your untimely indulgences.

- ℞. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they eum: laudatio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

✠. Diléctio illius custódia legum est: quia omnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.

℞. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudatio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

LECTIO VI

Quamvis autem a Salomóne sæculis superioribus non tam multa sapiéntiæ exigebátur diligéntia: neque enim delicias lex vetus prohibébat, neque áliis frui supervácuís dicébat vanum: áttamen et sic se habéntibus rebus, in ipsis contuéri licébit, quam viles et vanitati obnoxíæ res sint. Nos vero ad majórem vocáti vitam, et ad excellentius fastígium ascéndimus, et in majóribus exercémur palæstris: et quid áliud, quam quod, sicut supérnæ virtútes intellectuáles et incorpóreæ illæ, vitam institúere jubémur?

℞. Verbum iníquum et dolósum longe fac a me, Dómine: * Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

✠. Duo rogávi te, ne déneges mihi ántequam móriar.

℞. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

✠. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

℞. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LESSON VI

The ages that had rolled before the time of Solomon had not left to his own so precious an inheritance of wisdom as those which have preceded us have left to us; the old law did not forbid these indulgences, nor pronounce it folly to enjoy other idle luxuries and yet, even with matters so, we can see how low, how worthless, such things be. As for us, we are called to a higher life, we ascend to a nobler stand-point, and brace ourselves in a manlier school and why, but because we are bidden to strive for a life like the life of the spiritual and bodiless powers.

℞. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. *
Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

✠. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.

℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiástæ

Eccl 2:1-4

Dixi ego in corde meo: Vadam et áffluam delíciis et fruar bonis; et vidi quod hoc quoque esset vánitas. Risum reputávi errórem et gáudio dixi: Quid frustra decíperis? Cogitávi in corde meo abstráhere a vino carnem

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiastes

Eccl 2:1-4

I said in my heart: I will go, and abound with delights, and enjoy good things. And I saw that this also was vanity. Laughter I counted error: and to mirth I said: Why art thou vainly deceived? I thought in my heart, to withdraw my flesh from wine, that I might turn my mind to wisdom, and meam, ut ánimum meum transférrem ad sapiéntiam, devitarémque stultítiam, donec vidérem quid esset útile fíliis hóminum, quo facto opus est sub sole número díerum vitæ suæ. Magnificávi ópera mea, ædificávi mihi domos et plantávi víneas.

℞. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, pater et dominátor vitæ meæ, ut non córruam in conspéctu adversariórum meórum: * Ne gaudeat de me inimícus meus.

℣. Apprehénde arma et scutum et exsúrge in adiutórium mihi.

℞. Ne gaudeat de me inimícus meus.

LECTIO II

Ecll 2:7-9

Possédi servos et ancíllas multámque famíliam hábui, arménta quoque et magnos óvium greges, ultra omnes qui fuérunt ante me in Jerúsalem; coacervávi mihi argéntum et aurum et substántias regum ac provinciárum; feci mihi cantóres et cantatrices et delícias filiórum hóminum, scyphos et úrceos in ministério ad vina fundénda, et supergréssus sum ópibus omnes qui ante me fuérunt in Jerúsalem: sapiéntia quoque perseverávit mecum.

℞. Magna enim sunt iudícia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabília verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

℣. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvexisti eos per aquam nímiám.

℞. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

Ecll 2:10-11

Et ómnia, quæ desideravérunt óculi mei, non negávi eis, nec prohibui cor meum, quin omni voluptáte fruerétur et oblectáret se in his quæ præparáveram; et hanc ratus sum partem meam si úterer labóre meo. Cumque me convertíssem ad univérsa ópera, quæ fécerant manus meæ, et ad labóres in quibus frustra sudáveram, vidi in ómnibus vanitámight avoid folly, till I might see what was profitable for the children of men: and what they ought to do under the sun, all the days of their life. I made me great works, I built me houses, and planted vineyards.

℞. O Lord, Father and Governor of my life, leave me not, lest I fall before mine adversaries, * and mine enemy rejoice over me.

℣. Take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for mine help.

℞. Lest mine enemy rejoice over me.

LESSON II

Ecll 2:7-9

I got me menservants, and maidservants, and had a great family: and herds of oxen, and great flocks of sheep, above all that were before me in Jerusalem: I heaped together for myself silver and gold, and the wealth of kings, and provinces: I made me singing men, and singing women, and the delights of the sons of men, cups and vessels to serve to pour out wine: And I surpassed in riches all that were before me in Jerusalem: my wisdom also remained with me.

℞. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

℣. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

℞. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Ecll 2:10-11

And whatsoever my eyes desired, I refused them not: and I withheld not my heart from enjoying every pleasure, and delighting itself in the things which I had prepared: and esteemed this my portion, to make use of my own labour. And when I turned myself to all the works which my hands had wrought, and to the labours wherein I had laboured in vain, I saw in all things vanity, and vex-tem et afflictiónem ánimí, et nihil permanére sub sóle.

R. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiáste

Eccl 3:1-8

Omnia tempus habent, et suis spátiis tránseunt univérsa sub cælo. Tempus nascéndi et tempus moriéndi, tempus plantándi, et tempus evelléndi quod plantátum est; tempus occidéndi et tempus sanándi; tempus destruéndi, et tempus ædificándi; tempus fléndi et tempus ridéndi, tempus plangéndi, et tempus saltándi; tempus spargéndi lápides, et tempus colligéndi, tempus amplexándi et tempus longe fieri ab ampléxibus, tempus acquiréndi, et tempus perdéndi; tempus custodiéndi, et tempus abiciéndi; tempus scindéndi, et tempus consuéndi; tempus tacéndi, et tempus loquéndi; tempus dilectiónis, et tempus ódii; tempus belli, et tempus pacis.

R. Præbe, fili, cor mihi, et óculi tui vias meas custódiant: * Ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo.

Ps. Atténde, fili mi, sapiéntiam meam et ad elóquium meum inclína aurem tuam.

R. Ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo.

LECTIO II

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiastes

Eccl 3:1-8

All things have their season, and in their times all things pass under heaven. A time to be born and a time to die. A time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted. A time to kill, and a time to heal. A time to destroy, and a time to build. A time to weep, and a time to laugh. A time to mourn, and a time to dance. A time to scatter stones, and a time to gather. A time to embrace, and a time to be far from embraces. A time to get, and a time to lose. A time to keep, and a time to cast away. A time to rend, and a time to sew. A time to keep silence, and a time to speak. A time of love, and a time of hatred. A time of war, and a time of peace.

R. My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways. * For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

Ps. My son, attend unto my wisdom, and incline thine ear unto my sayings.

R. For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

LESSON II

Ecc1 3:9-13

Quid habet ámplius homo de labóre suo? Vidi afflictiónem, quam dedit Deus filiis hóminum, ut distendántur in ea. Cuncta fecit bona in témpore suo et mundum trádidit disputatióni eórum, ut non invéniat homo opus quod operátus est Deus ab inítio usque ad finem. Et cognóvi quod non esset mélius nisi lætári et fácere bene in vita sua; omnis enim homo qui cómedit et bibit, et videt bonum de labóre suo, hoc donum Dei est.

℞. Inítium sapiéntiæ timor Dómini: *
Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sǎculum sǎculi.

℣. Diléctio illíus custódia legum est: quia omnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.

℞. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sǎculum sǎculi.

Ecc1 3:14-17

Dídici quod ómnia ópera, quæ fecit Deus, perseverént in perpétuum; non póssumus eis quidquam áddere nec auférre, quæ fecit Deus ut timeátur. Quod factum est ipsum pérmanet, quæ futúra sunt jam fuérunt, et Deus instáurat quod ábiit. Vidi sub sole in loco judícii impietátem et in loco justítiæ iniquitátem: et dixi in corde meo: Justum et ímpium judicábit Deus, et tempus omnis rei tunc erit.

℞. Verbum iníquum et dolósum longe fac a me, Dómine: * Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

℣. Duo rogávi te, ne déneges mihi ántequam móriar.

℞. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

Ecc1 3:9-13

What hath man more of his labour? I have seen the trouble, which God hath given the sons of men to be exercised in it. He hath made all things good in their time, and hath delivered the world to their consideration, so that man cannot find out the work which God hath made from the beginning to the end. And I have known that there was no better thing than to rejoice, and to do well in this life. For every man that eateth and drinketh, and seeth good of his labour, this is the gift of God.

℞. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

℣. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

℞. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

Ecc1 3:14-17

I have learned that all the works which God hath made, continue for ever: we cannot add any thing, nor take away from those things which God hath made that he may be feared. That which hath been made, the same continueth: the things that shall be, have already been: and God restoreth that which is past. I saw under the sun in the place of judgment wickedness, and in the place of justice iniquity. And I said in my heart: God shall judge both the just and the wicked, and then shall be the time of every thing.

℞. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. *
Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

℣. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.

℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi,
sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiástæ

Ecc l 4:1-4

Verti me ad ália, et vidi calúmnia, quæ sub sole gerúntur, et lácrimas innocentium, et néminem consolatórem, nec posse resistere eórum violéntiæ cunctórum auxílio destitútos. Et laudávi magis mórtuos quam vivéntes; et feliciórem utróque judicávi qui necdum natus est nec vidit mala quæ sub sole fiunt. Rursum contemplátus sum omnes labóres hóminum, et indústrias animadvérti patére invídiæ próximi; et in hoc ergo vánitas et cura supérflua est.

R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu malíño: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malígnum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

ψ. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

R. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO II

Ecc l 4:5-8

Stultus cómplicat manus suas et cómedit carnes suas, dicens: Mélior est pugíllus cum réquie, quam plena útraque manus cum labóre et afflictióné ánimo. Consíderans, réperi et áliam vanitátem sub sole. Unus est, et secúndum non habet, non fílium, non fratrem, et tamen laboráre non cessat, nec satiántur óculi ejus divítiis, nec recógitat, dicens: Cui labóro, et fraudo ánimam meam bonis? In hoc quoque vánitas est et afflictio péssima.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiastes

Ecc l 4:1-4

I turned myself to other things, and I saw the oppressions that are done under the sun, and the tears of the innocent, and they had no comforter; and they were not able to resist their violence, being destitute of help from any. And I praised the dead rather than the living: And I judged him happier than them both, that is not yet born, nor hath seen the evils that are done under the sun. Again I considered all the labours of men, and I remarked that their industries are exposed to the envy of their neighhour: so in this also there is vanity, and fruitless care.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

ψ. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

R. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON II

Ecc l 4:5-8

The fool foldeth his hands together, and eateth his own flesh, saying: Better is a handful with rest, than both hands full with labour, and vexation of mind. Considering I found also another vanity under the sun: There is but one, and he hath not a second, no child, no brother, and yet he ceaseth not to labour, neither are his eyes satisfied with riches, neither doth he reflect, saying: For whom do I labour, and defraud my soul of good things? in this also is vanity, and a grievous vexation.

- ℞. Magna enim sunt iudicia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabilia verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.
- ℣. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvexísti eos per aquam nímiā.
- ℞. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Eccl 4:9-13

Mélius est ergo duos esse simul quam unum; habent enim emolumentum societátis suæ. Si unus ceciderit, ab áltero fulciétur. Væ soli, quia, cum ceciderit, non habet sublevántem se. Et si dormierint duo, fovebúntur mútuo: unus quómodo calefiét? Et, si quíspiam prævalúerit contra unum, duo resístunt ei; funículus triplex difícilē rúmpitur. Mélior est puer pauper et sápiens, rege sene et stulto, qui nescit prævidére in pósterum.

- ℞. Quæ sunt in corde hóminum, óculi tui vident, Dómine, et in libro tuo ómnia scribéntur: * Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.
- ℣. Omnia enim corda scrutátur, et univérsas méntium cogitatíones intéllegit.
- ℞. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.
- ℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℞. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

- ℞. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.
- ℣. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.
- ℞. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Eccl 4:9-13

It is better therefore that two should be together, than one: for they have the advantage of their society: If one fall he shall be supported by the other: woe to him that is alone, for when he falleth, he hath none to lift him up. And if two lie together, they shall warm one another: how shall one alone be warmed? And if a man prevail against one, two shall withstand him: a threefold cord is not easily broken. Better is a child that is poor and wise, than a king that is old and foolish, who knoweth not to foresee for hereafter.

- ℞. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.
- ℣. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.
- ℞. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.
- ℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- ℞. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiástæ

Eccl 5:1-4

Ne témere quid loquáris, neque cor tuum sit velox ad proferéndum sermónem coram Deo. Deus enim in cælo, et tu super terram; idcirco sint pauci sermónes tui. Multas curas sequúntur sómnia, et in multis sermónibus

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiastes

Eccl 5:1-4

Speak not any thing rashly, and let not thy heart be hasty to utter a word before God. For God is in heaven, and thou upon earth: therefore let thy words be few. Dreams follow many cares: and in many words shall be found folly. If thou hast vowed any thing to God, defer not to pay it: for inveniétur stultítia. Si quid vovísti Deo, ne moréris réddere; dísplicet enim ei infidélis et stulta promíssio; sed quodcúmque vóveris redde; multóque mélius est non vovére, quam post votum promíssa non réddere.

R. In princípíus Deus ántequam terram fáceret, priúsqvam abýssos constitúeret, priúsqvam prodúceret fontes aquárum, * Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

Ps. Quando præparábat cælos, áderam, cum eo cuncta compónens.

R. Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

LECTIO II

Ecc1 5:5-8

Ne déderis os tuum ut peccáre fácias carnem tuam; neque dicas coram Angelo: Non est providéntia; ne forte irátus Deus contra sermónes tuos díssipet cuncta ópera mánuum tuárum. Ubi multa sunt sómnia, plúrimæ sunt vanitátes et sermónes innúmeri; tu vero Deum time. Si víderis calúmnia egénorū et violénta iudícia et subvérti iustítiam in província, non miréris super hoc negótio; quia excélsio excélsior est álíus, et super hos quoque eminentiórēs sunt álíi; et ínsuper univérsæ terræ rex ímperat serviéti.

R. Gyrum cæli circuívi sola, et in flúctibus maris ambulávi, in omni gente et in omni pópulo primátum ténui: * Superbórum et sublímium colla própria virtúte calcávi.

Ps. Ego in altíssimis hábito, et thronus meus in columna nubis.

R. Superbórum et sublímium colla própria virtúte calcávi.

LECTIO III

Ecc1 5:9-13

Avárus non implébitur pecúnia, et qui amat divítias fructum non cápíet ex eis: et hoc an unfaithful and foolish promise displeaseth him: but whatsoever thou hast vowed, pay it. And it is much better not to vow, than after a vow not to perform the things promised.

R. God possessed me in the beginning, before He made the earth, before He created the depths, before He caused the fountains of water to spring. * Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

Ps. When He prepared the heavens, I was there with Him, ordering all things.

R. Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

LESSON II

Ecc1 5:5-8

Give not thy mouth to cause thy flesh to sin: and say not before the angel: There is no providence: lest God be angry at thy words, and destroy all the works of thy hands. Where there are many dreams, there are many vanities, and words without number: but do thou fear God. If thou shalt see the oppressions of the poor, and violent judgments, and justice perverted in the province, wonder not at this matter: for he that is high hath another higher, and there are others still higher than these: Moreover there is the king that reigneth over all the land subject to him.

R. I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked on the waves of the sea. In every nation and in every people, I held the first place. * In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

Ps. I dwell in the highest places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar.

R. In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

LESSON III

Ecc1 5:9-13

A covetous man shall not be satisfied with money: and he that loveth riches shall reap no fruit from them: so this also is vanity. Where there are great ergo vānitas. Ubi multæ sunt opes, multi et qui cōmedunt eas. Et quid prodest possessōri, nisi quod cernit divitias oculis suis? Dulcis est somnus operāti, sive parum sive multum cōmedat; satūritas autem divitis non sinit eum dormīre. Est et alia infirmitas pessima, quam vidi sub sole: divitiæ conservatæ in malum dōmini sui. Pēreunt enim in afflictione pessima: generāvit fīlium qui in summa egestate erit.

R. Emitte, Dōmine, sapiētiā de sede magnitudinis tuæ, ut tecum sit et tecum laboret: * Ut sciam, quid acceptum sit coram te omni tēpore.

ψ. Da mihi, Dōmine, sēdium tuarum assistricem sapiētiā.

R. Ut sciam quid acceptum sit coram te omni tēpore.

ψ. Glōria Patri, et Fīlio, * et Spirītui Sancto.

R. Ut sciam quid acceptum sit coram te omni tēpore.

riches, there are also many to eat them. And what doth it profit the owner, but that he seeth the riches with his eyes? Sleep is sweet to a labouring man, whether he eat little or much: but the fulness of the rich will not suffer him to sleep. There is also another grievous evil, which I have seen under the sun: riches kept to the hurt of the owner. For they are lost with very great affliction: he hath begotten a son, who shall be in extremity of want.

R. O send out wisdom from the throne of thy glory, O Lord, to be with me, and to labour with me, * That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

ψ. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiastæ

Eccl 6:1-2

Est et aliud malum quod vidi sub sole, et quidem frequens apud hōmines: vir, cui dedit Deus divitias et substantiam et honorem, et nihil deest animæ suæ, ex omnibus quæ desiderat; nec trībut ei potestatem Deus ut cōmedat ex eo, sed homo extrāneus vorābit illud: hoc vānitas et miséria magna est.

R. Da mihi, Dōmine, sēdium tuarum assistricem sapiētiā, et noli me reprobare a pueris tuis: * Quoniam servus tuus sum ego, et fīlius ancillæ tuæ.

ψ. Mitte illam de sede magnitudinis tuæ, ut tecum sit et tecum laboret.

R. Quoniam servus tuus sum ego, et fīlius ancillæ tuæ.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiastes

Eccl 6:1-2

There is also another evil, which I have seen under the sun, and that frequent among men: A man to whom God hath given riches, and substance, and honour, and his soul wanteth nothing of all that he desireth: yet God doth not give him power to eat thereof, but a stranger shall eat it up. This is vanity and a great misery.

R. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

ψ. O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.

R. For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LECTIO III

Eccl 6:6-9

Nonne ad unum locum próperant ómnia? Omnis labor hómínis in ore ejus; sed ánima ejus non implébitur. Quid habet ámplius sápiens a stulto? et quid pauper, nisi ut pergat illuc ubi est vita? Mélius est vidére quod cúpias, quam desideráre quod néscias; sed et hoc vánitas est, et præsumptio spíritus.

- R. Verbum iníquum et dolósum longe fac a me, Dómine: * Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.
- V. Duo rogávi te, ne déneges mihi ántequam móriar.
- R. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.
- V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

LESSON II

Eccl 6:3-6

If a man beget a hundred children, and live many years, and attain to a great age, and his soul make no use of the goods of his substance, and he be without burial: of this man I pronounce, that the untimely born is better than he. For he came in vain, and goeth to darkness, and his name shall be wholly forgotten. He hath not seen the sun, nor known the distance of good and evil: Although he lived two thousand years, and hath not enjoyed good things.

- R. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.
- V. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.
- R. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.
- V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- R. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LESSON III

Eccl 6:6-9

do not all make haste to one place? All the labour of man is for his mouth, but his soul shall not be filled. What hath the wise man more than the fool? and what the poor man, but to go thither, where there is life? Better it is to see what thou mayst desire, than to desire that which thou canst not know. But this also is vanity, and presumption of spirit.

- R. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. * Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.
- V. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.
- R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.
- V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi,
sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiáste

Eccl 7:1-3

Quid necesse est hómini majóra se quárrere, cum ignóret quid condúcat sibi in vita sua, número diérum peregrinátionis suæ et témpore quod velut umbra præterit? Aut quis ei póterit indicáre quid post eum futúrum sub sole sit? Mélius est nomen bonum quam unguénta pretiósa, et dies mortis die nativítatis. Mélius est ire ad domum luctus quam ad domum convívii; in illa enim finis cunctórum admonétur hóminum, et vivens cógitat quid futúrum sit.

R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu maligno: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malignum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

ψ. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

R. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO II

Eccl 7:4-9

Mélior est ira risu, quia per tristítiam vultus corrígitur ánimos delinquéntis. Cor sapiéntium ubi tristítia est, et cor stultórum ubi lætítia. Mélius est a sapiénte córripi, quam stultórum adulatióne decipi; quia sicut sónitus spinárum ardéntium sub olla, sic risus stulti; sed et hoc vánitas. Calúmnia contúrbat sapiéntem et perdet robur cordis illius. Mélior est finis oratiónis quam princípium, mélior est patiéns arrogánte.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiastes

Eccl 7:1-3

What needeth a man to seek things that are above him, whereas he knoweth not what is profitable for him in his life, in all the days of his pilgrimage, and the time that passeth like a shadow? Or who can tell him what shall be after him under the sun? A good name is better than precious ointments: and the day of death than the day of one's birth. It is better to go to the house of mourning, than to the house of feasting: for in that we are put in mind of the end of all, and the living thinketh what is to come.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

ψ. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

R. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON II

Eccl 7:4-9

Anger is better than laughter: because by the sadness of the countenance the mind of the offender is corrected. The heart of the wise is where there is mourning, and the heart of fools where there is mirth. It is better to be rebuked by a wise man, than to be deceived by the flattery of fools. For as the crackling of thorns burning under a pot, so is the laughter of a fool: now this also is vanity. Oppression troubleth the wise, and shall destroy the strength of his heart. Better is the end of a speech

R. Magna enim sunt iudicia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabilia verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

Ψ. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvestísti eos per aquam nímiám.

R. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Eccl 7:11-14

Ne dicas: Quid putas causæ est quod prióra témpora melióra fuére quam nunc sunt? stulta enim est hujuscémodi interrogátio. Utílior est sapiéntia cum divítiis et magis prodest vidéntibus solem. Sicut enim prótegit sapiéntia, sic prótegit pecúnia; hoc autem plus habet erudítio et sapiéntia, quod vitam tríbuunt possessóri suo. Considera ópera Dei, quod nemo possit corrígere quem ille despéxerit.

R. Quæ sunt in corde hóminum, óculi tui vident, Dómine, et in libro tuo ómnia scribéntur: * Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

Ψ. Omnia enim corda scrutátur, et univérsas méntium cogitatiónes intéllegit.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

Ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

than the beginning. Better is the patient man than the presumptuous.

R. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

Ψ. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

R. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Eccl 7:11-14

Say not: What thinkest thou is the cause that former times were better than they are now? for this manner of question is foolish. Wisdom with riches is more profitable, and bringeth more advantage to them that see the sun. For as wisdom is a defence, so money is a defence: but learning and wisdom excel in this, that they give life to him that possesseth them. Consider the works of God, that no man can correct whom he hath despised.

R. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ψ. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

LECTIO I

Incipit liber Sapiéntiæ

Sap 1:1-4

Dilígite justítiam, qui judicátis terram, sentíte de Dómino in bonitáte et in simplicitáte cordis quærite illum; quóniam invenítur ab his qui non tentant illum, appáret autem eis

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Wisdom

Wis 1:1-4

Love justice, you that are the judges of the earth. Think of the Lord in goodness, and seek him in simplicity of heart. For he is found by them that tempt him not: and he sheweth himself to them qui fidem habent in illum. Pervérsæ enim cogitationes séparant a Deo, probata autem virtus corripit insipientes; quóniam in malévolam ánimam non introíbit sapiéntia, nec habitábit in córpore súbdito peccátis.

R. In princípio Deus ántequam terram fáceret, priúsqum abýssos constitúeret, priúsqum prodúceret fontes aquárum, * Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

Ÿ. Quando præparábat cælos, áderam, cum eo cuncta compónens.

R. Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

LECTIO II

Sap 1:5-8

Spíritus enim sanctus disciplínæ effúgiet fictum et áuferet se a cogitationibus quæ sunt sine intelléctu et corripiétur a superveniénte iniquitaté. Benígnus est enim spíritus sapiéntiæ et non liberábit malédicum a lábiis suis; quóniam renum illíus testis est Deus et cordis illíus scrutátor est verus, et linguæ ejus audítor: quóniam spíritus Dómini replévit orbem terrárum, et hoc quod cóntinet ómnia, sciéntiam habet vocis. Propter hoc qui lóquitur iníqua non potest latére, nec prætériet illum corripiens judícium.

R. Gyrum cæli circuívi sola, et in flúctibus maris ambulávi, in omni gente et in omni pópulo primátum ténui: * Superbórum et sublímium colla própria virtúte calcávi.

Ÿ. Ego in altíssimis hábito, et thronus meus in cólúmna nubis.

R. Superbórum et sublímium colla própria virtúte calcávi.

LECTIO III

Sap 1:9-11

In cogitationibus enim ímpii interrogátio erit, sermónum autem illíus audítio ad that have faith in him. For perverse thoughts separate from God: and his power, when it is tried, reproveth the unwise: For wisdom will not enter into a malicious soul, nor dwell in a body subject to sins.

R. God possessed me in the beginning, before He made the earth, before He created the depths, before He caused the fountains of water to spring. * Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

Ÿ. When He prepared the heavens, I was there with Him, ordering all things.

R. Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

LESSON II

Wis 1:5-8

For the Holy Spirit of discipline will flee from the deceitful, and will withdraw himself from thoughts that are without understanding, and he shall not abide when iniquity cometh in. For the spirit of wisdom is benevolent, and will not acquit the evil speaker from his lips: for God is witness of his reins, and he is a true searcher of his heart, and a hearer of his tongue. For the spirit of the Lord hath filled the whole world: and that, which containeth all things, hath knowledge of the voice. Therefore he that speaketh unjust things cannot be hid, neither shall the chastising judgment pass him by.

R. I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked on the waves of the sea. In every nation and in every people, I held the first place. * In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

Ÿ. I dwell in the highest places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar.

R. In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

LESSON III

Wis 1:9-11

For inquisition shall be made into the thoughts of the ungodly: and the hearing of his words shall Deum véniet ad correptionem iniquitatum illius; quóniam auris zeli audit ómnia, et tumultus murmuratiónum non abscondetur. Custodíte ergo vos a murmuratióne, quæ nihil prodest, et a detractiÓne párcite linguæ, quóniam sermo obscurus in vácuum non ibit, os autem quod mentítur occídit ánimam.

R. Emítte, Dómine, sapiéntiam de sede magnitúdinis tuæ, ut mecum sit et mecum labóret: * Ut sciam, quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

Ÿ. Da mihi, Dómine, sédium tuárum assístrícem sapiéntiam.

R. Ut sciam quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Ut sciam quid accéptum sit coram te omni témpore.

LECTIO IV

Ex libro Officiórum sancti Ambrósii Episcopi

Lib. 1. Cap. 28 et 29

Magnus justítiæ splendor, quæ áliis pótius nata quam sibi, communitátem et societátem nostram adjuvat, excelsitátem tenet, ut suo judício ómnia subjécta hábeat, opem áliis ferat, pecúniám cónferat, offícia non ábnuat, perícula suscípiat aliéna. Quis non cúperet hanc virtútis arcem tenére, nisi prima avarítia infirmáret atque inflécteret tantæ virtútis vigórem? Etenim dum augére opes, aggregáre pecúnias, occupáre terras possessiÓnibus cúpimus, præstáre divítiis; justítiæ formam exúimus, beneficéntiam commúnem amíttimus.

R. Da mihi, Dómine, sédium tuárum assístrícem sapiéntiam, et noli me reprobáre a púeris tuis: * Quóniam servus tuus sum ego, et fílius ancíllæ tuæ.

Ÿ. Mitte illam de sede magnitúdinis tuæ, ut mecum sit et mecum labóret.

come to God, to the chastising of his iniquities. For the ear of jealousy heareth all things, and the tumult of murmuring shall not be hid. Keep yourselves therefore from murmuring, which profiteth nothing, and refrain your tongue from detraction, for an obscure speech shall not go for nought: and the mouth that believeth, killeth the soul.

R. O send out wisdom from the throne of thy glory, O Lord, to be with me, and to labour with me, * That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ÿ. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

LESSON IV

From the Book of St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan, "On Offices."

Bk. i. c. 28

Great is the glory of justice. She liveth for others rather than for herself. By her our commonwealth and fellowship are holpen. She holdeth such a pre-eminence that all things are subject unto her judgment. She helpeth others. She giveth wealth. She refuseth not to labour. She taketh upon her the dangers of others. Who would not desire to hold this castle of power and courage, if the covetousness of our first parents had not weakened and distorted the strength of our nerve But so it is, that, while we are fain to increase wealth, to put by money, to add lands to our possessions, or to make show of our abundance, we put off the image of justice, and lose charity toward our brethren.

R. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

Ÿ. O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.

R. Quóniam servus tuus sum ego, et fílius ancíllæ tuæ.

LECTIO V

Quanta autem justítia sit, ex hoc intélligi potest, quod nec locis, nec persónis, nec temporibus excípitur, quæ étiam hóstibus reservátur: ut si constitútus sit cum hoste aut locus aut dies prælio, advérsus justítiam putétur aut loco præveníre aut témpore. Interest enim utrum áliquis pugna áliqua et conflictu gravi capiátur, an superióre grátia, vel áliquo événtu. Si ergo in bello justítia valet, quanto magis in pace servánda est?

R. Inítium sapiéntiæ timor Dómini: *
Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

V. Diléctio illíus custódia legum est: quia omnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.

R. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

LECTIO VI

Fundaméntum ergo est justítia fides. Justórum enim corda medítantur fidem: et qui se justus accúsat, justítiam supra fidem cóllocat. Nam tunc justítia ejus appáret, si vera fateátur. Dénique et Dóminus per Isaíam: Ecce, inquit, mitto lápidem in fundaméntum Sion: id est, Christum in fundaméntum Ecclésiæ. Fides enim ómnium Christus: Ecclésia autem quædam forma justítia est, commúne jus ómnium: in commúne orat, in commúne operátur, in commúne tentátur. Dénique qui seípsum sibi ábnegat, ipse justus, ipse dignus Christo est. Ideo et Paulus fundaméntum pósuit Christum, ut supra eum ópera justítia locarémus, quia fides fundaméntum est.

R. Verbum iníquum et dolósum longe fac a me, Dómine: * Divítias et paupertátem

R. For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LESSON V

How far-spreading is the field of justice appeareth by this, that there is excepted therefrom no place, person, or time, nay, she hath to do even as regards enemies, for if one be agreed with his enemy of a certain place, or day for battle, it should be deemed unjust to fall on him beforehand, at some other place, or time. For it is a very different thing, whether one get the better of another in a hard fight, or by skill, or by accident. If therefore in war justice hath place, how much more is she to be observed in time of peace

R. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

V. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

R. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LESSON VI

Honour is the foundation of justice. The thoughts in the hearts of just men are honourable thoughts and when the just man accuseth himself, it is honour that bringeth him to that just deed. Then is his justice made manifest by his honourable avowal. The Lord saith by Isaiah "Behold, I lay in Zion a foundation-stone" (xxviii. 16), that is to say, He giveth Christ unto the Church to be her foundation. Christ is the true honour for all men, and the Church is as it were a figure of justice, being a commonwealth wherein all have rights, and which worketh as one, and suffereth as one. Whosoever denieth himself, the same is just, and worthy of Christ. Therefore also Paul saith "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (I Cor. iii. 11), and upon that foundation is it, that every building of justice must be raised. For the spirit of Christ is the true spirit of honour which is the foundation whereon justice resteth.

LECTIO I

De libro Sapientiæ

Sap 3:1-6

Justórum autem ánimæ in manu Dei sunt, et non tanget illos torméntum mortis. Visi sunt óculis insipientium mori, et æstimáta est afflíctio éxitus illórum, et quod a nobis est iter extermínium; illi autem sunt in pace; et si coram homínibus torménta passi sunt, spes illórum immortalité plena est. In paucis vexáti in multis bene disponéntur, quóniam Deus tentávit eos et invénit illos dignos se. Tamquam aurum in fornáce probávit illos, et quasi holocáusti hóstiam accépit illos, et in témpore erit respéctus illórum.

℟. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, pater et dominátor vitæ meæ, ut non córruam in conspéctu adversariórum meórum: * Ne gaudeat de me inimícus meus.

✠. Apprehénde arma et scutum et exsúrge in adjutórium mihi.

℟. Ne gaudeat de me inimícus meus.

LECTIO II

Sap 3:7-11

Fulgébunt justí et tamquam scintíllæ in arundineto discúrrunt; judicábunt nátiónes et dominabúntur pópulis, et regnábit Dóminus illórum in perpétuum. Qui confidunt in illo

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Wisdom

Wis 3:1-6

But the souls of the just are in the hand of God, and the torment of death shall not touch them. In the sight of the unwise they seemed to die: and their departure was taken for misery: And their going away from us, for utter destruction: but they are in peace. And though in the sight of men they suffered torments, their hope is full of immortality. Afflicted in few things, in many they shall be well rewarded: because God hath tried them, and found them worthy of himself. As gold in the furnace he hath proved them, and as a victim of a holocaust he hath received them, and in time there shall be respect had to them.

℟. O Lord, Father and Governor of my life, leave me not, lest I fall before mine adversaries, * and mine enemy rejoice over me.

✠. Take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for mine help.

℟. Lest mine enemy rejoice over me.

LESSON II

Wis 3:7-11

The just shall shine, and shall run to and fro like sparks among the reeds. They shall judge nations, and rule over people, and their Lord shall reign for ever. They that trust in him, shall understand the intelligent veritatem, et fideles in dilectione acquiescent illi, quoniam donum et pax est electis ejus. Impii autem, secundum quæ cogitaverunt, correptionem habebunt, qui neglexerunt justum et a Domino recesserunt. Sapientiam enim et disciplinam qui abicit infelix est; et vacua est spes illorum, et labores sine fructu, et inutilia opera eorum.

R. Magna enim sunt judicia tua, Domine, et inenarrabilia verba tua: * Magnificasti populum tuum et honorasti.

V. Transtulisti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvestisti eos per aquam nimiam.

R. Magnificasti populum tuum et honorasti.

V. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

R. Magnificasti populum tuum et honorasti.

LECTIO III

Sap 5 :16-21

Justi autem in perpetuum vivent, et apud Dominum est merces eorum et cogitatio illorum apud Altissimum. Ideo accipient regnum decoris et diadema speciei de manu Domini; quoniam dextera sua teget eos et brachio sancto suo defendet illos. Accipiet armaturam zelus illius et armabit creaturam ad ultionem inimicorum. Induet pro thorace justitiam et accipiet pro galea iudicium certum, sumet scutum inexpugnabile æquitatem. Acuet autem duram iram in lanceam, et pugnabit cum illo orbis terrarum contra insensatos.

R. Quæ sunt in corde hominum, oculi tui vident, Domine, et in libro tuo omnia scribentur: * Homo videt in facie, Deus autem in corde.

But the wicked shall be punished according to their own devices: who have neglected the just, and have revolted from the Lord. R. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Wis 5:16-21

But the just shall live for evermore: and their reward is with the Lord, and the care of them with the most High. Therefore shall they receive a kingdom of glory, and a crown of beauty at the hand of the Lord: for with his right hand he will cover them, and with his holy arm he will defend them. And his zeal will take armour, and he will arm the creature for the revenge of his enemies. He will put on justice as a breastplate, and will take true judgment instead of a helmet. He will take equity for an invincible shield: And he will sharpen his severe wrath for a spear, and the whole world shall fight with him against the unwise.

R. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

LECTIO I

De libro Sapientiæ

Sap 6:1-5

Mélior est sapiéntia quam vires, et vir prudens quam fortis. Audíte ergo, reges, et intelégite; díscite, júdices fínium terræ; præbéte aures, vos qui continétis multitúdi- nes et placétis vobis in turbis natiónum; quóniam data est a Dómino potéstas vobis, et virtus ab Altíssimo, qui interrogábit ópera vestra et cogitatiónes scrutábitur; quóniam, cum essétis minístri regni illíus, non recte judicástis nec custodístis legem justítiæ neque secúndum voluntátem Dei ambulástis.

R. Præbe, fili, cor mihi, et óculi tui vias meas custodiánt: * Ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo.

Ÿ. Atténde, fili mi, sapiéntiam meam et ad elóquium meum inclína aurem tuam.

R. Ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo.

LECTIO II

Sap 6:6-9

Horrénde et cito apparebit vobis, quóniam júdicium duríssimum his qui præsumt fiet. Exíguo enim concéditur misericórdia; potén- tes autem poténter torménta patiéntur; non enim súbtrahet persónam cuiúsquam Deus nec verébitur magnitúdinem cuiúsquam; quóniam pusíllum et magnum ipse fecit, et æqualiter cura est illi de ómnibus; fortióri- bus autem fórtior instat cruciatio.

R. Inítium sapiéntiæ timor Dómini: * Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sáculum sáculi.

Ÿ. Diléctio illíus custódia legum est: quia omnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Wisdom

Wis 6:1-5

Wisdom is better than strength, and a wise man is better than a strong man. Hear therefore, ye kings, and understand: learn, ye that are judges of the ends of the earth. Give ear, you that rule the people, and that please yourselves in multitudes of nations: For power is given you by the Lord, and strength by the most High, who will examine your works, and search out your thoughts: Because being ministers of his kingdom, you have not judged rightly, nor kept the law of justice, nor walked according to the will of God.

R. My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways. * For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

Ÿ. My son, attend unto my wisdom, and incline thine ear unto my sayings.

R. For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

Wis 6:6-9

Horribly and speedily will he appear to you: for a most severe judgment shall be for them that bear rule. For to him that is little, mercy is granted: but the mighty shall be mightily tormented. For God will not except any man's person, neither will he stand in awe of any man's greatness: for he made the little and the great, and he hath equally care of all. But a greater punishment is ready for the more mighty.

R. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

Ÿ. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

℞. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sǎculum sǎculi.

LECTIO III

Sap 6:10-13

Ad vos ergo, reges, sunt hi sermónes mei, ut discátis sapiéntiam et non excidátis. Qui enim custodierint justa juste, justificabúntur; et, qui didicerint ista, invénient quid respóndeanť. Concupiscite ergo sermónes meos, dilígite illos et habébitis disciplínam. Clara est, et quæ numquam marcéscit, sapiéntia: et fáciľe vidétur ab his qui dfligunt eam, et invenítur ab his qui quærunt illam.

℞. Verbum iníquum et dolósum longe fac a me, Dómine: * Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo trfbue necessária.

ψ. Duo rogávi te, ne déneges mihi ántequam móriar.

℞. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo trfbue necessária.

ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo trfbue necessária.

℞. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

Wis 6:10-13

To you, therefore, O kings, are these my words, that you may learn wisdom, and not fall from it. For they that have kept just things justly, shall be justified: and they that have learned these things, shall find what to answer. Covet ye therefore my words, and love them, and you shall have instruction. Wisdom is glorious, and never fadeth away, and is easily seen by them that love her, and is found by them that seek her.

℞. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. * Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

ψ. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.

℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

De libro Sapiéntiæ

Sap 7:1-6

Sum quidem et ego mortális homo, símilis ómnibus, et ex génere terréni illfús, qui prior factus est, et in ventre matris figurátus sum caro, decem ménsium témpore coagulátus sum in sánguine: ex sémine hóminis et delectaménto somni conveniénte; et ego natus accépi commúnem áërem et in simlíter factam decídi terram et primam vocem símílem ómnibus emísi plorans; in involuméntis nutritus sum, et curis magnis. LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Wisdom

Wis 7:1-6

I myself also am a mortal man, like all others, and of the race of him, that was first made of the earth, and in the womb of my mother I was fashioned to be flesh. In the time of ten months I was compacted in blood, of the seed of man, and the pleasure of sleep concurring. And being born I drew in the common air, and fell upon the earth, that is made alike, and the first voice which I uttered was crying, as all others do. I was nursed in swaddling clothes, and with great cares. For none of the kings had any other beginning of birth. For all men have one entrance into life, and the like going out.

unus ergo intróitus est ómnibus ad vitam, et símilis éxitus.

R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu maligno: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malignum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

Ψ. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

R. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO II

Sap 7:7-10

Propter hoc optávi, et datus est mihi sensus; et invocávi, et venit in me spíritus sapiéntiæ; et prapósui illam regnis et sédibus, et divítias nihil esse duxi in comparatióne illús. Nec comparávi illi lápidem pretiósus, quóniam omne aurum in comparatióne illús aréna est exígua, et tamquam lutum æstimábitur argéntum in conspéctu illús. Ψ. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

R. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON II

Wis 7:7-10

Wherefore I wished, and understanding was given me: and I called upon God, and the spirit of wisdom came upon me: And I preferred her before kingdoms and thrones, and esteemed riches nothing in comparison of her. Neither did I compare unto her any precious stone: for all gold in comparison of her, is as a little sand, and silver in respect to her shall be counted as clay. I loved her above health and beauty, and chose to have her instead of light: for her light cannot be put out.

R. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

Ψ. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

R. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Wis 7:11-14

Now all good things came to me together with her, and innumerable riches through her hands, And I rejoiced in all these: for this wisdom went before me, and I knew not that she was the mother of them all. Which I have learned without guile, and communicate without envy, and her riches I hide not. For she is an infinite treasure to men! which

LECTIO I

De libro Sapientiæ

Sap 9:13-19

Quis hóminum póterit scire consílium Dei? aut quis póterit cogitare quid velit Deus? Cogitatíones enim mortálium tímida, et incértæ providéntiæ nostræ; corpus enim quod corrúmpitur ággravat ánimam, et terréna inhabitátio déprimit sensum multa cogitántem. Et difícilé æstimámus quæ in terra sunt, et quæ in prospéctu sunt invenímus cum labóre; quæ autem in cælis sunt quis investigábit? Sensum autem tuum quis sciet, nisi tu déderis sapiéntiam, et míseris Spíritum Sanctum tuum de altíssimis, et sic corréctæ sint sémitæ eórum qui sunt in terris, et quæ tibi placent didícérunt hómines? Nam per sapiéntiam sanáti sunt quicúmque placuerunt tibi, Dómine, a princípio.

R. In princípio Deus ántequam terram fáceret, priúsqvam abyíssos constitúeret, priúsqvam prodúceret fontes aquárum, * Ántequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

Ÿ. Quando præparábat cælos, áderam, cum eo cuncta compónens.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Wisdom

Wis 9:13-19

For who among men is he that can know the counsel of God? or who can think what the will of God is? For the thoughts of mortal men are fearful, and our counsels uncertain. For the corruptible body is a load upon the soul, and the earthly habitation presseth down the mind that museth upon many things. And hardly do we guess aright at things that are upon earth: and with labour do we find the things that are before us. But the things that are in heaven, who shall search out? And who shall know thy thought, except thou give wisdom, and send thy Holy Spirit from above: And so the ways of them that are upon earth may be corrected, and men may learn the things that please thee? For by wisdom they were healed, whosoever have pleased thee, O Lord, from the beginning.

R. God possessed me in the beginning, before He made the earth, before He created the depths, before He caused the fountains of water to spring. * Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

Ÿ. When He prepared the heavens, I was there with Him, ordering all things.

R. Antequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

LECTIO II

Sap 10:1-5

Hæc illum, qui primus formátus est a Deo pater orbis terrárum, cum solus esset creátus, custodívit et edúxit illum a delícto suo, et dedit illi virtútem continéndi ómnia. Ab hac ut recéssit injústus in ira sua, per iram homicídii fratérni depériit. Propter quem, cum aqua deléret terram, sanávit íterum sapiéntia per contemptibile lignum justum gubérnans. Hæc, et in consénsu nequitiæ cum se natiónes contulíssent, scivit justum et conservávit sine queréla Deo, et in filii misericórdia formet custodívit.

Hæc justum a pereúntibus ímpiis liberávit fugiéntem, descendénte igne in Pentápolim, quibus in testimónium nequitiæ fumigabúnda constat desérta terra, et incérto témpore fructus hábentes árbores, et incredíbilis ánimæ memória stans figméntum salis. R. Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

LESSON II

Wis 10:1-5

She preserved him, that was first formed by God the father of the world, when he was created alone, And she brought him out of his sin, and gave him power to govern all things. But when the unjust went away from her in his anger, he perished by the fury wherewith he murdered his brother. For whose cause, when water destroyed the earth, wisdom healed it again, directing the course of the just by contemptible wood. Moreover when the nations had conspired together to consent to wickedness, she knew the just, and preserved him without blame to God, and kept him strong against the compassion for his son.

R. I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked on the waves of the sea. In every nation and in every people, I held the first place. * In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

ψ. I dwell in the highest places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar.

R. In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

LESSON III

Wis 10:6-9

She delivered the just man who fled from the wicked that were perishing, when the fire came down upon Pentapolis: Whose land for a testimony of their wickedness is desolate, and smoketh to this day, and the trees bear fruits that ripen not, and a standing pillar of salt is a monument of an incredulous soul. For regarding not wisdom, they did not only slip in this, that they were ignorant of good things, but they left also unto men a memorial of their folly, so that in the things in which they sinned, they could not so much as lie hid. But wisdom hath delivered from sorrow them that attend upon her.

R. O send out wisdom from the throne of thy glory, O Lord, to be with me, and to labour

LECTIO I

De libro Sapiéntiæ

Sap 13:1-3

Vani autem sunt omnes hómines, in quibus non subest sciéntia Dei; et de his, quæ vidéntur bona, non potuerunt intellégere eum qui est, neque opéribus attendéntes agnovérunt quis esset ártifex; sed aut ignem aut spíritum aut citátum áërem aut gyrum stellárum aut nímiam aquam aut solem et lunam rectóres orbis terrárum deos putavérunt. LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Wisdom

Wis 13:1-3

But all men are vain, in whom there is not the knowledge of God: and who by these good things that are seen, could not understand him that is, neither by attending to the works have acknowledged who was the workman: But have imagined either the fire, or the wind, or the swift air, or the circle of the stars, or the great water, or the sun and moon, to be the gods that rule the world. With whose beauty, if they, being delighted, took them to be gods: let them know how much the Lord of them is more beautiful than they: for the first author of beauty made all those things.

℞ Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

✠ O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.

℞ For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LESSON II

Wis 13:4-7

Or if they admired their power and their effects, let them understand by them, that he that made them, is mightier than they: For by the greatness of the beauty, and of the creature, the creator of them may be seen, so as to be known thereby. But est queréla, et hi enim fortásse errant, Deum quæréntes et voléntes inveníre. Etenim, cum in opéribus illíus converséntur, inquirunt et persuásum habent quóniam bona sunt quæ vidéntur.

LECTIO III

Sap 13:8-10

Iterum autem nec his debet ignósci. Si enim tantum potuérunt scire, ut possent æstimare sáculum, quómodo hujus Dóminum non facílius invenérunt? Infelíces autem sunt, et inter mórtuos spes illórum est, qui appellavérunt deos ópera mánuum hóminum, aurum et argéntum, artis inventiónem et similitúdines animálium aut lápidem inútilem opus manus antíquæ.

yet as to these they are less to be blamed. For they perhaps err, seeking God, and desirous to find him. For being conversant among his works, they search: and they are persuaded that the things are good which are seen.

- Ÿ. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.
- R. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LESSON III

Wis 13:8-10

But then again they are not to be pardoned. For if they were able to know so much as to make a judgment of the world: how did they not more easily find out the Lord thereof? But unhappy are they, and their hope is among the dead, who have called gods the works of the hands of men, gold and silver, the inventions of art, and the resemblances of beasts, or an unprofitable stone the work of an ancient hand.

LECTIO I

De libro Sapientiae

Sap 15:1-3

Tu autem, Deus noster, suavis et verus es, pateriens et in misericordia dispónens ómnia. Etenim, si peccáverimus, tui sumus sciéntes magnitudinem tuam; et, si non peccáverimus, scimus quóniam apud te sumus computáti. Nosse enim te, consummáta justítia est, et scire justítiam et virtútem tuam, radix est immortalitátis.

℣. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu maligno: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malignum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO II

Sap 15:4-6

Non enim in errórem indúxit nos hóminum malæ artis excogitátio, nec umbra pictúræ labor sine fructu, effígies sculpta per vários colóres, cuius aspéctus insensáto dat concupiscéntiam, et dīligit mórtuæ imáginis effígiem sine ánima. Malórum amatóres digni sunt qui spem hábeant in tálibus, et qui fáciunt illos et qui dīligunt, et qui colunt.

Lesson from the book of Wisdom

Wis 15:1-3

But thou, our God, art gracious and true, patient, and ordering all things in mercy. For if we sin, we are thine, knowing thy greatness: and if we sin not, we know that we are counted with thee. For to know thee is perfect justice: and to know thy justice, and thy power, is the root of immortality.

℣. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

℣. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

℣. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON II

Wis 15:4-6

For the invention of mischievous men hath not deceived us, nor the shadow of a picture, a fruitless labour, a graven figure with diverse colours, The sight whereof enticeth the fool to lust after it, and he loveth the lifeless figure of a dead image. The lovers of evil things deserve to have no better things to trust in, both they that make them, and they that love them, and they that worship them.

℣. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON II

Sir 1:6-10

To whom hath the root of wisdom been revealed, and who hath known her wise counsels? To whom hath the discipline of wisdom been revealed and made manifest? and who hath understood the multiplicity of her steps? There is one most high Creator Almighty, and a powerful king, and greatly to be feared, who sitteth upon his throne, and is the God of dominion. He created her in the Holy Ghost, and saw her, and numbered her, and measured her. And he poured her out upon all his works, and upon all flesh according to his gift, and hath given her to them that love him.

℟. I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked on the waves of the sea. In every nation and in every people, I held the first place. * In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

✠. I dwell in the highest places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar.

℟. In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty
and proud.

LESSON III

Sir 1:11-16

The fear of the Lord is honour, and glory, and gladness, and a crown of joy. The fear of the Lord shall delight the heart, and shall give joy, and gladness, and length of days. With him that feareth the Lord, it shall go well in the latter end, and in the day of his death he shall be blessed. The love of God is honourable wisdom. And they to whom she shall show herself love her by the sight, and by the knowledge of her great works. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and was cre-

LECTIO IV

Ex libro Morálíum sancti Gregórii Pape

Liber 1, cap. 10 in cap. 1 Job

Sunt nonnúlli qui vitam suam négligunt et, dum transitória áppetunt, dum æténa vel non intélligunt, vel intellécta contémnunt, nec dolórem séntiunt, nec habére consílium sciunt; cumque supérna quæ amisé-runt, non considérant, esse se (heu míseri) in bonis felíces putant. Nequáquam enim ad veritátis lucem, cui cónditi fúerant, mentis óculos érigunt; nequáquam ad contem-platiónem pátriæ ætérynæ desidérii áciem tendunt; sed semetípsos in his, ad quæ proyécti sunt, deseréntes, vice pátriæ díligunt exsílíum quod patiúntur, et in cæcitate quam tólerant, quasi in claritate lúminis exsúltant.

R. Da mihi, Dómine, sédium tuárum assístrícem sapiéntiam, et noli me reprobare a púeris tuis: * Quóniam servus tuus sum ego, et fílius ancíllæ tuæ.

Y. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Y. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

LESSON IV

From the Book of Moral Reflections on Job, written by Pope St. Gregory the Great.

Bk. i. 10 on Job i.

Come there are who are careless concerning their true life, greedy of the things which pass away, but as to the things which are eternal, either understand them not, or, understanding them, holding them to be but of little moment they feel no sorrow, nor know how to take wise advice and, in forgetfulness of the heavenly possessions which they have lost, they deem themselves (alas, poor wretches) happy in their goods. They lift not up their eyes to the light of truth for which they were created no keen desire ever maketh them to cast a longing look toward the everlasting Fatherland. Leaving alone the chief end for which they were made, they fix their affections upon the exile which they are enduring, instead of upon their home, and make merry in the blindness which they are suffering, as though it were glorious day-light.

R. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

Y. O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.

R. For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LECTIO V

At contra, electórum mentes, dum transitória cuncta nulla esse conspíciunt, ad quæ sint cónditæ exquirunt: cumque eórum satisfactióni nihil extra Deum súfficit, ipsa inquisitionis exercitacióne fatigáta illórum cogitatio, in Conditóris sui spe et contemplatióne requiescit, supérnis intérseri civibus appetit; et unusquisque eórum adhuc in mundo corpore pósitus, mente tamen extra mundum surgit: ærumnam exsilií, quam tólerat, deplorat, et ad sublímem pátriam incessántibus se amoris stímulis éxcitat. Cum ergo dolens videt, quam sit ætérnum quod pérdidit, invenit salúbre consílium, temporále hoc despícere quod percúrrit: et quo magis crescit consílii sciéntia ut peritúra déserat, eo augé-tur dolor, quod necdum ad mansúra pertín-gat.

LECTIO VI

Intuéndum quoque est, quod nullus dolor mentis sit in actióne præcipitaciónis. Qui enim sine consíliis vivunt, qui seipsos rerum evéntibus præcípites déserunt, nullo ínterim cogitaciónum dolóre fatigántur. Nam qui solérter in vitæ consílio figit mentem, caute sese in omni actióne circumspeciéndò considerat; et ne ex re quæ ágitur, repentinus finis adversúsque surrípiat, hunc prius mól-liter pósito pede cogitaciónis palpat: pensat, ne ab his quæ agénda sunt, præpédiat formí-do; ne in his quæ differénda sunt, præcipitá-

LESSON V

But, on the other hand, the understandings of the elect, while they apprehend the things which pass away, perceive them to be indeed nothings, and work towards grasping the true end to which they were created, and since nothing outside God satisfieth them, their thought, wearied by the intensity of speculation, findeth rest in the hope for, and the contemplation of, their Maker. They are fain to take their place among the citizens above, and each one of them, although still placed in the world as concerns his body, doth yet in heart and mind ascend above the world. They bemoan the hardships of the exile which they are enduring, and rouse themselves by the constant pricking of their love, to look to their Fatherland above. When therefore such an one seeth with grief that by sin he hath lost an eternal inheritance, he findeth this healthy counsel, to reckon but lightly the things of time through which he is passing, and as the riper groweth his wise course that he hath chosen, to let be these perishing things, the deeper groweth his sorrow that he hath not yet attained unto the things which endure.

- ℞. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.
- ℣. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.
- ℞. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LESSON VI

We must also realise that they who are headlong in their courses, feel not sorrow of heart. They that live without thought, who leave themselves recklessly to the guidance of events, escape the weariness of thought. He that ordereth his life by prudent consideration, looketh carefully around him before each thing that he doth, and, like a man, that before advancing on an uncertain way, trieth the ground with his foot, so he taketh thought beforehand, lest some sudden and evil thing should happen to him he considereth whether that which he hath a mind to do is not forbidden to him by

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiastici

Sir 1:22-26

Coróna sapiéntiæ timor Dómini, replens pacem et salútis fructum; et vidit et dinumerávit eam: útraque autem sunt dona Dei. Sciéntiam et intelligéctum prudéntiæ sapiéntia compartiétur et glóriam tenéntium se exáltat. Radix sapiéntiæ est timére Dóminum, et rami illíus longæví. In thesáuris sapiéntiæ intelligéctus et sciéntiæ religiósitas, exsecrátio autem peccatóribus sapiéntia.

R. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, pater et dominátor vitæ meæ, ut non córruam in conspéctu adversariórum meórum: * Ne gaudeat de me inimícus meus.

Ps. Apprehénde arma et scutum et exsúrge in adjutórium mihi.

R. Ne gaudeat de me inimícus meus.

LECTIO II

Sir 1:27-33

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiasticus

Sir 1:22-26

The fear of the Lord is a crown of wisdom, filling up peace and the fruit of salvation: And it hath seen, and numbered her: but both are the gifts of God. Wisdom shall distribute knowledge, and understanding of prudence: and exalteth the glory of them that hold her. The root of wisdom is to fear the Lord: and the branches thereof are longlived. In the treasures of wisdom is understanding, and religiousness of knowledge: but to sinners wisdom is an abomination

R. O Lord, Father and Governor of my life, leave me not, lest I fall before mine adversaries, * and mine enemy rejoice over me.

Ps. Take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for mine help.

R. Lest mine enemy rejoice over me.

LESSON II

Sir 1:27-33

Timor Dómini expéllit peccátum; nam qui sine timóre est non póterit justificári; iracúndia enim animositátis illíus subvérso illíus est. Usque in tempus sustinébit pátiens, et póstea reddítio jucunditátis. Bonus sensus usque in tempus abscondet verba illíus, et lábia multórum enarrábunt sensum illíus. In thesáuris sapiéntiæ significátio disciplínæ, exsecrátio autem peccatóri cultúra Dei. Fili, concupíscens sapiéntiam consérva justítiam, et Deus præbébit illam tibi.

R. Magna enim sunt judícia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabilia verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

Ÿ. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvestísti eos per aquam nímiám.

R. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Sir 1:34-40

Sapiéntia enim et disciplína timor Dómini, et quod beneplácitum est illi, fides et mansuetúdo, et adimplébit thesáuros illíus. Ne sis incredíbilis timóri Dómini, et ne accésse-ris ad illum dúplici corde. Ne fúeris hypócrita in conspéctu hóminum et non scandalizéris in lábiis tuis. Atténde in illis, ne forte cadas et addúcas ánimæ tuæ inhonoratiónem, et revélet Deus abscónsa tua et in médio synagógæ elídat te; quóniam accessísti maligne ad Dóminum, et cor tuum plenum est dolo et fallácia.

R. Quæ sunt in corde hóminum, óculi tui vident, Dómine, et in libro tuo ómnia scribéntur: * Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

Ÿ. Omnia enim corda scrutátur, et univérsas méntium cogitatiónes intéllegit.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

The fear of the Lord driveth out sin: For he that is without fear, cannot be justified: for the wrath of his high spirits is his ruin. A patient man shall bear for a time, and afterwards joy shall be restored to him. A good understanding will hide his words for a time, and the lips of many shall declare his wisdom. In the treasures of wisdom is the signification of discipline: But the worship of God is an abomination to a sinner. Son, if thou desire wisdom, keep justice, and God will give her to thee

R. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

Ÿ. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

R. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Sir 1:34-40

For the fear of the Lord is wisdom and discipline: and that which is agreeable to him, Is faith, and meekness: and he will fill up his treasures. Be not incredulous to the fear of the Lord: and come not to him with a double heart. Be not a hypocrite in the sight of men, and let not thy lips be a stumblingblock to thee. Watch over them, lest thou fall, and bring dishonour upon thy soul, And God discover thy secrets, and cast thee down in the midst of the congregation. Because thou camest to the Lord wickedly, and thy heart is full of guile and deceit.

R. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ÿ. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiasticus

Sir 2:1-3

Son, when thou comest to the service of God, stand in justice and in fear, and prepare thy soul for temptation. Humble thy heart, and endure: incline thy ear, and receive the words of understanding: and make not haste in the time of clouds. Wait on God with patience: join thyself to God, and endure, that thy life may be increased in the latter end.

R. My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways. * For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

De libro Ecclesiastici

Sir 3:1-4

Fílii sapiéntiæ ecclésiá justórum, et natio illórum obediéntia et diléctio. Judícium patris audíte, filii, et sic fácite ut salvi sitis. Deus enim honorávit patrem in filiis, et judícium matris exquírens firmávit in filios. Qui díligit Deum exorábit pro peccátis et continébit se ab illis et in oratióne diérum exaudiétur.

R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu máligno: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium málignum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiasticus

Sir 3:1-4

The sons of wisdom are the church of the just: and their generation, obedience and love. Children, hear the judgment of your father, and so do that you may be saved. For God hath made the father honourable to the children: and seeking the judgment of the mothers, hath confirmed it upon the children. He that loveth God, shall obtain pardon for his sins by prayer, and shall refrain himself from them, and shall be heard in the prayer of days.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

Ps. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

✠. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne

LESSON II

Sir 3:5-8

And he that honoureth his mother is as one that layeth up a treasure. He that honoureth his father shall have joy in his own children, and in the day of his prayer he shall be heard. He that honoureth his father shall enjoy a long life: and he that obeyeth the father, shall be a comfort to his mother. He that feareth the Lord, honoureth his parents, and will serve them as his masters that brought him into the world.

words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

✠. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea,

LESSON III

Sir 3:9-13

Honour thy father, in work and word, and all patience, That a blessing may come upon thee from him, and his blessing may remain in the latter end.
The father's blessing establisheth the houses of the children: but the mother's curse rooteth up the foundation. Glory not in the dishonour of thy father: for his shame is no glory to thee. For the glory of a man is from the honour of his father, and a father without honour is the disgrace of the son.

℟. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. *
Man looketh on the outward appearance, but

Sir 3:22-26

Seek not the things that are too high for thee, and search not into things above thy ability: but the things that God hath commanded thee, think on them always, and in many of his works be not curious. For it is not necessary for thee to see with thy eyes those things that are hid. In unnecessary matters be not over curious, and in many of his works thou shalt not be inquisitive. For many things are shown to thee above the understanding of men. And the suspicion of them hath deceived many, and hath detained their minds in vanity.

R. God possessed me in the beginning, before He made the earth, before He created the depths, before He caused the fountains of water to spring. * Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

LESSON II

Sir 3:27-30

A hard heart shall fear evil at the last: and he that loveth danger shall perish in it. A heart that goeth two ways shall not have success, and the perverse of heart shall be scandalized therein. A wicked heart shall be laden with sorrows, and the sinner will add sin to sin. The congregation of the proud shall not be healed: for the plant of wickedness shall take root in them, and it shall not be perceived.

Sir 4:23-28

Son, observe the time, and fly from evil. For thy soul be not ashamed to say the truth. For there is a shame that bringeth sin, and there is a shame that bringeth glory and grace. Accept no person against thy own person, nor against thy soul a lie. Reverence not thy neighbour in his fall: And refrain not to speak in the time of salvation. Hide not thy wisdom in her beauty.

Ne tardes convérte ad Dóminum, et ne différas de die in diem; nescis enim quid parítura sit superventúra dies. Pérículum enim et metus est in defferéndo; salus vero certa ac secúra, si nulla sit dilátio. Virtútem ígitur cole: sic enim, licet júvenis moriáris, secúre discésseris: quod si ad senectútem pervéneris, cum multa facilitáte et nulla moléstia e vita discédes; duplicémque habébis festivitátem, et quod a vitæ malítia abstinúeris, et quod virtútem colúeris. Ne dicas: Erit tempus, quando convérte licébit: verba enim hæc Deum valde exásperant.

the word of peace and justice keep with thee. Be meek to hear the word, that thou mayst understand: and return a true answer with wisdom. If thou have understanding, answer thy neighbour: but if not, let thy hand be upon thy mouth, lest thou be surprised in an unskillful word, and be confounded. Honour and glory is in the word of the wise, but the tongue of the fool is his ruin. Be not called a whisperer, and be not taken in thy tongue, and confounded.

R. O send out wisdom from the throne of thy glory, O Lord, to be with me, and to labour with me, * That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

LESSON IV

From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom, Patriarch of Constantinople.

Homilia 22

Tarry not to turn thee to the Lord, yea, defer not thy repentance from day to day for thou knowest not what the morrow may bring forth. In delay there is danger and terror, but where there is no delay, there health is safe and secure. Live well then, and, then, however young thou diest, thou wilt die safely; and if thou come to old age thou wilt depart without vexation or trouble; and thou wilt have a double happiness, in that thou wilt be leaving all the evils of life, and in that thou hast lived well. Say not: There will be a time meet for repentance for such words as these do greatly rouse the anger of God.

R. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

✠. Mitte illum de sede magnitudinis tuæ, ut mecum sit et mecum labóret.

℟. Quóniam servus tuus sum ego, et fílius ancíllæ tuæ.

LECTIO V

Cur nam, cum ipse tibi ætérna sæcula promísit, tu in præsénti vita laboráre non vis, quæ parva et momentánea est; sed sic ignávus ac dissolútus agis, quasi hac brevíorem áliam quamdam inquíras? Nonne illæ quotidiánæ comessatiónes, nonne illæ mensæ, nonne scorta illa, nonne theátra illa, nonne divítiæ illæ testántur inexplébilem malítiæ concupiscéntiam? Cógita bene, quod quóties scortátus es, tóties condemnásti teípsum; peccátum enim ita se habet, ut mox atque patrátum fúerit, senténtiam ferat iudex.

Multi dum male ac vitióse víverent, súbito perierunt et in manifestam damnatiónem abiérunt: time ne idem tibi áccidat. Sed multis, inquis, dedit Deus spátium, ut in última senécta confiteréntur. Quid ígitur? numquid et tibi dábitur? Fortásse dabit, inquis. Cur dicis, fortásse? Cóntigit aliquóties? ✠. O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.

℟. For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LESSON V

He hath promised thee eternal ages, and thou wilt not to work in this present life, which is so short and so fleeting. Dost thou so idly and loosely carry thyself, as though the life for which thou seekest were a shorter life than this? Do not daily feasting, daily gluttonies, daily uncleanness, shows, and riches bear witness to the undying nature of sinful cravings. Think it well over, that as often as thou dost commit uncleanness, thou dost damn thyself for this is the nature of sin, as soon as it is committed, the Judge's sentence is uttered.

℟. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

✠. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

But, thou sayest, they have been many to whom God hath given time, and they have been to confession in their old age. What then? Is that a proof that it will be given to thee? Perchance, sayest thou. Why sayest thou, Perchance? It befalleth sometimes. Bethink thee that it is of thy soul thou art considering. Look at it the other way, and say: What if it be not given? But, sayest thou, and what if it be? May it be so: it is true: it is among Non irrí-deas hóminem in amaritúdine ánimæ; est enim qui humíliat et exáltat, circumspectór Deus. Noli aráre mendácium advérsus fratrem tuum, neque in amíco simíliter fá-cias. Noli velle mentíri omne mendácium; assidúitas enim illúus non est bona. Noli ver-bósus esse in multitúdine presbyterórum, et non íteres verbum in oratióne tua.

℟. Quæ sunt in corde hóminum, óculi tui vident, Dómine, et in libro tuo ómnia scribéntur: * Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

℣. Omnia enim corda scrutátur, et univérsas méntium cogitatiónes intéllegit.

℟. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

thou shalt not be unpunished. Be not fainthearted in thy mind: Neglect not to pray, and to give alms.

℟. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

℣. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

℟. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Sir 7:11-15

Say not: God will have respect to the multitude of my gifts, and when I offer to the most high God, he will accept my offerings. Laugh no man to scorn in the bitterness of his soul: for there is one that humbleth and exalteth, God who seeth all. Devise not a lie against thy brother: neither do the like against thy friend. Be not willing to make any manner of lie: for the custom thereof is not good. Be not full of words in a multitude of ancients, and repeat not the word in thy prayer.

℟. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

℣. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.

℟. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

lis rector est civitátis, tales et inhabitántes in ea. Rex insípiens perdet pópulum suum, et civitátes inhabitábuntur per sensum poténtium. In manu Dei potéstas terræ, et útilem rectórem suscitábit in tempus super illam. In manu Dei prospéritas hómínis, et super faciém scribæ impónet honórem suum.

℞. Præbe, fili, cor mihi, et óculi tui vias meas custódiant: * Ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo.

℣. Atténde, fili mi, sapiéntiam meam et ad elóquium meum inclína aurem tuam.

℞. Ut addátur grátia cápiti tuo.

LECTIO II

Sir 10:6-10

Omnis injúriæ próximi ne memínaris et nihil agas in opéribus injúriæ. Odfibilis coram Deo est et homínibus supérbia, et exsecrábilis omnis iníquitas géntium. Regnum a gente in gentem transfértur propter injustítias et injúrias et contumélias et divérsos dolos. Aváro autem nihil est sceléstiús. Quid supérbit terra et cinis? Nihil est iníquiús quam amáre pecúniám; hic enim et ánimam suam venálem habet, quóniam in vita sua projécit íntima sua.

℞. Inítium sapiéntiæ timor Dómini: * Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

℣. Diléctio illfús custódia legum est: quia omnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.

℞. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

LECTIO III

Sir 10:11-16

Omnis potentátus brevis vita: languor prolíxior gravat médicum, brevem languórem præcídít médicus; sic et rex hódie est, et cras moriétur: cum enim moriétur homo, here-

ters: and what manner of man the ruler of a city is, such also are they that dwell therein. An unwise king shall be the ruin of his people: and cities shall be inhabited through the prudence of the rulers. The power of the earth is in the hand of God, and in his time he will raise up a profitable ruler over it. The prosperity of man is in the hand of God, and upon the person of the scribe he shall lay his honour.

℞. My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways. * For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

℣. My son, attend unto my wisdom, and incline thine ear unto my sayings.

℞. For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thine head.

LESSON II

Sir 10:6-10

Pride is hateful before God and men: and all iniquity of nations is execrable. A kingdom is translated from one people to another, because of injustices, and wrongs, and injuries, and diverse deceits. But nothing is more wicked than the covetous man. Why is earth and ashes proud? There is not a more wicked thing than to love money: for such a one setteth even his own soul to sale: because while he liveth he hath cast away his bowels.

Remember not any injury done thee by thy neighbour, and do thou nothing by deeds of injury.

℞. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

℣. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.

℞. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LESSON III

Sir 10:11-16

All power is of short life. A long sickness is troublesome to the physician. The physician cutteth off it short sickness: so also a king is today, and tomorrow he shall die. For when a man shall die, ditabit serpentes, et bestias, et vermes. Initium superbiæ hominis apostatâre a Deo; quoniam ab eo qui fecit illum, recessit cor ejus, quoniam initium omnis peccati est superbia. Qui tenuit illam adimplēbitur maledictis, et subvertet eum in finem. Propterea exhonoravit Dominus convētus malorum, et destruxit eos usque in finem.

R. Verbum iniquum et dolosum longe fac a me, Domine: * Divitias et paupertatem ne dederis mihi, sed tantum victui meo tribue necessaria.

ψ. Duo rogavi te, ne deneges mihi antequam moriar.

R. Divitias et paupertatem ne dederis mihi, sed tantum victui meo tribue necessaria.

ψ. Glória Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

R. Divitias et paupertatem ne dederis mihi, sed tantum victui meo tribue necessaria.

he shall inherit serpents, and beasts, and worms. The beginning of the pride of man, is to fall off from God: Because his heart is departed from him that made him: for pride is the beginning of all sin: be that holdeth it, shall be filled with maledictions, and it shall ruin him in the end. Therefore hath the Lord disgraced the assemblies of the wicked, and hath utterly destroyed them.

R. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. *
Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

ψ. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.

R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiastici

Sir 13:1-6

Qui tetigerit picem, inquinabitur ab ea; et, qui communicaverit superbo, induet superbiam. Pondus super se tollet qui honestiori se communicat, et ditioni te ne socius fueris. Quid communicabit caccabus ad ollam? quando enim se colliserint, confringetur. Dives iniuste egit et fremet, pauper autem laesus tacebit. Si largitus fueris, assumet te, et, si non habueris, derelinquet te. Si habes, convivet tecum, et evacuabit te: et ipse non dolebit super te.

R. Domine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelinquas me in cogitatu maligno: extollentiam oculorum meorum ne dederis mihi, et desiderium malignum averte a me, Domine; aufer a me

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiasticus

Sir 13:1-6

He that toucheth pitch, shall be defiled with it: and he that hath fellowship with the proud, shall put on pride. He shall take a burden upon him that hath fellowship with one more honourable than himself. And have no fellowship with one that is richer than thyself. What agreement shall the earthen pot have with the kettle? for if they knock one against the other, it shall be broken. The rich man hath done wrong, and yet he will fume: but the poor is wronged and must hold his peace. If thou give, he will make use of thee: and if thou have nothing, he will forsake thee. If thou have any thing, he will live with thee, and will make thee bare, and he will not be sorry for thee.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

Ÿ. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

℞. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO II

Sir 13:9-15

Humiliáre Deo et expécta manus ejus; at-ténde, ne sedúctus in stultítiam humiliéris. Noli esse húmilis in sapiéntia tua, ne humi-liátus in stultítiam seducáris. Advocátus a potentióre discéde, ex hoc enim magis te ad-vocábit. Ne ímprobis sis, ne impingáris, et ne longe sis ab eo, ne eas in obliviónem. Ne retíneas ex æquo loqui cum illo nec credas multis verbis illíus; ex multa enim loquéla tentábit te, et subrídens interrogábit te de absconditis tuis. Immítis ánimus illíus con-servábit verba tua: et non parcet de malítia, et de vínculis.

℞. Magna enim sunt judícia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabília verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

Ÿ. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvestísti eos per aquam nímiã.

℞. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Sir 13:16-22

Cave tibi, et atténde diligénter audítui tuo, quóniam cum subversióne tua ámbulas; áu-diens vero illa, quasi in somnis vide, et vigi-lábis. Omni vita tua dílige Deum, et ínvoca illum in salúte tua. Omne ánimál díligit sí-mile sibi, sic et omnis homo próximum sibi; omnis caro ad símilem sibi conjungétur, et omnis homo símili sui sociábitur. Si commu-nicábit lupus agno aliquándo, sic peccátor justo. Quæ communicatio sancto hómini ad canem? aut quæ pars díviti ad páuperem?

give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

Ÿ. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

℞. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON II

Sir 13:9-15

Humble thyself to God, and wait for his hands. Beware that thou be not deceived Into folly, and be humbled. Be not lowly in thy wisdom, lest be-ing humbled thou be deceived into folly. If thou be invited by one that is mightier, withdraw thy-self: for so he will invite thee the more. Be not troublesome to him, lest thou be put back: and keep not far from him, lest thou be forgotten. Af-fect not to speak with him as an equal: and believe not his many words: for by much talk he will sift thee, and smiling will examine thee concerning thy secrets. His cruel mind will lay up thy words: and he will not spare to do thee hurt, and to cast thee into prison.

℞. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

Ÿ. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

℞. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Sir 13:16-22

Take heed to thyself, and attend diligently to what thou hearest: for thou walkest in danger of thy ruin. When thou hearest those things, see as it were in sleep, and thou shalt awake. Love God all thy life, and call upon him for thy salvation. Every beast loveth its like: so also every man him that is nearest to himself. All flesh shall consort with the like to itself, and every man shall associate himself to his like. If the wolf shall at any time have fellowship with the lamb, so the sinner with the just. What fellowship hath a holy man with a dog, or what part hath the rich with the poor?

R. Quæ sunt in corde hóminum, óculi tui vident, Dómine, et in libro tuo ómnia scribéntur: * Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Homo videt in fácie, Deus autem in corde.

R. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ÿ. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiástici

Sir 14:1-5

Beátus vir qui non est lapsus verbo ex ore suo, et non est stimulátus in tristítia delícti; felix qui non hábuit ánimi sui tristítiam, et non éxcidit a spe sua. Viro cúpido et tenáci sine ratióne est substántia, et hómini lívido ad quid aurum? Qui acérvat ex ánimo suo injúste áliis cóngregat, et in bonis illús álius luxuriábitur. Qui sibi nequam est, cui álii bonus erit? et non jucundábitur in bonis suis.

R. In princípio Deus ántequam terram fáceret, priúsqvam abyssos constitúeret, priúsqvam prodúceret fontes aquárum, * Antequam montes collocaréntur, ante omnes colles generávit me Dóminus.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiasticus

Sir 14:1-5

Blessed is the man that hath not slipped by a word out of his mouth, and is not pricked with the remorse of sin. Happy is he that hath had no sadness of his mind, and who is not fallen from his hope. Riches are not comely for a covetous man and a niggard, and what should an envious man do with gold? He that gathereth together by wronging his own soul, gathereth for others, and another will squander away his goods in rioting. He that is evil to himself, to whom will he be good? and he shall not take pleasure in his goods.

R. God possessed me in the beginning, before He made the earth, before He created the depths, before He caused the fountains of water to spring. * Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

Ÿ. When He prepared the heavens, I was there with Him, ordering all things.

R. Before the mountains were settled, before there were any hills, did the Lord beget me.

LESSON II

Sir 14:6-10

There is none worse than he that envieth himself, and this is the reward of his wickedness: And if he do good, he doth it ignorantly, and unwillingly:

simo manifestat malitiam suam. Nequam est oculus lividi: et avertens faciem suam, et despiciens animam suam. Insatiabilis oculus cupidus in parte iniquitatis: non satiabitur, donec consumat arefaciens animam suam. Oculus malus ad mala, et non satiabitur pane, sed indigens et in tristitia erit super mensam suam.

R. Gyrum cæli circuivi sola, et in fluctibus maris ambulavi, in omni gente et in omni populo primatum tenui: * Superborum et sublimium colla propria virtute calcavi.

Ps. Ego in altissimis habito, et thronus meus in columna nubis.

R. Superborum et sublimium colla propria virtute calcavi.

LECTIO III

Sir 14:11-17

Fili, si habes, benefac tecum et Deo dignas oblationes offer. Memor esto, quoniam mors non tardat, et testamentum inferorum, quia demonstratum est tibi; testamentum enim huius mundi morte morietur. Ante mortem benefac amico tuo et secundum vires tuas exporrigenz da pauperi. Non defrauderis a die bono, et particula boni doni non te pretereat. Nonne aliis relinques dolores et labores tuos in divisione sortis? Da et accipe et iustifica animam tuam: ante obitum tuum operare iustitiam; quoniam non est apud inferos invenire cibum.

R. Emittite, Domine, sapientiam de sede magnitudinis tue, ut mecum sit et mecum laboret: * Ut sciam, quid acceptum sit coram te omni tempore.

Ps. Da mihi, Domine, sedium tuarum assistentem sapientiam.

R. Ut sciam quid acceptum sit coram te omni tempore.

Ps. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

and at the last he discovereth his wickedness. The eye of the envious is wicked: and he turneth away his face, and despiseth his own soul. The eye of the covetous man is insatiable in his portion of iniquity: he will not be satisfied till he consume his own soul, drying it up. An evil eye is towards evil things: and he shall not have his fill of bread, but shall be needy and pensive at his own table.

R. I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked on the waves of the sea. In every nation and in every people, I held the first place. * In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

Ps. I dwell in the highest places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar.

R. In the greatness of my strength have I trodden under my feet the necks of such as be haughty and proud.

LESSON III

Sir 14:11-17

My son, if thou have any thing, do good to thyself, and offer to God worthy offerings. Remember that death is not slow, and that the covenant of hell hath been shown to thee: for the covenant of this world shall surely die. Do good to thy friend before thou die, and according to thy ability, stretching out thy hand give to the poor. Defraud not thyself of the good day, and let not the part of a good gift overpass thee. Shalt thou not leave to others to divide by lot thy sorrows and labours? Give and take, and justify thy soul. Before thy death work justice: for in hell there is no finding food.

R. O send out wisdom from the throne of thy glory, O Lord, to be with me, and to labour with me, * That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ps. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

Ps. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Ut sciam quid acceptum sit coram te omni tempore.

R. That I may know at all times what is pleasing unto thee.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiastici

Sir 21:1-5

Fili, peccasti? non adicias iterum, sed et de pristinis deprecare, ut tibi dimittantur. Quasi a facie colubri fuge peccata et, si accesseris ad illa, suscipiet te. Dentes leonis dentes ejus interficientes animas hominum, quasi rhomphaa bis acuta omnis iniquitas, plagae illius non est sanitas. Obiurgatio et iniuria annulantur substantiam, et domus quae nimis locuples est, annullabitur superbia: sic substantia superbi eradicabitur.

R. Da mihi, Domine, sedium tuarum assistricem sapientiam, et noli me reprobare a pueris tuis: * Quoniam servus tuus sum ego, et filius ancillae tuae.

Ps. Mitte illam de sede magnitudinis tuae, ut mecum sit et mecum laboret.

R. Quoniam servus tuus sum ego, et filius ancillae tuae.

LECTIO II

Sir 21:6-10

Deprecatio pauperis ex ore usque ad aures ejus perveniet, et iudicium festinato adveniet illi. Qui odit correptionem, vestigium est peccatoris; et, qui timet Deum, convertetur ad cor suum. Notus a longe potens lingua audaci, et sensatus scit labi se ab ipso. Qui aedificat domum suam impendiis alienis, quasi qui colligit lapides suos in hieme. Stuppa collecta synagoga peccantium, et consummata illorum flamma ignis.

R. Initium sapientiae timor Domini: *
Intellectus bonus omnibus facientibus eum: laudatio ejus manet in saeculum saeculi.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiasticus

Sir 21:1-5

My son, hast thou sinned? do so no more: but for thy former sins also pray that they may be forgiven thee. Flee from sins as from the face of a serpent:
for if thou comest near them, they will take hold of thee. The teeth thereof are the teeth of a lion, killing the souls of men. All iniquity is like a two-edged sword, there is no remedy for the wound thereof. Injuries and wrongs will waste riches: and the house that is very rich shall be brought to nothing by pride: so the substance of the proud shall be rooted out.

R. Give me wisdom, O Lord, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children. * For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

Ps. O send her out from the throne of thy glory, to be with me and to labour with me.

R. For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid.

LESSON II

Sir 21:6-10

The prayer out of the mouth of the poor shall reach the ears of God, and judgment shall come for him speedily. He that hateth to be reproved walketh in the trace of a sinner: and he that feareth God will turn to his own heart. He that is mighty by a bold tongue is known afar off, but a wise man knoweth to slip by him. He that buildeth his house at other men's charges, is as he that gathereth himself stones to build in the winter. The congregation of sinners is like tow heaped together, and the end of them is a flame of fire.

R. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. * A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

- ψ. Diléctio illíus custódia legum est: quia omnis sapiéntia timor Dómini.
- ℞. Intelléctus bonus ómnibus faciéntibus eum: laudátio ejus manet in sǎculum sǎculi.

LECTIO III

Sir 21:11-16

Via peccántium complanáta lapídibus, et in fine illórum ínferi et ténebræ et poenæ. Qui custódit justítiam, continébit sensum ejus. Consummátio timóris Dei, sapiéntia et sensus. Non erudiétur qui non est sápiens in bono; est autem sapiéntia quæ abúndat in malo, et non est sensus ubi est amaritúdo. Sciéntia sapiéntis tamquam inundátio abundábit, et consílium illíus sicut fons vitæ pérmanet.

- ℞. Verbum iníquum et dolósum longe fac a me, Dómine: * Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.
- ψ. Duo rogávi te, ne déneges mihi ántequam móriar.
- ℞. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.
- ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℞. Divítias et paupertátem ne déderis mihi, sed tantum víctui meo tríbue necessária.

- ψ. Love is the keeping of her laws, for all wisdom is the fear of the Lord.
- ℞. A good understanding have all they that do His commandments. His praise endureth for ever.

LESSON III

Sir 21:11-16

The way of sinners is made plain with stones, and in their end is hell, and darkness, and pains. He that keepeth justice shall get the understanding thereof. The perfection of the fear of God is wisdom and understanding. He that is not wise in good, will not be taught. But there is a wisdom that aboundeth in evil: and there is no understanding where there is bitterness. The knowledge of a wise man shall abound like a flood, and his counsel continueth like a fountain of life

- ℞. Lord, remove far from me vanity and lies. * Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.
- ψ. Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die.
- ℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.
- ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- ℞. Give me neither poverty nor riches, but feed me with food convenient for me.

LECTIO I

De libro Ecclesiástico

Sir 32:1-5

Rectórem te posuérunt? noli extólli: esto in illis quasi unus ex ipsis. Curam illórum habe, et sic consíde, et omni cura tua explícita recúmbe: ut lætérís propter illos et ornámentum grátia accípias corónam, et dignatiónem consequáris corrogatiónis. Lóquere, major natu; decet enim te primum verbum diligénti sciéntia, et non impédiás músicam.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Ecclesiasticus

Sir 32:1-5

Have they made thee ruler? be not lifted up: be among them as one of them. Have care of them, and so sit down, and when thou hast acquitted thyself of all thy charge, take thy place: That thou mayst rejoice for them, and receive a crown as an ornament of grace, and get the honour of the contribution. Speak, thou that art elder: for it becometh thee, To speak the first word with careful knowledge, and hinder not music.

R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu malíño: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium malígnum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

ψ. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

R. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO II

Sir 32:6-11

Ubi audítus non est, non effúndas sermónem, et importúne noli extólli in sapiéntia tua. Gémmula carbúnculi in ornámento auri, et comparátio musicórum in convívio vini; sicut in fabricatióne auri signum est smarághi, sic númerus musicórum in jucúndo et moderáto vino. Audi tacens, et pro reveréntia accédet tibi bona grátia. Adoléscent, lóquere in tua causa vix. Si bis interrogátus fúeris, hábeat caput respónsum tuum.

R. Magna enim sunt iudícia tua, Dómine, et inenarrabilia verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

ψ. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvexísti eos per aquam nímiã.

R. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Sir 32:12-17

In multis esto quasi ínscius, et audi tacens simul et quærens. In médio magnatórum non præsumas et, ubi sunt senes, non multum loquáris. Ante grádinem præbit coruscátio, et ante verecúndiam præbit grátia et pro reveréntia accédet tibi bona grátia. When he waſ a young man, it waſ often propoſed to him to marry, but he never abandoned hiſ determination to preſerve hiſ virginity. After that he waſ ordained Prieſt he divided hiſ inheritance among the poor and Churches, and embraced the Inſtitute of Canons Regular of St. Auguſtine. Thiſ Inſtitute he brought to Gubbio, and for ſome time led therein a moſt holy life. When the fame of hiſ ſaintlineſſ had got noiſed abroad, Pope Honoriuſ II ſet him, contrary to hiſ own wiſheſ, over the Church of Gubbio, and he waſ honourēd with conſecration aſ Biſhop by the handſ of the ſaid Pope himſelf, (in the year of our Lord 1129.)

shepherd of their souls was a pattern, not by outward showing only, but from his heart. He ate little, dressed simply, and slept upon a hard and very poor bed. He “always bore in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus,” (2 Cor. iv. 10,) while he daily fed his soul in unceasing and earnest prayer. Hence he acquired such wonderful meekness, that when he was most grievously wronged and insulted he not only took it patiently, but, by a strange impulse of love for them, embraced his persecutors with every proof of affection.

℟. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

℣. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

℟. For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

LESSON VI

Just the space of two years before Ubald passed away from this present life, he was tried as gold in the furnace, by grievous bodily weakness, and, day after day, amid the sharpest sufferings, he never ceased patiently to give God thanks. He rested in peace on the sacred day of Pentecost, (in the year 1160,) having for many years governed with great praise the Church which had been entrusted to him, and glorious for good works and miracles. Pope Celestine III. numbered him with the Saints. His strength is most chiefly shown in the casting out of evil spirits. His body hath remained without corruption for all these ages, and is revered greatly in his native town by Christ's faithful people. To them he hath more than once shown himself good at need.

℟. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and the whole earth is full of his teaching * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them, alleluia.

℣. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and hath attained unto the kingdom of heaven.

St. Ubald was born of a noble family at Gubbio in Umbria, and was well trained, from his earliest years, in devotion and in letters. As a young man, he was often urged to marry, but he never gave up his determination to preserve his virginity. When he was made a priest, he distributed his patrimony to the poor and to churches. He entered the Institute of the Canons Regular of St. Augustine and brought it to his own country. Against his will, he was put over the Church of Gubbio by Pope Honorius II and given episcopal consecration. Making himself with his whole heart a model for his flock, he changed nothing in his way of life and became illustrious for every kind of virtue. Although he suffered from various infirmities for a long time, he never ceased to give thanks to God. When he had governed the Church entrusted to him for many years in a way deserving of the highest praise, he fell asleep in peace, famous for his works and miracles.

LESSON IV

Pascal Baylon was the son of poor and godly parents, in the town of Torre Hermosa, and Diocese of Sagunta in Aragon, (in the year of our Lord 1540.) From his childhood he gave indications of a holy life. He was naturally of a good disposition, and very wishful to learn about heavenly things.
His boyhood and youth he passed in the occupation of a shepherd. This way of life pleased him well, because he thought it one useful and fitted to Erat in victu modicus, in oratione assiduus, tantâque apud cœvos et socios florebat auctoritate et grâtiâ, ut eorum lites compônens, errôres corrigens, ignorantiam erudiens ac desidiam éxcitans, velut ómnium parens et magister máximo studio colerétur ac amarétur: beátus étiam tum a plerisque appellatus.

R. Honéstum fecit illum Dóminus, et custodívit eum ab inimícis, et a seductóribus tutávit illum: * Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam, allelúja.

Igitur Paschalis arrepto vitæ severioris instituto, atque in ordine Minórum strictioris observantiæ Discalceatórum cooptatus, exsultávit ut giga ad curréndam viam suam; totumque se Dómino excoléndum tradens, dies noctesque cogitabat, qua se ratióne magis ei magisque conformaret. Ita factum est brevi, ut eum, tamquam seraphicæ perfectiónis exemplar, ipsi quoque provectiores imitándum sibi propónerent. Ipse autem in humili serviéntium gradu constitútus, se velut ómnium peripséma réputans, ardua quæque et abjecta domus ministeria, véluti jure quodam peculiari sibi débita, summa cum hilaritate suscipiebat, et exercebat humilitate ac paciéntia pari. nourish lowliness and keep innocency. He ate little, and was instant in prayer. He had great weight and favour with his fellows and neighbours, whose quarrels he healed, corrected their mistakes, enlightened their ignorance, and roused them from idleness. They all greatly honoured and loved him, as though he were their father and teacher, and even then many called him “Beato,” that is “the Blessed.”

LESSON V

In a world which was to him “a dry land, where no water is” the vallis, “planted in the House of the Lord” (Ps. xci. 14,) whose strange sweetness spread all around. When he took upon him an harder life, by entering the Institute of barefooted Grey Friars, of the strict Observance, “he rejoiced as a strong man to run a race” (Ps. xviii. 6,) and gave himself up altogether to serve the Lord, thinking by day and by night only how he might attain more and more to have that mind in him which was also in Christ Jesus (Phil. ii. 5.) And so it came to pass in a little while, that his very elders set him before them for their model, as a pattern of a man seeking to be perfect in the path of the Seraphic Order. Paschal himself held the lowly place of a lay brother, and deemed himself “the off-scouring of all things” (1. Cor. iv. 13.) He took most cheerfully, and discharged with the greatest humility and patience, the hardest and meanest work of the house, as though such were his peculiar right. His flesh would sometimes rebel against his spirit, but he broke it under the yoke of mortification, and brought it into subjection. Day by day the spirit of self-denial waxed stronger in him, and “forgetting those things which were behind, he reached forth unto those things which were before” (Phil. iii. 13.)

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise, alleluia.

LESSON VI

The Virgin Mother of God he had vowed himself when he was but a little lad, and he paid her every day the services of a son, and trusted her as a mother. It is hard to tell how intense was the love which bound him to the Most Holy Sacrament of the Eucharist, a love which seemed literally stronger than death, for when his dead body was found lying on the bier, its eyes opened and shut twice when the Sacred Host was lifted up, to the amazement of all that were there. When he was among heretics, he suffered much and grievously at their hands for plainly and openly telling the truth touching this Sacrament they often sought after him to murder him, but by the singular Providence of God he was delivered from those wicked men. When he was at prayer he often became utterly insensible, and his soul fainted away with the love of God. During these trances it was believed that he received directly from heaven that knowledge which he had, and which enabled him, although a man altogether rough and unlettered, to answer the hardest questions upon the mysteries of the faith, and even to write some books. At last, full of good works, he joyfully passed away to be ever with the Lord, at the hour foretold by himself, on the Feast of Pentecost, the 17th day of May, in the year of salvation 1592, on which day also he had been born fifty-two years before. Illustrious for the graces above mentioned, and for the miracles which he worked both during his life and after his death, he was named Blessed by Pope Paul V., and Alexander VIII. enrolled him among the Saints.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Pascal Baylon Confessor

Pascal Baylon was born of poor and devout parents in the town of Torre Hermosa in Aragon, and spent his boyhood and youth in herding sheep. When he had embraced an austere way of life by entering the Friars Minor, he thought ceaselessly of how he might conform ever more closely to Christ crucified. With daily filial devotion he honoured as mother the Virgin Mother of God, to whom he had consecrated himself from his earliest years. He burned with a tender and steady love for the Eucharist, a love which he manifested even in death, when, lying on his bier, he opened and closed his eyes twice at the elevation of the sacred Host, to the astonishment of all present. Full of merits, he went to the Lord in the year 1592. Leo XIII declared and appointed him the special heavenly patron of all Eucharistic congresses and of all associations in honour of the most holy Eucharist.

LESSON IV

Venantius was a lad of Camerino (in the neighbourhood of Ancona,) who at fifteen years of age was accused of Christianity before Antiochus, Praefect of Camerino under the Emperor Decius. Venantius therefore appeared before Antiochus at the gate of the city, and when the Praefect had striven with him for a long while, by promises and threats, he commanded him to be scourged and thrown into irons, but an Angel loosed his bonds. He was afterwards scarified with lamps, and hung head downwards in smoke. Anastasius the trumpeter was amazed at his hardiness under suffering, and when it appeared to him that the Martyr was a second time loosed by an Angel, and was walking in white raiment on the smoke, he believed in Christ, and was baptized, with all his house, by the blessed Priest Porphyry, and a little while after they both together earned the palm of martyrdom.

LESSON V

Now Venantius stood before the Praefect, and when he had again vainly tempted him to give up his faith in Christ, he cast him into prison, and sent unto him Attalus the crier. Attalus told him how that he also had been a Christian, but had denied that name, seeing it was a foolish faith which made Christians to throw away things present for a groundless hope of things to come. But Christ's brave champion, well knowing the wiles of our subtle enemy, drove the devil's servant from his

But thence also an Angel delivered him, and he stood again before the judge. LESSON VI

Then they told the President of it, he commanded Venantius to be straightway thrown to the lions. But the beasts were not wild to him, and lay down at his feet. And meanwhile he taught the Christian faith to the people. So they took him away from thence and cast him once more into prison. The next day Porphyry came to the President, and told him how that he had seen in a vision of the night Venantius sprinkling certain ones with water, and they that were sprinkled shone with a marvellous light, and the President himself hidden in deep darkness. Then the President was moved to great anger and commanded forthwith to behead Porphyry. As for Venantius, he bade them drag him about in rough places, full of briars and thistles, until the evening. When it was over, he was left half dead, but in the morning he stood for the last time before the President, who commanded to cast him down from a steep rock. It pleased God that this should not kill him, and he was haled again through rough places for about a mile. There the soldiers were athirst, and Venantius, by the sign of the Cross, made waters to flow from a stone in a gully hard by. This is that stone whereon also he left the imprint of his knees, and which can be seen to this day in his Church. By this wonder many were moved to believe in Christ and the President commanded them all, and Venantius with them, to be beheaded in the same place where they were. When it was done there were great lightnings and earthquakes, so that the President fled, but he could not fly from the judgment of God, and but a few days thereafter he died a most shameful death. Meanwhile the Christians took the bodies of Venantius and the others, and buried them in an honourable place, wherein they lie to this day, under the Church at Camerino which is dedicated to Venantius.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Venantius, Martyr
At the age of fifteen, Venantius of Camerino was denounced for his Christian religion to Antiochus, who was Prefect of Camerino under the Emperor Decius. Venantius presented himself to the prefect at the city gates. For a long time the prefect tempted him by means of promises and threats, then commanded that he be beaten and chained. Miraculously freed by an angel, Venantius was then burned with torches and suspended face down over a smoking fire. Led back again to the governor, he had all his teeth and jaws broken and, thus mutilated, he was thrown into a pit of dung. Rescued from this pit by an Angel, he stood once more before the judge, who, even as Venantius was speaking to him, fell from his tribunal, crying out, "Venantius, his God is true, take away our gods!" and expired. At length, after new and exquisite torments, Venantius was beheaded, along with ten others, and so finished the course of his glorious struggle. The Christians gave honourable burial to the bodies of these martyrs, who now rest in Camerino, in the church dedicated to Venantius.

LECTIO IV

Petrus, a nomine quo Pontifex est appellatus, Cælestinus dictus, honestis catholicisque parentibus Aeserniæ in Samnitibus natus, adolescentiam vix ingressus, ut animum a mundi illecebris custodiret, in solitudinem secessit. Ibi contemplationibus mentem mitriens, corpus in servitutem redigens, ferream catenam ad nudam carnem adhibebat. Congregationem, quæ postea Cælestinorum dicta est, sub regula sancti Benedicti instituit. Hinc quasi lucerna supra candelabrum posita, cum abscondi nequiret, (Romana Ecclesia diu viduata pastore) in Petri cathedram ignorans et absens ascitus, magna novitatis admiratione non minus quam repentino gaudio cunctos affecit. Cum autem in pontificatus sublimitate collocatus, variis distentus curis, assuitis incumbere meditationibus vix posse cognosceret, oneri pariter et honori voluntarie cessit. Indeque priscam vitæ rationem repetens, obdormivit in Domino, ejusque pretiosam mortem crux præfulgens in ære ante cubiculi ostium reddidit amplius gloriosam. Miraculis multis tam vivens, quam post obitum claruit; quibus rite examinatis, Clemens quintus anno postquam decessit undecimo, sanctorum numero adscripsit.

LESSON IV

This Peter, who is called Peter Celestine, because when he became Pope he did so under the title of Celestine V, was the son of respectable Catholic parents, and was born at Isernia in Apulia, (about the year of grace 1221.) He was hardly entered on boyhood, when he withdrew into a desert, in order to keep his soul safe from the snares of the world. In solitude he fed his mind with heavenly meditation, and brought his body into subjection, even by wearing an iron chain next to his bare flesh. He founded, under the Rule of St. Benedict, that congregation which was afterwards known as the Celestine. His light, as of a candle set upon a candlestick, could not be kept hidden, and after the Church of Rome had for a long while been widowed of a shepherd, he was chosen without his knowledge and in his absence, to fill the chair of Peter. The news of his election filled himself with as great amazement, as it did all others with sudden joy. When, however, he was seated in the exalted place of the Papal dignity, he found that the many cares by which he was beset made it well-nigh impossible for him to give himself to his accustomed meditations (after four months,) of his own free will he resigned the burden and the honour together (on the 13th day of December, 1294); and, while he sought to return to his old way of life, (on the 19th day of May, 1296,) he fell asleep in the Lord. How precious his death was in His sight was gloriously manifested by a Cross which appeared shining in the air before the door of the cell. He was illustrious for miracles both during his life and after his death, and when these had been duly investigated, Clement V., in the eleventh year after his departure hence, enrolled his name among those of the Saints.

R. For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

LESSON V

From the Book of Moral Reflections upon Job, written by Pope St. Gregory the Great (Bk. x Chap. xvi on Job xii)

The simplicity of the righteous is made a subject of derision. The wisdom of this world hideth our true feelings by artifice, and useth language to conceal our thoughts this is the wisdom which demonstrated the truth of falsehood, and sheweth the falsehood of the truth. This kind of shrewdness the young acquire by practice, and children pay for the learning it. Those who are good at this look down upon their neighbours those who are bad at it are humble and timid, and wonder at it in others they regard this astuteness too, wrong though it be, with wistful admiration, under softened epithets. Un-straightforwardness is called good breeding. The principles of the world teach those who entertain them, to try and rise to distinction, and when they have attained the bubble of glory which is so soon to pass away, to feel it sweet to have at their feet them on whom they may wreak rich revenge. These principles teach a man, as long as he is strong enough, to give way to nobody else, and, if he hath no chance by force, to try and attain his object by diplomacy.

R. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

Y. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

R. For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

LESSON VI

The wisdom of the righteous is the contrary of all this. They seek to avoid deception, to give their thoughts a clear expression in their words, to love the truth because it is the truth, to avoid falsehood, and rather to suffer than to inflict evil. Such are they who seek not to avenge themselves for wrong, hæc justórum simplicitas deridétur; quia ab hujus mundi sapiéntibus puritátis virtus fatúitas créditur. LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Pudentiana, Virgin
The maiden Pudentiana was the orphan daughter of Pudens the Roman Senator. She was a Chris- tian of eminent godliness. She with her sister Praxedes distributed to the poor the money which they obtained by the sale of their inheritance. She gave herself continually to fasting and prayer. By her care the whole of the household, being ninety- six persons, were baptized by Pope Pius. Whereas the Emperor Antonine had forbidden the Chris- tians to offer sacrifice in public, Pope Pius used to meet with them in Pudentiana's house, to cele- brate the holy rites. She was a gracious hostess to them, and ministered to them in such things as are needful for the body. She thus busied herself in works of Christian godliness until she passed from this present life to a better. She was buried in her father's sepulchre in the cemetery of Priscilla on the Salarian Way upon the 19th day of May.

LESSON IV

This Bernardine was born of the noble family of the Albizeschi, in the Republic of Siena, (on the 8th of September, in the year 1380.) His saintliness began to manifest itself from his earliest years. He was well brought up by a godly father and mother, and even when he was being taught the first rudiments of worldly learning, he used to give up his play-time to occupy himself with devout works, being much drawn to fasting, prayer, and the devotion to the most Blessed Virgin. He abounded likewise in tenderness for the poor. As time went on, that he might the more entirely do these things, it was his will to enroll himself among those who work in the Hospital of Blessed Mary, called “of the Ladder,” at Sienna. There, during the raging of an horrible distemper, he laboured with marvellous charity and great bodily suffering, in serving the sick. In bodily presence he was a very goodly person, but, with all his other virtues, he kept ever so holy a guard over his purity, that it soon came to pass that no one, however shameless, dared to say an unseemly word in his presence.

ψ. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℞. And gave him perpetual glory, alleluia.

LESSON V

He suffered a severe sickness, and when, after bearing it with the utmost patience, he recovered his health, he began to think of embracing some institute of the religious life. To make his way sure, he built a little hut in the outskirts of the city, where he hid himself and led a life of hardships of all

LECTIO VI

Cumque ea témpora vitii criminibúsq; redundarent, et cruentis factiónibus in Italia, divina humanaque ómnia permixta essent, Bernardinus urbes atque oppida concursans, in nómine Jesu, quem semper in ore et in pectore gerebat, collapsam pietátem moresque verbo et exemplo magna ex parte restituit. Quo factum est, ut præcláræ civitátes eum sibi episcopum a summo Pontifice postularent; quod ille munus invicta humilitate constantissime rejécit. Denique vir Dei imménsis labóribus exhaustus, multis magnisque editis miraculis, libris étiam pie docteq; conscriptis, cum vixisset annos sex ac sexagínta, in urbe Aquila in Vestinis beato fine quíevit. Quem novis in dies coruscántem signis, anno post obitum sexto, Nicolaus quintus Pontifex maximus in Sanctórum númerum retulit.

℞. Iste homo perfécit ómnia quæ locútus est ei Deus, et dixit ad eum: Ingrédere in kinds, continuing instant in prayer to God that He would be pleased to make clear to him what path he should follow. And so it came to pass by God's will that he chose the Order of Blessed Francis. In that Order he shone a bright instance of lowliness, long-suffering, and every other grace of a religious man. When the superior of his convent saw this, and had already considered what his teaching and knowledge of sacred learning were, he laid on Bernardine the duty of preaching. This the Saint humbly accepted, and finding that his usefulness was much impaired by his having a shrill, harsh voice, he betook him to implore the help of God, Who was pleased, not without a miracle, to free him from this drawback.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise, alleluia.

LESSON VI

Those were times fruitful in vices and crimes and the bloody civil wars which raged in Italy confounded all things Divine and human. Bernardine went through the cities and towns, and, in the Name of Jesus, that Name which he ever bore upon his lips and in his heart, he prevailed in great measure by his word and example, in setting up falling godliness and morality. Illustrious cities demanded him from the Pope as their Bishop, but this was an honour which his unconquerable humility caused him always steadily to refuse. At last the man of God, after untold labours, the working of many and great miracles, and the writing of godly and learned books, in the 67th year of his age, at Aquila in the Abruzzi, rested in a blessed death, (upon the 20th day of May 1444.) As the fame of new signs and wonders increased day by day, Pope Nicholas V., in the sixth year after his death, added his name to the roll of the Saints.

℞. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people, alleluia.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Bernardine of Siena, Confessor

St. Bernardine Albizeschi was born of a noble family of Siena. Even in his first years in school, he turned away from children's games and applied himself to exercises of devotion, especially those honouring the Blessed Virgin. Outstanding for his charity and mercy to the poor, he gave himself over to serving them at the hospital Santa Maria della Scala in Siena. When he came to think of entering the religious life, divine Providence led him to choose, in preference to others, the Franciscan Order, where he excelled in humility, patience, and the other virtues of a religious. His superiors imposed on him the duty of preaching; and, although he knew that his voice was too weak and too hoarse for a preacher's, he accepted the charge and implored the help of God. As a result, he was marvellously freed of his handicap. Going about the towns and villages in the Name of Jesus, which was always carried on his lips and in his heart, he everywhere put an end to the dissensions of the citizens, and by his word and example did much to restore their piety and morality, which had fallen to a low level. He also wrote devout and learned books. At the age of sixty-six, rich in merit and famous for his miracles, he died a happy death at the town of L'Aquila in the Abruzzi.

LESSON IV

Hildebrand, who reigned as Pope under the name of Gregory VII, was born at Saona in Tuscany. By his teaching, by his holiness, and by his graces of all kinds, he was a noble light of the Church, whose brightness hath shone throughout all lands. There is a story to the effect that when he was a little child without any schooling, he was playing at the feet of a carpenter who was planing wood, and that God guided his hand to arrange the shavings which fell into the form of letters, making the inspired words of David, He shall have dominion from sea to sea, (Ps. lxxi. 8,) a fore-shadowing, as it were, of that wide lordship over the earth which was afterwards his. He was taken to Rome, and brought up under the shelter of St. Peter. As a young man he bitterly sorrowed over the oppression of the freedom of the Church by the laity, and over the corruption of the clergy themselves. He took the habit of a monk in the Abbey of Cluny, which was then in all the glory of the severest observance of the Rule of St. Benedict. There he served God's majesty with such warmth of earnestness that the saintly fathers of the convent chose him to be their Prior. But the Providence of God had greater things in store for him, whereby to make him a source of health to many, and he was brought away from Cluny. He was first elected Abbot of the monastery of St. Paul-without-the-walls at Rome, and afterwards created a Cardinal of the Roman Church. Under the Popes Leo IX, Victor II, Stephen IX, Nicholas II, and Alexander II, he discharged great offices of trust, and the duties of a Legate, and Blessed Peter Damian, speaking of him at this time, calleth him a man of most holy and honest thoughts. When Pope Victor II. sent him as his Legate into France, he, by a miracle, adegit. Berengárium in concílio Turonénsi ad iteratam hæresis abjuratióem cómpulit. Cadalói quoque schisma sua virtúte compressit.

LESSON V

After the death of Alexander II, Hildebrand, against his own will and to his own grief, was, on the 22nd day of April, in the year of Christ 1073, chosen Pope by one common consent of all. Reigning as Gregory VII., he was as the sun shining upon the Temple of the Most High. (Ecclus. 1. 7.) Mighty both in word and deed, he toiled for the restoration of Ecclesiastical discipline, for the spread of the Faith, for the defence of the freedom of the Church, for the suppression of error and corruption, so that since the time of the Apostles there is said never to have been a Pope who bore more labour and trouble for the sake of God's Church, or contended more manfully for her liberties. He purged diverse provinces of the pollution of simony. Like a brave soldier he withstood without dread the unrighteous contentings of the Emperor Henry IV, against whom he shrank not from setting himself as a wall of defence for the house of Israel. And when the said Henry fell into the depths of sin he cut him off from the communion of the faithful, and from his kingdom, and loosed the nations that were subject to him from their sworn allegiance.

℞. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

right shoulder, and spread out its wings so as to veil his head, a testimony that it was not by reasonings of man's wisdom, but by the teachings of the Holy Ghost, that he was guided in his rule over the Church. When the armies of the infamous Henry encompassed Rome, and hedged her in on every side, a great fire which the enemy had raised became extinct, when Gregory made the sign of the Cross towards it. The Norman Duke, Robert Guiscard, at length delivered Gregory from the hand of Henry, and he departed from Rome, first to the Abbey of Monte Cassino, and thence onward to Salerno, to dedicate the Church of St. Matthew the Apostle at that place. While he was preaching to the people there, on a certain day he was smitten with grievous pains, and fell into a sickness whereof he foresaw that he should never be healed. As he lay on his death-bed, Gregory's last words were I have loved righteousness and hated iniquity, and therefore I am dying in exile. He was a man really holy, a visitor of sin, and a most leal soldier of the Church. It is past reckoning how many sufferings he manfully bore, and how much he wisely ordained in many Councils, which he gathered together in Rome. He had been Pope twelve years, when, (on the 25th day of May,) in the year of salvation 1085, he went hence to be ever with the Lord. Both during his life and after his death he was marked by signs and wonders not a few. His holy body was honourably buried in the Cathedral Church of Salerno.

Tè Deum

Pope Gregory VII, the former Hildebrand, was born near Soana in Tuscany. As noble as any of the nobility in learning, in holiness and in every kind of virtue, he was a shining light to the whole Church of God. As a young man, he donned the religious habit at the monastery of Cluny, and served God with such zeal and devotion that he was chosen Prior by the holy religious of that monastery. Later, he was made Abbot of the monastery of St. Paul-outside-the-Walls, and then Cardinal of the Roman Church, performing noteworthy services and missions under Popes Leo IX, Victor II, Stephen IX, Nicholas II and Alexander II. At the death of Alexander, he was unanimously elected Pope, and stood out as a most zealous promoter and defender of the freedom of the Church, for which he suffered many things, even having to leave Rome. His last words, as he lay dying, were: "I have loved righteousness and hated iniquity, and therefore I am dying in exile." He went to heaven in year of salvation 1085, and his body was buried with honour in the Cathedral of Salerno.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

For St. Urban, Pope and Martyr

This Urban was a Roman, who, in the reign of the Emperor Alexander Severus, by his teaching and holy life, brought many to believe in Christ. Among others was Valerian, the husband of the blessed Cecily, and Tiburtius, the brother of Valerian, both of whom afterwards bravely underwent martyrdom. It was Urban I who wrote the following words concerning the property of the Church: Those things which His faithful ones nórum fratrum, vel indigéntium, converti; quia vota sunt fidelium, et pretia peccatórum, ac patrimónia páuperum. Sedit annos sex, menses septem, dies quatuor: ac martyrio coronátus, sepúltus est in coemeterio Prætextati, octavo Kalendas Junii. LESSON IV

Philip Neri was born of godly and respectable parents at Florence, (on the 23rd day of July, in the year of grace 1515) From his earliest childhood he gave signs of the holiness of life which he afterwards attained. As a young man he gave up the rich inheritance which would have come to him from his uncle, and went to Rome, where, in the study of philosophy and theology, he gave himself altogether to Christ. His self-control was such that he sometimes fasted from all food for three days at a time. He was instant in watching and prayer, and during the frequent pilgrimages which he made to the seven churches of Rome, it was his custom to remain all night in prayer to God in the Catacomb of Kallistus. (On the 23rd of May, 1551) he became a Priest in obedience to the advice of his Confessor, and afterwards made the salvation of souls the one object of his existence; he heard confessions with unwearied tenderness until his dying tate, aliisque piis exercitatióibus enutrirí cupiens, Oratórii congregatiónem instituit.

many sons, whom it was his beloved work to feed day by day upon the Word of God, upon the often receiving of the Sacraments, upon instant prayer, and upon other godly works: to the which end he founded the Congregation of the Oratory.

R. The Lord made him honourable, and safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory, alleluia.

Ÿ. He went down with him into the pit, and left

R. And gave him perpetual glory, alleluia.

LESSON V

He was full of the love of God, and his heart was so hot therewith, that it became straitened in its place, and the Lord was pleased to ease him by (the gristle which joined) the fourth and fifth ribs (on his left side) breaking, and so allowing more play to the internal organs. Sometimes, when he was saying Mass, or more intent than usual in prayer, he was seen to be raised off the ground, and become, in a strange manner, all shining. He was ever ready to succour the poor and needy with kindly services, in which works God was pleased to make him meet once to give alms to an Angel, and again, when once by night he was carrying bread to the hungry, and was fallen into a pit, an Angel drew him out unhurt. He longed to be lowly, and always shrank from honours, and from dignities in the Church, whereof several of the highest were diverse times offered to him, but he always firmly refused them.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise, alleluia.

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise,
alleluia.

LESSON VI

He was illustrious for the gift of prophecy, and had a marked and very wonderful power of reading the thoughts of men's souls. He ever kept his own virginity undefiled, and could distinguish those that were pureminded by a sort of sweet savour, and lerent, ex odore, qui vero secus, ex foetóre dignosceret. Abséntibus interdum appáruit, iisque periclitántibus opem tulit. Ægrotos plurimos et morti próximos sanitáti restituit. Mortuum quoque ad vitam revocávit. Cælestium spirituum et ipsíus Deiparæ Vírginis frequenter fuit apparitíone dignátus, ac plurimórum ánimas splendore circumfusas in cælum conscéndere vidit. Denique, anno salutis millesimo quingentésimo nonagesimo quinto, octavo Kalendas Junias, in quem diem inciderat festum Corporis Christi, Sacro maxima spíritus exsultatíone peracto, ceterisque funciónibus expletis, post mediam noctem, qua prædixerat hora, octogenarius obdormívit in Dómino. Quem Gregórius décimus quintus, miraculis clarum, in Sanctorum númerum rétulit.

R. Iste homo perfécit ómnia quæ locútus est ei Deus, et dixit ad eum: Ingrédere in réquiem meam: * Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus, allelúja.

V. Iste est, qui contémpsit vitam mundi, et pervénit ad cæléstia regna.

He also raised one dead man to life. He was honoured by seeing several times heavenly spirits, and likewise the Virgin Mother of God herself. He saw the souls of diverse persons, radiant with glory, ascend to heaven. In the year of salvation 1595 the Feast of the Body of Christ fell upon the 25th day of May. Philip, on that day, said Mass with extraordinary gladness of spirit, and performed the other religious works of the day, and after the hour of midnight, at the time he had himself foretold, he fell asleep in the Lord, in the eighty-second year of his life. Gregory XV., finding that God had glorified him by many miracles, enrolled his name among those of the saints.

Commemoration of: St. Philip Neri, Confessor
Philip Neri was born in Florence of good and devout parents. Giving up a large inheritance from his uncle, he went to Rome, where he studied philosophy and the sacred sciences and dedicated himself wholly to Christ. He became a priest out of obedience and gave himself up completely to the saving of souls. Through hearing confessions, in which he persevered to the last day of his life, he brought forth innumerable sons for Christ. Desiring to nourish them with the daily bread of God's word, with frequent reception of the sacraments, with constant prayer, and with other exercises of piety, he founded the Congregation of the Oratory. His heart was wounded by the love of God, Fecit ordinationes tres mense Decembri, quibus creávit presbyteros duodecim, diaconos octo, episcopos per diversa loca quindecim: sepultúsque est in Vaticano prope corpus sancti Petri.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Eleutherius, Pope and Martyr

Eleutherius was a Greek by race, and was born at Nicopolis, a city of Epirus. His father's name was Abundius. He was a Priest of the holy Roman Church. In the year of our Lord 179, during the reign of the Emperor Marcus Aurelius Augustus, after the death of Soter, he was chosen Bishop of Rome by the votes of all the clergy. He discharged the duties of this office excellently, and with all praise, for fifteen years and twenty-three days. He held three ordinations in the month of December, wherein he ordained twelve Priests, eight Deacons, and fifteen Bishops for diverse places. He was consulted by the church of Lyons by letter concerning certain questions. The bearer of these letters was that most learned Irenæus. Him he hospitably welcomed, and to him he opened the traditions of the Apostles which the Church of Rome had kept pure. He condemned the superstitious dry-meat system of the Montanists. He laid down excellent rules as to the right form of church sentences. When Marcion and Valentine had oftentimes relapsed he cast them out of the Church. In his days the Church enjoyed the utmost peace, and he brought many even of the chiefest of Rome to believe in Christ. He received letters by messengers from Lleurwg, Prince of the Britons (of Morganwg,) praying him for ministers of the Word of God, and he sent unto him Fagan and Dyfan, Priests of the Roman Church, through whose hands the Prince himself, with his whole household and nearly all his subjects, were born again in the sacred washing of regeneration. At length, when he had done all these things and others for the worship of God, Eleutherius died a holy death upon the 28th day of May, (in the year of our Lord 192,) in the reign of the Emperor Commodus, and was buried upon the Vatican Mount.

LESSON IV

Bede, a priest, was born at Jarrow, on the borders of England and Scotland. At the age of seven years he was placed under the care of holy Benedict Biscop, Abbot of Wearmouth, to be educated. Thereafter he became a monk, and so ordered his life that, whilst he should devote himself wholly to the study of the sciences and of doctrine, he might in nothing relax the discipline of his Order. There was no branch of learning in which he was not most thoroughly versed, but his chief care was the study of Holy Scriptures; and that he might the better understand them he acquired a knowledge of the Greek and Hebrew tongues. When he was thirty years of age he was ordained priest at the command of his Abbot, and immediately, on the advice of Acca, Bishop of Hexham, undertook the work of expounding the Sacred Books. In his interpretations he so strictly adhered to the teaching of the holy Fathers that he would advance nothing which was not approved by their judgment, nay, had the warrant of their very words. He ever hated sloth, and by habitually passing from reading to prayer, and in turn from prayer to reading, rerum fluxarum curis distraheretur, delatum abbatis munus constantissime detrectavit.

Scientiæ ac pietatis laude Bedæ nomen sic brevi claruit, ut sanctus Sergius Papa de eo Romam arcessendo cogitaverit; quo difficillimis scilicet, quæ de rebus sacris exortæ erant, quæstionibus definiendis conferret operam. Emendandis fidelium moribus, fidei vindicandæ atque asserendæ libros plures conscripsit, quibus tantam sui apud omnes opinionem fecit, ut illum sanctus Bonifatius episcopus et martyr, Ecclesiæ lumen prædicaverit; Lanfrancus, Anglorum doctorem; concilium Aquisgranense, doctorem admirabilem dixerit. Quin ejus scripta eo adhuc vivente, publice in ecclesiis legebantur. Quod cum fieret, quoniam ipsum sanctum minime appellare liceret, Venerabilis titulo efferebant; qui deínde veluti proprius secutis étiam temporibus semper habitus est. Ÿ. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

LESSON V

The name of Bede soon became so famous for learning and piety that St. Sergius the Pope thought of calling him to Rome, where, certainly, he might have helped to solve the very difficult questions which had then arisen concerning sacred things. He wrote many books for the bettering of the lives of the faithful, and defending and extending of the faith. By those he gained everywhere such a reputation that the holy martyr Bishop Boniface styled him a Light of the Church; Lanfranc called him The Teacher of the English, and the Council of Aix-la-Chapelle The Admirable Doctor. But as his writings were publicly read in the churches during his life, and as it was not allowable to call him already a saint, they named him The Venerable, a title which in all times after has remained peculiarly his. The power of his teaching was the greater also, in that it was attested by a holy life and the graces of religious observance. In this way, by his earnestness and example, his disciples, who were many and distinguished, were made eminent, not only in letters and the sciences, but in personal holiness.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise, alleluia.

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise, alleluia.

LESSON VI

Broken at length by age and labour, he was seized by a grievous illness. Though he suffered under it for more than seven weeks, he ceased not from his prayers and his interpreting of the Scriptures; for at that time he was turning the Gospel of John into English for the use of his people. But when, on the Eve of the Ascension, he perceived that death was coming upon him, he desired to be fortified with the last sacraments of the Church: then, after he had embraced his companions, and was laid on a piece of sackcloth on the ground, he repeated the words, Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost, and fell asleep in the Lord. His body, very sweet, as it is related, breathing sweet odour, was buried in the monastery of Jarrow, and afterwards was translated to Durham with the relics of St. Cuthbert. Bede, who was already a Doctor among the Benedictines, and in other religious Orders, and venerated in certain dioceses, was declared by Pope Leo XIII., after consulting with the Congregation of Sacred Rites, to be a Doctor of the universal Church; and the Mass and Office for Doctors was ordered to be recited by all on his feast-day.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people, alleluia.

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 5:13-19

AT that time Jesus said to His disciples: Ye are the salt of the earth. But if the salt have lost its savour, wherewith shall it be salted? And so on.

Homily of the Venerable Bede, Priest.

In Evang. Vos estis sal terra

In terra, humana natura; in sale, sapientia verbis significatur. Salis enim natura, terra efficitur infructuosa; unde quasdam urbes legimus, victorum ira, sale seminatas. Et hoc convenit apostolicæ doctrinæ, ut sale sapientiæ compescat in terra humanæ carnis luxum sæculi aut foeditatem vitiorum germinare. Quod si sal evanuerit, in quo salietur? Id est, si vos, per quos condiendi sunt populi, propter metum persecutionum, aut terrorem, amiseritis regna cælorum, extra Ecclesiam positi, inimicorum opprobria sustinetis non dubium. Vos estis lux mundi: id est, vos, quia vera luce illuminati estis, lux eis qui in mundo sunt, esse debetis. Non potest civitas abscondi supra montem posita: id est, apostolica doctrina super Christum fundata, sive Ecclesia super Christum ex multis gentibus fidei unitate constructa et caritatis bitumine conglutinata; quæ sit tuta intrantibus; et laboriosa adeuntibus, habitatores custodit, et omnes inimicos secludit.

R. Iste est qui ante Deum magnas virtutes operatus est, et de omni corde suo laudavit Dñm: * Ipse intercédât pro peccatis ómnium populórum, allelúja.

V. Ecce homo sine queréla, verus Dei cultor, ábstinens se ab omni ópere malo, et pérmanens in innocentia sua.

R. Ipse intercédât pro peccatis ómnium populórum, allelúja.

LECTIO VIII

Neque accendunt lucernam et ponunt eam sub modio, sed super candelabrum. Sub modio ergo lucernam ponit quisquis lucem doctrinæ commodis temporalibus obscurat et tegit; super candelabrum vero, qui se ita ministerio Dei subjicit, ut superior sit doctrina veritatis quam servitus corporis. Aliter Salvator accendit lucernam, qui humanæ testamuræ flamma suæ divinitatis implevit; et hanc super candelabrum, id est Ecclesiam,

On the Gospel

The Gospel saith, Ye are the salt of the earth. In these words the earth signifies human nature, and the salt signifies wisdom. Salt, verily, by its nature renders the earth unfruitful. Hence we read of cities, which in the anger of their victors were sown with salt. And hereto agreeth the teaching of the Apostle that by the salt of wisdom the lust of this world is restrained in the earth of human flesh, lest the foulness of vice should sprout up. But what if the salt shall have lost its savour? That is to say If you, by whom the people are to be seasoned, are, on account of fear of persecution, or terror, you should lose the kingdom of heaven, placed outside the Church, there is no doubt that you will incur the taunts of the enemy. Ye are the light of the world that is to say You, because ye are enlightened by the true light, ought to be the light of them who are in the world. A city set on an hill cannot be hid; that is to say The Apostles' teaching, founded upon Christ; in other words, the Church built upon Christ, out of many nations, in the unity of the faith, and bound together with the cement of love; to those who enter it, a place of safety; to those who go up to it, toilsome; the guardian of those who dwell in it, and excluding every enemy.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them, alleluia.

V. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

R. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them, alleluia.

LESSON VIII

It either doth any man light a candle and put it under a bushel; but upon a candlestick. So he who puts the light under the bushel is he who for his own temporal ends would hide and tamper with the light of doctrine; but upon the candlestick he places it who follows the ministry of God in order that the teaching of the truth may be accounted a greater thing than the service of the body. In another aspect, the Saviour lighted the candle when He filled our mortal body with the flame of the

Commemoration of: St. Bede the Venerable, Confessor and Doctor of the Church

Bede the priest was born at Jarrow, on the borders of England and Scotland. When a monk, he so arranged his life as to devote himself completely to the study of the liberal arts and sacred doctrine, without in any way relaxing the discipline of the Rule. There was no kind of learning in which he was not thoroughly versed; but his special interest was the study of the Scriptures; and when he was made a priest, he undertook the task of explaining the holy books. In doing so, he adhered to the teaching of the holy Fathers so closely that he would say nothing not already approved by their judgment, and he even made use of their very words. Abhorring laziness, he would go straight from reading to prayer and from prayer to reading. To raise the level of morality among Christians and to defend and spread the faith, he wrote many books, which gained him such a reputation with everyone that his writings were publicly read in churches during his own lifetime. At length, worn out with age and labours, he fell asleep peacefully in the Lord. Leo XIII declared him a Doctor of the universal Church.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. John I, Pope and Martyr
 Pope John I was a Tuscan, who ruled the Church during the reign of the Emperor Justinian. He went to Constantinople to get help from Justinian in the troubles which the heretic King Theodoric was then causing in Italy. It pleased the Lord to mark this journey with wonders. A certain noble-man at Corinth lent to the Pope for his journey a very quiet horse on which his own wife was used to ride. But when the horse was returned to his owner he was found become so vicious, that by his restiveness and plunging he was always throw-ing off his mistress, as though he were not content to carry the lady after having carried the Vicar of Jesus Christ. When the nobleman and his wife found the beast to be thus worthless, they gave him for a present to the Pope. But a thing much more marvellous was that when the Pope, accom-ppanied by the Emperor, and under the gaze of an immense multitude of people, who had come forth with Justinian to do him honour, was at the entering in of the Golden Gate of Constantino-ple, he gave sight to a blind man. Even the Em-peror fell at his feet to show him respect. When he had arranged his business with Justinian he re-turned into Italy, and forthwith sent out a letter to all the Bishops of Italy, bidding them hallow for Catholic worship the churches of the Arians, and adding these words: We Ourselves when We were at Constantinople on some matters pertain-ing to the Catholic Religion and others pertaining to the King Theodoric, hallowed as Catholic all their Churches which We were able to find in those parts. Theodoric took this rule very ill, and, having enticed John by fraud to come to Ravenna, he cast him into prison, wherein, in a few days, he died of filth and hunger. He had sat in the chair of Peter two years, nine months, and fourteen days, within which time he had ordained fifteen Bishops. A little while afterward Theodoric also died. St. Gre-gory writeth that a certain hermit saw him between Pontificem et Symmachum patricium, quem idem occiderat, demergi in ignem Liparitanum; ut videlicet illi, quibus mortem attulerat, tamquam iudices essent ejus interitus. Joannis corpus Ravenna Romam portatum est, et in basilica sancti Petri sepultum.

LESSON IV

Augustine, the first Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Apostle of the English, was sent into England by blessed Gregory, and came thither in the year 597. At that time there was in Kent a most mighty king named Ethelbert, whose power reached even to the Humber. When this King had heard wherefore the holy man was come, he received him kindly, and bade him and his companions, who were all monks, to come to his own capital city of Canterbury being struck with astonishment at the perfect blamelessness of their lives, and the power of the heavenly doctrine which they preached, and which God confirmed with signs following.

℟. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him * For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

℣. The enemy shall prevail nothing against him, nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

℟. For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

LESSON V

They drew nigh to the city in solemn procession, singing the Litany, and bearing before them for their standard a silver cross and a picture of the Lord our Saviour painted on a panel. Hard by the city, upon the east side, there was a Church builded of old time in honour of St. Martin, and wherein the Queen, who was a Christian, was used to pray. There they first began to meet together, bus et amplius baptismum in alveo fluminis Eboraci contulisset, quotquot ex iis morbo aliquo affecti erant, cum animæ salute, corporis quoque sanitatem recepisse memoriæ proditum est. Jussu Gregorii ordinatus episcopus, sedem Cantuariæ instituit in ecclesia Salvatoris a se erecta, in qua monachos operis sui subsidiarios collocavit; et sancti Petri monasterium, quod postea et a suo nomine dictum est, in suburbanis construxit. Idem Gregorius usum pallii cum facultate ecclesiasticæ hierarchiæ in Anglia instituendas ei concessit, quo novam étiam operariorum manum misit, nempe Mellitum, Justum, Paulinum, et Rufinianum.

LECTIO VI

Dispositis ejus ecclesiæ rebus, synodum habuit Augustinus cum episcopis atque doctoribus veterum Britonum, qui in Paschæ celebratione aliusque ritibus ab Ecclesia Romana jamdudum dissidebant. Sed cum eos neque Apostolicæ Sedis auctoritate, neque miraculis movere posset ut dissidio cessarent, prophetico spiritu eis excidium prænuntiavit. Denique maximis pro Christo exantlutis laboribus, miraculis clarus, cum Mellitum Londinensi ecclesiæ præfecisset, Justum Rofensi, suæ Laurentium, in cælum migravit septimo Kalendas Junias, Ethelberto regnante, ac sepultus est in monasterio sancti Petri, quod exinde Cantuariensium Antistitem et aliquot regum conditorium fuit. Ejus cultum ferventi studio prosecutæ sunt Anglorum gentes, ac Leo decimus tertius Pontifex Maximus ejus Oificium et Missam ad universam extendit Ecclesiam.

And now Augustine, being ordained Archbishop of the English and of Britain, lest he should leave untravailed any part of the Lord's vineyard, asked from the Apostolic See a new band of labourers, Mellitus, Justus, Paulinus, and Rufinian.

℟. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

℣. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

℟. For My hand shall help him, alleluia.

LESSON VI

Having arranged the affairs of his church, Augustine held a synod with the bishops and doctors of the ancient Britons, who had long been at variance with the Roman Church in the celebration of Easter and other rites. But since he could not move them, either by the authority of the apostolic see or by miracles, to put an end to these variations, in a prophetic spirit he foretold their ruin. At length, after having endured many difficulties for Christ, and having become noted for miracles, when he had placed Mellitus in charge of the church of London, Justus of that of Rochester, and Laurence in charge of his own church, he passed to heaven on the 26th day of May, in the reign of Ethelbert, and was buried in the monastery of St. Peter, which thereafter became the burying-place of the bishops of Canterbury and of some kings. The English people honoured his memory with fervent zeal; and the Supreme Pontiff Leo XIII extended his Office and Mass to the universal Church.

In illo témpore: Designavit Dominus et alios septuaginta duos: et misit illos binos ante faciem suam, in omnem civitatem et locum, quo erat ipse venturus. Et reliqua.

Homília sancti Gregórii Papæ.

Homília 17. in Evang.

Dominus et Salvator noster, fratres carissimi, aliquando nos sermonibus, aliquando vero operibus admonet. Ipsa etenim facta ejus præcepta sunt: quia dum aliquid tacitus facit, quid agere debeamus innotescit. Ecce enim binos in prædicationem discipulos mittit: quia duo sunt præcepta caritatis, Dei videlicet amor, et proximi: et minus quam inter duos caritas haberi non potest. Nemo enim proprie ad semetipsum habere caritatem dicitur: sed dilectio in alterum tendit, ut caritas esse possit.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 10:1-9

At that time, the Lord appointed other seventy-two also, and sent them two and two before His face into every city and place, whither He Himself would come. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory (the Great)

17th Homily on the Gospels

Dearly beloved brethren, our Lord and Saviour doth sometimes admonish us by words, and sometimes by works. Yea, His very works do themselves teach us for that which He doth silently His example still moveth us to copy. Behold how He sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two since there are two commandments to love, that is, a commandment to love God, and a commandment to love our neighbour and where there are not two, the one, being alone, hath not whereon to do the Lord's commandment. And no man can properly be said to love himself: for love tendeth outward toward our neighbour, if it be the love whereto the Gospel doth oblige us.

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him He clothed him with a robe of glory * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise, alleluia.

✠. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise, alleluia.

LESSON VIII

Behold, the Lord sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two and thus doing, He doth silently teach us that whosoever loveth not his non habet, prædicationis officium suscipere nullatenus debet. Bene autem dicitur, quia misit eos ante faciem suam in omnem civitatem et locum, quo erat ipse venturus. Prædicatores enim suos Dominus sequitur: quia prædicatio prævenit, et tunc ad mentis nostræ habitaculum Dominus venit, quando verba exhortationis præcurrunt: atque per hoc veritas in mente suscipitur.

- R. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucernæ ardentes in manibus vestris: * Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis, allelúja.
- ψ. Vigiláte ergo, quia nescítis qua hora Dóminus vester ventúrus sit.
- R. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis, allelúja.
- ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- R. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis, allelúja.

LECTIO IX

Hinc namque eisdem prædicatoribus Isaias dicit: Parate viam Domini, rectas facite semitas Dei nostri. Hinc filiis Psalmista ait: Iter facite ei, qui ascendit super occasum. Super occasum namque Dominus ascendit: quia unde in passione occubuit, inde maiorem suam gloriam resurgendo manifestavit. Super occasum videlicet ascendit; quia mortem quam pertulit, resurgendo calcavit. Ei ergo qui ascendit super occasum, iter facimus, cum nos ejus gloriam vestris mentibus prædicamus, ut eas et ipse post veniens, per amoris sui præsentiam illustret.

neighbour, such an one it behoveth not to take upon him the office of a preacher. Well also is it said that He sent them before His face into every city and place whither He Himself would come. The Lord followeth His preachers first cometh preaching, and then the Lord Himself cometh to the house of our mind, whither the word of exhortation hath come before and so cometh the truth into our mind.

- R. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding, alleluia.
- ψ. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding, alleluia.
- ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding, alleluia.

LESSON IX

Therefore to preachers saith Isaiah: "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight an highway for our God." (xl. 3.) And again the Psalmist saith: "Spread a path before Him That rideth upon the West." (lxvii. 4.) The Lord rideth upon the West above that from which in death He veiled His glory hath He royally exalted that glory that excelleth, even the glory of His rising again. He rideth upon the West, Who, being risen again from the dead, is throned high above the death to which He bowed. Before Him, therefore, That rideth upon the West, we spread a path, when we set forth His glory before the eyes of your mind, to the end that He Himself may come after, and Himself enlighten the same your minds by His presence and His love.

Tē Deum

Augustine, a monk of the Lateran monastery in Rome, was sent by Gregory the Great in 597 to England with about forty monks as his companions. They were invited by King Ethelbert to Canterbury, the chief city of the kingdom, and they built an oratory nearby. Through preaching the doctrine of heaven, Augustine brought many of the islanders and the king himself to the Christian faith, to the great joy of the king's wife, Bertha, who was a Christian. By order of Pope Gregory, Augustine was ordained bishop and founded the see of Canterbury; by the same Pontiff he was granted the use of the pallium and the right to organize the hierarchy of England. At length, after suffering great hardships for Christ, having set Mellitus over the Church of London, Justus over that of Rochester, and Lawrence over his own Church, he made his journey to heaven on the 26th day of May. He was buried in the monastery of St. Peter, which then became the burial place of bishops of Canterbury and of several kings.

LESSON IV

This Mary Magdalen was born of the noble Florentine family of the Pazzi, (on the 2nd day of April, in the year of Christ 1566.) She was hardly out of her cradle when she set her feet in the path of perfection. At ten years of age she made a vow of perpetual virginity, and (at fifteen) took the habit of the Order of Mount Carmel, in the convent of Saint Mary of the Angels. In that sisterhood she was in all ways a pattern to all. She was pure to that degree, that she did not even know of the existence of anything which can hurt modesty. For the space of five years, by the command of God, she lived upon nothing but bread and water, the Lord's Day dia, vigiliis, nuditate, atque omni poenarum genere cruciabat.

Tanto igne divini amoris æstuabat, ut, ei ferendo impar, ingesta aqua pectus refrigerare cogeretur. Extra sensus frequenter rapta, diuturnas et admirabiles éxtases passa est, in quibus et arcana cælestia penetravit, et exímiis a Deo grátiis illustráta fuit. His autem munita longum certamen a princípibus tenebrarum sustinuit, árida, desolatá, ab ómnibus derelicta, variisque tentatiónibus vexata; Deo sic permittente, ut invictæ patientiæ ac profundissimæ humilitátis exémp lar præberet.

R. Dilexísti justítiam, et odísti iniquitatem: * Proptérea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus, óleo lætítiæ, allelúja.

R. And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully, alleluia.

LESSON V

The love of God was so hot within her, that she was sometimes fain to bathe her breast with cold water to allay the agitation. She was oftentimes rapt in the spirit, and that most marvellously, for whole days at a time, during which trances she saw things hidden and heavenly, and was enlightened of God with great gifts. But after all these things she had a stern tussling with the prince of the darkness of this world, while God allowed her spirit to remain dry, deserted, abandoned by all, and tormented with diverse temptations. And all that while she remained an example of unconquered patience and the deepest lowly-mindedness.

R. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; * Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness, alleluia.

V. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness.

R. Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness, alleluia.

LESSON VI

She was very remarkable for her tender love toward her neighbours. Sometimes she went whole nights without sleep, while she was working for the service of the sisters, Or waiting upon the sick. She sometimes healed sores even by licking them. That there should be unbelievers and sinners perishing caused her bitter weeping, and she offered herself to God to suffer for their conversion whatsoever He chose. For many years, therefore, before her death, her mighty charity towards Others, made her freely to give up that heavenly joy of spirit, wherewith she had once so overflowed. She had of-

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Mary Magdalene de Pazzi, Virgin

Mary Magdalene was born of the famous family of the Pazzi in Florence, and almost from her cradle entered on the way of perfection. At ten years old, she made a vow of perpetual virginity, and when she had taken the habit in the monastery of the Carmelite sisters, she showed herself to be exemplary in all virtues. She was so chaste that she did not even know of anything that could harm purity. She burned with such a fire of divine love that she was unable to bear it, and had to cool her breast by pouring water over it. She was notable for her love of neighbor, often passing sleepless nights either in doing the work of the sisters, or in serving the sick, whose ulcers she sometimes cured by licking them. She frequently repeated this saying: "To suffer, not to die." At length, worn out by a long and serious illness, she went to the Bridegroom in the year 1607, having completed her forty-first year. Clement IX numbered her among the Holy Virgins.

LESSON IV

*Sermon of St. Peter Canisius, Priest
On the Incomparable Virgin Mary, Mother of God*

If we follow St. John Damascene, St. Athanasius and others, are we not forced to call Mary Queen, since her father David receiveth the highest praise in Scripture as a renowned king, and her son as King of kings and Lord of lords, reigning forever? She is Queen, moreover, when compared with the Saints who reign like kings in the heavenly kingdom, co-heirs with Christ, the great King, placed on the same throne with him, as the Scripture saith. And as Queen she is second to none of the elect, but in dignity is raised so high above both Angels and men that nothing can be higher or holier than she, who alone hath the same Son as God the Father, and who seeth above her only God and Christ, and below her creatures other than herself.

R. Receive the word, O Virgin Mary, sent to thee by the Lord: * Behold, thou wilt conceive and bring forth God as well as man.

Ÿ. And thou wilt be called Queen over all the nations.

R. Behold, thou wilt conceive and bring forth God as well as man.

LESSON V

The great Athanasius said clearly: Mary is not only the Mother of God, but also can be properly and truly called Queen and Lady, since in fact the Christ who was born of the Virgin Mother is God and Lord and also King. It is to this Queen, therefore, that the Psalmist's words are applied: The Queen taketh her place at thy right hand in garments of gold. Thus Mary is rightly called Queen, not only of heaven, but also of the heavens, as the Mother of the King of Angels, and as the Bride and beloved of the King of the heavens. O Mary, most august Queen and most faithful Mother, to whom no one prayeth in vain who prayeth devoutly, and to whom all mortal men are bound by the enduring memory of so many benefits, again and again reverently I beseech thee to accept and be pleased with every evidence of my devotion to thee, to value the poor gift I offer according to the zeal with which it is offered, and to recommend it to thine all-powerful Son.

℟. Behold, this Child is destined for the fall and the rise of many, * And thine own soul a sword shall pierce.

℣. Hail, Mother of Christ, sharing in his passion, Queen of all the world.

℟. And thine own soul a sword shall pierce.

LESSON VI

*From the Encyclical Letter of Pope Pius XII
Ad cæli Reginam, diei 11 Octobris 1954*

From the documents of ancient Christianity, from the prayers of the liturgy, from the innate religious sense of the Christian people, from works of art, from all sides we gather witnesses which assert that the Virgin Mother of God excelleth in queenly dignity. And we have set forth the reasons which sacred theology deduces from the treasury of divine faith to confirm the same truth. All these witnesses form a sort of chorus, proclaiming far and wide the supreme queenly honour granted to the Mother of God and man, who is above all created things and exalted over the choirs of Angels to reign in heaven. Thus it is that after mature and thoughtful consideration we have been persuaded that great benefits would flow to the Church if, like a light that illumines more brightly when placed in its stand, this solidly proved truth were to shine out more clearly to all, and so, by Our Apostolic Authority, we decree and institute the feast of Mary, Queen, which is to be celebrated every year on the thirty-first day of May throughout the world.

Sermo de regia dignitate Beatae Mariæ Virginis

Beáta María Virgo, summi Regis mater est per generósam conceptionem, secúndum quod dicitur in verbo sibi dicto ab Angelo: Ecce inquit, concípies et páries fílium; et póstea: Dabit ei Dóminus sedem David patris ejus, et regnábít in domo Jacob in ætérnum, et regni ejus non erit finis. Ac si apérte dicat: Concípies et páries fílium Regem, in regáli sólio æternáliter residéntem, ac per hoc tamquam Mater Regis regnábis, et ut Regína in regáli sólio residébis. Si enim decet fílium honórem matri dare, decet ut ei commúnicet thronum regálem; unde Virgo María, quia concépit eum, qui habet in fémore scriptum: Rex regum et Dóminus dominántium, statim ex quo concépit Fílium Dei, Regína fuit, non solum terræ, sed étiam cæli, quod designátum est in Apocalýpsi ubi dicitur: Signum magnum apparuit in cælo:

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 1:26-33

In that time: In the sixth month, the angel Gabriel was sent from God into a city of Galilee, called Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary. And so on.

Homily of St. Bonaventure, Bishop

Sermon on the Royal Dignity of the Blessed Virgin Mary

The Blessed Virgin Mary is the Mother of the great King by reason of a noble kind of conception, according to the message given her by the Angel. Behold, he said, thou shalt conceive and shalt bring forth a son; and again, the Lord God will give him the throne of David his father, and he shall be king over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end. This is as if to say in so many words, Thou wilt conceive and bear a son who is King, eternally reigning on the royal throne, and as Queen thou wilt be seated on the royal throne. For if it becometh a son to give honour to his mother, it is also fitting that he share his royal throne with her; and so the Virgin Mary, because she conceived him on whose thigh was written, King of kings and Lord of lords, was Queen not only of earth but also of heaven as soon as she conceived the Son of God. This is indicated in the Apocalypse where it saith: A great sign appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, and the múlíer amícta sole, et luna sub pédibus ejus, et in cápíte ejus coróna stellárum duódecim.

℟. Ecce Virgo concípíet et páriet Fílium, * Et vocábitur nomen ejus Admirábilis, Deus, Fortis. (Allelúja.)

℣. Super sólíum David et super regnum ejus sedébit in ætérnum.

℟. Et vocábitur nomen ejus Admirábilis, Deus, Fortis. (Allelúja.)

LECTIO VIII

María Regína est præclaríssima quantum ad glóriam, quod bene désígnat Prophéta in psalmo qui speciáliter est de Christo et Vírgine María, ubi primo díctur de Christo: Sedes tua, Deus, in sáculum sáculi, et paulo post de Vírgine: Adstitit regína a dextris tuis, hoc est in potióribus bonis, quod quídem dictum est quantum ad glóriam mentis. Séquitur: In vestítu deauráto, in quo exprímítur vestítus gloriósæ immortalitátis, quem décuit habére Vírginem in sua Assumptióne. Absit enim ut vestiméntum illud quo opéretus est Christus, quod étiam fuit perfécte sanctificátum in terra per Verbum incarnátum, fiat cibus vérmium. Sicut décuit Christum dare grátiam Matri suæ pleníssimam in sua Conceptione, sic décuit tribúere pleníssimam glóriam in ipsíus Matris Assumptióne. Et ídeo tenéndum est quod Virgo, gloriósa in ánima et córpore, sédeat juxta Fílium.

℣. Intercéde pro nobis ad Dóminum Jesum Christum.

℟. Super choros Angelórum ad cæléstia regna. (Allelúja.)

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Super choros Angelórum ad cæléstia regna. (Allelúja.)

LECTIO IX

María Regína est et dispensátrix grátia, quod désígnátum fuit in libro Esther, ubi díctur:

moon was under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars.

℟. Behold a Virgin shall conceive and bear a Son, * And his name shall be called Wonderful, God, the Mighty One.

℣. He shall sit upon the throne of David, and reign over his kingdom forever.

℟. And his name shall be called Wonderful, God, the Mighty One.

LESSON VIII

Mary the Queen outshineth all others in glory, as the Prophet clearly showeth in the Psalm which particularly concerns Christ and the Virgin Mary. It first saith of Christ: Thy throne, O God, standeth forever and ever, and shortly thereafter of the Virgin: The Queen taketh her place at thy right hand, that is, in the position of highest blessedness, for it referreth to glory of soul. It continueth: In garments of gold, by which is meant the clothing of glorious immortality which was proper to the Virgin in her Assumption. For it could not be that the garment which clothed Christ, the garment completely sanctified on earth by the incarnate Word, should be the food of worms. As it was fitting for Christ to grant the fullness of grace to his Mother at her Conception, so was it fitting that he grant her the fullness of glory at her Assumption. And so we are to hold that the Virgin, glorious in soul and body, is enthroned next to her Son.

℟. Thou hast been exalted, holy Mother of God, * Over the choirs of Angels, to reign in heaven.

℣. Intercede for us with the Lord Jesus Christ.

℟. Over the choirs of Angels, to reign in heaven.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. Over the choirs of Angels, to reign in heaven.

LESSON IX

Mary the Queen is also the distributrix of grace. This is indicated in the book of Esther, where it is Parvus fons qui crevit in flúvium, et in lucem et solem convérsus est. Virgo Maria sub figura Esther comparátur diffusióni fontis et lúminis, propter diffusiónem grátiae quantum ad dúplicem usum, actiónis licet et contemplatiónis. Grátia enim Dei, quæ est medicatíva géneris humáni, per ipsam ad nos descendit quasi per aquæductum, quia ad ipsam Virginem pértinet dispensátio grátiae non per modum princípíi, sed per modum mériti. Mérito ígitur Virgo María est excellentíssima Regína in comparatióne ad plebem, cum ímpetrat véniam, súperat pugnam, et distribuit grátiam, et consequénte perducit ad glóriam.

Te Deum

said: The little spring which grew into a river and was turned into a light and into the sun. The Virgin Mary, under the type of Esther, is compared to the outpouring of a spring and of light, because of the diffusion of grace for two uses, that is, for action and for contemplation. For the grace of God, which is a healing for the human race, descendeth to us through her as if through an aqueduct, since the dispensing of grace is attributed to the Virgin not as to its beginning, but because of her position through merit. By position the Virgin Mary is a most excellent Queen towards her people: she obtaineth forgiveness, overcometh strife, distributeth grace, and thereby she leadeth them to glory.

LESSON IV

Angela Merici was born of godly parents at Decen-zano on the western shore of the Lake of Garda, in the diocese of Verona and territory of Venice, (on the 21st day of March, about the year of grace 1474.) From her earliest years she carefully guarded the lily of her virginity, with the inten-tion of keeping it for ever unbroken. She had no taste for women's finery, and purposely marred the exceeding comeliness of her body and her sightly hair, as seeking to appear beautiful only in the eyes of Him Who is the Lover of souls. At ten years of age she lost both her father and mother, and thereafter, being fain to take upon her a life of greater hardness, she essayed to retire into a desert place apart, but this her uncle forbade her to do, and she learnt how to practice at home what she was not allowed to attempt in the wilderness. She often used hair-cloth and scourging never ate flesh-meat, except when she was sick drank wine only on the Feast-days of Christmas and Easter; and many a day took nothing at all. She was instant in prayer. What little sleep she took, she took lying on the ground. The devil strove to beguile her, appearing under the form of an angel of light, but she quickly detected him and put him to flight. At length she added to the glory of virginity that poverty which is commended in the Gospel she gave up all that she had, and adopted the dress and rule of the Third Order of St Francis.

LESSON V

She left undone no service of kindness which she was able to do to her neighbors. If there remained anything over of the food which was given in alms to herself, she gave that to the poor. She cheerfully waited upon the sick. She journeyed about, with a great reputation for holiness, comforting the afflicted, asking forgiveness for the guilty, reconciling the angry, and recalling the wicked from evil. Her only hunger was for the bread of Angels, and she took the Same right often, and then arose in her vehemence of love bearing her towards God, which oftentimes made her beside herself. She made a pilgrimage, with intense feeling, to the Holy Places in Palestine, during which journey she lost her sight at Canea in Crete on her way out, and recovered it at the same place on her way home. In this journey also, God saved her from being made prisoner by the unbelievers and from shipwreck. She went to Rome, (in 1525,) at once to pray at the immovable Rock of the Church, and to gain the abundant pardons of the Jubilee. Pope Clement VII conversed with her, was edified by her holiness, and highly commended her neither would he let her leave Rome, until he knew that God was calling her elsewhere.

LESSON VI

She went back to Brescia, and there hired an house near the Church of St. Afra, in which house, in obedience to a vision and command from heaven, she founded a new Order of religious women, con-

LECTIO IX (PRO COMMÉMORATIONE)

Commemoratio: S. Angeli Mericiæ Virginis
Angela Mericia, piis orta paréntibus, a prima ætáte magna virtútum spécimina dedit, stituted under certain rules and holy regulations of life. This Order she put under the name and patronage of St Ursula, the fearless leader of maidens. When Angela was near to death, she foretold that this Order will never cease. She was well-nigh three score and ten years of age, and full of good works, when, in the (night between the) 27th (and the 28th days) of January, in the year 1540, she winged her flight heavenward. Her dead body lay unburied thirty days, supple and life-like. It was laid at last in the Church of St. Afra, where sleep so many more of God's holy children. Diverse miracles forthwith began to be worked at her grave. The fame of these being noised about, she began to be commonly called Blessed, and that not only at Brescia and Decenzano and pictures of her were put over Altars. Not many years afterward, holy Charles Borromeo said openly at Brescia, that she was one whose name the Apostolic See might well enroll among those of holy virgins. The reverence which had of a long time been shown to her memory was approved by the local Ordinaries, confirmed by diverse Papal Indults, and solemnly ratified and established by decree of Pope Clement XIII. As she continued famous for new and proved miracles, Pope Pius VII, at the solemn canonization held in the Vatican Basilica, upon the 24th day of May, in the year 1807, added her name to the list of holy maids.

frequently using sackcloth and scourges, and praying unceasingly. She renounced her inheritance and embraced the rule of the Third Order of St. Francis. Uniting evangelical poverty with the glory of virginity, she withheld no service of kindness to her neighbour. She was frequently refreshed by the Holy Eucharist, and was carried up to God with such force of love as often to be rapt out of her senses. At Brescia, she founded a new society of Virgins, under a fixed discipline and a rule of life conducive to holiness, which she put under the patronage and name of St. Ursula. At last, when she was almost seventy years old, she went to heaven, in the year of the Lord 1540, on January 27th. Pope Clement XIII by a solemn decree ratified and confirmed the veneration which had already been offered her for a long time; and Pope Pius VII enrolled her in the list of holy Virgins.

This Peter was an exorcist, whom, in the reign of the Emperor Diocletian, Serenus the Judge cast into prison at Rome because he confessed the Christian faith. He there set free Paulina, the daughter of Artemius, the keeper of the prison, from an evil spirit which tormented her. Upon this, Artemius and his wife and all their house, with their neighbours who had run together to see the strange thing, would fain be made friends with Jesus Christ. Peter therefore brought them to Marcellinus, the Priest, who baptized them all. When Serenus heard of it, he called Peter and Marcellinus before him, and sharply rebuked them, adding to his bitter words threats and terrors, unless they would deny Christ. Marcellinus answered him with Christian boldness, whereupon he caused him to be buffeted, separated him from Peter and shut him up naked in a prison strewn with broken

But when both of them were found to wax faithfuller and braver in their bonds, they were beheaded, unshaken in their testimony, and confessing Jesus Christ gloriously by their blood. From all this he came forth whole and sound which wonder turned many to believe in Christ. He was remanded again to prison, and straitly bound in heavy iron fetters. But from these he was wondrously delivered by an angel. At last, at Formi, Maximian caused him to be subjected to diverse tortments, and in the end being clad in a coat of redhot brass the power of God made him to be more than conqueror in this thing also, and to grasp the palm-branch of a glorious testimony, whereby he strengthened many in the faith and turned many to it.

LECTIO V

Solēmni emīssa professiōe, ob singulārem ejus in divum Franciscum Assisinātem cultum, Francisci nomen assūmpsit. Adorno biēnnio post vita functo, ipse toti religiōni, quamquam invītus, præfīcitur; quo in mūnere virtūtum ōmnium præclāra præbuit exēmpla. Institūti amplificādi studiosissimus, id assīduis oratiōnibus, lācrimis, et jugi cōrporis maceratiōne enīxe a Deo postulābat. Quam ob rem tērtio in Hispāniam se cōtulit, peregrīni hābitu indūtus, victūmq̃ue ostiātīm mendicans. In itīnere aspērrima quæque perpessus, Omnipotentis auxilium mirum in modum expērtus, navim quam conscēderat, ab imminēti naufrāgio oratiōnis præsīdio servāvit incolumem. Ut in regnis illis voti compos fieret, plūrimum laborāvit; sed, ejus sanctitātis fama prælucēnte, amplissimāque catholicōrum regum Philīpto such prisoners as were condemned to death. It came to pass that those two great servants of God, John Augustine Adorno and Fabricius Caracciolo, wrote a letter to a certain person, wherein they exhorted him to found a new religious Institute. This letter came by a mistake to be delivered to Francis Caracciolo. The newness of the idea and the strange ways of God's Providence took possession of his mind, and he joyfully added himself to their company. They withdrew themselves to the wilderness of the Camaldolese hermits (near Naples,) and there concerted the Rule of the New Order. Thence they went together to Rome, and obtained the confirmation of their work from Sixtus V, who was pleased that they should be called The Lesser Clerks Regular, since they add to the three accustomed vows (of Poverty, Chastity, and Obedience,) a fourth, binding themselves not to seek preferment in the Church.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℞. And gave him perpetual glory, alleluia.

LESSON V

Ascanius Caracciolo, moved by a special love and devotion he had to the holy Francis of Assisi, took, when he made his solemn profession, the name of Francis. After two years, John Adorno departed this life, and Francis, against his own will, was made Head of the Order. In this office he shone a burning light of grace. Devoted to the prosperity of the Institute, he earnestly sought the blessing of God upon it, by constant prayer, by tears, and by stern treatment of his own body. In this work, he thrice travelled into Spain in the guise of a pilgrim, and begging his bread from door to door. In these his journeys he suffered very great hardships, and was most wonderfully helped by the Almighty, especially one while when he was on shipboard and the ship nigh to perish, but for the work of his prayers. He toiled hard in those countries to attain ' his wishes, but through the widespread fame of his holy life, and the noble generosity of the Most Catholic Kings Philip II. and Philip III., he

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise, alleluia.

LESSON VI

There was a great pattern of lowliness, so that when he came to Rome he betook himself to an almshouse, and chose a leper for his familiar friend. Paul V. offered him diverse honours in the Church, but he firmly refused them all. He preserved his purity unspotted, and when certain shameless women set themselves to attack his chastity, he took the occasion to gain over their souls for Christ. Toward God's great mystery of the Eucharist he was drawn with passionate tenderness, and would pass almost whole nights without sleep, simply adoring It. This godly custom he established in his Order, to be kept up therein for ever, the peculiar mark thereof. He was a great encourager of the worship of the Maiden Mother of God. He was hot with strong love for his neighbour. He was gifted with prophecy, and the discerning of spirits. In the forty-fourth year of his age he was continuing long in prayer in the Holy House of Loretto, when it was made known to him that the end of his earthly life was at hand. He straight-way took his way to the Abruzzi, and was there seized with illness while he was with the disciples of St. Philip Neri, in the town of Agnone. He received with great devotion the Sacraments of the Church, and then, upon the 4th day of June, being the Eve of the Feast of the Body of Christ, in the year 1608, he very peacefully fell asleep in the Lord. His sacred body was carried to Naples, and there honourably buried in the Church of St. Mary the Greater, where he had laid the first founda-tions of his Order. As he became distinguished for miracles Pope Clement XIV enrolled his name,

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Francis Caracciolo, Confessor

Francis, originally called Ascanio, came from the noble family of the Caracciolo, in the city of Santa Maria della Villa in the Abruzzi. During a severe illness in his youth, he resolved to give himself up completely to the service of God and neighbour. He went to Naples and was ordained priest, after which he devoted himself wholly to contemplation and the winning of souls; and he was always on hand to comfort prisoners condemned to death. By a wonderful disposition of God, he joined with John Augustine Adorno and Fabrizio Caracciolo in founding the Order of Clerks Regular Minor, adding to the three usual vows another: not to seek dignities. After the death of Adorno, Francis ruled the Order in a most holy way, and with the greatest zeal promoted it throughout Spain and Italy. He burned with such love for the Most Blessed Sacrament that he would spend almost the whole night in adoring it; and he established adoration of the Blessed Sacrament as a practice to be kept for ever in his Order, the peculiar mark thereof. He was enriched with the gifts of prophecy and the reading of hearts. At length, in his forty-fourth year, he was taken with a deadly fever in the town of Agnone, in the Abruzzi, and fell asleep in the Lord on the 4th day of June, 1608. His holy body

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Winfried, afterwards called Boniface, was an Englishman, and born in England, towards the end of the seventh century. From his very childhood, he turned away from the world, and set his heart upon becoming a monk. His father tried in vain to turn him from his wishes by the beguilements of the world, and he entered a Monastery, where the Blessed Wolphard instructed him in all godliness and diverse kinds of learning. At the age of twenty-nine years he was ordained Priest, and became an unwearied preacher of the Word of God, wherein he had a gift which he used with great gain of souls. Nevertheless, his great desire was to spread the kingdom of Christ, and he continually bewailed the vast number of savages who were plunged in the darkness of ignorance and were the servants of the devil. This zealous love of souls increased in him in intensity day by day, till nothing would serve him, but, having implored the blessing of God by tears and prayers, and obtained authority from the head of his monastery, to set forth for the coast of Germany.

℟. Eternal light will shine over your saints, O Lord, * And the eternity of the times, alleluia, alleluia.

℣. Everlasting joy shall be upon their heads, they shall obtain joy and gladness

℟. And the eternity of the times, alleluia, alleluia.

LESSON V

He set sail from England with two companions (in the year 716) and reached the town of Dorestadt in Friesland. A great war being then raging between regem Radbódum et Cárolum Martéllum exarsisset, sine fructu Evangélium prædicávit. Quaprópter in Angliam reversus, ad suum redívit monastérium, cui invítus præfíctur. Post elápsum biénnum, ex consénsu epíscopi Vintoniénsis, munus abdicávit, et Romam proféctus est, ut apostólica auctoritáte ad Gentílium conversiónem delegarétur. Cum ad Urbem pervénisset, a Gregório secúndo benígne excípitur, pro Winfrído Bonifátius a Pontífice nominátur. In Germániam diréctus, Thuringiæ Saxonique pópulis Christum annuntiávit. Cum intérea Radbódus, Frísiæ rex ac infestíssimus christiáni nóminis hostis, occubúisset, Bonifátius ad Frísones rédiit, ubi sancti Willibrórdi sócius per triénnum tanto cum fructu Evangélium prædicávit, ut, destrúctis idolórum simulácris, innúmeræ vero Deo ecclésiæ excitarentur.

Radbod, King of the Frieslanders, and Charles Martel, Winfrid preached the Gospel in vain. He went back to England, and betook himself again to his Monastery, whereof he was, against his own will, chosen to be the head. After two years he obtained the consent of the Bishop of Winchester to resign his office, and (in 719) went to Rome, to seek an Apostolic commission to preach to the heathen. When he arrived at the city he was courteously welcomed by Gregory II., who changed his name from Winfrid to Boniface. He departed thence to Germany, and preached Christ to the tribes in Thuringia and Saxony. Radbod, King of Friesland, who bitterly hated the Christian name, being dead, Boniface went a second time among the Frieslanders, and there, with his comrade St. Willibrord, preached the Gospel for three years with so much fruit, that the idols were hewn down, and countless churches arose to the true God.

R. His servants, alleluia * God will comfort, alleluia, alleluia.

LESSON VI

Willibrord urged upon him to take the office of a Bishop, but he deferred to seek it, that he might the more instantly toil for the salvation of the unbelievers. Advancing into Germany, he reclaimed thousands of the Hessians from devil-worship. Pope Gregory sent for him to Rome, (whither he came in 723,) and after hearing a noble profession of his faith, consecrated him a Bishop. He again returned to Germany, and thoroughly purged Hesse and Thuringia from all remains of idolatry. On account of such great works Gregory III. advanced Boniface to the dignity of an Archbishop, and on the occasion of a third journey to Rome, (in 738,) he was invested by the Sovereign Pontiff with the powers of Legate of the Apostolic See. As such, he founded (the) four Bishoprics (of Erfurt, Paderborn, Wurtzburg, and Eichstadt,) and held diverse Synods, among which is especially to be remembered that of Lessines, held in Belgium, in the diocese of Cambrai, wherein he made his strongest endeavours to spread the Faith among the Belgians. By Pope Zacharias, he was named Archbishop of Maintz, and by command of the same Pope, he anointed Pepin to be King of the Franks. After the death of St. Willibrord, he undertook the govern-ment of the Church of Utrecht, at first through Eoban but he afterwards was released from the care of the Church of Maintz and established his see at Utrecht. The Frieslanders having again fallen back into idolatry, he once more betook himself to preach the Gospel among them, and while he was busied in this duty, he grasped the crown of mar-tyrdom, being murdered by some ungodly savages, along with his fellow-Bishop Eoban, and many others, in a bloody massacre near the River Born, (on the th day of June, in the year of our Lord 755, and of his own age the 75th.) In accordance with the wish expressed by himself during life the body of St. Boniface was carried to Maintz, and buried in the monastery of Fulda, of which he had been the founder, and where God has gloriously honoured it by the working of many signs and wonders. Pope Pius IX. ordered the Office and Mass in bis memory to be used throughout the whole Church.

Liber 1 de sermone Dómini in monte, cap. 2. et

Beáti mundo corde; quóniam ipsi Deum vidébunt. Quam ergo stulti sunt, qui Deum istis exterióribus óculis quærunt, cum corde videátur, sicut álibi scriptum est: Et in simplicitáte cordis quæríte illum. Hoc est enim mundum cor, quod est simplex cor. Et quemádmodum lumen hoc vidéri non potest, nisi óculis mundis; ita nec Deus vidétur, nisi mundum sit illud quo vidéri potest. Beáti pacífici; quóniam ipsi filii Dei vocabúntur. In pace perféctio est, ubi nihil repúgnat; et ideo filii Dei pacífici, quóniam nihil in his résistit Deo, et útique filii similitúdinem patris habére debent.

R. Ego sum vitis vera, et vos pálmities: * Qui manet in me, et ego in eo, hic fert fructum multum, allelúja, allelúja.

Ÿ. Sicut diléxit me Pater, et ego diléxi vos.

R. Qui manet in me, et ego in eo, hic fert fructum multum, allelúja, allelúja.

LECTIO VIII

Pacífici autem in semetípsis sunt, qui omnes ánimi sui motus componéntes, et subjiciéntes ratióni, id est menti et spirítui, carnalésque concupiscéntias habéntes edómitas, fiunt regnum Dei. In quo ita sunt ordináta ómnia, ut id quod est in hómine præcípuum et excéllens, hoc ímperet, céteris non relucántibus, quæ sunt nobis bestiísque commúnia; atque idípsum quod excélluit in hómine, id est mens et ratió, subjiciátur potióri, quod est ipsa véritas, unigénitus Filius Dei. Neque enim ímperáre inferiórius potest, nisi superióri se ipse subjiciat. Et hæc est pax, quæ datur in terra homínibus bonæ voluntátis; hæc vita consummáti perfectíque sapiéntis.

R. Cándidi facti sunt Nazaræi ejus, allelúja: splendórem Deo dedérunt, allelúja: * Et sicut lac coaguláti sunt, allelúja, allelúja.

Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. What fools then be they that seek God with their outward eyes, since it is in the heart that He is seen, as it is written elsewhere In simplicity of heart seek Him. (Wisd. i. i.) A simple heart is a pure heart. And even as we cannot see this earthly light, unless the eyes be open, so cannot God be seen, unless that be open which alone can perceive Him. Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God. The perfection of peace is the absence of contrariety, and the peacemakers are called the children of God because they offer no contrariety against the will of God. As beseeemeth children, they have their Father's likeness.

R. I am the vine: you the branches. * He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit, alleluia, alleluia.

Ÿ. As the Father hath loved me, I also have loved you.

R. He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit, alleluia, alleluia.

LESSON VIII

They are peacemakers in themselves, who order all the movements of their own mind in obedience to reason, that is, to their intellect and soul, and so doing, and taming the lusts of the flesh, become a kingdom for God. In such kingdom all things are so ordered, that the chiefest and noblest part of man ruleth without contention over those lower things which we have in common with beasts. And just in the same way, must that nobler part of man, that is to say, intellect and reason, needs be put in subjection to what is above it, namely, Truth, the Only begotten Son of God. He only can rule well who hath learnt to obey. And this ordering is that peace which is given on earth to men of good will this is the life of whomsoever is thoroughly and perfectly wise.

R. Her Nazarites are become pure, Alleluia: they reflect the glory of God, Alleluia. * They are whiter than milk. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Ÿ. They are purer than snow, they are whiter than milk, they are more ruddy in body than coral, their polishing is of sapphire.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Boniface, Bishop and Martyr

Boniface, originally called Winfrid, was born in England towards the end of the seventh century. After entering a monastery and becoming a priest, he showed great skill in winning souls through preaching. Burning with zeal to spread the faith, he preached the Gospel among the Frisians. Then he returned to England, where he ruled his monastery for two years in a most holy manner. Having resigned the office of Superior, he went to Rome, where he received from Gregory II the name of Boniface and the commission to proclaim Christ to the peoples of Thuringia and

At length, he went back once again to the Frisians, who had lapsed into idolatry, to preach the Gospel to them. LECTIO IV

Norbértus, nobilíssimis paréntibus natus, adolescens liberálibus disciplínis eruditus, in ipsa póstea imperatóris aula, spretis mundi illécebris, ecclesiásticæ militiæ adscribí voluit. Sacris initiátus, rejéctis móllibus ac splendídis véstibus, pellíceá melóte indútus, prædicatióni verbi Dei se totum dedit. Abdicátis ecclesiásticis provéntibus satis amplis, et património in páuperes erogáto, semel in die sub vésperam solo cibo quadragesimáli utens, nudísque pédibus et lácera veste sub brumáli rigóre incédens, miræ austeritátis vitam est aggréssus. Potens ígitur ópere et sermóne, innúmeros hæréticos ad fidem, peccatóres ad poeniténtiam, dissidéntes ad pacem et concórdiam revocávit.

℣. Nihil proficiet inimícus in eo, et fílius iniquitátis non nocébit ei.

LESSON IV

Norbert, born in the year 1080 of parents of the highest rank, thoroughly educated in his youth in worldly knowledge, and a member of the Imperial court, turned his back upon the glory of the world, and chose rather to enlist himself as a soldier of the Church. Being ordained Priest, he laid aside all soft and showy raiment, clad himself in a coat of skins, and made the preaching of the Word of God the one object of his life. He had the right to rich revenues of the Church but these he renounced and to an ample fortune from his father; but this he gave to the poor. He ate only once a day, and that in the evening, and then his meal was of the fare of Lent. His life was one of singular hardness, and he was used even in the depth of winter to go out with bare feet and ragged garments. Hence came that mighty power of his words and deeds, whereby he was enabled to turn countless heretics to the true faith, sinners to repentance, and enemies to peace and brotherly love.

℞. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him * For My hand shall help him.

℣. The enemy shall prevail nothing against him, nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

R. Manus enim mea auxiliabitur ei.

LECTIO V

Cum Laudúni esset, ab epíscopo rogátus ne a sua diocési discéderet, desértum in ea locum, qui Præmonstrátus dicebátur, sibi délegit; ibíque, trédecim sóciis aggregátis, Præmonstraténsem órđinem instítuit, divínitus accépta per visum régula a sancto Augustíno. Cum vero ejus fama sanctitátis in dies magis augerétur, ac plúrimi ad eum quotídie discípuli convenírent, idem ordo ab Honório secúndo aliisque summis Pontíficibus confirmátus, ac plúribus ab eo monastériis ædificátis, mirífice propagátus est.

R. Pósui adjutórium super poténtem, et exaltávi eléctum de plebe mea: * Manus enim mea auxiliabitur ei.

ψ. Invéni David servum meum, óleo sancto meo unxi eum.

R. Manus enim mea auxiliabitur ei.

LECTIO VI

Archiepíscopus tandem (licet relúctans) Magdeburgén-sis creátus, ecclesiásticam disciplínam, præsertim cælibátum, constánter propugnávit. Rhemis in concílio Innocéntium secúndum egrégie adjúvit, et Romam cum áliis epíscopis proféctus, schisma Petri Leónis comprésit. Postrémo vir Dei, méritis et Spírítu Sancto plenus, Magdeburgi obdormívit in Dómino, anno salutis millésimo centésimo trigésimo quarto, die sexta Júnii.

R. Iste est, qui ante Deum magnas virtútes operátus est, et omnis terra doctrína ejus repléta est: * Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

ψ. Iste est, qui contémpsit vitam mundi, et pervénit ad cæléstia regna.

R. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON V

Being one while at Laon, the Bishop besought him not to leave his diocese, and he therefore made choice of a wilderness at the place called Prémontré, whither he withdrew himself with thirteen disciples, and thus founded the Order of the Præmonstratensian Canons, whereof he, by the will of God, received the Rule, in a vision, from St. Augustine. When, however, the fame of his holy life became every day more and more noised abroad, and great numbers sought to become his disciples, and the Order had been approved by Honorius II, and other Popes, many more monasteries were built by him, and the Institute wonderfully extended.

R. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him.

ψ. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

R. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON VI

Being called to Antwerpen, he there gave the death-blow to the shameful heresy of Tanchelm. He was remarkable for the spirit of prophecy and for the gift of miracles. He was created (albeit he would rather not have had it so) Archbishop of Magdeburg, and as such he was a strong upholder of the discipline of the Church, especially contending against the marriage of the clergy. At a Council held at Reims he was a great help to Innocent II, and went with some Other Bishops to Rome, where they stamped out the schism of Peter Leoni. It was at last at Magdeburg that this man of God, full of good works and of the Holy Ghost, fell asleep in the Lord, on the 6th day of June, in the year of salvation 1134.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and the whole earth is full of his teaching * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them

ψ. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and hath attained unto the kingdom of heaven.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Norbert, Bishop and Confessor

Norbert was born of most noble parents and, as a young man, studied the liberal arts. Then, while serving in the court of the Emperor himself, he spurned the seductions of the world and decided to enroll among the soldiers of the Church. After receiving holy orders he devoted himself entirely to preaching the word of God. He brought back innumerable heretics to the faith, sinners to penance, quarrellers to peace and concord. He retired to a desert place called Prémontré in the diocese of Laon; and there, with thirteen companions, he founded the Praemonstratensian Order, which spread in a marvelous way. Against his will, he was made Archbishop of Magdeburg, and constantly defended ecclesiastical discipline and especially celibacy. At the Council of Reims, he was a strong champion of Innocent II; and going to Rome with other bishops, he put an end to the schism of Pierleone. He fell asleep in the Lord at Magdeburg on the 6th day of June in the year of salvation 1134.

Lessons I–II: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON III (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Primus and Felician were two brothers who were accused of Christianity during the persecution by Diocletian and Maximian, and thrown into irons, which an angel broke, and so freed their limbs. In the presence of the Praetor they most acerrime tuerentur, alter ab altero distracti sunt; ac primum varie tentata est constantia Feliciani. Sed, cum suasores impietatis se posse quidquam verbis proficere desperarent, affixis stipiti manibus ejus et pedibus, ipsum sine cibo et potu inde triduum pendentem reliquerunt. Postridie ejus diei, praetor vocatum ad se Primum sic affatur: Vides quanto sit prudentior, quam tu, frater tuus, qui obsecutus imperatoribus, apud ipsos est honoratus? Quem si tu quoque imitari volueris, particeps eris ejus honoris et gratiae. Cui Primus: Qui factum sit fratri meo, cognovi ex Angelo. Utinam, quemadmodum sum cum eo voluntate conjunctissimus, sic ab eodem ne martyrio disjungar. Quo dicto excanduit praetor, et ad ceteros cruciatus, quibus Primum affecit, praesente jam Feliciano, liquatum igne plumbum in os ejus jussit infundi. Mox utrumque perducitur imperat in theatrum, in eosque immitti duos leones; qui, prostrati ad eorum genua, capite et cauda ipsis blandiebantur. Ad id spectaculum cum amplius duodecim millia hominum convenissent, quingenti cum suis familiis christianam religionem susceperunt. Quibus rebus permotus praetor, eos securi percuti jussit.

earnestly gave to the profession of their faith, and were immediately parted one from the other. Felician's was the steadfastness which was first tried in diverse ways. They, however, that strove to argue him into sin, when they found that words availed nothing, fastened his hands and feet to a post, and left him to hang there three days without food or drink. On the fourth day the Praetor called Primus before him, and said to him Seest thou how much thy brother is wiser than thou? He hath obeyed the Emperors, and they have made him honourable. Thou hast only to follow his example to be made partaker of his honours and favours. Primus answered him: What hath befallen my brother I know, for an angel hath told me. God grant that, seeing I have the same will that he hath, I may not be divided from him in uplifting of testimony. These words raised the wrath of the Praetor, and to the torments which he had already inflicted on Primus, he added this also, that he had boiling lead put into his mouth, compelling his brother Felician to be present and see it done. After that, he had them led into the theatre and two lions let loose upon them, in the presence of about twelve thousand people who were gathered together to see the show. The lions only fawned upon the knees of the Saints, making friends with them with motions of their heads and tails. This exhibition turned five hundred persons and their households to Christ. The Praetor, then, moved beyond all endurance by what had passed, caused Primus and Felician to be beheaded.

of the Caesars, but her greatest nobleness was in her brave Christian life. She was born in Hungary, where her father was then an exile, (in the year 1046,) and had passed a religious childhood, when her uncle Edward, the holy King of England, recalled him to his own royal home, and she came to England with him (in 1054.) A few years after, upon the ruin of her family, she was escaping from England by sea, when the violence of the weather, or, to speak more truly, the Providence of God, caused that the ship should take refuge upon the coast of Scotland. There her extraordinary graces of mind and body so attracted King Malcolm III., that by the advice of his mother, he took her to wife (in 1070,) and of Scotland she deserved exceedingly well for the thirty years of her reign, by the holiness of her life and the abundance of her works of mercy.

R. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness; * And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

Ÿ. In thy comeliness, and thy beauty, go forward, fare prosperously, and reign.

R. And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

LESSON V

In the midst of kingly dainties, she afflicted her body with hardships and watching, using to spend great part of the night in earnest prayer. Besides other fasts which she imposed upon herself, it was her custom to observe one of forty days before Christmas, concerning which fast she was so rigid, that she would not relax it even under sharp suffering. She took great delight in the public worship of God, and founded or renewed a great number of Churches and convents, which she enriched at great cost with sacred furniture. Her healthy example drew the King her husband to habits of sobriety, and to imitate her in her good works. To all her children she had the happiness of giving a godly education, and several of them, like her mother Agatha and her sister Christina, led notable holy lives. The happiness of the whole kingdom was the object for which she constantly strove, and she successfully rooted out all the vices which had stealthily crept in, and established among the people a standard of living worthy of Christians.

LESSON VI

The most remarkable feature of her life was the tenderness of her charity toward her neighbour, especially the needy. Of these she would not only order whole flocks to be relieved, but was accustomed to give dinner to three hundred of them every day, treating them with the tenderness of a mother, and waiting upon them on her knees like a maidservant. She held it one of the privileges of her rank to wash their feet with her own Royal hands, and to dress their sores, which latter she would even kiss. To meet the expenses of her charities she sold not only her queenly raiment and her precious jewels, but more than once exhausted her funds entirely. Purified by grievous suffering, which she bore with marvelous patience during an illness of six months, she resigned her soul into the hands of Him Who had created it, upon the 11th day of June, (1093.) At the moment of death, the bystanders saw her poor worn face, pale and disfigured by continual suffering, flush again with a beauty to which it had long been unused. After her death she became illustrious on account of great signs and wonders. With the approval of Clement X., she was chosen Patroness of Scotland, and her memory is held in profound reverence throughout the whole earth.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Margaret, Queen and Widow

Margaret, of the royal house of England, was born in Hungary and spent her childhood there as an unusually devout and pious girl. When her father was called to high office in his own country by his uncle, St. Edward, King of England, she went to England and then to Scotland. There, upon instructions from her mother, she married King Malcolm III. The country was blessed by her holy life and by her deeds of charity for the next thirty years. The austerity of her life was exceedingly great, and her charity towards her neighbour most ardent and zealous, especially for those in need, for whom she not infrequently exhausted the treasury. At length, having most patiently endured bitter sorrows and long illness, she rendered her soul to God on the 16th day of November. At the moment of her death her features, emaciated and pale, bloomed again with unusual beauty. On the authority of Clement X she was chosen Patroness of Scotland, and is honoured with great devotion throughout the world.

De Actibus Apostolorum

Acts 13:43-47

Cum dimíssa esset synagóga, secúti sunt multi Judæórū et coléntium advenárum, Paulum et Bárnabam; qui loquéntes suadébant eis ut permanérent in grátia Dei. Sequénti vero sábbato pene univérsa cívitas convénit audíre verbum Dei. Vidéntes autem turbas Judái, repléti sunt zelo, et contradicébant his, quæ a Paulo dicebántur, blasphemántes. Tunc constánter Paulus et Bárnabas dixérunt: Vobis oportébat primum loqui verbum Dei; sed, quóniam repéllitis illud, et indignos vos judicátis æternæ vitæ, ecce con-

LESSON I

From the Acts of the Apostles

Acts 13:43-47

And when the synagogue was broken up, many of the Jews, and of the strangers who served God, followed Paul and Barnabas: who speaking to them, persuaded them to continue in the grace of God. But the next sabbath day, the whole city almost came together, to hear the word of God. And the Jews seeing the multitudes, were filled with envy, and contradicted those things which were said by Paul, blaspheming. Then Paul and Barnabas said boldly: To you it behoved us first to speak the word of God: but because you reject it, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, behold we turn to vértimur ad gentes; sic enim præcépit nobis Dóminus: Pósuí te in lucem Géntium, ut sis in salútem usque ad extrémum terræ.

℟. Ecce ego mitto vos sicut oves in médio lupórum, dicit Dóminus: * Estóte ergo prudéntes sicut serpéntes, et simplices sicut colúmbæ.

℣. Dum lucem habétis, créдите in lucem, ut filii lucis sitis.

℟. Estóte ergo prudéntes sicut serpéntes, et simplices sicut colúmbæ.

LECTIO II

Act 13:48-52

Audiéntes autem gentes, gavisæ sunt, et glorificábant verbum Dómini: et credidérunt quotquot erant præordináti ad vitam æternam. Disseminabátur autem verbum Dómini per univérsam regiónem. Judæi autem concitavérunt mulieres religiósas et honéstas, et primos civitátis, et excitavérunt persecutiónem in Paulum et Bárnabam: et eiecérunt eos de fínibus suis. At illi, excússo púlvere pedum in eos, venérunt Icónium. Discípuli quoque replebántur gáudio, et Spíritu Sancto.

℟. Tóllite jugum meum super vos, dicit Dóminus, et dícite a me, quia mitis sum et húmilis corde: * Jugum enim meum suáve est, et onus meum leve.

℣. Et inveniétis réquiem animábus vestris.

℟. Jugum enim meum suáve est, et onus meum leve.

LECTIO III

Act 14:1-3

Factum est autem Icónii, ut simul introírent in synagógam Judæórum, et loqueréntur, ita ut créderet Judæórum et Græcórum copiósam multitúdo. Qui vero incréduli fuérunt Judæi, suscitavérunt et ad iracúndiam concitavérunt ánimas Géntium advérsus fratres. Multo ígitur témpore demoráti sunt, fiduciáliter agéntes in Dómino, testimónium pe-the Gentiles. For so the Lord hath commanded us: I have set thee to be the light of the Gentiles; that thou mayest be for salvation unto the utmost part of the earth.

℟. Behold, I send you as sheep in the midst of wolves, said the Lord: * Be ye, therefore, wise as serpents and simple as doves.

℣. Whilst you have the light, believe in the light, that you may be the children of light.

℟. Be ye therefore wise as serpents and simple as doves.

LESSON II

Acts 13:48-52

And the Gentiles hearing it, were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and as many as were ordained to life everlasting, believed. And the word of the Lord was published throughout the whole country. But the Jews stirred up religious and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas: and cast them out of their coasts. But they, shaking off the dust of their feet against them, came to Iconium. And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost.

℟. Take up my yoke upon you, said the Lord, and learn of me, because I am meek, and humble of heart. * For my yoke is sweet and my burden light.

℣. And you shall find rest to your souls.

℟. For my yoke is sweet and my burden light.

LESSON III

Acts 14:1-3

And it came to pass in Iconium, that they entered together into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spoke that a very great multitude both of the Jews and of the Greeks did believe. But the unbelieving Jews stirred up and incensed the minds of the Gentiles against the brethren. A long time therefore they abode there, dealing confidently in the Lord, who gave testimony to the word of his grace, rhībente verbo grátia suæ, dante signa et prodígia fieri per manus eórum.

R. But when they shall deliver you up to the judges, take no thought how or what to speak: * for it shall be given you in that hour what to speak:

Ÿ. For it is not you that speak, but the spirit of your Father that speaketh in you.

R. For it shall be given you in that hour what to speak.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. For it shall be given you in that hour what to speak.

LESSON IV

Joseph, who by the Apostles was surnamed Barnabas, (which is, being interpreted, the Son of Consolation,) a Levite and of the country of Cyprus, having land, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the Apostles' feet. (Acts iv. 36, 37.) When Paul, after his conversion, was come to Jerusalem, the disciples were all afraid of him, but Barnabas took him, and brought him to the Apostles, (ix. 26, 27,) When tidings that a great number believed and turned unto the Lord at Antioch came unto the ears of the Church which was at Jerusalem, they sent forth Barnabas that he should go as far as Antioch. Who, when he came, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord. For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith, and much people was added unto the Lord. (xi. 21-24.)

R. I saw men standing together, clad in shining raiment, and the Angel of the Lord spoke unto me, saying: * These men are holy, for they are the friends of God.

Ÿ. I saw a strong Angel of God fly into the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice:

R. These men are holy, for they are the friends of God.

LESSON V

Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus for to seek Paul, and, when he had found him, he brought him clésia annum commoráti, cristiánæ fidei et vitæ illis homínibus præcépta dedérunt: ubi étiam Jesu Christi cultóres primum Christiáni sunt appelláti. LECTIO VI

Cum autem Antiochiæ in Ecclesiá, cum céteris prophétis et doctóribus, Paulus et Bárnabas in jejúnio et oratióne Dómino deservírent, dixit Spíritus Sanctus: Segregáte mihi Saulum et Bárnabam in opus, ad quod assúmpsi eos. Tunc jejunántes et orántes, imponentesque eis manus, dimisérunt illos. Itaque Seleucíam venérunt, inde in Cyprum; ac multas præterea urbes regionésque, prædicántes Evangélium summa cum audéntium utilitatē, peragráverunt. Postrémo Bárnabas digressus a Paulo, una cum Joánnē, qui cognominátus est Marcus, navigávit in Cyprum; ibique circiter séptimum Nerónis annum, tértio Idus Júnii ad apostólici múnus laudem, martyrii corónam adjúnxit. Ejus cor-unto Antioch. And it came to pass that a whole year they assembled themselves with the Church, and taught much people. And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch. And in these days came prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch. And there stood up one of them, named Agabus, and signified, by the Spirit, that there should be great dearth throughout all the world which came to pass in the days of Claudius Caesar. Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea, which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Paul. (xi. 25-30.) And Barnabas and Paul returned from Jerusalem, when they had fulfilled their ministry, and took with them John, whose surname was Mark. (xii. 25.)

℞. Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake; * Rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven.

℣. When men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of Man's sake.

℞. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven.

LESSON VI

Now there were in the Church that was at Antioch, certain Prophets and teachers and, as Paul and Barnabas, together with them, ministered to the Lord and fasted, the Holy Ghost said Separate Me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away. So they, being sent forth by the Holy Ghost, departed unto Seleucia and from thence they sailed to Cyprus (xiii. 1-4) in the which island, and in many other cities and countries, they journeyed about, preaching the Gospel with great gain to them that heard them. Nevertheless, at last, Paul and Barnabas departed asunder one from the other. And so Barnabas took Mark and sailed unto Cyprus, (xv. 39,) once more. And there it was that

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 10:6-22

At that time: Jesus said unto His disciples Behold,
I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves.
And so on.

*Homily by St. John Chrysostom, Patriarch of Constantinople
34/A on Matthew.*

When the Lord had cleared the minds of His disciples of all care, and had armed them by showing forth His mighty works, had estranged them from all business of this world, and freed them from all anxiety touching the things of time, moulding them into a frame of iron-like, nay, diamondlike, hardness, then at length He told them of the contendings against the which they were afterward to wrestle. By this foretelling of things to come they were much holpen. First, they learnt the power of His fore-knowledge. Then, they were guarded against all suspicion that these great sorrows flowed from faultiness in their Master. Again, the future sufferers were made safe from all trou-ne, cum ista sub ipsum passionis suæ tempus audirent, nîmîum commoverentur.

℞. Isti sunt qui viventes in carne, plantaverunt Ecclesiam sânguine suo: * Cálicem Dómini bibérunt, et amíci Dei facti sunt.

℣. In omnem terram exívit sonus eórum, et in fines orbis terræ verba eórum.

℞. Cálicem Dómini bibérunt, et amíci Dei facti sunt.

LECTIO VIII

℣. Their sound is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.

℞. They drank of the Lord's cup, and became the friends of God.

LESSON VIII

And now, that they may understand how that this is a new kind of warfare, and an unaccustomed manner of contending, when He sendeth them forth unarmed, providing neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in their purses nor scrip for their journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves, (x. 9, 10,) left to the hospitality of whosoever would receive them, He maketh not here an end to His discourse, but, in manifestation of His unspeakable power, He biddeth them, so going, to show forth the meekness of sheep, seeing they were about going unto wolves neither simply unto wolves, but in the very midst of wolves. Neither is it only the meekness of sheep which He biddeth them have, but also the harmlessness of doves, that He might so much the more gloriously display His power, when the sheep overcame the wolves. These are the sheep which albeit they abide in the midst of wolves, and are mangled by many a bite, not only are not destroyed, but do gradually make the wolves change their nature, and become sheep themselves.

℞. These men are saints, whom the Lord hath chosen in love unfeigned, and hath given them glory everlasting. These are they * By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

℣. The saints through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness.

℞. By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

LESSON IX

Beyond all doubt it is a greater and more marvel-lous thing to change the minds of enemies, and to turn their thoughts round, than to kill them more especially when the work is to be done by only twelve sheep, and the whole world is full of the wolves. Shame then upon us, whose deeds are so contrary, and who rather run like wolves upon our enemies. For so long as we are sheep we con-quer, yea, though a thousand wolves be gathered round about us, we overcome, and are the con-querors but if we become wolves ourselves, then are we conquered. For then doth the Shepherd's help forsake us, Who feedeth not wolves but sheep.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Barnabas the Apostle
Barnabas the Levite, of the people of Cyprus, was sent with Paul the Apostle to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ. He sold a field he owned and brought the money from it to the Apostles. Sent to Anti-och to preach, he gave new strength by his exhor-tations to many who had been converted to belief in Christ. Thence he set forth with St. Paul and travelled through many cities and countries, to the great benefit of his hearers. Finally he left Paul, and with John, surnamed Mark, he took ship to Cyprus. There, in the seventh year of Nero's reign, he added to the dignity of the apostolic office the crown of martyrdom.

LECTIO IV

Joánnem Sahaguni in Hispania nobili genere natum, parentes cum diu prole caruissent, piis operibus, et orationibus a Deo impetrarunt. Ab ineunte ætate egregium futuræ sanctitatis specimen dedit: nam e loco superiori ad ceteros pueros crebro verba faciebat, quibus eos ad virtutem, et Dei cultum hortabatur, eorumque dissidia componebat. In patria monachis sancti Facundi ordinis sancti Benedicti primis litterarum rudimentis imbuendus traditur. Dum iis operam daret, curavit pater, ut parochus ecclesiam administraret: quod munus juvenis nullis rationibus adduci potuit, ut retineret. Inter familiares episcopi Burgensis adscriptus, ob spectatam ipsius probitatem intimus ei fuit, ab eoque presbyter, et canonicus factus multis beneficiis auctus est. Sed relicta aula episcopi ut Deo quietius serviret, omnibus ecclesiæ proventibus abdicatis se cuidam sacello addixit, ubi Sacrum quotidie faciebat, ac de rebus divinis magna cum auditorum ædificatione frequenter concionabatur.

℣. Justum dedúxit Dóminus per vias rectas, et osténdit illi regnum Dei.

℟. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérrnam.

LESSON IV

John Gonzalez was born, the offspring of a noble race, at San Fagondez in Spain, (on Midsummer Day in the year of grace 1430.) His father and mother after long childlessness, obtained him from God by prayers and good works. From his earliest years he gave clear signs of his after holiness of life. He was used to climb up upon an high place to preach to the other little boys, and to exhort them to be good and to worship God, and he made it his work to reconcile their quarrels. While he was still at home he was given in charge to the monks of the Order of Saint Benedict, at the village of San Fagondez, to teach him his first lessons. While he was thus busied, his father obtained for him the benefice of the Parish, but no persuasions could induce him to keep this preferment. He became one of the household of the Bishop of Burgos, and that Prelate, seeing his uprightness, took him into his counsels, ordained him Priest, and made him a Canon, heaping upon him many kindnesses. However, that he might serve God the more quietly, he left the Bishop's Palace, resigned all his Church income, and betook him to a certain Chapel wherein he celebrated the Holy Liturgy every day, and oftentimes preached concerning the things of God, with great profit to all that heard him.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LECTIO V

Postea studiorum causa Salmanticam profectus, in celebre collegium divi Bartholomæi cooptatus, sacerdotis munus ita exercuit, ut simul optatis studiis incumberet, et in sacris etiam concionibus assidue versaretur. Cum vero in gravissimum morbum incidisset, arc-tioris disciplinæ voto se obstrinxit, quod ut redderet, cum prius cuidam pauperi pene nudo ex duabus, quas tantum habebat vestes, meliorem dedisset, ad cœnobium sancti Augustini severiori disciplina tum maxime florens se contulit: in quo admissus, obedientia, animi demissione, vigiliis ac oratione provectiores anteibat. Triclinii cura cum ipsi demandata esset, vini dolium ipso attingente omnibus monachis per annum abunde suffecit. Exacto tirocinii anno, præfecti jussu munus concionandi suscepit. Salmanticæ id temporis adeo cruentis factionibus divina, humanaque omnia permixta erant, ut singulis propemodum horis cædes fierent, et omnium ordinum, ac præsertim nobilium sanguine non viæ solum, et fora, sed templa etiam redundarent.

LESSON V

He went later to Salamanca to study, and there being taken into the celebrated College of St. Bartholomew, he did his priestly office, so that he was at once constant to the studies he desired and busy with sermons. Here he had a severe illness, and vowed to take up a sterner way of living. In fulfillment of this vow, he gave to an half-naked beggar the better of the two garments which were all that he had, and then went to a Convent of the friars of St. Augustine, which was then in the richest bloom of rigid discipline. Being admitted therein, he surpassed the most advanced in obedience, lowliness, watchings, and prayer. At the time that he had charge of the table, one keg of wine abundantly sufficed in his hands for all the friars, throughout an whole year. After his year of novitiate, he undertook the duty of preacher at the command of his Superior. At that time, owing to bloody feuds, all things human and divine at Salamanca were in such utter confusion, that murders were committed almost every hour, and the streets and squares, and the very churches, flowed with the blood of all classes, especially of the nobility.

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

It was John, who by public preaching and private conversations, softened the hearts of the citizens so that the town was restored to peace. He grievously offended one of the nobles by rebuking him for his cruelty toward his vassals. This man sent two knights to murder him on the road. They had already come nigh him when God sent a terror upon them, so that they and their horses stood still, until they cast themselves down before the feet of the Saint, imploring his forgiveness for their sin. The Prince himself, also, smitten with a sudden dread, despaired of his salvation, till he had sent for John, who, finding him repent of his deed, restored him to soundness. Some quarrelsome men, Denique mortis die præ nuntiatio, et Ecclesiæ sacramentis devotissime susceptis, extremum diem clausit, multis ante et post obitum miraculis gloriosus. Quibus rite probatis Alexander octavus Sanctorum numero eum adscripsit.

Oftentimes when he was celebrating the Holy Liturgy, the Presence of the Lord Christ became sensibly manifest to him, and he drank in things heavenly from their Divine Well-head Himself. Oftentimes also he could see the secrets of men's hearts, and foretell strange things to come. He raised from the dead his own niece, aged seven years. He foretold the day of his own death, and prepared himself by receiving most devoutly the Sacraments of the Church, (and then fell asleep in the Lord, upon the 11th day of June, in the year 1475.) God glorified him by many miracles, both before and after his death. These being duly proved, Alexander VIII. numbered him among the Saints. the Christians took them, and buried them honourably.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. John of St. Facundus, Confessor

John, born of a noble family at Sahagun [St. Facundus] in Spain, was granted by God to his parents, who had long been childless, in answer to their good works and prayers. From his earliest years, he gave signs of his future holiness. When ordained priest, he renounced, of his own accord, all the ecclesiastical benefits which had been given him, that he might serve God in greater tranquillity. When he incurred a serious illness in Salamanca, he bound himself by vow to observe a severer discipline. To do so, he went to the monastery of St. Augustine, where there flourished the great-míssus, virtútibus omnis provectiões antebat. Salmanticenses cives, cruentis factionibus exagitatos, tum concionibus tum privatis colloquiis ac vitæ sanctitate, ad tranquillitatem reduxit, non semel a præsenti discrimine divinitus liberatus. Christum Dóminum, dum Sacrum fáceret, præséntem contuéri, ábdominis inspícere, ac futura præsagíre frequens illi fuit. Dénique, mortis die prænuntiatio, sanctissime ex hac vita migrávit, multis ante et post óbitum miraculis gloriósus. Quibus rite probátis, Alexánder octávus Sanctórum número eum adscrípsit.

est severity of discipline. As a religious, he excelled the most advanced monks in all virtues. Through his public talks and private conversations, as well as the holiness of his life, he brought back to peaceful living the citizens of Salamanca, who had been disturbed by bloody factions. In the course of this work, he was not infrequently saved from imminent death by divine power. The Lord Christ often appeared to him while he was celebrating Mass. Often also he could divine the secrets of hearts and foretell the future. At length, having predicted the day of his death, he departed this life in a most holy way, glorified by many miracles both before and after his death. These miracles were duly proved, and Alexander VIII enrolled him in the number of the Saints.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: Sts. Basilides, Cyrinus, Nabor and Nazarius, Martyrs

Basilides, Cyrinus, Nabor, and Nazarius were Roman soldiers, of illustrious birth, and distinguished gallantry. Having embraced the Christian Religion, and being found publishing that Christ was the Son of God, they were arrested by Aurelius, Praefect of Rome under the Emperor Diocletian. As they despised his orders to sacrifice to the gods, they were committed to prison. While they were at prayer there, a brilliant light broke forth before the eyes of all that were there, and shone in all the prison. Marcellinus the keeper of the prison and many others were moved by this heavenly glory to believe in the Lord Christ Basilides, Cyrinus, Nabor, and Nazarius were afterwards discharged out of the prison. However, in the reign of the Emperor Maximian, when they set light by his commands also, and had ever in their mouth that there is but one Christ, one God, and one Lord, they were tormented with whips loaded with metal, and again cast into chains. LESSON IV

Ferdinand de Bullones, afterwards called Anthony, was born of decent parents at Lisbon in Portugal, (on the Feast of the Assumption, in the year of grace 1195.) They gave him a godly training, and while he was still a young man, he joined an Institute of Canons Regular. However, when the bodies of the five holy martyred Friars Minor, who had just suffered in Morocco for Christ's sake, were brought to Coimbra, the desire to be himself a martyr took a strong hold upon him, and in 1220 he left the Canons Regular and became a Franciscan. The same yearning led him to attempt to go among the Saracens, but he fell sick on the way, and, being obliged to turn back, the ship in which he had embarked for Spain was driven by stress of weather to Sicily.

Being afterwards or-dained Priest and sent to preach the Gospel, his wisdom and fluency were very marked, and drew on him such admiration of men, that the Pope, once hearing him preach, called him The Ark of the Covenant. One of his chief points was to ex-pend all his strength in attacking heresies, whence he gained the name of the Heretics' everlasting Hammer.

LESSON VI

He was the first of his Order who, on account of his excellent gift of teaching, publicly lectured at Bologna on the interpretation of Holy Scripture, and directed the studies of his brethren. He trav-eled through many provinces. The year before his death he came to Padua, where he left some remarkable records of his holy life. After having undergone much toil for the glory of God, full of good works and miracles, he fell asleep in the Lord upon the 13th day of June, in the year of salvation 1231. Pope Gregory IX. enrolled his name among those of the Holy Confessors.

Commemoration of: St. Anthony of Padua, Confessor

Anthony came of good and devout parents at Lisbon in Portugal. As a young man, he entered the Institute of Canons Regular, but, fired with the desire for martyrdom, he changed to the Franciscan Order. He was sent to the Saracens, but was forced to return because of ill-health. On the return voyage, strong winds blew the ship off course to Sicily. Anthony was soon given holy orders and took up the work of preaching, in which he aroused so much admiration that he was called to interpret Sacred Scriptures at Bologna and other places. He was put in charge of this brethren's studies, and was deservedly called the Ark of the Covenant. and Hammer of Heretics. After many travels, he came, a year before his death, to Padua, where left shining memories of his holiness. Famous for both merits and miracles, he fell asleep in the Lord on the 13th day of June in the year of salvation 1231, at the age of thirty-six. He was declared a Doctor of the universal Church by Pope Pius XII.

LESSON IV

This Basil was a noble Cappadocian who studied earthly learning at Athens, in company with Gregory of Nazianzus, to whom he was united in a warm and tender friendship. He afterwards studied things sacred in a monastery, where he quickly attained an eminent degree of excellence in doctrine and life, whereby he gained to himself the surname of the Great. He was called to Pontus to preach the Gospel of Christ Jesus, and brought back into the way of salvation that country which Is Filium Patri consubstantialem esse in primis defendit, ac Valentem imperatorem, sibi iratum, miraculis adeo flexit, ut, incumbentem ad voluntatem ejiciendi ipsum in exsilium, a sententia discedere coegerit.

Nam et Valentis sella, in qua facturus decretum de ejiciendo e civitate Basilio, sedere volebat, confracta est. Et tribus ab eo calamis adhibitis ad scribendam exsilii legem, nullus eorum reddidit atramentum; et, cum nihilominus in proposito scribendi impium decretum persisteret, ipsius dextera, dissolutis nervis, tota contrémuit. His commotus Valens chartam utraque manu conscidit. Ea autem nocte, quæ ad deliberandum Basilio data est, Valentis uxor intimis est cruciata doloribus, et unicuique filius in gravem morbum incidit. Quibus ille perterritus, iniquitatem suam recognoscens, Basilium accersit, quo præsente, puer coepit convalescere; verum, vocatis a Valente ad visendum puerum hæreticis, paulo post moritur.

before had been wandering astray from the rules of Christian discipline. He was shortly united as coadjutor to Eusebius, Bishop of Cassarea, for the edification of that city, and afterwards became his successor in the see. One of his greatest labours was to maintain that the Son is of one Substance with the Father, and when the Emperor Valens, moved to wrath against him, was willing to send him into exile, he so bent him by dint of the miracles which he worked that he forced him to forego his intention.

R. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him * For My hand shall help him.

ψ. The enemy shall prevail nothing against him, nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

R. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON V

The chair upon which Valens sat down, in order to sign the decree of Basil's ejection from the city, broke down under him, and three pens which he took one after the other to sign the edict of banishment, all would not write and when nevertheless he remained firm to write the ungodly order, his right hand shook. Valens was so frightened at these omens, that he tore the paper in two. During the night which was allowed to Basil to make up his mind, Valens' wife had a severe stomach-ache, and their only son was taken seriously ill. These things alarmed Valens so much that he acknowledged his wickedness, and sent for Basil, during whose visit the child began to get better. However, when Valens sent for some heretics to see it, it presently died.

R. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him.

ψ. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

R. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON VI

The abstinence and self-control of Basil were truly wonderful. He was content to wear nothing but do diligentissimus, in oratione assiduus, in qua sæpe totam noctem consumébat. Virginitatem perpétuo coluit. Monasteriis exstructis, ita monachorum institutum temperavit, ut solitariæ atque actuosæ vitæ utilitates præclare simul conjungeret. This is perfect self-renunciation, when we attain to indifference as regards our own lives, and wring from death himself the confession that our trust is not in our own strength. LESSON VIII

But what need have we for our own arguments, or for the examples of holy men to confirm what we say, when we are able to cite the very words of the Lord Himself, and by them to move any earnest soul that loveth God Such were they unto whom He plainly and unhesitatingly declared Whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be My disciple. LESSON IX

This then, as we have taught, is self-renunciation to unlock the chains of this earthly life, which passeth away, and to set oneself free from the business of men, and so to make ourselves lithier and meeter to enter on that path which leadeth to God, and

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMÉMORATED)

Commémoration of: St. Basil the Great, Confessor and Doctor of the Church

Basil, a Cappodocian nobleman, studied profane letters at Athens together with his close friend, Gregory of Nazianzus, and took his sacred studies in a monastery. Becoming marvelously proficient in both, he soon attained such excellence in learning and in his way of life that from then on he was given the name of The Great. Summoned to preach the Gospel of Christ Jesus in Pontus, he called that province back to the way of salvation. Soon he was asked by Eusebius, Bishop of Caesarea, to aid him in teaching; and he succeeded Eusebius as bishop. Basil was among the first to defend the consubstantiality of the Son with the Father; and by his miracles he caused Emperor Valens, who was angry with him and threatening him with exile, to give up any such intentions. Basil's abstinence and continence were marvelled at; and he was constant in prayer, often spending the whole night in it. He built monasteries, ordering the monastic life so that it would best combine the advantages of the solitary life with those of the active life. He wrote many learned books; and, as Gregory of Nazianzus testifieth, no one hath explained the books of Holy Scripture more truly and fruitfully. He died on the 1st day of January.

Vitus admodum puer inscio patre baptizatus est: quod cum ille rescivisset, nihil prætermisit, quo filium a christiana religione removeret. Qua in voluntate permanentem, Valeriano iudici verberibus castigandum tradidit. Sed nihilominus in sententia persistens, patri redditus est. Sed dum eum pater gravius punire cogitat, Vitus Angeli monitu, comitibus Modesto et Crescentia, ejus educatoribus, migrat in alienas terras: ibique eam sanctitatis laudem adeptus est, ut ejus fama ad Diocletianum perlata, ipsum imperator accerseret, ut filium suum a dæmone vexatum liberaret: Quo liberato, cum ei amplissimis præmiis ingratus imperator, ut deos coleret, persuadere non potuisset, una cum Modesto et Crescentia vinculis constrictum mitit in carcerem. Quos ubi constantiores esse comperit, demitti jubet in ingens vas liquato plumbo, ferventi resina ac pice plenum: in quo cum trium Hebræorum puerorum more divinos hymnos canerent, inde erepti leoni objiciuntur: qui prosternens se, eorum pedes lambebat. Quare inflammatus ira imperator, quod multitudinem videbat miraculo commoveri, eos in catasta sterni jubet et ita cædi eorum membra, atque ossa divelli. Lessons I–II: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON III (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

This Vitus was a child who was baptized without his father's knowledge. When his father had found it out, he used his best endeavours to dissuade his son from the Christian religion, but as he found him persistent in it, he handed him over to Valerian the judge to be whipped. But as he still remained as unshaken as before, he was given back to his father. But while his father was turning over in his mind to what severe discipline to subject him, Vitus, being warned by an Angel, fled out of the country, in company with his foster-parents Modestus and Crescentia. In his new home he gained great praise for holiness, so that the fame of it came to Diocletian, which Emperor sent for him to deliver his own child which was vexed with a devil. Him Vitus delivered, but when the Emperor found that with all his great gifts he could not bring him to worship the gods, he had the ingratitude to cast him and Modestus and Crescentia into prison, binding them in fetters. But when they were found in their prison more faithful than ever to their confession, the Emperor commanded them to be thrown into a great vessel full of melted lead, resin, and pitch. Therein these three, like the three Holy Children in the burning fiery furnace, sang praise to God and upon that they were haled forth and cast to a lion, but he lay down before them, and licked their feet. Then the Emperor, being filled with fury, more especially because he saw that the multitude that looked on were stirred up at the miracle, commanded Vitus, Modestus, and Crescentia to be stretched upon a block and their limbs crushed, and their bones rent one from the other. While as they were dying there came great thunderings, and lightnings, and earthquakes, so that temples of the gods fell down, and many men were killed. As for that which remained of the Martyrs, the noble lady Florence took it, and embalmed it with spices, and honourably buried it.

Adhuc juvenis ad sanctum Jacobum episcopum se contulit, a quo baptizatus, brevi ita sanctitate et doctrina profecit, ut in schola Nisibi, Mesopotamiæ urbe, florente magister fuerit constitutus. Post Jacobi episcopi mortem, Nisibi a Persis capta, Edessam profectus est; ubi primum in monte inter monachos consedit, deinde, ut plurimos ad se confluentes homines vitaret, vitam duxit eremiticam. Edessenæ ecclesiæ diaconus ordinatus, et ob humilitatem sacerdotium recusans, omnium virtutum splendore enituit, et pietatem et religionem vera sapientiæ professione sibi comparare satagit. LESSON IV

Ephraem was of Syrian descent, and son of a citizen of Nisibis. While yet a young man he went to the holy bishop James, by whom he was baptized, and he soon made such progress in holiness and learning as to be appointed master of a flourishing school at Nisibis, a city of Mesopotamia. After the death of the bishop James, Nisibis was captured by the Persians, and Ephraem went to Edessa. Here he settled first on the mountain among the monks, and then, that he might avoid the great numbers of men who flocked to him, he adopted the eremitical life. He was ordained deacon of the Church of Edessa, but refused the priesthood out of humility. He was conspicuous with the splendour of every virtue and strove to acquire piety and religion by professing true wisdom. He placed all his hope in God alone, despised all human and transitory things, and always longed for the divine and eternal.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

When, led by the Spirit of God, he went to Cæsarea in Cappadocia, there he saw Basil, that mouthpiece of the Church, and both enjoyed mutual companionship in a suitable manner. In order to refute the countless errors which were rife at that time, and which were troubling the Church of God, and in order to expound zealously Universa illius opera, tam splendido doctrinæ lumine referta effecerunt, ut idem Sanctus, adhuc vivens, tamquam Ecclesiæ Doctor, magno honore habitus fuerit. Metrica quoque cantica composuit in laudem beatissimæ Virginis Mariæ ac Sanctorum: quam ob causam a Syris Spiritus Sancti cithara merito fuit appellatus. In mirifica ac pia devotione erga eandem Virginem immaculatam primum excelluit. Meritis plenus, Edessæ, in Mesopotamia, decimo quarto Kalendas Julii, decessit sub Valente principe: eumque, instántibus plúribus Sanctæ Románæ Ecclesiæ Cardinálibus, Patriárchis, Archiepiscopis, Episcopis, Abbátibus, et religiósus famíliis, Benedictus Papa décimus quintus, ex Sacrórum Rítuum Congregatiónis consúlto, universális Ecclesiæ Doctórem declarávit.

LESSON VI

His works taken as a whole, so infused with the bright light of learning, brought it about that this holy man, while yet alive, was held in great honour, and was even considered a Doctor of the Church. He also composed songs in verse, in honour of the Most Blessed Virgin Mary, and of the Saints, and for this reason he was appropriately named by the Syrians the Harp of the Holy Ghost. He was noted for his great and tender devotion towards the Immaculate Virgin. He died, rich in merits, at Edessa in Mesopotamia on the 18th day of June in the reign of Valens. Pope Benedict XV, at the instance of many Cardinals of the Holy Roman Church, Patriarchs, Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, and religious communities, declared him by a decree of the Congregation of Sacred Rites to be a Doctor of the universal Church.

At that time: Jesus said unto His disciples: Ye are the salt of the earth. But if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted. And so on.

*Homily of St. Ephrem of Syria Deacon
Sermo de vita et exercitatione monastica*

Clearly it is a good thing to begin and to accomplish, to be acceptable to God and useful to one's neighbour, to please our most high and gracious ruler, Christ Jesus, who saith: Ye are the salt of the earth and the pillars of the heavens. The burden of your affliction, dearly beloved, is as a sleep; then there followeth unspeakable and priceless rest from labour. Therefore, watch thyself carefully, so that while thou followest after neither, wholeheartedly, thou shouldst not lose both the present and the eternal joy. Study rather to attain to the perfect virtue, adorned and stamped by all that God loveth. If thou dost strive after this, thou wilt never either anger God nor injure thy neighbour.

℟. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

℣. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

℟. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Moreover this virtue is called special and singular, having within itself the beauty of different virtues. We cannot have a royal diadem without precious stones and gleaming pearls arranged and fitted together; so likewise this single virtue cannot remain without the splendour of other different virtues. For it is, indeed, most like a kingly crown. For as in the latter case, if one stone or one pearl be missing it cannot shine perfectly upon the royal head; so, then, this special virtue cannot be called a perfect virtue, unless it is worthily connected with other virtues. Again, it is like unto very rich food, furnished with exquisite seasonings, but lacking salt. For as those rich dishes cannot be eaten without salt, so this simple virtue may be adorned with the glory and honour of different virtues, but if a man lack the love of God and of his neighbour, he is wholly worthless and contemptible.

Similis item est pretiosissimis epulis, exquisitissimis condimentis præparatis, sed sale carentibus. Sicut enim pretiosi illi cibi sine sale comedi nequeunt; ita et ista virtus uniformis, si variarum virtutum gloria et honore decoretur, absit autem Dei proximique dilectio, vilis prorsus atque contemptibilis est.

Ordained deacon of the Church of Edessa, and refusing the priesthood out of humility, he shone with the splendour of all virtues, and sought to acquire devotion and religion by the profession of true wisdom. All his works, illuminated with the bright light of learning, caused this Saint to be treated with great honour as a Doctor of the Church even in his lifetime. He excelled, above all, in a wonderful and loving devotion to the Immaculate Virgin. Rich in merits, he died on the 18th day of June at Edessa in Mesopotamia, under the Emperor Valens. Mark and Marcellian were two brothers, Romans, who were arrested by Duke Fabian for believing in Christ, and fastened to a beam, to which their feet were nailed. The Judge said to them Wretched creatures, do think for a moment, and free yourselves from such suffering. But they answered him We have never enjoyed any dinner so much as we do what we are now undergoing here for Jesus Christ's sake. We have got ourselves a little fast to His love now. Would that He would let us suffer this as long as we are clad in this corruptible body. Still suffering, they for a day and a night sang the praises of God continually, and in the end were thrust through with darts, and so attained the glory of Martyrdom. Their bodies are buried upon the Way to Ardea.

They were both well stricken in years, and, until the birth of Juliana, had been childless. From her very cradle she gave tokens of the holiness of life to which she afterwards attained. And from the murmuring of her baby lips was caught the sweet sound of the names of Jesus and Mary. As she entered on her girlhood, she delivered herself up entirely to the pursuit of Christian godliness, and so excellently shone therein, that her uncle, the Blessed Alexius, scrupled not to tell her mother that she had given birth to an Angel rather than to a woman. So modest was her carriage, and so clean her soul from the lightest speck of indiscretion, that she never in her whole life stared a man in the face, and that the very mention of sin made her shiver, and when the story of a grievous crime was told her, she dropped down nearly fainting. Before she had finished her fifteenth year, she renounced her inheritance, although a rich one, and all prospect of an earthly marriage, and made to God a vow of virginity, before holy Philip Benizi, from whom she was the first to receive the religious habit of what are called the mantled nuns.

R. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness; * And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

Ÿ. In thy comeliness, and thy beauty, go forward, fare prosperously, and reign.

R. And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

LESSON V

She put herself for instruction under her daughter. Thus in a little while their number increased, and she became the foundress of the Order of Mantled nuns, to whom she gave a rule of life full of wisdom and godliness. Holy Philip Benizi, having thorough knowledge of her excellence, chose her above all living to whom at his death to leave the care not of the women only but of the whole of the Order of the Servants of the Blessed Virgin Mary, of which he had been the propagator and director. Juliana, who deemed ever lowly of herself, even when she was the mistress of the others, ministered to her sisters in the meanest offices of the work of the house. She passed whole days in incessant prayer, and was often rapt in spirit, and the remainder of her time she toiled to make peace among the citizens, who were at variance together, to recall transgressors from the ways of iniquity, and to nurse the sick, to cure whom she would sometimes even use her tongue to remove the matter that ran from their sores. It was her custom to afflict her own body with whips, knotted cords, iron girdles, watching, and sleeping upon the ground. Upon Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, she ate very sparingly some unpalatable food, upon Fridays she took nothing except the Bread of Angels, and upon Saturdays, besides the Holy Communion, only bread and water.

℣. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness.

℟. Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

LESSON VI

The self-inflicted hardships of her life brought upon her a disease of the stomach, whereby, when she was seventy years of age, she was brought to the point of death. She bore the daily sufferings of her illness with a smiling face and a brave heart. The only thing of which she was heard to complain was that, her stomach being so weak that she could not keep down any food, she was withheld by reverence for the Sacrament from drawing near to the Lord's Table. Finding herself in these straits she begged the Priest to bring the Bread of God, and, as she dared not take It into her mouth, to put It as near as possible to her heart. The Priest did as she wished, and, to the amazement of all present, the Divine Bread at once disappeared from sight, and at the same instant a smile of joyous peace crossed the face of Juliana, and she gave up the ghost. All were confounded until the virgin body was being laid out after death in the accustomed manner. Then there was found upon the left side of the bosom a mark like the stamp of a seal, reproducing the form of the Sacred Host, the mould of which was one of those that bear a figure of Christ crucified. The noise of this and other wonders got for Juliana a reverence not only from Florence,

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Juliana Falconeri, Virgin

When Juliana, of the noble family of the Falconieri, was still in her cradle, her baby lips were heard to utter, without any prompting, the sweet names of Jesus and Mary. Before she was fifteen years old, she renounced a rich inheritance and an earthly wedding and took a solemn vow of virginity in the presence of St. Philip Benizi. She was the first to receive from him the habit of the religious called the Mantellates. When many noble ladies followed her example, and even her mother gave herself over to her daughter to be instructed in the religious life, Juliana founded the Order of the Mantellate Nuns. She excelled in a wonderful humility, a constant zeal for prayer and an amazing abstinence. When her health failed so that she could take and retain no food at all, and was therefore kept from the Eucharistic table, she asked the Priest to place the divine Bread on her breast, since she could not receive it with her mouth. When he did so, the holy Bread disappeared at once, and Juliana, smiling, departed this life.

Te DeumLESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)Commemoration of: Ss. Gervase and Protase, Martyrs

Gervase and Protase were the sons of Vitalis and Valeria, both of whom testified even unto death for the Lord Christ's sake, the father at Ravenna, and the mother at Milan. After the victory of their parents, Gervase and Protase gave all the inheritance to the poor, and set free their slaves. This act of theirs stirred up against them a savage hatred on the part of the heathen priests, and when the Count Astasius was about setting forth to war, they believed they had got a good occasion for the destruction of the two godly brethren. They persuaded Astasius that their gods had revealed to them that he had no chance of conquering in the war, unless he had first made Gervase and Protase to deny Christ and to offer sacrifice to the gods. Being commanded so to do, they flatly refused, and Astasius then ordered Gervase to be lashed until he died between the stripes, and Protase to be cudgelled and beheaded. A servant of Christ named Philip took away their dead bodies by stealth, and buried them in his own house, and, in after times, St. Ambrose, being warned of God, found them, and bestowed them in an hallowed and honourable place. They suffered at Milan upon the 19th day of June.

LECTIO III (PRO COMMEMORATIONE)

Silverius Campanus post Agapitum proxime Pontifex creatus est: cujus doctrina et sanctitas illuxit in insectandis hæreticis, et constantis animi magnitudo perspecta est in tuendo iudicio Agapiti. Nam Anthimum, quem, quia Eutychianam hæresim defendebat, Agapitus ab episcopatu Constantinopolitano deposuerat, cum a Theodora Augusta sæpissime rogatus esset, restituere noluit. Quam ob rem irata mulier mandat Belisario ut Silverium mittat in exilium. Qui exsulavit in insula Pontia, unde his verbis scripsisse fertur ad Amatorem episcopum: Sustentor pane tribulationis et aqua angustiarum; nec tamen dimisi, aut dimitto officium meum. Et sane, brevi incommodis ærumnisque confectus, obdormivit in Domino, duodecimo Kalendas Julii; Cujus corpus Romam delatum, et in basilica Vaticana depositum, multis miraculis illustratum fuit. Præfuit Ecclesiæ annos tres et amplius, creatis mense Decembri presbyteris tredecim diaconis quinque, episcopis per diversa loca decem et novem.

LESSON III (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

This Silverius was a native of Campania, and succeeded Agapitus in the Papacy ~ (in the year 536.) His orthodoxy and holiness shone brightest in his onslaughts upon heretics, and he showed admirable firmness in upholding a sentence by Agapitus. Agapitus had deposed Anthimus from the Patriarchate of Constantinople for defending the heresy of Eutyches; and Silverius would never allow of his restoration, although the Empress Theodora repeatedly asked him to do so. The woman was enraged at him on this account, and ordered Belisarius to send Silverius into exile. He was accordingly banished to the island of Ponza, whence he is said to have written these words to Bishop Amator I am fed upon the bread of tribulation and the water of affliction, but nevertheless I have not given up, and I will not give up, doing my duty. But sickness and the hardships of his exile soon broke his strength, and he fell asleep in the Lord upon the 20th day of June (in the year of grace 538.) Many miracles shed a lustre upon his grave. He ruled the Church for more than three years, and ordained in the month of December thirteen Priests, five Deacons, and nineteen Bishops for diverse Sees.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

usu, quo se Deo statim obtulit, vitam duxit quotidie sanctiorem. Novennis Florentiæ ante aram beatæ Virginis, quam parentis loco semper habuit, perpetuam virginitatem vovit: eamque, insigni Dei beneficio, nulla mentis aut corporis pugna tentatam servavit. Reliquas animi perturbationes cœpit ætate illa tam fortiter comprimere, ut ne primo quidem earum motu deinde incitaretur. Sensus etiam, oculos præcipue, ita cohibuit, ut non modo illos numquam in faciem intenderit Mariæ Austriacæ, quam plures annos inter honorarios Hispaniarum principis ephebos fere quotidie salutavit; sed a matris etiam vultu contineret: homo propterea sine carne, aut angelus in carne merito appellatus.

- ℟. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

LECTIO V

Adjecit sensuum custodiæ corporis cruciatum. Tria singulis hebdomadis jejunia, ea que plerumque modico pane et aqua tolerabat, quamquam perpetuum fuisse per id tempus ipsius jejunium videri potest, cum ejus prandia ferme vix unciam æquarent. Sæpe etiam ter in die se funibus aut catenis cruentabat: flagella quandoque canum loris, cilicia equorum calcaribus supplevit. Mollem lectulum clam injectis asserum fragmentis asperabat, eo etiam ut citius ad orandum excitaretur, magnam quippe noctis partem, summa etiam hieme, solo tectus indusio, positus humi genibus, vel præ languore jacens ac pronus, in cælestium contemplatione traducebat. Interdiu quoque tres, quatuor, quinque horas in ea perstabat immotus, donec use of reason, which he employed to offer himself to God, he led a life more holy day by day. At Florence, when he was nine years old, he made a vow of perpetual virginity before the Altar of the Blessed Virgin, upon whom he always looked as in the place of a mother to him, and by a remarkable mercy, from God, he kept this vow wholly and without the slightest impure temptation, either of mind or body, during his whole life. As for any other uprisings of the soul, he began at that age to check them so sternly, that he was never more pricked by even their earliest movements. His senses, and especially, his eye-sight, he so mortified, that he never once looked upon the face of Mary of Austria, whom, when he was for several years one of the Pages of honour of the King of Spain, he saluted almost every day and he even denied himself in part, the pleasure of looking on the face of his own mother. He might indeed have been justly called a fleshless man, or an infleshed angel.

- ℟. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.
- ℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.
- ℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

With this fettering of the senses he added torture of the body. He kept three days as fasts in every week, and that mostly upon a little bread and water. But indeed he as it were fasted every day, for he hardly ever took so much as an ounce weight of food at breakfast. Often also, even thrice in one day, he would lash himself to flowing of blood with cords, or prick himself with spiked chains. He sometimes used a dog-whip, instead of a scourge, and the rowels of spurs instead of hair-cloth. He privately filled his soft bed with pieces of broken plates, that he might find it easier to wake to pray. He passed great part of the night, clad only in a shirt even in the depth of winter, kneeling on the ground, or lying flat on his face when too weak and weary to remain upright, busied with heavenly thoughts. Sometimes he would keep himself thus for three, four, or five hours, until he had spent at least one without any movement of body or any wandering of mind. Such perseverance obtained for him the reward of being able to keep his understanding quite concentrated in prayer without distraction, as though rapt in God in an unbroken extasy. Desiring to give himself up to Him alone, he overcame, after a strong opposition for three years, the objections of his father, procured the transfer to his brother of his right to the Marquessate, and (on the 25th of November, 1585,) joined at Rome the Society of Jesus, to which he had been called by a voice from heaven when he was at Madrid.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

In his very Noviciate he began to be held a master of all godliness. His obedience to even the most trifling rules was absolutely exact, his indifference to the world extraordinary, and his hatred of self implacable. His love of God was so keen that it gradually undermined his bodily strength. Being commanded to give his mind some rest from thinking unceasingly of God, he struggled vainly to distract himself from Him Who met him everywhere. From tender love toward his neighbour, he joyfully ministered to the sick in the public hospitals, (during the great distemper at Rome in 1591,) and in the exercise of this charity he caught a deadly disease. This sickness slowly wore him away, and soon after he had entered on the 24th year of his age, upon the 21st day of June, a day which he had himself foretold, after entreating that he might be scourged, and laid upon the ground to die, he passed away to heaven. What the glory is which he there enjoyeth holy Mary Magdalen de' Pazzi was enabled, by the revelation of God, to behold, and she declared that it was such as she had hardly believed existed even in heaven, and that his holiness and love were so great that she should call him an unknown martyr of charity. On earth God glorified him by many great miracles. These being duly proved, Benedict XIII inserted the name

In illo témpore: Respondens Jesus ait Sadducæis: Erratis nescientes Scripturas, neque virtutem Dei. In resurrectione enim neque nubent, neque nubentur: sed erunt sicut Angeli Dei in cælo. Et réliqua.

Homilia sancti Joannis Chrysostomi

Liber de Virginitate

Virginitas est bona: id ego quoque fateor. Atqui nuptiis étiam melior est istud tibi as-sentior: ac si libet, illud adjungam, tanto nuptiis eam præstare, quanto cælum terræ, quanto hominibus Angeli antecellunt: ac, si quid præterea addendum est, étiam magis. Nam si neque nubunt Angeli, neque uxorem ducunt, non étiam carne et sanguine coag-mentati sunt: in terris præterea non com-morantur, non cupiditatum aut libidinum perturbationibus sunt obnoxii; non cibi in-digent, aut potus; non sunt ejusmodi, ut eos dulcis sonus, aut cantus mollis, aut præcla-ra species possit allicere; nulla denique ejus generis illecebra capiuntur.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ÿ. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 22:29-40

At that time, Jesus answered and said unto the Sadducees: Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God for in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven. And so on.

*Homily by St. John Chrysostom, Patriarch of Constantinople
Bk on Virginity.*

This I say, that virginity is good. And in this I agree likewise, that it is better than marriage. And I will even add, that it is as much more excellent than marriage, as heaven is more noble than earth, or Angels than men, and indeed, if I must say more, even more so. For if Angels neither marry nor are given in marriage, at least, they are not creatures of flesh and blood, they dwell not upon earth, they are exposed to no restless troublings of desire or lust, they need neither meat nor drink, they are not such that sweet sound, or soft song, or the delight of beauty can charm them there is nothing of this sort to take hold on them and draw them away.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. *

laudávit Dóminum: * Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

✠. Ecce homo sine queréla, verus Dei cultor, ábstinens se ab omni ópere malo, et pérmanens in innocéntia sua.

℟. Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

LECTIO VIII

At humánum genus cum natura beatis illis mentibus inferius sit, omni vi studioque contendit, ut, quoad ejus fieri potest, illas assequatur. Quomodo? Non nubunt Angeli: at neque étiam virgo. Assistentes illi semper ad Deum, eidem inserviunt; et istud ipsum virgo. Quod si virgines, quamdiu corporis onere deprimuntur, quemadmodum Angeli in cælum nequeunt ascendere, illud eo vel maximo solatio compensant, quod modo spiritu et corpore sancti sint, cæli Regem recipiunt. Videsne virginitatis præstantiam? quomodo terrarum incolas sic afficiat, ut qui corpore vestiti sunt, eos incorporeis mentibus exæquet?

℟. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucérnæ ardéntes in má nibus vestris: * Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis.

✠. Vigiláte ergo, quia nescítis qua hora Dóminus vester ventúrus sit.

℟. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis.

LECTIO IX

Qua enim, quæso, re differebant ab Angelis Elias, Eliseus, Joannes, veri hi virginitatis amatores? Nulla, nisi quod mortali natura constabant. Nam cetera si quis diligenter inquirat, hi nihilo minus affecti reperientur,

May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

✠. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

℟. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Due the human nature which striveth its utmost to follow them, is not so exalted as that of these blessed intelligences. How Angels marry not nor are given in marriage neither doth a virgin. Angels stand ever before God, and serve Him and so doth a virgin. But if a virgin, still weighed down with this body, and unable, like the Angels, to ascend to heaven, doth make it his one great comfort here to be holy in body and in spirit, and to open his heart for a home for the King of heaven dost thou not see wherein a virgin is higher than an Angel The excellence of virginity in men over virginity in Angels lieth in this, that it maketh them which are yet earth-dwellers and body-burdened equal to intelligences unshackled by bodies.

℟. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

✠. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

In what respect, I ask, differed Elijah, Elisha, and John, those great lovers of virginity, from Angels In nothing, except that their faithfulness was exercised in a dying body. For the rest, if we look carefully, their minds were no otherwise than those of quam beatæ illæ mentes: et idipsum quo inferiore conditione videntur esse, in magna est eorum laude ponendum. Ut enim terrarum incolæ, et ii qui essent mortali natura, possent ad illam virtutem vi et contentione pervenire; vide quanta eos fortitudine, quanta vitæ ratione præditos fuisset oporteat.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Aloysius Gonzaga, Confessor

Aloysius, son of Ferdinand Gonzaga, Marquis of Castiglione delle Stiviere, was in danger of death while he was being born. He was therefore baptized without delay, so that it seemed he was born to heaven even before he was born to earth. He retained this first grace so faithfully that he was believed to have been confirmed in it. When he was nine years old, he took a vow of virginity at Florence before the altar of the Blessed Virgin, whom he always thought of as his mother. By a singular blessing of God, he kept this vow without any rebellion of mind or body so that he was deservedly called a man without a body or an angel in the flesh. He handed over the right of succession to his brother and joined the Society of Jesus in Rome. Even in the novitiate he began to be considered a master of all the virtues. So ardent was the love of God in him that he would be rapt out of his body. Possessed by a wonderful charity for his neighbour, he zealously served in the public hospitals, and as a result he contracted a contagious fever. After slowly wasting away, he went to heaven on the 21st day of June, having just entered his twenty-fourth year. Benedict XIII enrolled him among the Saints and gave him to students as both a model of innocence and charity and their heavenly Patron.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Breve Pii X diei 18 Sept. 1908

Pontius Meropius Anicius Paulinus was born of a most illustrious family of Roman citizens at Bordeaux, in Aquitaine, in the year of restored salvation 353, and was of keen intelligence and graceful manners. With Ausonius as his master, he was honourably distinguished for eloquence and poetry. Being of the higher nobility, and very wealthy, he began a career of honours in the flower of his youth, and attained senatorial dignity. Then he went to Italy as consul, where he obtained the province of Campánia and fixed his residence at Nola. here he was struck, as by a ray of the divine light, by the heavenly miracles which were making illustrious the tomb of Felix, Priest and Martyr, and began to adhere more earnestly to the true faith of Christ, which he had long been revolving in his mind. And so he resigned the consular fasces and axe, never defiled by blood, and returned to Gaul, and after suffering various hardships and many toils both by land and by sea he received an injury to the eye; but being restored to health by the blessed Martin, Bishop of Tours, he was washed in the lustral waters of baptism by the blessed Delphinus, Bishop of Bordeaux.

℟. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him * For My hand shall help him.

℣. The enemy shall prevail nothing against him, nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

℟. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON V

He despised his abundant wealth, sold his property, and gave the money to the poor, and left his wife Therasia, changed his country, broke all natural ties, and retired to Spain, conforming to the more precious poverty of Christ, which he valued more than the whole world. While he was devoutly dum Sacris devôte astáret, solémni die Domínicae Nativitátis, repentíno admirátæ plebis tumúltu corréptus, ac frustra relúctans, a Lampídio epíscopo præsbyter ordinátur. Inde redit in Itáliam, et Nola, quo sancti Felícis religiône ductus fúerat, penes illús sepúlcrum monastérium cóndidit, et adscítis sóciis cœnobíticam vitam aggréditur. Hic vir, jam senatória et consulári dignitáte præclárus, stultítiam crucis ampléxus, toto fere orbe admiránte, vili indútus túnica, vigílias inter ac jejúnia, in assídua cæléstium rerum contemplatióne dies noctésque defíxus manébat. Sed, percrescénte sanctimóniæ fama, ad Nolánium episcopátum evéhitur, atque eódem in pastoráli múnere obeúndo, mirándam pietátis, sapiéntiæ ac potíssimum caritátis exéempla relíquit.

R. Pósui adjutórium super poténtem, et exaltávi eléctum de plebe mea: * Manus enim mea auxiliábitur ei.

Y. Invéni David servum meum, óleo sancto meo unxi eum.

R. Manus enim mea auxiliábitur ei.

LECTIO VI

Hæc inter, sapiéntia reférta, de religiône ac fide pertractántia edíderat scripta, sæpe étiam númeris indúlgens concínnis carmínibus Sanctórum acta concelebráverat, summam christiáni poétæ famam adéptus. Quotquot sanctitáte ac doctrína præstantíssimi viri eo témpore erant, tot sibi amicítia atque admiratióne devínxit. Quamplúrimum ad eum, ceu ad christiánæ perfectiόνis magístrum, undequáquam confluebant. Vastáta a Gothis Campánia, facultátem omnem, ne relíctis quidem sibi rebus ad vitam necessariis, in aléndos páuperes et captívos rediméndos cóntulit. Póstea vero, Vándalis eásdem regiónes infestántibus, cum ab eo pósceret vídua ut fílium sibi redímeret ab hóstibus captum; consúptis bonis ómnibus, in offício pietátis, se ipsum pro illo tradit in servitútem, atque in víncula conjéctus in Africam rápitur. Tandem, non sine præsénti Dei ope, libertá-assisting at Mass in Barcelona on the feast of the Lord's Nativity, he was suddenly seized by force by an admiring crowd, and in spite of his reluctance, ordained priest by the Bishop Lampidius. Then he returned to Italy, and at Nola, where he had been drawn by devotion to St. Felix, he built a monastery near his tomb, and entered upon the monastic life with some companions. This man, already notable for his senatorial and consular dignity, embraced the folly of the cross to the admiration of almost the whole world, and, clothed in a mean garment, in vigils and in fastings, remained for days and nights fixed in constant contemplation of heavenly things. But, as the fame of his sanctity spread, he was elevated to the see of Nola, and entering upon that pastoral office, he gave a wonderful example of piety, wisdom, and above all, of charity.

R. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him.

Y. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

R. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON VI

Meanwhile he had produced writings full of wisdom, treating of religion and faith, and often also as a recreation, he had celebrated the deeds of the Saints in numerous elegant poems, attaining the highest fame as a Christian poet. All the men living at that time who were pre-eminent for holiness and learning, he attached to himself with the bonds of friendship and admiration. Very many flocked to him from all parts of the country, as if to a master of Christian perfection. When Campánia was laid waste by the Goths, he devoted all his resources to feeding the poor, and ransoming captives, without even leaving for himself the necessities of life. And after that, when the Vandals invaded the same region, a widow begged him to ransom her son who had been captured by the enemy; and as he had spent all his resources in works of piety, he sold himself into slavery in the young man's place, and was taken in chains to Africa. At length he was set at liberty, not without the evident assistance of God, and, returning to Nola, the good shep-

Pius vero Papa décimus jussit sacras Paulíni exúvias Nolæ restítui, et festum ipsíus ad ritum dúplicem pro univérsa Ecclésia evéxit.

His body was buried near the tomb of St. Felix, and later, in the time of the Lombards, was translated to Benevento and, under the Emperor Otto III, to Rome, where it was laid in the basilica of St. Bartholomew on an island in the Tiber. But Pope Pius X ordered the sacred relics of Paulinus to be restored to Nola, and he raised his feast to the rite of a double for the universal Church.

℟. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them

LESSON VII

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Chap. 12, 32-34

At that time: Jesus said unto his disciples: Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. And so on, and that which followeth.

A Homily by St. Paulinus the Bishop

Sermo, alias Epístola 34 de Gazophylacio

The Lord who is omnipotent, dearly beloved, might have made all men equally rich, so that no one need ask anything from another. In his infinite goodness, however, the merciful and gracious Lord hath planned otherwise, in order to prove your disposition in these matters. He hath made misery, that he might discern mercy; he hath made the needy, that he might make use of the rich. For your brother's poverty is your material of riches, if ye do not understand concerning the needy and the poor, and do not consider as your own what in hoc sæculo cõntulit Deus, ut tibi debéret quidquid de suis donis tuo voluntário afféc-tu indigéntibus obtulísses, ac te vicíssim in ætérna die de illíus parte ditáret. Per ipsos enim nunc accípit Christus, et tunc pro ípsis repéndet.

℞. Amávit eum Dóminus, et ornávit eum: stolam glóriæ induit eum, * Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

℣. Induit eum Dóminus lorícám fídei, et ornávit eum.

℞. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

LECTIO VIII

Réfcie esuriéntem ánimam, et non tímébis in die malo ab ira superventúra. Beátus enim (inquit), qui intélligit super egénium et páuperem, in die malo liberábit eum Dóminus. Operáre ígitur et éxcole hanc regiónem terræ tuæ, frater, ut gérmínet tibi frugem fértilem, plenam ádipe fruménti, magno cum fœnore centésimum tibi fructum multiplicáti séminis afferéntem. In hujus vel possessiónis vel negotiatiónis appetítum et stúdiúm sancta et salutáris est avarítia; nam talis cupíditas, quæ regnum cæléste merétur et bonum perénne désiderat, radix bonórum est. Tales ígitur divítias concupíscite, et hujúsmodi possidé-te patrimoníum, quod in centénos fructus vobis créditor pénsitet, ut vestros quoque vobíscum bonis perénnibus augeátis herédes. Posséssio enim hæc vere magna et pretiósá est, quæ possessórem suum non cúmulo sæculári ónerat, sed réditu ditat ætérno.

℞. Sint lumbi vestri præcíncti, et lucérnæ ardéntes in mánibus vestris: * Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

℞. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

wealth ye have received. For God hath bestowed upon you your brother's portion in this world, in order that ye should offer of your own willing affection something of his gifts to those in need, and that he may enrich you in your turn with that portion in eternity. For now Christ receiveth through them, and hereafter he will repay for them.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VIII

Refresh the hungry soul, and ye will not fear the wrath to come in the evil day. For, saith he, Blessed is he that understandeth concerning the needy and poor; the Lord will deliver him in the evil day. Therefore, brother, work and cultivate this parcel of thy land, that it may bear for you a rich crop, full of the fatness of wheat, bringing to you with great interest the fruit of the seed an hundred times multiplied. In the desire and pursuit of this business or this possession there is a holy and salutary avarice; for such desire which doth merit the kingdom of heaven, and doth long for eternal goods, is the root of all good. Therefore covet such riches, and take possession of this kind of patrimony, that the creditor may weigh out to you the fruit increased an hundredfold, and ye and your heirs may abound in everlasting good things. For this possession is great and precious, which doth not burden the owner with earthly wealth, but enricheth him with an eternal reward.

℞. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

℣. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

℞. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dómínium suum, quando revertátur a núpitiis.

LECTIO IX

Verum, dilectíssimi, non solum ut bona ætérna quærátis, sed ut mala innúmera vitáre mereámini, præsénti sollicitúdine et sédula operatióne justítiae providéte. Magno enim adiutório atque præsidio nobis opus est, et multárum atque indeficiéntium oratiónum patrocíniis indigémus. Adversárius enim noster non quíescit, et in nostrum pérvigil hostis intéritum óbsidet omnes vias nostras. Multæ prætærea nobis in hoc sæculo cruces, innúmera discrimina, morbórum labes, fébríum ignes et dolórum tela grassántur in ánimas, cupiditátum faces accendúntur; ubique præténti latent láquei, úndique stricti horrent gládií, inter insídiás et pugnas vita transígí-tur, et per ignes dolóso cíneri suppósitos ambulámus. Igitur, priúsqvam in áliquam tantárum ægritúdínium labem casu vel mérito actus incúrras, festína médico suscéptus et carus fíeri, ut in témpore necessitátis parátum hábeas remédiúm salútis. Aliud est, quando tu solus oras pro te; et áliud, quando multitúdo pro te apud Deum trépidat.

LECTIO IX (PRO COMMEMORATIONE)

Commemoratio: S. Paulini Episcopi et Confessoris

Paulínus, anno reparatæ salútis trecentésimo quinquagésimo tértio a claríssima cívium Romanórum família Burdígalæ natus, senatória dignitaté potítus est. Nolæ consul renuntiátus, divíno lúmine tactus consulátum dimísit, et, Burdígalam revérsus, a beáto Delphíno baptizátus est. Dein, bonórum quibus abundábat pretío paupéribus distribúto, in Hispániam secéssit, ubi præsbyter ordinátur. Nólam cum rediísset, penes sancti Felícis sepúlcrum monastérium cóndidit, sociíisque adscítis, coenobíticam vitam eámque arctíssimam est aggréssus. Percrebrescénte

℞. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

Truly, dearly beloved, by present carefulness and constant just dealing, provide not only that ye make seek eternal good things, but that ye may deserve to escape innumerable evils. For we require strong helps and protection, and stand in need of many and unceasing prayers for our defence. For our adversary does not rest, and the ever-watchful enemy besetteth all our ways in order to work our ruin. Moreover, in this world we have many crosses, very numerous struggles, pestilent diseases, fires of fever and stabs of pain do violence to our souls. The flames of lust are kindled; hidden snares are set everywhere, on all sides there bristle drawn swords, life is passed in the midst of ambushes and combats, and we walk through fires craftily buried under ashes. Therefore before ye should by your misfortune or your fault rush into any one of such great calamities, hasten to become acceptable and dear to the physician, so that in time of need ye may have ready the remedy of salvation. It is one thing when ye alone pray for yourself; and quite another when a multitude entreateth for you before God.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Paulinus of Nola, Bishop and Confessor

Paulinus, born in the year of restored salvation 353 of a very famous Roman family of Bordeaux, acquired the dignity of senator. He was made consul of Nola, but a divine light prompted him to renounce the consulship and return to Bordeaux, where he was baptized by St. Delphinus. Then, giving to the poor the large sum obtained by the sale of his goods, he went to Spain, where he was ordained priest. When he returned to Nola, he built a monastery near the grave of St. Felix and, with the companions who joined him, undertook a most austere cenobitical life. As the fame of his holiness grew, he was elevated to the bishopric of Multa ad sacram doctrínam pertinéntia scripsit, atque insuper eloquéntiæ et poéseos laude excélluit. Vastáta a Gothis Campánia, facultates omnes in aléndon páuperes et captívos rediméndon contulit. Póstea vero, Vándalis eásdem regiónés infestántibus, cum nil ámplius erogándum habéret, se ipsum pro fílio cuiúsdam víduæ in servitútem trádedit, et in Africam ductus est. Tandem, Dei ope libertáte donátus, Nolæ placidíssimo éxitu obdormívit in Dómino.

Nola, in which office he left an example of wonderful devotion, patience, and especially charity. He wrote many works on sacred doctrine and also gained a reputation for eloquence and poetry. When Campania was devastated by the Goths, he used all his goods to feed the poor and redeem captives. And later, when the Vandals infested the same region and he had nothing more to give, he gave himself into slavery for the son of a widow, and was taken to Africa. At length, restored to liberty, by the hand of God, he died a peaceful death in the Lord at Nola.

Lectio sancti Evangelii secundum Lucam

LUC 1:5-17

Fuit in diébus Heródis, regis Judææ, sacerdos quidam, nómine Zacharías, de vice Abía et uxor illús de filiabus Aaron, et nomen ejus Elísabeth. Et reliqua.

Homilia sancti Ambrósii Episcopi
Liber 1 in Lucam

Docet nos Scriptúra divína non solum mores in iis qui prædicábiles sunt, sed étiam paréntes oportére laudári; ut véluti transmíssa immaculátæ puritátis heréditas, in iis quos vólumus laudáre, præcéllat. Quæ enim ália inténtio hoc loco sancti Evangelístæ, nisi ut sanctus Joánnes Baptísta nobilitétur paréntibus, miráculis, móribus, múnere, passióne? Sic étiam sancti Sámuel mater Anna laudátur; sic Isaac a paréntibus nobilitátem pietátis accépit, quam pósteris derelíquit. Sacerdos itaque Zacharías, nec solum sacerdos, sed étiam de vice Abía, id est, nóbilis inter superiôres famílias.

LESSON I

Continuation of the Holy Gospel according to Luke

LUKE 1:5-17

There was, in the days of Herod the King of Judæa, a certain Priest named Zacharias, of the course of Abia; and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. And so on.

Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan
Bk. i. on Luke

The Divine Scriptures teach us that we are behoven to praise the lives, not only of those concerning whom we are to speak honourably, but the lives also of their fathers, so as to show that that which we will praise in our subjects was in them a gift inherited from the bright purity of the source from which they came. What other meaning can the holy Evangelist have had in this place but to glorify St. John the Baptist, as well for having been the offspring of such parents, as for his miracles, his life, his gifts, and his sufferings? So likewise is praise ascribed to Hannah, the mother of Samuel so also did Isaac draw from his parents that noble godliness which he in his turn bequeathed to his children. Thus it is told not only that Zacharias

R. Peccávi super númerum arénæ maris, et multiplicáta sunt peccáta mea: et non sum dignus vidére altitúdinem cæli præ multitudíne iniquitátis meæ: quóniam irritávi iram tuam, * Et malum coram te feci.

Ÿ. Quóniam iniquitátem meam ego cognósco: et delíctum meum contra me est semper, quia tibi soli peccávi.

R. Et malum coram te feci.

LECTIO II

Et uxor, inquit, illi de filiabus Aaron. Non solum igitur a paréntibus, sed étiam a majóribus sancti Joánnis nobílitas propagátur, non sæculári potestáte sublímis, sed religiónis successióne venerábilis. Tales enim majóres habére débuit prænúntius Christi; ut non repente concéptam, sed a majóribus accéptam et ipso infúsam jure natúræ, prædicáre fidem Domínici viderétur advéntus. Erant, inquit, ambo justi ante Deum, incedéntes in ómnibus mandátis et justificatió nibus Dómini sine queréla. Quid ad hoc réferunt qui, peccátis suis solátia præferéntes, sine peccátis frequéntibus hóminem putant esse non posse; et utúntur versículo, quia scriptum est in Job: Nemo mundus a sorde, nec si unús diéi vita ejus sit in terra?

R. Exaudísti, Dómine, oratió nem servi tui, ut ædificárem templum nómini tuo: * Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

Ÿ. Dómine, qui custódis pactum cum servis tuis, qui ámbulant coram te in toto corde suo.

R. Bénedic et sanctífica domum istam in sempitérnum, Deus Israël.

LECTIO III

Quibus respondéndum est, prius ut quid sit hóminem sine peccáto esse defíniant: utrum nunquam omníno peccásse, an desiísse peccáre. Si enim hoc putant sine peccáto esse, was a Priest, but a Priest of the course of Abia, that is to say, of a family noble among the noblest.

R. My sins are many, yea, they are more in number than the sands of the sea; I am not worthy to look up toward heaven because of the multitude of my iniquities; for I have provoked thee to anger, * And done evil in thy sight.

Ÿ. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me, for against thee only have I sinned.

R. And done evil in thy sight.

LESSON II

And his wife was of the daughters of Aaron. Thus we see that the noble blood of St. John was inherited not only from parents, but from an ancient ancestry, not illustrious indeed by worldly power, but worshipful for the tradition of a sacred succession. Such were the forefathers whom it well became the Fore-runner of the Christ to have, that it might manifestly fall to his lot, not as a sudden gift, but as an heir-loom, to preach belief in the coming of the Lord. And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord, blameless. What do they make of this text who, to take them some consolation for their own sins, hold that man cannot exist without oftentimes sinning, and quote to that end that which is written in Job: Not one is clean, even though his life on the earth be but one day?

R. O Lord, Thou hast hearkened unto the prayer of thy servant, that I might build a temple unto thy Name, * O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

Ÿ. O Lord, Who keepest covenant with thy servants that walk before thee in all their heart.

R. O God of Israel, bless Thou, and hallow this house for ever.

LESSON III

To such we must reply by asking them first to tell us what they mean by a man without sin whether it be one who hath never sinned, or one who hath ceased to sin. If they mean by a man without sin nunquam omnino peccasse; et ipse consensio. Omnes enim peccaverunt, et egent gloria Dei. Sin autem eum qui veterem errorem corréxerit, et in eam se vitæ transformaverit qualitatem, ut temperet a peccato, negant abstinere a delictis; non possum in eorum convenire sententiam, cum legamus, quia Sic Dominus dilexit Ecclesiam, ut exhibeat ipsam sibi gloriosam, et non habentem maculam, aut rugam, aut aliquid ejusmodi; sed ut sit sancta et immaculata.

R. Audi, Domine, hymnum et orationem, quam servus tuus orat coram te hodie, ut sint oculi tui aperti, et aures tuæ intendant, * Super domum istam die ac nocte.

Ps. Respice, Domine, de sanctuario tuo, et de excelsu celorum habitaculo.

Ps. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

R. Super domum istam die ac nocte.

one who hath never sinned, I myself agree in their position, for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. (Rom. iii. 23.) But if they mean to deny that he who hath reformed his old crooked ways, and changed his life for a new one, on purpose to avoid sin, cannot avoid sin, I am not able to subscribe to their opinion while I read that Christ loved the Church and gave Himself for it, that He might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, that He might present it to Himself a glorious Church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing but that it should be holy and without blemish. (Eph. v. 25-27.)

R. Hearken, O Lord, unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee today, that thine eyes may be open and thine ears attend; * Toward this house day and night.

Ps. Look down from thine high and holy place, O Lord, even from heaven thy dwelling.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Ps. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Toward this house, day and night.

Lesson IX: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Jeremias

Jer 1:1-5

The words of Jeremias the son of Helcias, of the priests that were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin. The word of the Lord which came to him in the days of Josias the son of Amon king of Juda, in the thirteenth year of his reign. And which came to him in the days of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda, unto the end of the eleventh year of Sedecias the son of Josias king of Juda, even unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive, in the fifth month. And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: Before I formed thee in the bowels of thy mother, I knew thee: and before thou camest forth antequam exires de vulva, sanctificavi te, et prophetam in gentibus dedi te.

R. Fuit homo missus a Deo, cui nomen erat Joannes: * Hic venit in testimonium, ut testimonium perhiberet de lumine, et pararet Domino plebem perfectam.

ψ. Erat Joannes in deserto predicans baptismum poenitentiae.

R. Hic venit in testimonium, ut testimonium perhiberet de lumine, et pararet Domino plebem perfectam.

LECTIO II

Jer 1:6-10

Et dixi, A a a, Domine Deus: ecce nescio loqui, quia puer ego sum. Et dixit Dominus ad me: Noli dicere, Puer sum: quoniam ad omnia, quae mittam te, ibis: et universa, quaecumque mandavero tibi, loqueris. Ne timeas a facie eorum: quia tecum ego sum, ut eruam te, dicit Dominus. Et misit Dominus manum suam, et tetigit os meum: et dixit Dominus ad me: Ecce dedi verba mea in ore tuo: ecce constitui te hodie super gentes, et super regna, ut evellas, et destruas, et disperdas, et dissipes, et aedifices, et plantes.

R. Elisabeth Zachariae magnum virum genuit, Joannem Baptistam, praecursorem Domini: * Qui viam Domino praeparavit in eremo.

ψ. Fuit homo missus a Deo, cui nomen erat Joannes.

R. Qui viam Domino praeparavit in eremo.

ψ. John was in the wilderness, preaching the baptism of repentance.

R. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

LESSON II

Jer 1:6-10

And I said: Ah, ah, ah, Lord God: behold, I cannot speak, for I am a child. And the Lord said to me: Say not: I am a child: for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee: and whatsoever I shall command thee, thou shalt speak. Be not afraid at their presence: for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord. And the Lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth: and the Lord said to me: Behold I have given my words in thy mouth: Lo, I have set thee this day over the nations, and over the kingdoms, to root up, and pull down, and to waste, and to destroy, and to build, and to plant.

R. Elizabeth, the wife of Zacharias, was the mother of a mighty man, even of John the Baptist, the Forerunner of the Lord, * who made straight in the desert an highway for the Lord.

ψ. There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.

R. Who made straight in the desert an highway for the Lord.

LESSON III

Jer 1:17-19

Thou therefore gird up thy loins, and arise, and speak to them all that I command thee. Be not afraid at their presence: for I will make thee not to fear their countenance. For behold I have made thee this day a fortified city, and a pillar of iron, and a wall of brass, over all the land, to the kings of Juda, to the princes thereof, and to the priests, and to the people of the land. LESSON IV

From the Sermons of St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo.

20th on the Saints.

Outside the most holy Birthday of the Lord, we find celebrated in the Gospel the birth of only one other, namely, that of the blessed Baptist, John. As regardeth all others among God's holy and chosen ones we know that that day is observed whereon, with their work finished, and the world conquered and finally trampled down, they were born from this into a better life, even one of everlasting blessedness. In others is honoured the crowning of the struggle on their last day of dying life, but in John is honoured the first day; in him the very beginning is found hallowed. And the reason of this is, without doubt, because he was sent from God to bear witness to the coming of the Light, lest when It came It might take the darkness by surprise, and the darkness might not comprehend It. Now, John was a figure of the Old Testament, and showed in his own person a typical embodiment of the Law; and therefore John heralded beforehand the coming of the Saviour, even as the Law was our schoolmaster to bring us to the grace of Christ. (Gal. iii. 24.)

℞. The Angel of the Lord was sent down unto Zacharias, saying: Thou shalt beget a son in thine old age; * and his name shall be called John the Baptist.

ψ. Iste puer magnus coram Dómino: nam et manus ejus cum ipso est.

℞. Et habébit nomen Joánnes Baptísta.

LECTIO V

Quod autem nondum natus de secréto matréní úteri prophetávit, et expers lucis jam testis est veritátis; hoc est intellegéndum, quod latens sub velámine et carne lítteræ, et Redemptórem mundo spírítu prædicávit, et nobis Dóminum nostrum de quodam legis útero proclamávit. Ergo quia Judæi erravérunt a ventre, id est, a lege quæ a Christo grávida erat, erravérunt a ventre, locúti sunt falsa; ídeo hic venit in testimónium, ut testimónium perhibéret de lúmine.

℞. Ipse est enim Joánnes, qui viam Dómino præparávit in erémo; sed et Agnum Dei demonstrávit, et illuminávit mentes hóminum.

LECTIO VI

Quod autem Joánnes in cárcere constitútus ad Christum discípulos suos órdat; lex ad Evangélium transmíttit. Quæ lex juxta typum Joánnis, quasi ignorántiæ clausa cárcere, in obscúro et in occúlto jacébat, et Judáica cæcitate sensus intra lítteram tenebátur inclúsus. De hoc beátus Evangelísta prolóquitur: Ille erat lucérna ardens, id est, Spírítus Sancti igne succénsus, ut mundo ignorántiæ nocte posséssó lumen salútis osténderet, et quasi inter densíssimas delictórum ténebras

ψ. The child shall be great in the sight of the Lord; for His hand is with him.

℞. And his name shall be called John the Baptist.

LESSON V

But as touching this, that he prophesied while yet in the hidden depths of his mother's womb, and while himself lightless bore testimony to the truth, we are to understand it as a figure how that while himself wrapped round with the veil and carnal ordinances of the letter, he by the spirit preached unto the world a Redeemer, and testified that Jesus is our Lord even while for himself, working under the law, the birth of the new dispensation was still in the womb of the future, and not come to day. The Jews were estranged from the womb, that is from the Law, that womb heavy with the Christ That was to be; they went astray from the belly, speaking lies, (Ps. lvii. 4;) and therefore John came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe. (John i. 7.)

℞. This is the well-beloved Fore-runner, a burning and a shining light before the Lord. * For even this is John, who made straight in the desert an highway for our God. This also is he which bare witness, saying: Behold the Lamb of God! And his light lightened the minds of men.

ψ. He shall go before Him in the spirit and power of Elias.

℞. For even this is John, who made straight in the desert an highway for our God. This also is he which bare witness, saying Behold the Lamb of God! And his light lightened the minds of men.

LESSON VI

But as for this, that when John had heard in the prison the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples (Matth. xi. 2); this is the Law sending to the Gospel. For John here was a figure of the Law, imprisoned in ignorance, lying in the dark, and in a hidden place, and he was fettered through Jewish misunderstanding within the bonds of the letter. But of him was it said, as is written in the Blessed Evangelist He was a burning and a shining light that is to say, that, when the whole world was wrapt in the night of ignorance, this Saint was kindled by the fire of the Holy Ghost, to show besplendidissimus justítiæ solem lucis suæ rá-

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 1:57-69

Elisabeth's fullness of time came that she should deliver, and she brought forth a son. And her neighbours and her cousins heard how the Lord had showed great mercy upon her, and they rejoiced with her. And so on.

Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan.

Bk. ii. Comm. on Luke i.

Elizabeth's full time came that she should be delivered, and she brought forth a son. And her neighbours rejoiced with her. The birth of a Saint is a joy for many, for it is a good to all. Righteousness is an help to all, and therefore when a righteous man is born it is an heralding of his life, which is still to come, that the helpful excellency of his future should be hailed by the, as it were, prophetic joy of the neighbours. It is well that we should be told concerning the prophet, while he was yet in the womb, that we may know how that Mary was there; but we hear nothing of his childhood, because, we know that it was safe and strong through the nearness of the Lord, Himself then in that womb which was free from the sorrows of pregnancy. And therefore we read in the Gospel nothing touching him save his coming, the annunciation thereof to his father, the leap which he gave in the womb, and his crying in the wilderness.

R. Præcûrsor Dómini venit, de quo ipse testátur: * Nullus major inter natos mulferum Joánne Baptísta.

Ÿ. Hic est enim prophéta, et plus quam prophéta, de quo Salvátor ait.

R. Nullus major inter natos mulferum Joánne Baptísta.

LECTIO VIII

Neque enim ullam infántiæ sensit ætátem, qui supra natúram, supra ætátem in útero pósitus matris, a mensúra coepit ætátis plenitúdinis Christi. Mire sanctus Evangelísta præmitténdum putávit, quod plúrimi infántem patris nómine Zachariám appellándum putáverint; ut advértas matri non nomen ali-cújus displicuísse degéneris, sed id Sancto infúsum Spíritu, quod ab Angelo ante Zachariæ fúerat prænuntiátum. Et quidem ille mutus intimáre vocábulum filii nequívit uxóri; sed per prophetíam Elísabeth dídicit, quod non didícerat a maríto.

R. Gábríel Angelus appáruit Zachariæ dicens: Nascétur tibi filiús, nomen ejus Joánnes vocábitur: * Et multi in nativité ejus gaudébunt.

Ÿ. Erit enim magnus coram Dómino, vinum et síceram non bibet.

R. Et multi in nativité ejus gaudébunt.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Et multi in nativité ejus gaudébunt.

LECTIO IX

Joánnes est, inquit, nomen ejus; hoc est, non nos ei nomen impónimus, qui jam a Deo nomen accépit. Habet vocábulum suum, quod agnóvimus, non quod elégit. Habent hoc mérita Sanctórum, ut a Deo nomen accípiant. Sic Jacob Israël dícitur, quia Deum vidit. Sic Dóminus noster Jesus nominátus est, ántequam natus; cui non Angelus, sed

R. The Fore-runner of the Lord cometh, to whom He Himself bare witness, saying: * Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist.

Ÿ. A Prophet? Yea, and much more than a Prophet. This is he of whom the Saviour saith:

R. Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist.

LESSON VIII

It was not for him to feel childishness, who beyond all use of nature or of his age, when as yet he lay in his mother's womb, leapt at once unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ. (Eph. iv. 13.) It is strange how that the Holy Evangelist hath judged meet to tell us that they thought to call the child Zacharias, after the name of his father, that thou mayest notice that the mother would have none of the names whereby their kindred were called, but only that name which the Holy Ghost had dictated, and which the Angel had told before unto Zacharias. The dumb man had certainly not been able to tell his wife by what name to call the child, and Elizabeth must needs have learnt by revelation what she could not have heard from her husband.

R. The Angel Gabriel appeared unto Zacharias, and said thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John; * And many shall rejoice at his birth.

Ÿ. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink.

R. And many shall rejoice at his birth.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And many shall rejoice at his birth.

LESSON IX

His name is John; that is, it is not for us to choose a name now for him to whom God hath given a name already. He hath a name, which we know, but it is not one of our choosing. To receive a name from God is one of the honours of the Saints. Thus was it that Jacob's name was no more called Jacob but Israel, because he saw God face to face. (Gen. xxxii. 28.) Thus was it that our Lord Jesus was named before He was born, with a name not given by an Angel, but by the Father. Thou seest that Angels tell that which they have been bidden to tell, not matters of their own choosing. Nor oughtest thou to wonder that Elizabeth named a name which she had not heard, since it had been revealed to her by the same Holy Ghost Who had commanded the Angel to tell it.

Pater nomen impósuit. Vides Angelos quæ audierint, non quæ usurpáverint, nuntiáre. Nec miréris, si nomen múlíer, quod non audívit, assérui; quando Spíritus ei Sanctus, qui Angelo mandáverat, revelávit.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

This William was born of noble parents at Vercelli in Lombardy. He was but little over fourteen years of age, when, impelled by a strange earnestness for holiness, he undertook a pilgrimage to Compostella, to the far-famed Church of St. James. This journey he made clad in a single garment, wearing an iron girdle wound two-fold round his body, and with bare feet. He accomplished his object under the severest hardships of cold and heat, hunger and thirst, and at the great danger of his life. After his return to Italy, he undertook a new pilgrimage, this time to the Holy Sepulchre of the Lord. But in the way of fulfilling this, there arose diverse and most grievous obstacles, whereby the hand of God drew the lad to the higher and holier life of a monk. He dwelt in the town of Monte Solicolo for two years, which he passed in constant prayer, watching, sleeping upon the ground, and fasting. At the end of this time, the power of God made him the mean to restore a blind man to sight. The fame of this miracle became so noised abroad, that William could no longer remain unknown. His thoughts turned again towards Jerusalem, and he again entered cheerfully on the journey.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

R. Et dedit illi claritatem æternam.

LECTIO V

Tum monastérium in Virgiliáni montis cacumine, quod deínde Vírginis est appellatum, loco áspero, et inaccessó miranda exadíficat celeritate. Sócios deínde viros, et reliósgos asciscit, eosque ad vivendi normam evangélicis præcéptis et consiliis sumópere accommodatam tum certis légibus ex beáti Benedícti institútis magna ex parte desúptis, tum verbo et sanctíssimæ vitæ exémpis infórmat.

Ÿ. Índuit eum Dóminus lorícám fídei, et ornávit eum.

R. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

LECTIO VI

Nam muti loquélam, surdi audítum, áridi vigórem, varióque et immedicábili morbo laborántes, sanitátem ipsíus intercessióne receperunt. R. Iste homo perfécit ómnia quæ locútus est ei Deus, et dixit ad eum: Ingrédere in

R. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

He was again hindered by a vision from God, and remained among the Italians to be more useful, and to bring forth more fruit than he would have done among strangers. With extraordinary speed, he built a monastery upon the summit of Monte Vergiliano, ever since named Monte Vergine, (between Nola and Benevento.) Thither he called around him, as his comrades, devout men, and schooled them into a way of life most closely following the commands and counsels of the Gospel, in great part by a rule taken from the constitutions of Blessed Benedict, and supplemented by his own words, and the example of his own holy life.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

As other monasteries were raised, the holy life of William became more known day by day, and brought men to him from all quarters, drawn by the sweet savour of his godliness, and the fame of his miracles. At his prayers the dumb spake, the deaf heard, the withered were strengthened, and they that suffered under diverse and incurable diseases received health. He turned water into wine, and openly worked many other miracles. Among all these things it must be told that a wretched woman sought him to lure him to impurity, but he raked hot embers out upon the floor and cast himself down upon them, and wallowed among them, and escaped unhurt. When this thing came to the knowledge of Roger I., King of Naples, it roused in him the highest reverence for the man of God. At the last, after foretelling his own death to the King and to others, and full of good works and miracles, he fell asleep in the Lord, in the year of salvation 1142.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him:

have forsaken all, and followed Thee: what shall we have therefore? And so on.

Homily by the Venerable Bede, Priest (at Jarrow and Doctor of the Church).

For St Benedict's Birthday.

In the judgment to come, the elect will be in two classes. One class are they who have forsaken all, and followed the Lord: and these shall judge along with Him. The other class are they who have not equally forsaken all that they had, but who have been careful daily to give alms of their goods to the poor of Christ: these shall be the subjects of judgment, and these are they who shall then hear these words: "Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was an hungered, and ye gave Me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave Me drink."
(Matth. xxv. 34, 35.)

℞. This is he which wrought great wonders before
God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. *
May he pray for all people, that their sins may
be forgiven unto them.

✠. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

℞. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

Alterum eórum, qui fidem et mystéria Christi vel numquam suscepére, vel suscepítam per apostasíam deseruére: de quibus dicit: Qui autem non credit, jam iudicatus est: quia non credit in nómine unigéniti Fílii Dei.

Qui enim terrénis afféctibus sive possessiónibus pro Christi discipulátu renuntiáverit, quo plus in ejus amórem profecerit, eo plures in-

Of the reprobate also we gather, from the words of the Lord, that there will be two classes. One class are they who, being made partakers in the mystery of Christian faith, have neglected to show their faith by their works: these are they to whom it will be said at the judgment: "Depart from Me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels: for I was an-hungered, and ye gave Me no meat." The other class are they who either have never received the faith and mysteries of Christ, or who, having received, have apostatised, and abandoned it: and touching these it is said: "But he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only-begotten Son of God." (John iii. 18.)

- ℞. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- ℣. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
- ℞. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- ℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- ℞. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

And now that we have touched for a moment, with fear and just dread, upon these things, let us rather turn our hearing to the right joyful promises of our Lord and Saviour. Let us look what His so great, beautiful, and fatherly love will give to such as follow Him; not the reward of life everlasting only, but gifts exceeding precious in this life also. "Every one," saith He, that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for My Name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life." For every one that shall forsake earthly affections and goods, to go and be Christ's disciple, the further he goeth on in Christ's love, the more shall he find who will rejoice to give him a place in their hearts, and to minister to him of their substance.

veníet, qui se intéрно suscípere afféctu, et suis gáudeant sustentáre substántiis.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoratio of: St. William, Abbot

William, born of noble parents at Vercelli, had scarcely finished his fourteenth year when he made a pilgrimage to Compostella in a wonderful spirit of penitence and devotional zeal. Then, having vainly attempted another, pilgrimage, to the tomb of Christ the Lord, he spent two years on a solitary mountain in constant prayer, in vigils and in fasting. Fleeing human renown after he had restored sight to a blind man, he built a monastery on Monte Virgiliáno, which was thereafter called Monte Vergine, in a wild and inaccessible spot. There companions joined him, and he formed them by fixed regulations taken largely from those of St. Benedict, by word, and by the example of a most holy life. Then he built other monasteries, and daily his fame as a holy man grew; so that many came to him from all parts, drawn by the report of his frequent miracles. Finally, having foretold the day of his death, he fell asleep in the Lord, in the year of salvation 1142.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

John and Paul were two Roman brethren, the godly and trustworthy servants of Constantia, daughter of Constantine. At her death they spent in feeding Christ's poor the property which she left them. Julian the Apostate asked them to enter his household, but they bravely answered that they would not be servants to one who had run away from the service of Jesus Christ. Julian gave them ten days to consider on their choice, whether, at the end of that time, they would cleave to him, and sacrifice to Jupiter, or most surely die.

R. These are two men full of mercy, who stand in the presence of the Lord, * The Lord of the whole earth.

Ÿ. These are two olive trees, and two candlesticks, giving light in the presence of the Lord.

R. The Lord of the whole earth.

LESSON V

This interval they spent in distributing to poor creatures all that remained of their goods, that they might be quite free to depart hence to the Lord, and so succoured many by whom they have long since been received into everlasting habitations. On the tenth day Terentian, Prefect of the Praetorian Cohort, was sent to them, bringing with him the image of Jupiter. He explained to them the command of the Emperor, that they should worship the said image or die. They were engaged in prayer, but answered him that for their loyalty to Christ, Whom their understanding acknowledged and their mouths confessed to be God, they felt no hesitation in choosing to suffer death.

R. I saw men standing together clad in shining raiment; and the Angel of the Lord spake unto me, saying: * These men are holy, for they are the friends of God.

Ÿ. And I beheld a mighty Angel of God, flying through the midst of heaven, crying with a loud voice, and saying:

R. Isti sunt viri sancti facti amici Dei.

LESSON VI

Terentian, to avoid the uproar, which might have been caused by their public execution, caused their heads to be cut off at home where they then were. They lifted up their last earthly testimony upon the 26th day of June, (in the year of our Lord 362.) They were privately buried, and a story set about that they had been sent into exile. The fact of their death was made generally known by the unclean spirits by whom the bodies of many were tormented, and among others that of Terentian's own son, who was possessed with a devil, and delivered by being brought to the grave of the Martyrs. By this miracle he was led to believe in Christ, and so likewise was his father Terentian, who is said to have been the writer of the life of these blessed Martyrs.

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 12:1-8

At that time: Jesus said unto His disciples Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. And so on.

Homily by the Venerable Bede, Priest at Jarrow and Doctor of the Church.

Bk. iv. on Luke, Cap. Hi.

Touching this leaven the Apostle warneth us Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness, ázymis sinceritátis et veritátis. Nam, sicut módicum ferméntum totam farínæ, cui injícitur, massam corrúmpit, universámque mox conspersiónem suo sapóre commáculat; sic nimírum simulátio, cujus semel ánimum imbúerit, tota virtútum sinceritáte et veritáte fraudábit. Est ergo sensus: Atténdite ne æmulémini simulátóres; quia véniet profécto tempus, in quo et vestra virtus ómnibus, et eórum revelétur hypócrisis.

℞. Propter testaméntum Dómini, et leges patrénas, Sancti Dei perstitérunt in amóre fraternitátis: * Quia unus fuit semper spíritus in eis, et una fides.

Quóniam quæ inter ténebras quondam presurárum carcerúmque umbras vel locúti vel passi sunt Apóstoli; nunc, clarificáta per orbem Ecclésia, lectis eórum áctibus, públice prædicántur. Ne terreámini ab his qui occídunt corpus. Si persecutóres Sanctórum, occísis corpóribus, non habent ámplius quid contra illos agant: ergo supervácuá furunt insánia, qui mórtua Mártyrum membra, feris avibúsque discerpénda projíciunt, cum nequáquam omnipoténtiæ Dei, quin ea resuscitándo vivíficet, obsístere possint.

but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth. (i Cor. v. 8.) For even as a little leaven doth infect the whole lump wherein it is put, and the savour thereof doth spread all abroad therein, so doth hypocrisy, when once it hath tainted the soul, drive out from it all sincerity and truth. The meaning, therefore, of this passage is this Beware, lest ye be as the hypocrites, for yet a little while, and all men shall see that ye are good, and they are evil.

℞. Because of the covenant of the Lord, and the laws of their fathers, the Saints of God abode in brotherly love, * For one spirit and one faith was ever in them.

℣. Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

℞. For one spirit and one faith was ever in them.

LESSON VIII

As touching what followeth, for there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed, neither hid, that shall not be known. Therefore, whatsoever ye have spoken in darkness shall be heard in the light. These words are true, not only as concerning the world which is to come, wherein the secrets of all hearts shall be made manifest, but even as concerning this present world, since now that which the Apostles spake and suffered in the darkness of persecution, and the gloom of dungeons, is, since that the Church is glorified, told of them for a memorial of them, wherever their acts are read throughout the whole world. Be not afraid of them that kill the body, for they that persecute the righteous, when they have killed the body, after that, have no more that they can do. Truly, it is a childish folly which maketh such men to cast the dead limbs of the martyrs to birds and beasts, while yet they have no strength to withstand the Almighty of God, whereby He will surely quicken the same limbs and raise them up again.

℞. Theirs is a brotherhood indeed, whose tie no storms availed to sever together they followed the Lord in the shedding of their blood. * Together they set at nought the Royal Palace; together they attained unto the kingdom of heaven.

- ✠. Ecce quam bonum et quam jucúndum habitáre fratres in unum.
- ℟. Contemnéntes aulam régiam,
pervenérunt ad regna cæléstia.
- ✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℟. Contemnéntes aulam régiam,
pervenérunt ad regna cæléstia.

LECTIO IX

Duo autem sunt génera persecutórum: unum palam sæviéntium, álterum fícte fraudulentérque blandiéntium. Contra utrúmque nos muníre atque institúere volens Salvátor, et supra ab hypócrisi pharisæórum atténdere, et hic a carníficum cæde præcipit non timére; quia vidélicet, post mortem nec horum crudélitas nec illórum váleat simulátio duráre. Nonne quinque pásseres véneunt dipóndio? Si minutíssi-ma, inquit, animália, et quæ quólibet per aëra ferúntur volatília, Deus oblivisci non potest; vos, qui ad imáginem facti estis Creatóris, non debétis terréri ab his qui occídunt corpus; quia, qui irrationabília animália gubérnat, rationabília curáre non désinit.

LESSON IX

If persecutors there are two kinds first, of such as do openly rage in cruelty against us and, secondly, of such as do seek, by cunning wiliness and lying, to beguile us. Against both these the Saviour willeth to guard and strengthen us, in one place warning us to be not afraid of them that kill the body, and, in another place, to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees since, when we are dead, neither the cruelty of the one class, nor the falsehood of the other, will be able any more to touch us. Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings? If God, saith the Lord, if God cannot forget the least of the works of His hands that hath life, the little birds that fly hither and thither in the air, if He cannot forget them, wherefore should ye, who are made in the image and likeness of your Maker, wherefore should ye be afraid of them that kill the body? He that is the careful Lord of the beasts, which think not, how much more shall He be careful of man which hath a reasonable soul?

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: Sts. John and Paul, Martyrs

The Roman brothers John and Paul distributed to the poor the wealth they had been left by Constantia, the daughter of Constantine, whom they had served justly and faithfully. Invited by Julian the Apostate to join the members of his household, they boldly declared that they did not wish to live in the house of a man who had abandoned Jesus Christ. They were therefore given ten days in which to be persuaded to sacrifice to Jupiter. As they steadfastly refused to commit this sin, they were beheaded in their home, at the command of Terentian the judge, thus meriting the palm of martyrdom. The news of their glorious death was spread abroad by unclean spirits, who began tormenting the bodies of many persons, among them the son of Terentian. He was freed of his diabolical tormentor at the tomb of the Martyrs. This miracle led both him and his father, Terentian, to believe in Christ; and the latter is said to have written the life of the holy Martyrs.

Sermo sancti Basilii Magni

Homilia 2 in Psalm. 28

Vox Dómini super aquas. Qualis vox? super quas aquas? Velut prophetíam accipiámus quod dictum est. Memínere Joánnis, qui interrogátus a Judæis: Tu quis es? quod respónsum dábimus iis, qui misérunt nos? respóndit: Ego vox clamántis in desérto. Igitur vox Dómini est Joánnes, Angelus a Deo missus ante fáciem Dómini, ut paráret Dómino plebem perféctam. Hæc igitur vox super aquas, erat super Jordánem, in quo baptizábat prædicans poeniténtiæ baptismum, et non solum in Jordáne, sed étiam in Ænon prope Salim, quia aquæ multæ erant illic.

LESSON IV

From the Sermons of St. Basil the Great, Archbishop of Caesarea-in-Pontus.

Hom ii. Ps. xxviii.)

The voice of the Lord is upon the waters. What voice is this? What are these waters? Let us take that which is here said as a prophecy. Thou rememberest how that this is the record of John, when the Jews (sent Priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou? And he confessed and denied not, but confessed, I am not the Christ. And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not. Art thou that Prophet? And he answered, No. Then said they unto him, Who art thou that we may give an answer to them that sent us. ~ (What sayest thou of thyself?) He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness. (John i. 19-23; Isa. xl. 3, 4.) Therefore, John is the voice of the Lord. This is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send My messenger before thy face (Luke vii. 27) to make ready a people prepared for the Lord (i. 17.) This voice upon the waters was heard upon those of Jordan, wherein he baptized, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins (iii. 3.) Nor was this voice heard upon the waters of Jordan only, but also, in Enon near to Salim, because there was much water there. (John iii. 23.)

℣. Iste puer magnus coram Dómino: nam et manus ejus cum ipso est.

℞. Et habébit nomen Joánnes Baptísta.

LECTIO V

Igitur vox Dómini super aquas, Joánnes est super baptísmum. Illic et Deus majestátis intónuit: venit enim vox de cælo, dicens: Hic est Fílius meus diléctus, in quo mihi compláui. Tunc étiam Dóminus super aquas multas dignátus est descendere in baptísma Joánnis, ut compléret omnem justítiam quæ in lege est. Vox Dómini in virtúte. Auferet enim debilitátes pópuli per pœniténtiæ baptísmum, per ipsum baptízans in aqua ad pœniténtiam. In virtúte est vox, dicens: Pœniténtiam ágite, appropinquávit enim regnum cælórum: et, Fácite fructus dignos pœniténtiæ.

℞. Hic est præcúrsor diléctus, et lucérna lucens ante Dóminum: * Ipse est enim Joánnes, qui viam Dómino præparávit in erémo; sed et Agnum Dei demonstrávit, et illuminávit mentes hóminum.

℞. Ipse est enim Joánnes, qui viam Dómino præparávit in erémo; sed et Agnum Dei demonstrávit, et illuminávit mentes hóminum.

LECTIO VI

Vox Dómini confringéntis cedros. Potest dici, quod parans Dómino pópulum perféc-tum, elátas impietátes et contra cognitiónem Dei exaltátas confringens, ac cónterens, oblí-qua faciébat recta. Qui enim omnem collem

℞. The Angel of the Lord was sent down unto Zacharias, saying: Thou shalt beget a son in thine old age; * and his name shall be called John the Baptist.

℣. The child shall be great in the sight of the Lord; for His hand is with him.

℞. And his name shall be called John the Baptist.

LESSON V

The voice of the Lord upon the waters, then, is John upon baptism. Then also the God of glory thundereth. For (when Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan..) there came a voice from heaven, saying, This is My Beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased. (Mark i. 9, II.) Then also was it true that The Lord is upon many waters when He was pleased to come from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him... to fulfil all righteousness ~ (Matth. iii. 13, 15,) which is of the law. (Rom. x. 5.) The voice of the Lord is powerful powerful to heal the weaknesses of the people through the baptism of repentance, baptizing through John with water unto repentance. (Matth. iii. 11.) The voice of the Lord is powerful, which saith Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand, and Bring forth fruits meet for repentance.

℞. This is the well-beloved Fore-runner, a burning and a shining light before the Lord. * For even this is John, who made straight in the desert an highway for our God. This also is he which bare witness, saying: Behold the Lamb of God! And his light lightened the minds of men.

℣. He shall go before Him in the spirit and power of Elias.

℞. For even this is John, who made straight in the desert an highway for our God. This also is he which bare witness, saying Behold the Lamb of God! And his light lightened the minds of men.

LESSON VI

The voice of the Lord breaketh the cedars. This may well be said of him who, being sent as a messenger before the face of the Lord, to make ready for Him a prepared people, made the crooked places straight, by breaking down and treading flat ac montem humiliat, hic erat qui confringebat cedros, et Dómino viam adæquabat, per hoc quod ad poenitentiam inducébat altum, et elátum, et supérbum cor. Et Zachariás pater ejus implétus est Spíritui Sancto, et prophetábat. Vide quam bonus Deus, et fácilis indulgére peccátis; non solum abláta restítuit, sed étiam insperáta concédit. the haughty growths of ungodliness that had lifted themselves up to block out the acknowledgment of God. He by whom every valley was exalted, and every mountain and hill was made low, the same was he who broke the cedars, and made straight in the desert an highway for our God, by laying low in repentance the hearts that were haughty, and proud, and lifted up. The Lord availing Himself of that preparation, smote down at His coming every power that withstood Him, which are spoken of under a similitude as the cedars of Lebanon. For the Lord must reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet, (1 Cor. xv. 25,) and trodden down these cedars.

From the Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan.

Bk. ii. on Luke's

And his father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied. Behold how good is God, and how ready to forgive sinners Not only doth He give back that which He hath taken away, but He addeth moreover such and such things, more than either we ask or think. He that had hitherto been dumb, now speaketh prophecy. But the greatest grace of God is in this, that he which had denied, now maketh profession. Therefore let no man despair, nay, though he well knoweth what have been his past sins, let him never give up hope of a reward from God. If thou knowest how to amend

LECTIO IX

Sciébat profecto álias esse aures prophétæ, quæ Spíritu Dei, non córporis ætáte reserántur. Habébat intelligéndi sensum, qui exsultándi habébat afféctum. Simul illud advérte, quam paucis Elisabeth, quam multis Zachariás prophetet: et utérque Sancto replétus Spíritu loquebátur: sed disciplína servátur, thy crooked ways, God knoweth how to turn away the judgments of His anger.

℞. The Fore-runner of the Lord cometh, to whom He Himself bare witness, saying: * Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist.

℣. A Prophet? Yea, and much more than a Prophet. This is he of whom the Saviour saith:

℞. Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist.

LESSON VIII

And thou, child, shalt be called the Prophet of the Highest. How gracefully, while as he prophesieth of the Lord, he turneth his address to the Prophet, making mention of this great mercy of the Lord along with the others, lest, while he openly gave thanks for his own benefits, he should seem to keep the silence of unthankfulness regarding those which he knew had been given to his boy. But some will perhaps deem it his folly that he addressed his discourse to a babe of eight days old. Verily, if we call to mind that John heard the voice of Mary's salutation when he was in his mother's womb, we shall understand how much rather he could hear the voice of his father now when he was born.

℞. The Angel Gabriel appeared unto Zacharias, and said thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John; * And many shall rejoice at his birth.

℣. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink.

℞. And many shall rejoice at his birth.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. And many shall rejoice at his birth.

LESSON IX

Zacharias knew well that a Prophet hath ears which open under the influence of the Spirit of God, instead of that of advancing age. He that had had sense to leap in the womb for joy, wanted not understanding. At the same time remark unto how many Zacharias prophesied, and though both he and his wife were filled with the Holy Ghost, yet

LESSON IV

Irenaeus was born in proconsular Asia, not far from the city of Smyrna. There he had already as a boy entrusted himself to the teaching of Polycarp, disciple of John the Evangelist, and bishop of Smyrna. Under such an excellent master, he made remarkable progress in learning and in the precepts of the Christian religion. When Polycarp was taken up to heaven by a glorious martyrdom, although Irenaeus was eminently versed in sacred letters, nevertheless, he burned with an incredible zeal to learn what articles of belief the others who were instructed by the Apostles had received, to be preserved in the deposit of faith. For this reason he brought together as many of those men as he could, and whatever things he heard from them, he carefully retained in his mind. Thus he could advantageously bring them to bear in the future against those heresies, which he saw were being diffused more widely day by day to the great detriment of the Christian people, and he diligently planned thoroughly to confute them. Then, having set out for Gaul, he was appointed as a priest of the church of Lyons by Pothinus the bishop. And this office he discharged in such a manner, labouring both by word and by teaching, that (according to the testimony of the holy Martyrs who, when Marcus Aurelius was emperor, were engaged in a vigorous combat for the true religion) he distinguished himself as an imitator of the testament of Christ.

LESSON V

These very Martyrs, together with the clergy of Lyons, began to be anxious concerning the peace of the churches of Asia, which the faction of the Montanists had disturbed. And so they selected Irenaeus, whose person they considered of the greatest importance, as the one before all others whom they should send to Rome to Pope Eleutherius to ask, that, with the condemnation of the new dissidents by the authority of the Apostolic See, the cause of the dissensions might be removed. Already the bishop Pothinus had died a martyr and Irenaeus succeeded him. He applied himself so well to the duties of a bishop, that in a short time he saw not only all the citizens of Lyons, but also many of the inhabitants of other cities in Gaul cast aside their superstitions and errors, and enroll themselves in the Christian army. Meanwhile, a dispute had arisen concerning the date of the celebration of Easter. As the bishops of Asia were disagreeing with nearly all their fellow-bishops, the Roman Pontiff Victor had cut them off from the communion of the faithful. Irenaeus, however, who was zealous for peace, admonished him in a becoming manner, and urged, by examples of the practice of previous Pontiffs, that he should not suffer so many Churches to be cut off from Catholic unity, on account of a rite which they said they had received from their ancestors.

There are extant five books of his against heresies, written down about the year 180, while Eleutherius was still ruling the Christian commonwealth. In the third book, the man of God, instructed by those who, it is certain, had been hearers of the Apostles, gives to the Roman Church and to the succession of her bishops a testimony surpassing all others in weight and brilliancy, when he calleth her the faithful, perpetual, and most assured guardian of divine tradition. For he said, that with this Church it is necessary that the whole Church (that is, those in all places who are of the faithful) should agree, because of its more powerful preeminence. At length with almost countless others, whom he had himself brought over to the true faith and its practice, being crowned with martyrdom he passed to heaven in the year of salvation 202. At that time Septimius Severus Augustus had commanded that all those who wished to remain constantly steadfast in the practice of the Christian religion should be condemned to the most cruel torments and to death. The supreme Pontiff Benedict XV extended the feast of St. Irenaeus to the universal Church.

A Homily by St. Irenæus the Bishop and Martyr
Lib. 3 adversus Hæreses cap. 18, alias 20, num. 5-6

The Lord knew both those who would suffer persecution; and he knew those who would be scourged and slain for his sake. His words are indeed those of exhortation: Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul. Rather fear him which hath power to cast both body and soul into hell, and to preserve whomsoever should confess him. For indeed he hath promised to confess before his Father those who should confess his name before men; and to deny those who should deny him, and to be ashamed of those who should be ashamed to confess him. Yet for all this, some have gone so far in audacity, as to scorn even the Martyrs, and to revile those who have been put to death for confessing the Lord, and who endure all that the Lord foretold, and so far endeavour to follow in the footsteps of the Lord's Passion, being made Martyrs of one who was capable of suffering; but these we leave to the Martyrs themselves. For when their blood shall be required, and they shall obtain glory, then all those who have dishonoured their martyrdom will be put to confusion by Christ.

LESSON VIII

This also meeteth the objection of those who say that Christ only appeared to be suffering. For if he did not really suffer, no gratitude is due unto him, when there was no suffering; and when we begin really to suffer, he would seem to be deceiving us, when exhorting us to receive blows and to turn the other cheek, if he himself had not first suffered in reality. And as he deceived them, so as to appear to them what he was not; so also he mis-

And so we should even be higher than the Master, when we suffer and endure things, which the Master neither suffered nor endured. But, whereas our Lord alone is truly the master, he is also truly the Son of God, good and kind, the Word of God the Father made Son of Man. For he strove, and he conquered; for he was a man contending for his fathers and paying the debt of disobedience by his obedience. For he hath bound the strong man, and, he unbindeth the weak, and he hath given salvation to his creature by destroying sin. Therefore, those who say he is manifested only in appearance, and not born in the flesh, nor really made man, are still under the old condemnation.

And as he held Peter and John, all the people ran to them to the porch which is called Solomon's, greatly wondering. But Peter seeing, made answer to the people: Ye men of Israel, why wonder you at this? or why look you upon us, as if by our strength or power we had made this man to walk? The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus, whom you indeed delivered up and denied before the face of Pilate, when he judged he should be released. But you denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you. But the author of life you killed, whom God hath raised from the dead, of which we are witnesses. And in the faith of his name, this man, whom you have seen and known, hath his name strengthened; and the faith which is by him, hath given this perfect soundness in the sight of you all.

R. Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. * And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

Ÿ. Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth, shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven.

R. And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

R. Et tibi dabo claves regni cælórum.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et tibi dabo claves regni cælórum.

LECTIO IV

Sermo sancti Leónis Papæ Sermo 1 in natali App. Petri et Pauli

Omnium quidem sanctárum solemnítatum, dilectíssimi, totus mundus est párticeps, et uníus fídei píetas éxigit, ut quidquid pro salúte universórum gestum recólitur, commúnibus ubíque gáudiis celebrétur. Verúmten hodiérna festívitás, præter illam reveréntiam quam toto terrárum orbe proméruiť, speciáli et própria nostræ Urbis exsultatióne veneránda est; ut, ubi præcipuórum Apostolórum glorificátus est éxitus, ibi in die martýrii eórum sit lætítiæ principátus. Isti enim sunt viri, per quos tibi Evangélium Christi, Roma, resplénduit; et, quæ eras magístra erroris, facta es discípula veritátis.

R. Dómine, si tu es, jube me veníre ad te super aquas. * Et exténdens manum apprehéndit eum, et dixit Jesus: Módicæ fídei, quare dubitásti?

Ÿ. Cumque vidísset ventum válidum veniéntem, tímuit; et, cum cœpísset mergi, clamávit dicens: Dómine, salvum me fac.

R. Et exténdens manum apprehéndit eum, et dixit Jesus: Módicæ fídei, quare dubitásti?

LECTIO V

Isti sunt patres tui veríque pastóres, qui te regnis cæléstibus inseréndam multo mélius multóque felícitus condidérunt, quam illi quorum stúdio prima moénium tuórum fundaménta locáta sunt; ex quibus is qui tibi

R. And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of Pope St. Leo the Great
First for the Birthday of the Holy Apostles Peter and Paul*

Dearly beloved brethren, in the joy of all the holy Feast-days the whole world is partaker. There is but one love of God, and whatsoever is solemnly called to memory, if it hath been done for the salvation of all, must needs be worth the honour of a joyful memorial at the hands of all. Nevertheless, this feast which we are keeping today, besides that world-wide worship which it doth of right get throughout all the earth, doth deserve from this city of ours an outburst of gladness altogether special and our own. In this place it was that the two chiefest of the Apostles did so right gloriously finish their race. And upon this day whereon they lifted up that their last testimony, let it be in this place that the memory thereof receiveth the chiefest of jubilant celebrations. O Rome, these twain are the men who brought the light of the Gospel of Christ to shine upon thee! These are they by whom thou, from being the teacher of lies, wast turned into a learner of the truth.

R. Lord, if it be Thou, bid me come unto thee on the water; * And Jesus stretched forth His Hand, and caught him, and said unto him: O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

Ÿ. But when he saw the wind boisterous, he was afraid and, beginning to sink, he cried, saying: Lord, save me!

R. And Jesus stretched forth His Hand, and caught him, and said unto him: O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

LESSON V

These twain be thy fathers, these be in good sooth thy shepherds, these twain be they who laid for thee, as touching the kingdom of heaven, better and happier foundations, than did they that first planned thine earthly ramparts, wherefrom he that nomen dedit, fratérna te cæde foedávit. Isti sunt, qui te ad hanc glóriam provexérunt, ut gens sancta, pópulus eléctus, cívitas sacerdotális et régia, per sacram beáti Petri Sedem caput orbis effécta, látius præsidéres religióne divína quam dominatióne terréna. Quamvis enim, multis aucta victóriis, jus impérii tui terra maríque protúleris; minus tamen est quod tibi béllicus labor súbdidit, quam quod pax christiána subjécit.

℞. Surge, Petre, et índue te vestiméntis tuis, áccipe fortitúdinem ad salvándas gentes:
* Quia cecidérunt caténæ de mánibus tuis.

℣. Angelus Dómini ástitit, et lumen refúlsit in habitáculo cárceris, percussóque látere Petri, excitávit eum, dicens: Surge, velóciter.

℞. Quia cecidérunt caténæ de mánibus tuis.

LECTIO VI

Dispositio namque divínitus óperi máxime congruébat, ut multa regna uno confoederarentur império, et cito pèrvios habéret pópulos prædicatio generális, quos unús tenéret régimen civitátis. Hæc autem cívitas ignórans suæ provectionis auctórem, cum pene ómnibus dominarétur gèntibus, ómnium gèntium serviébat erróribus; et magnam sibi videbátur assumpsisse religiónem, quia nul- lam respúerat falsitátem. Unde, quantum erat per diábolum tenácus illigáta, tantum per Christum est mirabílius absolúta.

℞. Tu es pastor óvium, princeps Apostolorum: tibi trádidit Deus ómnia regna mundi: * Et ideo tibi tráditæ sunt claves regni cælórum.

℣. Quodcúmque ligáveris super terram, erit ligátum et in cælis; et quodcúmque gave thee thy name took occasion to pollute thee with a brother's blood. These are they who have set on thine head this thy glorious crown, that thou art become an holy nation, a chosen people, a city both Priestly and Kingly, whom the Sacred Throne of blessed Peter hath exalted till thou art become the Lady of the world, unto whom the world-wide love for God hath conceded a broader lordship than is the possession of any mere earthly empire. Thou wast once waxen great by victories, until thy power was spread haughtily over land and sea, but thy power was narrower then which the toils of war had won for thee, than that thou now hast which hath been laid at thy feet by the peace of Christ.

℞. Arise, O Peter! Cast thy garment about thee, gird thee with strength for the saving of the nations. * The chains are fallen off from thine hands.

℣. The Angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison and he smote Peter on the side and raised him up, saying: Arise up quickly.

℞. The chains are fallen off from thine hands.

LESSON VI

It well suited for the doing of the work which God had decreed that the multitude of kingdoms should be bound together under one rule, and that so the universal preaching of the Gospel should find easier entry into all peoples, since all were governed by the empire of one city. But this city, knowing not Him, Who had been pleased to make her great, used her lordship over almost all nations to make herself the minister of all their falsehoods and seemed to herself exceeding godly because there was no false god whom she rejected. But the tighter that Satan had bound her, the more wondrous was the work of Christ in setting her free.

℞. Thou art the Shepherd of the sheep, and the Prince of the Apostles, and unto thee hath God given all the kingdoms of the world. * Therefore unto thee hath He given the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

sólveris super terram, erit solútum et in cælis.

℟. Et ideo tibi trádita sunt claves regni cælórum.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Et ideo tibi trádita sunt claves regni cælórum.

LECTIO VII

*Lectio sancti Evangelii secundum
Matthæum*

Matt 16:13-19

In illo témpore: Venit Jesus in partes Cæsareæ Philíppi, et interrogábat discípulos suos, dicens: Quem dicunt hómines esse Fílium hóminis? Et réliqua.

*Homília sancti Hierónymi Presbýteri
Lib. 3 Comment. in Matth. cap. 16*

Pulchre intérogat: Quem dicunt hómines esse Fílium hóminis? quia qui de fílio hóminis loquúntur, hómines sunt; qui vero divinitátem ejus intélegunt, non hómines, sed dii appellántur. At illi dixérunt: Alíi Joánnem Baptístam, álíi autem Elíam. Miror quosdam intérpretes causas errórum inquírrere singulórum, et disputatiónem longíssimam téxere, quare Dóminum nostrum Jesum Christum álíi Joánnem putáverint, álíi Elíam, álíi Jeremíam aut unum ex prophétis; cum sic potúerint erráre in Elía et Jeremía, quo modo Heródes errávit in Joáanne, dicens: Quem ego decollávi Joánnem, ipse surréxit a mórtuis, et virtútes operántur in eo.

℟. Ego pro te rogávi, Petre, ut non deficiat fides tua: * Et tu aliquándo convérsus confírma fratres tuos.

℣. Caro et sanguis non revelávit tibi, sed Pater meus, qui est in cælis.

℟. Et tu aliquándo convérsus confírma fratres tuos.

LECTIO VIII

℣. Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

℟. Therefore unto thee hath He given the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. Therefore unto thee hath He given the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 16:13-19

At that time: Jesus came into the coasts of Caesarea Philippi, and He asked His disciples, saying: Who do men say that I, the Son of man, am? And so on.

*Homily by St. Jerome, Priest (at Bethlehem.)
Bk. iii Comment. on Matth. xvi*

Who do men say that I, the Son of man, am? This question is well put, for they who speak of Him as the Son of man are men, while they that know of Him that He is God are called not men but gods. And they said: Some say that Thou art John the Baptist, some, Elias. I marvel that some commentators have thought it worth their while to search into the origin of each of these blunders, and to engage in a discussion of weary length as to why some thought that our Lord Jesus Christ was John the Baptist, some, Elias and others, Jeremias, or one of the Prophets. Their blunders concerning Elias and Jeremias were but of a piece with Herod's concerning John the Baptist: It is John, whom I beheaded; he is risen from the dead and therefore mighty works do show forth themselves in him. (Mark vi. 16, 14.)

℟. Peter, I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not; * And when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.

℣. Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father Which is in heaven.

℟. And when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.

LESSON VIII

Vos autem quem me esse dicitis? Prudens lector, attēde quod, ex consequētibz textūque sermōnis, Apōstoli nequāquam hōmines, sed dīi appellāntur. Cum enim dixisset: Quem dicunt hōmines esse Fīlium hōminis? subjēcit: Vos autem quem me esse dicitis? Illis, quia hōmines sunt, humāna opināntibus, vos qui estis dīi, quem me esse existimātis? Petrus ex persōna omnium Apostolorū profitetur: Tu es Christus Fīlius Dei vivi. Deum vivum appellat, ad distinctionem eōrum deōrum, qui putāntur dīi, sed mortui sunt.

℞. Quem dicunt hōmines esse Fīlium hōminis? dixit Jesus discipulis suis.
Respondens Petrus dixit: Tu es Christus Fīlius Dei vivi. * Et ego dico tibi, quia tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificābo Ecclēsiā meam.

ψ. Beātus es, Simon Bar-Jona, quia caro et sanguis non revelāvit tibi, sed Pater meus qui est in cælis.

℞. Et ego dico tibi, quia tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificābo Ecclēsiā meam.

ψ. Glōria Patri, et Fīlio, * et Spīritui Sancto.

℞. Et ego dico tibi, quia tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificābo Ecclēsiā meam.

LECTIO IX

Respondens autem Jesus, dixit ei: Beātus es, Simon Bar-Jona. Testimōnio de se Apōstoli reddit vicem. Petrus dixerat: Tu es Christus Fīlius Dei vivi; mercēdem recēpit vera confessio: Beātus es, Simon Bar-Jona. Quare? Quia non revelāvit tibi caro et sanguis, sed revelāvit Pater. Quod caro et sanguis revelāre non pōtuit, Spīritus Sancti grātia revelātum est. Ergo ex confessiōe sortitur vocābulum, quod revelatiōnem ex Spīritu Sancto hābeat, cujus et fīlius appellāndus sit. Siquidem Bar-Jona in nostra lingua sonat Fīlius colūmbæ.

Te Deum

But who say ye that I am? Mark, discreet reader, from the context, that a distinction is here drawn between the Apostles and mere men. The Apostles are called gods. Who, asketh the Lord, do men say that I am, but, on the other hand, who say ye that I am? They, being but men, deal in human speculations, but ye that are gods, who be ye persuaded that I am. And then Peter, as the representative of all the Apostles, uttered the testimony: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. He calleth God living, to mark the difference between Him and all other that be called gods, and who are indeed dead.

℞. Jesus asked His disciples, saying: Who do men say that I, the Son of Man, am? Peter answered, and said: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. * And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church.

ψ. Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father Which is in heaven.

℞. And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church.

LESSON IX

And Jesus answered and said unto him: Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona. The Apostle having testified of the Lord, the Lord in turn testifieth of the Apostle. Peter had said: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God, and he received, in return for that his testimony to the truth, the words: Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona. Why blessed? For flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father. What flesh and blood could not reveal, the grace of the Holy Ghost had revealed. Meet for him therefore, because of his confession, is his name, as the name of one who hath revelation from the Holy Ghost, and therefore is called His son. Bar-Jona is, being interpreted, The-son-of-the-Dove.

LECTIO I

De Actibus Apostolorum

Act 13:1-4

Erant autem in Ecclesia quæ erat Antiochiæ, prophætæ et doctôres, in quibus Bárnabas et Simon, qui vocátur Niger, et Lucius Cyrenénsis et Mánahen, qui erat Heródis tetrárchæ collactáneus, et Saulus. Ministrántibus autem illis Dómino et jejunántibus, dixit illis Spíritus Sanctus: Segregáte mihi Saulum et Bárnabam, in opus ad quod assúmpsi eos. Tunc jejunántes et orántes imponentésque eis manus dimiserunt illos. Et ipsi quidem missi a Spíritu Sancto abiérunt Seleucíam et inde navigáverunt Cyprum.

- R. Qui operátus est Petro in apostolátum, operátus est et mihi inter gentes: * Et cognovérunt grátiam Dei, quæ data est mihi.
- V. Grátia Dei in me vácuá non fuit, sed grátia ejus semper in me manet.
- R. Et cognovérunt grátiam Dei, quæ data est mihi.

LECTIO II

Act 13:5-8

Et, cum veníssent Salamínam, prædicábant verbum Dei in synagógis Judæórum; habébant autem et Joánnem in ministério. Et, cum perambulássent univérsam ínsulam usque Paphum, invenérunt quemdam virum magum pseudoprophétam Judæum, cui nomen erat Barjésu, qui erat cum procónsule Sérgio Paulo, viro prudénte. Hic, accersítis Bárnaba et Saulo, desiderábat audíre verbum Dei. Resistébat autem illis Elymas magus (sic enim interpretátur nomen ejus) quærens avértere procónsulem a fide.

LESSON I

Lesson from the Acts of the Apostles

Acts 13:1-4

Now there were in the church which was at Antioch, prophets and doctors, among whom was Barnabas, and Simon who was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manahen, who was the foster brother of Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. And as they were ministering to the Lord, and fasting, the Holy Ghost said to them: Separate me Saul and Barnabas, for the work whereunto I have taken them. Then they, fasting and praying, and imposing their hands upon them, sent them away. So they being sent by the Holy Ghost, went to Seleucia: and from thence they sailed to Cyprus.

- R. He That wrought effectually in Peter to the Apostleship, the Same was mighty in me toward the Gentiles, * And they perceived the grace that was given unto me of the Lord Christ.
- V. The grace of God which was bestowed upon me was not in vain, but His grace abideth ever in me.
- R. And they perceived the grace that was given unto me of the Lord Christ.

LESSON II

Acts 13:5-8

And when they were come to Salamina, they preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews. And they had John also in the ministry. And when they had gone through the whole island, as far as Paphos, they found a certain man, a magician, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-jesu: Who was with the proconsul Sergius Paulus, a prudent man. He sending for Barnabas and Saul, desired to hear the word of God. But Elymas the magician (for so his name is interpreted) withstood them, seeking to turn away the proconsul from the faith.

R. Bonum certámen certávi, cursum consummávi, fidem servávi: * Ideóque repósita est mihi coróna justítia.

Ψ. Scio cui crédidi, et certus sum quia potens est depósitum meum serváre in illum diem.

R. Ideóque repósita est mihi coróna justítia.

LECTIO III

Act 13:9-13

Saulus autem, qui et Paulus, replétus Spíritu Sancto, íntuens in eum, dixit: O plene omni dolo et omni fallácia, fili diáboli, inimíce omnis justítia, non désinis subvértere vias Dómini rectas? Et nunc ecce manus Dómini super te, et eris cæcus, non videns solem usque ad tempus. Et conféstim cécidit in eum calígo et ténebræ, et circúiens quærébat qui ei manum daret. Tunc procónsul, cum vidísset factum, crédidit admírans super doctrína Dómini. Et, cum a Papho navigássent, Paulus et qui cum eo erant venérunt Pergen Pamphýliæ; Joánnēs autem discédens ab eis revérsus est Jerosólymam.

R. Repósita est mihi coróna justítia, *

R. Quam reddet mihi Dóminus in illum diem justus iudex.

Ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Quam reddet mihi Dóminus in illum diem justus iudex.

LECTIO IV

Ex libro sancti Augustini Episcopi de grátia et libero arbitrio

Cap. 6-7

Apóstolus Paulus, quem certe invénimus sine ullis méritis bonis, immo cum multis méritis malis, Dei grátiam consecútum, reddéntis bona pro malis, videámus quid dicat, sua

R. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; * Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.

Ψ. I know Whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day.

R. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.

LESSON III

Acts 13:9-13

Then Saul, otherwise Paul, filled with the Holy Ghost, looking upon him, Said: O full of all guile, and of all deceit, child of the devil, enemy of all justice, thou ceapest not to pervert the right ways of the Lord. And now behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a time. And immediately there fell a mist and darkness upon him, and going about, he sought some one to lead him by the hand. Then the proconsul, when he had seen what was done, believed, admiring at the doctrine of the Lord. Now when Paul and they that were with him had sailed from Paphos, they came to Perge in Pamphylia. And John departing from them, returned to Jerusalem.

R. There is laid up for me a crown of righteousness: * Which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day.

Ψ. I know Whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day.

R. Which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day.

Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day.

LESSON IV

From the Book of St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo, touching Grace and Free-will

Chapter 6

The Apostle Paul was a man, who, when we first hear of him, had not only no merits, but a great many demerits. That man received the grace of God, Who returneth good for evil, and let us see jam propinquante passióne, scribens ad Timótheum: Ego enim jam ímmolor, inquit, et tempus resolutiónis meæ instat. Bonum certámen certávi, cursum consummávi, fidem servávi. Ista útique jam mérita sua bona commémorat; ut post bona mérita consecútus est grátiam. Dénique atténdite quid sequátur: Súperest, inquit, mihi coróna justítiae, quam reddet mihi Dóminus in illa die justus iudex. Cui rédderet corónam justus iudex, si non donáset grátiam miséricors Pater? Et quómodo esset ista coróna justítiae, nisi præcessisset grátia, quæ justificat ímpium? Quómodo ista débita redderetur, nisi prius illa gratúita donaretur?

R. Tu es vas electiónis, sancte Paule Apóstole, prædicator veritátis in univérso mundo, * Per quem omnes gentes cognoverunt grátiam Dei.

V. Intercéde pro nobis ad Deum, qui te elégit.

R. Per quem omnes gentes cognoverunt grátiam Dei.

LECTIO V

Proínde considerémus ipsa mérita Apóstoli Pauli, quibus dixit corónam redditúrum júdicem justum, et videámus utrum mérita ipsíus tamquam ipsíus, id est, ex ipso ei comparáta, an dona sint Dei. Bonum, inquit, certámen certávi, cursum consummávi, fidem servávi. Primo ista bona ópera, si non ea præcessissent cogitátiones bonæ, nulla essent. Atténdite ítaque quid de ípsis cogitátionibus dicat; ait enim scribens ad Corínthios: Non quia idónei sumus cogitare áliquid a nobis, tamquam a nobismetípsis; sed sufficiéntia nostra ex Deo est. Deínde sícula inspicíamus.

R. Grátia Dei sum id quod sum: * Et grátia ejus in me vacua non fuit, sed semper in me manet.

in what sort of language, when the hour of his last sufferings was at hand, he wrote to Timothy. He saith: I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. (2 Tim. iii. 6.) Here he counteth his merits, whereon a crown was immediately to follow, just as grace had followed immediately on his demerits. Listen to what cometh next Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day. Unto whom would the Lord give a crown as a righteous Judge, if He had not first given grace, as a merciful Father And how would that crown be a crown of righteousness, if there had not first come grace which justifieth the ungodly How could a reward have been earned unless the power to earn had first been given unearned?

R. O Holy Apostle Paul, thou art a chosen vessel unto God, to preach the Gospel throughout the whole world * Through whom all nations have known the grace of God.

V. Pray for us to God Who hath chosen thee.

R. Through whom all nations have known the grace of God.

LESSON V

Let us now consider what were the merits of the Apostle Paul, which entitled him to look for a crown of righteousness from the Lord, the righteous Judge, and let us see whether these merits sprang from himself or were God's gifts to him. He saith I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. To begin with, these good works would have been nothing worth, unless they had come from good thoughts. Listen therefore to what this same Paul saith concerning good thoughts. He writeth to the Corinthians: Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything, as of ourselves but our sufficiency is of God. (2 Cor. iii. 5.) Now let us take point by point.

R. By the grace of God I am what I am. * And His grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain, but abideth ever in me.

- ✠. Qui operátus est Petro in apostolátum, operátus est et mihi inter gentes.
- ℟. Et grátia ejus in me vacua non fuit, sed semper in me manet.

LECTIO VI

Bonum, inquit, certámen certávi. Quæro qua virtúte certáverit, utrum quæ illi ex semetípso fúerit, an quæ désuper data sit? Sed absit ut tantus doctor ignoráverit legem Dei, cujus vox est in Deuteronomio: Ne dicas in corde tuo: Fortitúdo mea et poténtia manus meæ fecit mihi virtútem magnam hanc; sed memoráberis Dómini Dei tui, quia ipse tibi dat fortitúdinem fácere virtútem. Quid autem prodest bonum certámen, nisi sequátur victória? Et quis dat victóriam, nisi ille, de quo dicit ipse: Grátias Deo, qui dat nobis victóriam per Dóminum nostrum Jesum Christum?

LESSON VI

He saith: I have fought a good fight. I should like to know in whose strength he fought; in his own strength or in strength given him from above? God forbid that this great teacher should be supposed not to have known the Law of his God, Who saith in the Book of Deuteronomy: Say not in thine heart: My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth. But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is He That giveth thee power to get wealth. (viii. 17, 18.) And, again, what is the good of a fight except it end in victory? And who is he that giveth victory save He of Whom this very same Paul saith: Thanks be to God, Which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ! (1 Cor. xv. 57.)

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 10:16-22

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves. And so on.

*Homily by St. John Chrysostom, Patriarch of

It is as though He said Let not your heart be troubled although when I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves, I bid you be harmless as doves rium quoque præstare, et non permittere ut grave aliquid patiamini, nec lupis tamquam oves subiecti sitis, sed efficere ut leonibus terribiliores evadatis; tamen sic expedit fieri: hoc et vos quoque illustriores faciet, et meam declarabit virtutem. Sic enim postea dixit Paulo: Sufficit tibi gratia mea, nam virtus mea in infirmitate perficitur. Ipse igitur vos ut tales essetis feci.

R. Sancte Paule Apóstole, prædicátor veritátis et doctor gentium, * Intercede pro nobis ad Deum, qui te elégit, ut digni efficiámur grátia Dei.

V. Tu es vas electiónis, sancte Paule Apostole, prædicátor veritátis.

R. Intercede pro nobis ad Deum, qui te elégit, ut digni efficiámur grátia Dei.

LECTIO VIII

Sed inspicíamus quam prudéntiam éxigit: serpéntis certe. Nam, quemádmódum serpens totum seípsum tradit, nec mínimum curat si ipsum quoque corpus incídi necesse sit, dúmmodo caput suum íntegrum servet; eódem tu quoque modo, præter fidem cétera pérdere non cures, sive pecúnias, sive corpus, sive étiam vitam ipsam profúndere necesse sit. Fides enim caput est et radix; qua serváta, etiámsi ómnia perdas, ómnia tamen rursus majóre cum glória recuperábis. Idcirco nec simplices solum jussit esse, nec prudéntes solum; sed ambo hæc in unum míscuit, ut ea in virtútem convertántur.

R. Damasci, præpósitus gentis Aretæ regis voluit me comprehéndere: * Et a frátribus per murum demíssus sum in sporta, * Et sic evasi manus ejus in nómine Dómini.

V. Deus et Pater Dómini nostri Jesu Christi scit quia non mentior.

R. Et a frátribus per murum demissus sum in sporta.

for, albeit, if I would, I could now make things otherwise, and suffer not that ye should have to bear anything grievous, neither be at the mercy of the wolves as are other sheep, but on the contrary, could make you more dreadful to the lions than the lions to you nevertheless, thus must it needs be, and yourselves it will make more glorious, and My power it will wholly show forth. For thus was it that afterwards the Same Lord said unto Paul: My grace is sufficient for thee, for My strength is made perfect in weakness. (2 Cor. xii. 9.) It is I that have made you to be what ye are.

R. O Holy Apostle Paul, Preacher of the truth, and teacher of the Gentiles, * Pray for us to God, Who hath chosen thee, that we may be made worthy of the grace of God.

V. O Holy Apostle Paul, thou art a chosen vessel unto God, and a Preacher of the truth.

R. Pray for us to God Who hath chosen thee, that we may be made worthy of the grace of God.

LESSON VIII

But let us look what wisdom it is which the Lord requireth. It is the wisdom of the serpent. The serpent draweth all the rest of his body after his head, and it is no matter to him if his body be cut through, so long as he keepeth his head unharmed. Thus, O Christian, is it with thee. It is no matter to thee that for thy faith's sake thou shouldst lose all things else money, or body, or, if need be, life itself. thy faith is thy head, and the root of thy being hold fast to that, and, as long as thou hast that, although thou shouldst lose all things else, it will only be to receive them back again with interest an hundredfold. And thus it is that the Lord biddeth us, not to be single-hearted only, nor wise only, but both together, that therefrom we may be strong.

R. In Damascus the governor under Aretas the king was desirous to apprehend me * And by the brethren in a basket was I let down by the wall, and so escaped I his hands, in the name of the Lord.

V. The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ knoweth that I lie not.

R. And by the brethren in a basket was I let down by the wall.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Et sic evasi manus ejus in nómine Dómini.

LECTIO IX

Quod si rebus ipsis id ita fíeri vidére desíderas, lege Actuum Apostolorum librum; perspícies profécto, cum sæpe Judæorum pópulus in Apóstolos insurréxerit ac dentes excúerit, illos, colúmbæ simplicitátem imitándó et cum decénti modéstia respondéndo, iram ipsórum superásse, furórem exstinxísse, ímpetum retardásse. Nam, cum illi dicerent: Nonne præcipiéndó præcépimus vobis, ne docerétis in nómine isto? quamvis innúmera possent édere mirácula, nihil tamen áasperum neque dixerunt neque fecerunt; sed summa cum mansuetúdine respondéntes dicébant: Si justum est vos audíre magis quam Deum, judicáte. Perspexísti simplicitátem colúmbæ, vide nunc serpéntis prudéntiam: Non enim póssumus, ínquiunt, nos quæ vídimus et audívimus, non loqui.

Te Deum

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. And by the brethren in a basket was I let down by the wall.

LESSON IX

If thou wilt see how these words were brought to the proof in very deed, read the Book of the Acts of the Apostles. There thou wilt see how that oftentimes the Jewish people rose against the Apostles and gnashed on them with their teeth, but they, with dove-like guilelessness, gave them smooth answers, and turned away their wrath, and quenched their fury, and stopped their onset. When the Jews said Did not we straitly command you, that ye should not teach in this Name? although the Apostles could have worked any miracles they chose, yet they neither said nor did anything sharp, but answered them with all meekness Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye. (Acts v. 28 iv. 19.) Here thou hast the harmlessness of doves listen now to the wisdom of serpents We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard. (20.)

Pretiosissimi Sanguinis Domini Nostri Jesu Christi

Most Precious Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ

Duplex I classis

Lectio IX: de In Octava S. Joannis Baptiste (07-01t).

LECTIO I

De Epístola beáti Pauli Apóstoli ad Hebréos

Heb 9:11-15

Christus assístens pónitex futurórum bonórum, per ámplius et perféctius tabernáculum, non manufáctum, id est, non hujus creatiónis: neque per sánguinem hircórum aut vitulórum, sed per próprium sánguinem introívit semel in Sancta, æténa redemptióne invénta. Si enim sanguis hircórum et taurórum, et cinis vítulæ aspérsus inquinátos sanctíficat ad emundatióem carnis: quanto magis sanguis Christi, qui per Spíritum Sanctum semetípsum óbtulit immaculátum Deo, emundábit consciéntiam nostram ab opéribus mórtuis, ad serviéndum Deo vivénti? Et ídeo novi testaménti mediátor est: ut morte intercedénte, in redemptiόem eárum prævaricatiónum, quæ erant sub prióri testaménto, repromissiόem accípiant qui vocáti sunt æternæ hereditátis.

℟. Jesus, ut sanctificáret per suum sánguinem pópulum, extra portam passus est: * Exeámus ígitur ad eum extra castra, ímpropérium ejus portántes.

℣. Nondum enim usque ad sánguinem restitístis advérsus peccátum repugnántes.

Lesson IX: of Octave of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist (07-01t).

LESSON I

Lesson from the letter of St. Paul the Apostle to the Hebrews

Heb 9:11-15

But Christ, being come an high priest of the good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hand, that is, not of this creation: Neither by the blood of goats, or of calves, but by his own blood, entered once into the holies, having obtained eternal redemption. For if the blood of goats and of oxen, and the ashes of an heifer being sprinkled, sanctify such as are defiled, to the cleansing of the flesh: How much more shall the blood of Christ, who by the Holy Ghost offered himself unspotted unto God, cleanse our conscience from dead works, to serve the living God? And therefore he is the mediator of the new testament: that by means of his death, for the redemption of those transgressions, which were under the former testament, they that are called may receive the promise of eternal inheritance.

℟. Jesus also, that He might sanctify the people with His own Blood, suffered without the gate.
* Let us go forth therefore unto Him without the camp, bearing His reproach.

℣. Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin.

℟. Let us go forth therefore unto Him without the gate, bearing His reproach.

R. Exeámus ígitur ad eum extra castra, impropérium ejus portántes.

LECTIO II

Heb 9:16-22

Ubi enim testaméntum est, mors necesse est intercédát testatórís. Testaméntum enim in mórtuis confirmátum est: alióquin nondum valet, dum vivit qui testátus est. Unde nec primum quidem sine sángine dedicátum est. Lecto enim omni mandáto legis a Móyse unívsero pópulo, accípiens sánguinem vitulórum et hircórum cum aqua, et lana coccínea, et hyssópo, ipsum quoque librum, et omnem pópulum aspérsit, dicens: Hic sanguis testaménti, quod mandávit ad vos Deus. Etiam tabernáculum et ómnia vasa ministérii sángine simíliter aspérsit. Et ómnia pene in sángine secúndum legem mundántur: et sine ságuinis effusióne non fit remíssio.

R. Móyses sumptum sánguinem respérsit in pópulum: * Et ait: Hic est sanguis foéderis, quod pépigit Dóminus vobíscum.

Y. Fide celebrávit Pascha et ságuinis effusióne, ne qui vastábat primitíva, tángeret eos.

R. Et ait: Hic est sanguis foéderis, quod pépigit Dóminus vobíscum.

LECTIO III

Heb 10:19-24

Habéntes ítaque, fratres, fidúciam in intróitu sanctórum in sángine Christi, quam ini-tiávit nobis viam novam, et vivéntem per velámen, id est, carnem suam, et sacerdotem magnum super domum Dei: accedámus cum vero corde in plenitúdine fídei, aspér-si corda a consciéntia mala, et ablúti corpus aqua munda, teneámus spei nostræ confes-siónem indeclinábilem (fidélis enim est qui repromísit), et considerémus invicem in pro-vocatióne caritátis, et bonórum óperum.

LESSON II

Heb 9:16-22

For where there is a testament, the death of the testator must of necessity come in. For a testament is of force, after men are dead: otherwise it is as yet of no strength, whilst the testator liveth. Whereupon neither was the first indeed dedicated without blood. For when every commandment of the law had been read by Moses to all the people, he took the blood of calves and goats, with water, and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book itself and all the people, Saying: This is the blood of the testament, which God hath enjoined unto you. The tabernacle also and all the vessels of the ministry, in like manner, he sprinkled with blood. And almost all things, according to the law, are cleansed with blood: and without shedding of blood there is no remission.

R. Moses took the blood, and sprinkled all the people; * Saying: This is the blood of the Testament which God hath enjoined unto you.

Y. Through faith he kept the Passover, and the sprinkling of blood, lest he that destroyed the first-born should touch them.

R. Saying: This is the blood of the Testament which God hath enjoined unto you.

LESSON III

Heb 10:19-24

Having therefore, brethren, a confidence in the entering into the holies by the blood of Christ; A new and living way which he hath dedicated for us through the veil, that is to say, his flesh, And a high priest over the house of God: Let us draw near with a true heart in fulness of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with clean water. Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering (for he is faithful that hath promised), And let us consider one another, to provoke unto charity and to good works:

R. Vos, qui aliquándo erátis longe, facti estis prope in ságuine Christi: * Ipse enim est pax nostra, qui fecit útraque unum.

Y. Complácuit per eum reconciliáre ómnia in ipsum, pacíficans per sánguinem crucis ejus, sive quæ in cælis sunt.

R. Ipse enim est pax nostra, qui fecit útraque unum.

Y. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Ipse enim est pax nostra, qui fecit útraque unum.

LECTIO IV

Sermo sancti Joánnis Chrysóstomi

Homilia ad Neophytos

Vis ságuinis Christi audíre virtútem? Re-deámus ad ejus exéplum, et priórem typum recordémur, et prístinam Scriptúram narrémus. In Ægýpto, nocte média, Ægýptiis Deus plagam décimam minabátur, ut eórum primogénita deperírent, quia primogénitum ejus pópulum detinébant. Sed, ne amáta plebs Judæórum una cum illis periclitaretur, quia unus locus continébat univérsos, remédiu[m] discretiónis invéntum est. Proínde exéplum mirábile, ut discas in veritáte virtútem. Ira divínæ indignatiónis operabátur, et domos singulas mórtifer circuibat. Quid ígitur Móyses? Occídite, inquit, agnum annículum, et ságuine ejus liníte jánuas. Quid ais, Móyses? Sanguis ovis ratió-nálem hóminem liberáre consuévít? Valde, inquit; non eo quod sanguis est, sed quia Domínici ságuinis per eum demonstrátur exéplum.

R. Ye, who sometimes were far off, are made nigh by the Blood of Christ. * For He is our Peace, Who hath made both one.

Y. It pleased [the Father that in Him should all fulness dwell, and,] having made peace through the Blood of His Cross, by Him to reconcile all things unto Himself, [by Him, I say,] whether they be things in earth or things in heaven.

R. For He is our Peace, Who hath made both one.

Y. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. For He is our Peace, Who hath made both one.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom,
Archbishop of Constantinople
Homily 84 in John, cap. 19*

Wouldest thou hear the power of the Blood of Christ? Then let us look at the figure thereof, let us call to mind the old type, and tell the story written in the ancient Scriptures. The Egyptians would not let God take away Israel His firstborn, And Moses said: Thus saith the Lord: About midnight will I go out into the midst of Egypt, and all the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from the first-born of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne unto the first-born of the maid-servant that is behind the mill, and all the first-born of beasts. And there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there was none like it, nor shall be like it any more. But against any of the children of Israel shall not a dog move his tongue, against man or beast that ye may know how that the Lord hath put a difference between the Egyptians and Israel. (Ex. xi. 4-7.) Then Moses called for all the elders of Israel, and said unto them: Draw out and take you a lamb according to your families and kill the Passover. And ye shall take a bunch of hyssop and dip it in the blood that is in the basin, and strike the lintel and the two side-posts with the blood. and when He seeth the blood upon the lintel and on the two side-posts, the Lord will pass over the door, and will not suffer the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you. (xii. 21-23.) And could the blood of a sheep save a man Yea, in good sooth not because it was blood, but because it represented in a figure the Blood of the Lord.

R. In timóre incolátus vestri témpore conversámini * Sciéntes quod non corruptibílibus auro vel argénto redémpti estis.

Ÿ. Sed pretiósó sáanguine quasi agni immaculáti Christi.

R. Sciéntes quod non corruptibílibus auro vel argénto redémpti estis.

LECTIO V

Nam, sicut regnántium státuæ, quæ sine causa sunt et sermóne, nonnúmquam ad se confugiéntibus homínibus, ánima et ratióne decorátis, subveníre consuevérunt, non quia sunt ære confectæ, sed quia rétinent imáginem principálem; ita et sanguis ille, qui irratiónalis fuit, ánimas habéntes hómines librávit, non quia sanguis fuit, sed quia hujus sáanguinis ostendébat advéntum. Et tunc Angelus ille vastátor, cum linítos postes atque áditus pervidéret, transjécit gressus et non est ausus intráre. Nunc ergo si víderit inimícus, non póstibus impósitum sáanguinem typi, sed fidélium ore lucéntem sáanguinem veritátis Christi, templi póstibus dedicátum, multo magis se súbtrahet. Si enim Angelus cessit exémplo, quanto magis terrébitur inimícus, si ipsam perspéxerit veritátem? Vis et áliam hujus sáanguinis scrutári virtútem? Volo. Unde primum occúrrit, inspicias, et de quo fonte manávit. De ipsa primum cruce procéssit; latus illud Domínicum iníitium fuit. Latus miles apérui, et templi sancti parietem patefécit; et ego thesáurum præclárum invéni, et fulgéntes divítias me grátulor reperire.

R. Pass the time of your sojourning here in fear, forasmuch as: * Ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold

Ÿ. But with the Precious Blood of Christ, as of a lamb without spot.

R. Ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold.

LESSON V

The statues of monarchs, mindless and speechless images though they be, have sometimes been an helpful refuge to men endowed with soul and reason, not because they are works of the brazier's skill, but because the likeness they bear is a King's. And just so did this unconscious blood deliver the lives of men, not because it was blood, but because it foreshadowed the shedding of the Blood of Jesus. On that night in Egypt, when the destroying Angel saw the blood upon the lintel and on the two side-posts, he passed over the door, and came not in unto the house. Even so now much more will the destroyer of souls flee away when he seeth, not the lintel and the two side-posts sprinkled with the blood of a lamb, but the mouth of the faithful Christian, the living dwelling of the Holy Ghost, shining with the blood of the True Messiah. If the Angel let the type be, how shall not the enemy quail before the Reality? Wouldest thou hear more of the power of that Blood I am willing. Consider from what source it wellet, from what fountain it springeth. Its fountain is the Heart of the Lord, pierced for us upon the Cross. Then came the soldiers, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with Him but when they came to Jesus, and saw that He was dead already, they brake not His Legs, but one of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water, (John xix, 32-34,) whereof One is a figure of Baptism, and the other of the Sacrament (of the Altar.) One of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side and the veil of the Temple of His Body was rent in twain. (John ii. 19-21, Matth. xxvii. 51.) O how glorious is the treasure that is laid open to me therein! How noble the riches that it is my joy there to have found!

R. Empti estis pretio magno: * Glorificáte et portáte Deum in corpore vestro.

V. Pretio empti estis: nolíte fieri servi hóminum.

R. Glorificáte et portáte Deum in corpore vestro.

LECTIO VI

Sic et de illo agno factum est: Judái ovem occiderunt, et ego fructum de sacraménto cognóvi. De látere sanguis et aqua. Nolo tam fáciie, audítor, tránseas tanti secréta mystérii; restat enim mihi mystica atque secretális orátio. Dixi baptísmatis sýmbolum et mysteriórurum, aquam illam et sánguinem demonstráre. Ex his enim sancta fundáta est Ecclésiá per lavácri regeneratiónem, et renovatiónem Spíritus Sancti. Per baptísma, inquam, et mystéria, quæ ex látere vidéntur esse proláta. Ex látere igitur suo Christus ædificávit Ecclésiám, sicut de látere Adam ejus conjux Heva proláta est. Nam hac de causa Paulus quoque testátur dicens: De corpore ejus et de óssibus ejus sumus; latus vidélicet illud significans. Nam, sicut de illo látere Deus fecit féminam procreári, sic et de suo látere Christus aquam nobis et sánguinem dedit, unde repararétur Ecclésiá.

Recurrénte autem anno ab humáni géneris redemptione undevicies centenário, quem ad tam ineffábie benefícium recoléndum solémni præ ómnibus sacro Jubiláio summus Póntifex Pius undécimus celebrátum vóluit; ut pretiósí sánguinis quo redéempti sumus, Agni Immaculáti Christi uberióres dimanárent in hómines fructus, ejúsque memóriá fidélibus, vívidius commendarétur, idem summus Póntifex Pretiosíssimi Sanguinis Dómini nostri Jesu Christi festum, quotánnis ab univérsa Ecclésiá peragéndum, ad ritum dúplicem primæ classis evéxit.

R. Comméndat caritatém suam Deus in nobis: * Quóniam cum adhuc peccatóres

R. Ye are bought with a great price, therefore: * Glorify God and bear Him in your body.

V. Ye are bought with a price; be not ye the servants of men.

R. Glorify God and bear Him in your body.

LESSON VI

And so was it done concerning that Lamb: the Jews killed a sheep, and I have learned the value of the sacrament. From the Side flowed forth Blood and Water. I would not, O my hearer, that thou shouldest pass by the depths of such a mystery as this without pausing; for I have yet a mystic and mysterious discourse to deliver. I have said that the Water and Blood shewed forth symbolically baptism and the sacraments. For from these, holy Church was founded by the laver of regeneration, and the renovation of the Holy Ghost. Through baptism, I say, and through the sacraments, which seem to have issued from his Side. It was therefore out of the Side of Christ that the Church was created, just as it was out of the side of Adam that Eve was raised up to be his bride. This is the reason why Paul saith, no doubt in allusion to his Side: We are members of his Body, and of his bones. For even as God made the woman Eve out of the rib which he had taken out of the side of Adam, so hath Christ made the Church out of the Blood and Water which he made to flow for us out of his own Side. -On the occasion of the nineteenth centenary of the accomplishment of the redemption of mankind, as a fitting celebration of this ineffable blessing, Pope Pius XI decreed an extraordinary Jubilee. During that year the Supreme Pontiff, wishing that the fruits of the Precious Blood of Christ, the Lamb without spot, might redound more abundantly upon mankind and that the minds of the faithful be impressed with more vivid recollections of this same Blood as the price of their redemption, elevated the Feast of the Most Precious Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ to the rank of a double of the first class, to be celebrated as such every year by the universal Church.

R. God commendeth His love toward us: * In that, while we were yet sinners, in due time Christ died for us.

essémus, secúndum tempus Christus pro nobis mórtuus est.

Joannes 19:30-35

In illo témpore: Cum accepisset Jesus acétum, dixit: Consummátum est. Et, incliná-

Homília sancti Augustíni Epísco-pi

Tractatus 120 in Joannem

Vigilánti verbo Evangelísta usus est, ut non diceret: Latus ejus percússit, aut vulnerávit, aut quid áliud, sed Apéruit; ut illic quodámmodo vitæ óstium panderétur, unde sacraménta Ecclésiæ manavérunt, sine quibus ad vitam, quæ vera vita est, non intráitur. Ille sanguis qui fusus est, in remissionem fusus est peccatórum. Aqua illa salutáre témporat póculum; hæc et lavácrum præstat et potum. Hoc prænuntiábat quod Noë in látere arcæ óstium fácere jussus est, quo intrárent animália quæ non erant dilúvio peritúra, quibus præfigurabátur Ecclésia. Propter hoc prima múl-ier facta est de látere viri dormiéntis, et appelláta est vita matérque vivórum. Magnus quippe significávit bonum, ante magnus prævaricationis malum. Hic secúndus Adam, inclináto cápite, in cruce dormívit, ut inde formarétur ei conjux, quæ de látere dormiéntis efflúxit. O mors, unde mórtui revivísunt! Quid isto sángine mún-dius? Quid vólnere isto salúbrius?

✠. Much more then being now justified by His Blood, we shall be saved from wrath through Him.

℞. In that, while we were yet sinners, in due time Christ died for us.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. In that, while we were yet sinners, in due time Christ died for us.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 19:30-35

At that time: When Jesus had received the vinegar, He said: It is finished. And He bowed His Head, and gave up the ghost. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo

120th Tract on John

One of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water. The Evangelist speaketh carefully. He saith not that he smote the Side, nor yet that he wounded It, nor yet anything else, but pierced It, to fling wide the entrance unto life, whence flow the Sacraments of the Church, those Sacraments without which there is no entrance unto the life which is life indeed. That Blood which was shed there was shed for the remission of sins, that Water is the water that mantleth in the cup of salvation. Therein are we washed, and thereof do we drink. Of this was it a type when it was said unto Noah: The door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof and of every living thing of all flesh shalt thou bring into the ark to keep them alive. (Gen. vi. 16, 19.) A figure this of the Church. Thus was it that the first woman was made from the side of her husband while he slept, and she was called (Eve, which is, being interpreted,) Life, because she was the mother of all living. (Gen. iii. 20.) This name set forth a great good, before it became associated with the bitter fruit of a great evil. And here we have the Second Adam bowing His Head, and the deep sleep of death falling upon Him upon the Cross, and He sleepeth, that the Lord God may take a thing

LECTIO VIII

Enarrat. in Psalm. 95, n. 5

Tenebántur hómines captívi sub diábolo, et dæmónibus serviébant; sed redempti sunt a captivitate. Véndere enim se potuérunt, sed redímere non potuérunt. Venit Redemptor, et dedit pretium; fudit sanguinem suum, et emit orbem terrárum. Quæritis quid émerit? Vidéte quid déderit, et inveniétis quid émerit. Sanguis Christi pretium est. Tanti quid valet? quid, nisi totus orbis? quid, nisi omnes gentes? Valde ingrátí sunt pretio suo, aut multum supérbi sunt, qui dicunt, aut illud tam parum esse ut solos Afros émerit, aut se tam magnos esse pro quibus solis illud sit datum. Non ergo exsúltent, non supérbiant. Pro toto dedit, quantum dedit.

- R. This is He That came by Water and Blood, even Jesus Christ; * Not by Water only, but by Water and Blood.
- Ÿ. In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for uncleanness.
- R. Not by Water only, but by Water and Blood.

LESSON VIII

Enarr. in Psalm 95, n. 5

Then were being held bondsmen to the devil, slaves to evil spirits. But they have been redeemed from that bondage. They had been able to sell themselves, but they were not able to redeem themselves. A Redeemer came and paid the price for them. He shed His Blood, and at that cost bought the world. Ye ask what He bought? Look what He paid, and ye shall see what He bought. Christ's Blood was the price. What is His Blood worth? What, but the whole world? What, but all men? They are very unthankful for His redemption, or very proud, who say that It is only precious enough to buy the Africans, or that they themselves are so precious that It was shed only for them. Let there be an end to such conceit, an end to such vainglory. What He paid, He paid for all.

- R. God hath predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ; * In Whom we have redemption through His Blood.
- Ÿ. The forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace, wherein He hath abounded toward us.
- R. In Whom we have redemption through His Blood.
- Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

LESSON IX

Sermon 31, alias 344

Hábuit ille sanguínem, unde nos redímeret; et ad hoc accépit sanguínem, ut esset quem pro nobis rediméndis effúnderet. Sanguis Dómini tui, si vis, datus est pro te; si nolúeris esse, non est datus pro te. Forte enim dicis: Hábuit sanguínem Deus meus, quo me redímeret, sed jam, cum passus est, totum dedit; quid illi remánsit, quod det et pro me? Hoc est magnum, quia semel dedit, et pro ómnibus dedit. Sanguis Christi volénti est salus, nolénti supplicium. Quid ergo dúbitas, qui mori non vis, a secúnda pótius morte liberá-ri? Qua liberáris, si vis tollere crucem tuam, et sequi Dóminum; quia ille tulit suam, et quæsvit servum.

Tè Deum

That Blood was his own, and thereby he redeemed us. Yea, it was to this end that he took Flesh and Blood, namely that he might shed his Blood in order to redeem us. If thou wilt accept it, the Blood of thy Lord was given for thee. If thou wilt not accept it, it was not given for thee. For perchance thou sayest: My God had Blood, with which he redeemed me, but now since he hath suffered, he hath given it all; what hath remained to him, that he may also give any of it for me? This is a great thing, because he gave once, and he gave for all. The Blood of Christ is salvation to him that doth accept it, punishment to him that doth not accept it. Why therefore dost thou hesitate to be set free from the second death, thou who dost not wish to die? By this thou art set free, if thou art willing to take up thy Cross, and follow the Lord; for he took up his Cross and sought his servant.

Commemoratio: In Octava S. Joannis Baptistæ

Homilia 3. in Nativ. S. Joannis Bapt.

Sermo sancti Maximi Episcopi.

Festivitatem præsentis diei, fratres carissimi, venerandi Joannis Baptistæ genuina nati-vitas consecravit: qui idcirco in hoc sæculum superna dispensatione directus est, ut non solum ipse prophetali sublimaretur gloria, sed ut et omnium étiam per eum prophetarum præconia firmarentur. Nec immerito illum præcipuo honore nunc veneramur, qui speciali quadam gratia, ob hoc Redemptorem mundi novissimus prophetavit, ut ostenderet eum primus. Hic enim solus est prophetarum, qui Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum, quem alii in longa tempora futurum præscierunt, propriis oculis videre meruit, et annuntiare præsentem.

LESSON IV

Commemoration of: Octave of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist 3rd for the Birth-day of St. John the Baptist

From the Sermons of St. Maximus, Bishop of Turin

Dearly beloved brethren, the feast which we this day keep hath been hallowed by the true Birth of the worshipful Baptist, John. He was a man whom God was pleased to send into this world, not only that he himself might fill the glorious office of a Prophet, but also that by him the words of all the other Prophets might be established. That we should give him, as we now do, the chiefest honour among them all, is right for he had poured upon him this special blessing, that, being the last who prophesied in the world the coming of Him Who came to redeem the world, he was the first who, when He came, pointed to Him as already come. The other Prophets, at the distance of ages, knew that our Lord Jesus Christ was to come Hic est ille, quem, inspirante Deo, præscius annuntiat Isaias, dicens: Vox clamantis in deserto, Parate viam Domini. Quam congrue fratres carissimi beatus Joannes prædicatus est vox, qui cælestis Verbi et præco mittebatur, et testis. Hic est ille, cujus per Angelum Gabrielem prænuntiatur nativitas, et nomen, et meritum. Hic est, qui iudicio cælestis sententiæ cunctis mortalibus antefertur, dicente Domino: Non surrexit inter natos mulierum major Joanne Baptista. Quam pulchre dictum est, inter natos mulierum non esse majorem: quia ille omnimodis major erat Joanne, qui de Virgine nascebatur.

Quibus perspectis, advertite dilectissimi, quantam huic reverentiam, quantum devotionis debeamus impendere: qui ut honorabilis sit, a sancto est Spiritu prophetatus, promissus ab Angelo, laudatus a Domino, et perpetua sanctæ mortis gloria consecratus. Decebat namque, ut mysticam nativitatem ejus mirabilis vita sequeretur, et sanctam perfectamque vitam mors Deo devota concluderet. Propter quod, fratres, rectissime toto hodie orbe, Christi Ecclesia primordia nativitatis ejus lætissima festivitate concelebrat, qui æterna mortalibus adesse gaudia, stupenti mundo testis fidelissimus revelavit.

Tē Deum

the Prophet John alone was worthy to see Him with his very eyes, and to proclaim Him actually present.

This is he concerning whom the seer Isaiah, by the inspiration of God, said: The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness Prepare ye the way of the Lord. ~(xl. 3.) How meetly, dearly beloved brethren, is this blessed John called a voice he who was sent to be at once the herald and the witness of the Word from heaven This is he whose birth, whose name, and whose work were foretold by the angel Gabriel. This is he who in the sight of heavenly knowledge is more honourable than any other man, as hath been declared by the Lord Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist. ~(Matth. xi. 11.) How beautifully is it said, born of women since He Who was infinitely greater than John was born of a Virgin

In sight of these things, consider, dearly beloved brethren, in how great worship, in how great love ye are behoven to hold him, who is thus honourable, that he hath been foretold by the Holy Ghost, promised by an Angel, extolled by the Lord Himself, and hallowed by the everlasting glory of an holy death. His birth, surrounded with wonders, is the meet beginning of a wondrous life, that holy, sinless life the meet fore-runner of a death which was a gift to God. It is but just then, my brethren, that the Church of Christ should on this day with keen joy keep throughout the whole world the Feast of his Birth, even his, who arose a right faithful witness to tell a wondering world that a life of eternal gladness was lying open to the choice of dying creatures.

LECTIO I

De Canticis canticorum

Lesson IX: of Ss. Processus et Martinian, Martyrs (07-02cc).

LESSON I

From the Song of Songs

Cant 2:1-7

Ego flos campi et lilium convallium. Sicut lilium inter spinas, sic amica mea inter filias. Sicut malus inter ligna silvarum, sic dilectus meus inter filios. Sub umbra illius quem desideraveram sedi, et fructus ejus dulcis gutturi meo. Introduxit me in cellam vinariam, ordinavit in me caritatem. Fulcite me floribus, stipate me malis, quia amore langueo. Læva ejus sub capite meo, et dextera illius amplexabitur me. Adjuro vos, filiæ Jerusalem, per capreas cervosque camporum, ne suscitétis neque evigilare faciátis dilectam, quoadúsque ipsa velit.

℟. Surge, própera, amica mea, formósa mea, et veni: jam enim hiems tránsiit, imber ábiit et recéssit: * Vox túrturis audíta est in terra nostra.

℣. Intrávit Mariá in domum Zachariæ et salutávit Elisabeth.

℟. Vox túrturis audíta est in terra nostra.

LECTIO IICant 2:8-13

Vox dilecti mei: ecce iste venit saliens in montibus, transiliens colles. Similis est dilectus meus caprea hinnulóque cervorum. En ipse stat post parietem nostrum respiciens per fenestras, prospiciens per cancellos. En dilectus meus loquitur mihi: Surge, própera, amica mea, columba mea, formósa mea, et veni. Jam enim hiems tránsiit, imber ábiit et recéssit, flores apparuerunt in terra nostra, tempus putationis advénit, vox túrturis audíta est in terra nostra, ficus protulit grossos suos, vineæ floréntes dedérunt odórem suum.

℟. Quæ est ista quæ procéssit sicut sol, et formósa tamquam Jerúsalem? * Vidérunt eam filiæ Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et reginæ laudavérunt eam.

℣. Et sicut dies verni circúmdabant eam flores rosárum et lília convállium.

Song 2:1-7

I am the flower of the field, and the lily of the valleys. As the lily among thorns, so is my love among the daughters. As the apple tree among the trees of the woods, so is my beloved among the sons. I sat down under his shadow, whom I desired: and his fruit was sweet to my palate. He brought me into the cellar of wine, he set in order charity in me. Stay me up with flowers, compass me about with apples: because I languish with love. His left hand is under my head, and his right hand shall embrace me. I adjure you, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the roes, and the harts of the fields, that you stir not up, nor make the beloved to awake, till she please ℟. Rise up, make haste, my love my fair one and come away; For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone. * The voice of the turtle-dove is heard in our land.

℣. Mary entered into the house of Zacharias and saluted Elizabeth.

℟. The voice of the turtle-dove is heard in our land.

LESSON IISong 2:8-13

The voice of my beloved, behold he cometh leaping upon the mountains, skipping over the hills. My beloved is like a roe, or a young hart. Behold he standeth behind our wall, looking through the windows, looking through the lattices. Behold my beloved speaketh to me: Arise, make haste, my love, my dove, my beautiful one, and come. For winter is now past, the rain is over and gone. The flowers have appeared in our land, the time of pruning is come: the voice of the turtle is heard in our land: The fig tree hath put forth her green figs: the vines in flower yield their sweet smell.

℟. Who is this that cometh up like the sun? This, comely as Jerusalem? * The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed: the queens also, and they praised her.

℣. And about her it was as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

R. Vidérunt eam filia Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et reginæ laudavérunt eam.

LESSON III

Song 2:13-17

Arise, my love, my beautiful one, and come: My dove in the clefts of the rock, in the hollow places of the wall, show me thy face, let thy voice sound in my ears: for thy voice is sweet, and thy face comely. Catch us the little foxes that destroy the vines: for our vineyard hath flourished. My beloved to me, and I to him who feedeth among the lilies, Till the day break, and the shadows retire. Return: be like, my beloved, to a roe, or to a young hart upon the mountains of Bether.

R. Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost and she spake out with a loud voice, and said: Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the Fruit of thy womb; * And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

V. For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

R. And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom,
Patriarch of Constantinople
In Metaphrast. July*

As soon as our Redeemer was come among us, He went with haste, while as yet He was in His mother's womb, to visit His friend John. And John, in the one womb, becoming conscious of the Presence of Jesus in the other womb, dashed himself impatiently against the narrow walls of his natural prison, as though crying out: I see the very Lord who hath given nature her bounds, and I wait not for the due season of my birth. There is no need for me to linger here till nine months are ended, for He That is Eternal is with me! I will break out of my dark cell; I will proclaim my full knowledge of many wonders. I am the sign. I will show that the Christ is here. I am the trumpet; let me peal forth the news that the Son of God is come in the flesh. Let me give my trumpet-note, let me bless my father's tongue, and make it to speak again. Let me give my trumpet-note, let me quicken my mother's womb.

LECTIO VI

- ℣. He rejoiceth as a giant to run his course, his going-forth is from the end of the heavens.
- ℟. My beloved is like a gazelle or a young roe-buck!

LESSON V

Thou seest, O beloved, how new and how strange a mystery is here! John is not born, but by leaping he speaketh; he is yet unseen, and he giveth warning; he is not yet able to cry, but by his acts he is heard. He draweth not yet the breath of life, but he preacheth God. he seeth not yet the light, but he maketh known the Sun! He is not come out of the womb, but he hasteth to play the Fore-runner in the Presence of the Lord. He cannot restrain himself; he rebelleth against the bounds set by nature, and struggleth to break out of the prison of the belly. His longing is to herald the coming Saviour. He saith, as it were: Behold, the Deliverer cometh and am I to remain still bound to abide here? The Word cometh, that He may set right all things and am I still to tarry in prison? I will go forth. I will run before Him, and cry aloud to all men: "Behold the Lamb of God Which taketh away the sin of the world."

- ℟. Rejoice with me, rejoice with me, all ye that love the Lord, for, while I was yet a little one, I pleased the Most High, * And I have brought forth from my bowels God and man.
- ℣. All generations shall call me blessed, for God hath regarded the low estate of His hand-maiden.
- ℟. And I have brought forth from my bowels God and man.

LESSON VI

Contuéndum est, quia supérior venit ad infériorem, ut inférior adjuvétur: María ad Elísabeth, Christus ad Joánnem. Dénique étiam póstea, ut sanctificáret baptísmum Joánnis, Dóminus venit ad baptísmum. Cito quoque advéntus Maríæ et præséntiæ divínæ benefici declarántur. Vide distinctiónem singu-

But do thou tell us, O John, how it came to pass that while thou wast still in the darkness of thy mother's womb, thou didst see and hear? How didst thou behold the things of God? How didst thou leap and bound for joy? Great, saith John, is the mystery of that which taketh place here, far from the understanding of men are these doings. It is meet that I should do a new thing in nature for the sake of Him Who is making new things which are beyond nature. I see in the womb, because I see the Sun of righteousness in a womb. I hear, because I am coming as the herald of the Great Word. I cry out, because I espy the Only-begotten Son of the Father clad in Flesh. I bound for joy, because I see that He by Whom all things were made, hath taken upon Him the form of a servant. I leap, because I think of the Redeemer of the world being made Flesh. I run before His coming, and herald His approach unto you with this, as it were, my confession.

℟. Blessed art thou that hast believed, for there shall be a performance of those things which were told thee from the Lord. And Mary said: * My soul doth magnify the Lord.

℣. Come, hear, and I will declare what God hath done for my soul.

℟. My soul doth magnify the Lord.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. My soul doth magnify the Lord.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 1:39-47

And Mary arose in those days and went into the hill-country with haste, into a city of Judah. And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elizabeth. And so on.

Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan

Bk. ii Comm. on Luke i

We must here consider that the greater cometh unto the lesser, Mary unto Elizabeth, Christ unto John. And again afterwards, to hallow the baptism of John, the Lord came unto him to be baptized. It was soon that the blessings of the coming of Mary and of the Presence of God were made manifest. Have regard here to the distinction made, and to the special weight of every word. Elizabeth was the first to hear the voice of Mary's salutation, but John was the first to receive grace. She heard naturally, but he leaped mystically. She hailed the coming of Mary, he that of the Lord, Mary and Elizabeth spake words full of grace, but Jesus and John worked, and commenced their mystery of godliness from their mothers' beginnings, and so by twin miracles the mothers prophesied from the spirit of their unborn offspring. The babe leaped, and the mother was filled with the Holy Ghost. The mother was not filled before the son, but when the son was filled with the Holy Ghost, he filled his mother also.

R. All generations shall call me blessed. * For He great things; and Holy is His Name.

Ÿ. And his mercy is on them that fear Him, from

LESSON VIII

And whence is this to me, that the Mother of my Lord should come to me? That is to say, How cometh it to pass that so great a good should befall me, as that the Mother of my Lord should come to me I feel the miracle, I acknowledge the mystery: the Mother of my Lord, pregnant with the Word, is full of God. And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own house. It is meet to record how Mary showed this kindness, and abode this mystic number of months.

R. O Holy Virgin Mary, happy indeed art thou, and right worthy of all praise * For out of thee

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: Ss. Processus et Martinian, Martyrs

At what time Peter and Paul were kept in the Mamertine Prison, at the foot of the Tarpeian Rock, two of the gaolers, named Processus and Martinian, along with other forty, were moved by the preaching and miracles of the Apostles to believe in Christ, and were baptized in a spring which suddenly brake forth out of the rock. These men let the Apostles depart if they willed it. But Paulinus, Prefect of the soldiers, when he heard what was come to pass, strove to turn away Processus and Martinian from their purpose. And when he found that he but wasted time, he ordered their faces to be bruised and their teeth to be broken, with stones. Moreover, when he had had them led to the image of Jupiter, and they still boldly answered that they would not worship the gods, he caused them to be tormented on the rack, and white-hot plates of metal to be put to their flesh, and that they should be beaten with sticks. While they were suffering all these things they were heard to say only this one word Blessed be the Name of the Lord. They were afterwards cast into prison, and in a little while they were taken outside the city, and slain with the axe, upon the Aurelian Way. The Lady Lucina buried their bodies upon her own farm, upon the 2nd day of July, but they were afterwards brought into the City, and are buried in the Church of the Prince of the Apostles.

LECTIO IV

Leo secúndus, Póntifex máximus, Sículus, húmánis et divínis lítteris Græce et Latíne doctus, músicis étiam eruditus fuit; ipse enim sacros Hymnos et Psalmos in Ecclésia ad concéntum melióre redúxit. Probávit acta sextæ Synodi, quæ Constantinópoli celebráta est, præsidéntibus legátis apostólicæ Sedis, præsénté quoque Constantíno imperatóre, et duobus patriárchis, Constantinopolitáno et Antiochéno, ac centum septuagínta epíscopis; quam et in Latínium tránstulit.

℞. Invéni David servum meum, óleo sancto meo unxi eum: * Manus enim mea auxiliábitur ei.

℣. Nihil profíciet inimícus in eo, et fílius iniquitátis non nocébit ei.

℞. Manus enim mea auxiliábitur ei.

LECTIO V

In eo concílio Cyrus, Sergius et Pyrrhus condemnáti sunt, unam tantúmmodo voluntátem et operatióem in Christo prædicántes. Hic fregit supérbiam antístitum Ravennátum, qui, exarchórum freti poténtia, Sedi apostólicæ non obtemperábant. Quam ob rem decrevit ut eléctio cleri Ravennátis írrita esset, nisi Románi Pontíficis auctoritáte comprobarétur.

℞. Pósui adjutórium super poténtem, et exaltávi eléctum de plebe mea: * Manus enim mea auxiliábitur ei.

℣. Invéni David servum meum, óleo sancto meo unxi eum.

LESSON IV

Leo II was a Sicilian. He was learned in sacred and worldly letters in the Greek and Latin tongues, and was moreover an excellent musician. He re-arranged and improved the music of the sacred hymns and Psalms used in the Church. He approved the acts of, the sixth general Council, which was held at Constantinople, under the Presidency of the Legates of the Apostolic See, in the presence of the Emperor Constantine (the Bearded,) the Patriarchs of Constantinople and Antioch, and one hundred and seventy Bishops. Leo also translated the decrees of the Council from Greek into Latin.

℞. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him * For My hand shall help him.

℣. The enemy shall prevail nothing against him, nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

℞. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON V

It was in this Council that Cyrus, Sergius, and Pyrrhus were condemned for teaching that there is in Christ only one Will and one Working. Leo broke the pride of the Archbishops of Ravenna, who had puffed themselves up under the power of the Exarchs to set at naught the power of the Apostolic See. Wherefore he decreed that the elections of the clergy of Ravenna should be nothing worth, until they had been confirmed by the authority of the Bishop of Rome.

℞. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him.

℣. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

R. Manus enim mea auxiliábitur ei.

LECTIO VI

Vere pater páuperum fuit; non enim pecúnia solum, sed opera, labóre et consiliis, egéntium viduárum et pupillórum inópiam ac solitúdinem sublevábat. Ordinatióne una, mense Junio, creávit presbýteros novem, diáconos tres, episcopos divérsis in locis viginti tres.

LESSON VI

He was a very father to the poor. Not by money only, but by his work, his labours, and his advice he relieved the poverty and loneliness of widows and orphans. He was leading all to live holy and godly lives, not by mere preaching, but by his own life, when he fell asleep in the Lord, having sat as Pope nine months and twenty-seven days. He was buried in the Church of St. Peter upon the 28th day of June. In the month of June he held one ordination whereat he ordained nine Priests, three Deacons, and twenty-three Bishops for diverse places.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Leo II, Pope and Confessor

Leo II, Supreme Pontiff, a Sicilian, was learned in sacred and profane letters in Greek and Latin, and was moreover an excellent musician; for he reduced to better harmony the sacred hymns and psalms used in the Church. It was at this Council that Cyrus, Sergius, and Pyrrhus were condemned, for teaching that there is in Christ only one will and one operation. 1st for the Birth-day of SS. Peter and Paul

From the Sermons of Pope St. Leo the Great

Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His Saints and no cruelty can trample out that Religion which was founded in the mysterious Sacrifice of the Cross of Christ. Under persecution the Church waneth not, but waxeth. And the Lord's field is ever clothed with a nobler harvest, when the grains of His wheat abide not alone, but fall into the ground, and die, and bring forth fruit manifold, (John xii. 24.) What an increase hath sprung up from these two glorious grains of God's seed, is witnessed by the thousands of blessed martyrs who have rivalled the triumph of the Apostles, who gird this our city with their red and world famous armies, and have set upon her head a crown of many kingly jewels.

Up their united succour, dearly beloved brethren, which hath been given unto us by God as an example of patience and a confirmation of faith, will be the cause of our joy on the days of the commemoration of all the Saints, but amid all their glory, doth excel in glory the glory of their spiritual fathers, whom the grace of God exalted to such a pitch of eminence among all the members of the Church, that they seem as it were the two eyes of that body whereof Christ is the Head. The worthy deed and loyal courage of either of them are such as to baffle all power of man's speech worthily to express the same, nor need we draw any distinction between them. In their election they were peers, in their work fellows, and in their end equals.

But, as our own experience hath taught us, and that of our forefathers hath proved, we believe and trust that, amid all the toils whereby in this life we strive towards the obtaining of God's mercy, we shall ever be holpen by the prayers of these our special Patrons, and that when our own sins thrust us down, the good deeds of the Apostles may pull us up. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, Who, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, hath but one power, as He hath one Divine nature, for ever and ever. Amen.

De Expositione sancti Joannis Chrysostomi in Epistolam ad Romanos

Sermo 32 in morali exhortat

Cum Paulus Apóstolus grátiam Dómini nostri Jesu Christi, matrem ómnium bonórum, nobis precétur; réliquum est, ut nos tali patrocinio dignos exhibeamus, ut non hic solum vocem Pauli audiámus, sed et postquam illuc migravérimus, athletam Christi vidére mereamur. Illic Paulum vidébimus cum Petro Sanctórum chori príncipem ac ducem, et ejus germana caritate fruemur.

℟. Vidi conjúctos viros, habéntes spléndidas vestes, et Ángelus Dómini locútus est ad me, dicens: * Isti sunt viri sancti facti amíci Dei.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

From the Exposition of the Epistle of St. Paul to the Romans, written by St. John Chrysostom, Patriarch of Constantinople

Serm. xxxii. in the Moral Exhortations

Apostle Paul wisheth unto us the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, as the mother of all good, and it remaineth for us to show ourselves worthy of the care of such a Protector, that we may not only listen to Paul's voice, while we are here, but when we pass away to the hereafter, may earn a sight of that great soldier of Christ. Yea if we listen to him here, we shall see him there. Not nigh, but from afar off, shall we see him see him standing near the glory of that Kingly throne where the Cherubim glorify God, where the Seraphim are flying, there shall we see Paul along with Peter, a prince and a leader of the army of the saints, and we shall rejoice in his brotherly love.

℟. I saw men standing together, clad in shining raiment, and the Angel of the Lord spoke unto me, saying: * These men are holy, for they are the friends of God.

✠. Vidi Ángelum Dei fortem, volántem per médium cælum, voce magna clamántem et dicéntem.

℟. Isti sunt viri sancti facti amíci Dei.

LECTIO V

Si enim, cum hic esset, usque adeo diligebat hómines, ut, cum dissolvi et cum Christo esse cúperet, elegerit tamen hic esse; multo magis illic ferventiórem caritátem osténdet. Ego et Romam proptérea diligo, tametsi aliunde illam laudare queam, nempe a magnitúdine, ab antiquitáte, a pulchritúdine, a multitudíne, ab imperio, a divítiis, et a rebus in bello fortiter gestis. Sed, his ómnibus omissis, ob id illam beátam prædico, quod erga illos Paulus, dum viveret, adeo fuit benévolutus, adeo illos amávit, et coram disseruit, et postremo vitam apud eos finívit. Cujus sanctum corpus ipsi póssident. Et proptérea civitas illa hinc facta est insígnis magis quam ab aliis rebus ómnibus; et tamquam corpus magnum ac validum duos habet óculos fulgéntes, Sanctórum videlicet horum corpora.

℟. Beáti estis, cum maledíxerint vobis hómines, et persecúti vos fúerint, et díxerint omne malum advérsus vos, mentíentes, propter me: * Gaudéte et exsultáte, quóniam merces vestra copiósá est in cælis.

℟. Gaudéte et exsultáte, quóniam merces vestra copiósá est in cælis.

LECTIO VI

Non ita cælum splendéscit quando radios sol demittit, quemádmódum Romanórum urbs duos istos fulgóres ubíque terrárum emíttens. Hinc rapiétur Paulus, hinc Petrus. Considerate et horrete, quale spectaculum visura sit Roma; Paulum videlicet, repénite ex theca illa cum Petro resurgéntem, in occúrsum Dómini sursum ferri. Qualem rosam

✠. I saw a strong Angel of God fly into the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice:

℟. These men are holy, for they are the friends of God.

LESSON V

For if, while he was yet here, he so loved men, that, although he would fain have been dissolved and been with Christ, yet he was willing still to tarry for man's sake, much greater is the tender love which he now sheweth. This is why I love Rome, although if I would, there are many other things for which I might praise her her greatness, her antiquity, her beauty, her population, her empire, her wealth, or her victories. But all these I pass by, and I call Rome blessed for this cause, that Paul in his lifetime loved her children so well, was so kindly toward them, taught openly there, and at length laid down his life among them. They have there his holy body, and this alone maketh that city illustrious more than doth aught else. And just as a great and strong body hath two bright eyes, so are the bodies of these two Holy Apostles in the city of Rome.

℟. Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake; * Rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven.

✠. When men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of Man's sake.

℟. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven.

LESSON VI

Not brighter is the sky when the sun doth make it all light with his beams, than is the city of Rome darting forth these twin rays of light to the uttermost bounds of the earth. There it is that Paul, there it is that Peter, will rise, and be caught up to meet the Lord in the air. (Thess. iv. 16.) Think, and thrill at the thought, of what Rome will see then, when she beholdeth Paul and Peter rising suddenly out of that coffin, to be caught up to

Duo sunt órdenes electórum in iudício futúri: unus iudicántium cum Dómino, de quibus hoc loco mémorat, qui reliquérent ómnia, et secúti sunt illum: alius iudicándorum a Dómino, qui non quidem ómnia sua páriter reliquérent, sed de his tamen quæ ha-meet the Lord. What rose will Rome offer to Christ? What twin crowns are they wherewith that city is adorned withal? What fresh springs hath she in her? Therefore it is that I marvel at that city, not because of the abundance of her gold, not because of her pillars, not because of any other loveliness that she hath, but because of these two pillars of the Church. Would that I could even now embrace the corpse of Paul that I could cling to his grave that I could see the dust of that body, which filled up those things that were behind of the sufferings of Christ (Col. i. 24,) which bore about in it the marks of the Lord Jesus (Gal. vi. 17,) and which went everywhere carrying the seed of the Gospel.

℣. These are they which have conquered, and are become the friends of God, who recked not of the commandments of princes, and earned the everlasting reward. * And now have they crowns on their heads, and palms in their hands.

℣. These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb.

℣. And now have they crowns on their heads, and palms in their hands.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 19:27-29

At that time: Peter said unto Jesus: Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed Thee: what shall we have therefore? And so on.

Homily by the Venerable Bede, Priest (at Jarrow and Doctor of the Church).

Ÿ. In omnem terram exívit sonus eórum, et in fines orbis terræ verba eórum.

R. Cálicem Dómini bibérunt, et amíci Dei facti sunt.

LECTIO VIII

Sed et reprobórum duos ibi futúros órdenes Dómino narránte comperímus: unum eórum, qui fidei christiánæ mystériis initiáti, ópera fidei exercére contémnunt, quibus in iudício testátur: Discédite a me maledícti in ignem aetérnum, qui præparátus est diabolo, et ángelis ejus: esurívi enim, et non dedístis mihi manducáre. Alterum eórum, qui fidem et mystéria Christi vel numquam suscepére, vel suscepítam per apostasíam deseruére: de quibus dicit: Qui autem non credit, jam iudicatus est: quia non credit in nómine unigéniti Fílii Dei.

R. Isti sunt viri sancti, quos elégit Dóminus in caritaté non ficta, et dedit illis glóriam sempitérnam: * Quorum doctrína fulget Ecclesiá, ut sole luna.

poor of Christ: these shall be the subjects of judgment, and these are they who shall then hear these words: "Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was an hungered, and ye gave Me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave Me drink." (Matth. xxv. 34, 35.)

R. These are they who while yet they lived in the flesh, planted the Church in their own blood; * They drank of the Lord's cup, and became the friends of God.

Ÿ. Their sound is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.

R. They drank of the Lord's cup, and became the friends of God.

LESSON VIII

Of the reprobate also we gather, from the words of the Lord, that there will be two classes. One class are they who, being made partakers in the mystery of Christian faith, have neglected to show their faith by their works: these are they to whom it will be said at the judgment: "Depart from Me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels: for I was an-hungered, and ye gave Me no meat." The other class are they who either have never received the faith and mysteries of Christ, or who, having received, have apostatised, and abandoned it: and touching these it is said: "But he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only-begotten Son of God." (John iii. 18.)

R. These men are saints, whom the Lord hath chosen in love unfeigned, and hath given them glory everlasting. These are they * By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

Ÿ. The saints through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness.

R. By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

LECTIO IX

Verum his cum timóre et pavóre debito paulisper commemorátis, ad lætíssima pótius Dómini et Salvatóris nostri promíssa convertámus audítum. Videámus quæ tantæ grátia pietátis: non ætérnae tantúmmodo vitæ præmia suis sequácibus, sed et præsentis múnera pollicétur exímia. Et omnis, inquit, qui relíquerit domum, vel fratres, aut soróres, aut patrem, aut matrem, aut uxórem, aut fílios, aut agros, propter nomen meum, céntuplum accípiet, et vitam ætérnam possidébit. Qui enim terrénis afféctibus sive possessionibus pro Christi discipulátu renuntiáverit, quo plus in ejus amórem profécerit, eo plures invéniet, qui se intérno suscípere afféctu, et suis gaudeant sustentáre stantíis.

Te Deum

R. By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

LESSON IX

And now that we have touched for a moment, with fear and just dread, upon these things, let us rather turn our hearing to the right joyful promises of our Lord and Saviour. Let us look what His so great, beautiful, and fatherly love will give to such as follow Him; not the reward of life everlasting only, but gifts exceeding precious in this life also. "Every one," saith He, that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for My Name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life." For every one that shall forsake earthly affections and goods, to go and be Christ's disciple, the further he goeth on in Christ's love, the more shall he find who will rejoice to give him a place in their hearts, and to minister to him of their substance.

Anthony Mary Zaccaria was born (in 1502) of a noble family, at Cremona, on the Pau. Even in his childhood marks of his future holiness became manifest. There shone brightly in him, signs of excellent graces of childlike love toward God and the Blessed Virgin, and more especially of tenderness toward the poor, for the relief of whose needs he was ready more than once to strip off his own costly dress. He studied arts at his own home, philosophy at Ticino, and medicine at Padua, and as he excelled all others in goodness, so did he surpass all his companions in intellectual power. After taking his degree he returned home, and there understood from God that his call was to the healing of souls, rather than to that of bodies. He therefore began earnestly to study theology while he continued in the meantime to visit the sick, to teach Christian doctrine to children, to excite godliness among the young, and oftentimes even to exhort the aged to amend their ways. It is said that when he first said Mass after his ordination a light broke from heaven, and he seemed to the astonished bystanders to be surrounded by a circle of angels: from that time forth he laboured more earnestly for the salvation of souls, and the struggle against evil living. His fatherly love for strangers, for the needy, and for the afflicted, and the godly exhortations and alms wherewith he entertained them, made his house to become a refuge for the wretched, and earned for himself from his fellow-citizens the title of father of the fatherland and of angels.

R. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.

Ÿ. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

R. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

While he was at Milan he bethought him that greater Christian good might be done if he gathered round him some fellow-labourers in the Lord's vineyard, and when he had conferred thereon with those noble and holy men Bartholomew Ferrari and James Morigia, he founded the brotherhood of Clerks Regulars, to whom on account of his own great love for the Apostle of the Gentiles he gave the name of Clerks of St. Paul. Under the approbation of the Supreme Pontiff Clement VII. and the confirmation of Paul III. this brotherhood was in a short time widely spread abroad. The Congregation of nuns who are called Angelicals also regard Anthony Mary as their Father and Founder. His own thought of himself was so lowly that he never would be at the head of his own Order. In great long-suffering he bore with patience the violent storms which were raised against his Institute. In the greatness of his charity he never ceased to enkindle the members of religious orders to love toward God, to exhort priests to live Apostolic

LECTIO VI

Illud etiam memorandum, quod, in Jesum crucifixum amore flagrans, crucis mysterium ab omnibus, ad statum æris campani indicium, sexta quaque feria sub vespas, recolendum curavit. Sanctissimum Christi nomen in suis scriptis passim usurpabat et in ore semper habebat; ejusdemque cruciatus, vere Pauli discipulus, in corpore suo præ se ferebat. In sacram Eucharistiam singulari caritate ferebatur; cujus et frequenter percipiendæ consuetudinem instauravit, et morem e sublimi throno publice in triduum adorandæ invexisse perhibetur. Pudicitiam adeo coluit, ut etiam in exsangu corpore, reviviscere visus, ejus amorem testaretur. Accessere cælestia dona extasis, lacrimarum, futurorum eventuum cognitionis, scrutationis cordium, virtutis in humani generis hostem. Tandem, magnis laboribus ubique exantlatis, Guastallæ quo pacis sequester accitus fuerat, gravi morbo correptus est. Cremonam adductus, inter suorum fletus et complexus piissimæ matris, quam proxime obituram prædixit, superna Apostolorum visione recreatus, sodalitatibus suæ incrementa prænuntians, tertio Nonas Julii anno millesimo quingentesimo trigesimo nono, sanctissime obiit, annos natus sex supra triginta. Cultum tanto viro, ob eximiam ejus sanctitatem et signorum copiam a christiano populo statim exhibitum, Leo decimus tertius Pontifex maximus ratum habuit et confirmavit; eundemque an-lives, and to found guilds of married men, to the bringing forth of much fruit. Somewhiles he and his disciples would walk through the streets and squares with a Cross carried before them, and there by burning and vehement harangues call to salvation the wandering and the wicked.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

V. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

It is to be remembered that in his burning love for Jesus Crucified he reminded all men of the Mystery of the Cross by the sound of a bell every Friday evening, and himself as a true disciple of Paul always bore about in his body the dying of the Lord Jesus, (2 Cor. iv. 10.) The holy Name of Christ is found everywhere in his writings and was ever in his mouth. He was moved by a singular love toward the Holy Eucharist. He established a custom of receiving it often, and is said to have brought in the practice of exposing the same upon a lofty throne for three days' adoration. Of his earnest modesty the appearance of life which was seen even in his dead body seemed a witness. Together with all these things he possessed the gifts of trance, of tears, of knowledge of things to come, of reading the thoughts of the heart, and of power against the enemy of mankind. He was worn out with toil when he was seized with his last illness at Guastalla, whither he had been called as a peacemaker. He was carried to Cremona amid the tears of his brethren and the embraces of his devoted mother, whose imminent death he foretold. He was comforted by a vision of the Apostles above, and predicted the increase of his Brotherhood. On the 11th day of July, in the year 1539, he died a holy death at the age of thirty-six. Christians forthwith began to honour him for his eminent sanctity and the number of his signs and wonders, which honour the Supreme Pontiff Leo XIII. approved and confirmed, and on the Feast of the Lord's Ascension in the year 1897 solemnly enrolled his name among those of the Saints.

Lectio sancti Evangelii secundum Marcum

Marc 10:15-21

In illo tempore: Dixit Jesus discipulis suis: Quisquis non receperit regnum Dei velut parvulus, non intrabit in illud. Et reliqua.

Homilia sancti Augustini Episcopi

Sermo 47 de diversis

Durum videtur et grave quod Dominus imperavit, ut, si quis eum vult sequi abneget seipsum; sed non est durum nec grave quod ille imperat, qui adjuvat ut fiat quod imperat. Nam illud verum est quod ei dicitur in Psalmo: Propter verba labiorum tuorum ego custodivi vias duras. Quidquid enim durum est in præceptis, ut sis lene, caritas facit. Novimus quanta ipse amor facit. Quid autem est, Neget se? Non præsumat de se, sentiat se hominem, et respiciat dictum propheticum: Maledictus omnis qui spem suam ponit in homine: subducatur se sibi sed non deorsum versus: subducatur se sibi, ut hæreat Deo.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ps. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ps. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Mark

Mark 10:15-21

At that time: Jesus said unto His Disciples: Whosoever shall not receive the Kingdom of God as a little child: he shall not enter therein. And He took them up in His arms, put His hands upon them, and blessed them. And when He was gone forth into the way, there came one running, and kneeled to Him, and asked Him. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo)

Sermon 47: various

That which the Lord commandeth hard and heavy seemeth: (Come, take up the Cross, and follow Me; and as it is written elsewhere,) If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me. (Matth. xvi, 24) But neither hard nor heavy is that which He commandeth when He that commandeth giveth help to fulfil. That is true which is said in Ps. xvi. 5, By the words of Thy lips I have kept me to strait paths. That which is hard in the commandment love maketh easy. How great is the power of love, we know. And what signifieth this, let him deny? Let him put no trust in himself, let him feel that he is man, and let him have regard unto that which was spoken of the prophet, (Jer. xvii, 5) saying, Cursed be the man that trusteth in men. Let him mistrust himself, but not to sink; let him mistrust himself, that he may cleave unto God.

R. Iste est qui ante Deum magnas virtutes operatus est, et de omni corde suo laudavit Dóminum: * Ipse intercédât pro peccatis ómnium populórum.

Ÿ. Ecce homo sine queréla, verus Dei cultor, ábstinens se ab omni ópere malo, et permanens in innocentia sua.

R. Ipse intercédât pro peccatis ómnium populórum.

LECTIO VIII

Quo sequendus est Dóminus? Quo iit, novimus; resurrexit enim et ascéndit in cælum: illo sequendus est. Plane desperándum non est, quia ipse promísit, non quia homo aliquid potest. Jam quare desperémus, si membra illús cápitis sumus? Bonum est illo eum sequi; sed vidéndum est, qua. Etenim verba ista Dóminus Jesus non tunc dicebat quando a mórtuis jam resurrexerat; nondum erat passus, venturus erat ad crucem, venturus ad exhonoriatiónem, ad contumelias, ad flagélla, ad spinas, ad vulnera, ad insultatiónes, oppróbria, mortem. Quasi exasperáta est via: pígrum te facis, non vis sequi: Séquere. Nam quis non velit ire ad exaltatiónem? omnes delectat celsitudo, sed humilitas gradus est.

R. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucérnæ ardéntes in má nibus vestris: * Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

Ÿ. Vigiláte ergo, quia nescítis qua hora Dóminus vester ventúrus sit.

R. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

Ÿ. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

R. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Whither are we to follow the Lord? Whither He is gone, we know. He is risen from the dead, and is gone up into heaven. Thither we must follow Him. And we must not despair of so doing, not because man is able to do anything, but because He is faithful That promised. (Heb. xi, n.) Why, then, should we despair, since we are members of His Body, of His Flesh, and of His Bones, Who is the Head of the Church, and He is the Saviour of the body, (Eph. xxx, 23) Good is it to follow Him, but whither we are to follow Him we must see. When the Lord Jesus uttered those words bidding us to follow Him, He had not Himself as yet arisen from the dead, He had not as yet suffered, there lay still before Him the cross, shame, mockery, scourging, thorns, wounds, outrages, insults, death. After He uttered those words, His way became very rough. Art thou slothful? wilt thou not to follow Him, but follow Him all the same, for who would not follow unto glory?. All men love exaltation, but lowliness is the step to rise withal.

R. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

Ÿ. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LECTIO IX

Tolle crucem tuam, et séquere Dóminum. Crux enim nostra, quam Dóminus portari a nobis jubet, ut eum expeditíssimi sequamur, quid aliud quam mortalitátem carnis hujus significat? Ipsa enim nos cruciat, donec absorbeátur mors in victoriam. Crux ergo hæc ipsa crucifigenda est, et transfigenda est clavís timoris Dei, ne solutis et liberis membris reluctántem portare non possis; sequi enim Dóminum, nisi eam portans, omnino non vales. Nam quómodo eum sequéris, si non es ejus? Qui autem Jesu Christi sunt, ait Apóstolus, carnem suam crucifixérunt cum passiónibus et desidériis.

Sacræ Eucharístiæ cultor assíduus, públicam sanctíssimi Sacraménti expositiónem mirífice promóvit. Cæléstibus donis a Deo ditátus, magnisque labóribus opprèssus, gravem morbum cum nactus esset, Cremónæ, tértio nonas júlii, anno millésimo quingentésimo trigésimo nono, sanctissime obiit. Leo Papa décimus tértius cultum ei exhíbítum, ratum hábuit et confirmávit, eúmque Sanctórum catálogo adscrípsit.

LESSON IX

Take up thy cross, and follow the Lord, and the cross that the Lord commandeth us to carry after Him, that we may follow Him most speedfully, what is it but the death of this flesh? For it is this flesh that crucifieth us until death is swallowed up in victory, (1 Cor. xv, 55) Therefore must this our own cross itself be crucified and pierced with the nails of the fear of God, lest if it be free it hamper thee, in the carrying of it, and thou canst nowise follow the Lord save in carrying it. For how canst thou follow Him if thou be none of His. And they that are Christ's, saith the Apostle, have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts, (Gal. v, 24)

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Anthony Mary Zaccaria, Confessor

Born at Cremona of a noble family, Anthony Mary Zacharias even from his boyhood shone by his virtuous character and his mercy to the poor. During his education in the humanities, philosophy and medicine, he excelled his companions both in holiness of life and in keenness of mind. At a sign from God, he zealously cultivated the sacred sciences. After his ordination, the zeal of his priestly life soon earned for him the titles of Father and Angel of his country, bestowed on him by his fellow-citizens. At Milan, with the holy men Bartholomew Ferrári and James Morigia, he founded the Society of Clerks Regular named after St. Paul, and the society of nuns called the Angelicals. He was zealous in adoration of the Holy Eucharist and strongly promoted the public exposition of the most holy Sacrament. Enriched by God with heavenly gifts and worn out by his great labours, he contracted a serious illness, and he died a most holy death on the 5th day of July, 1539, at Cremona. Leo XIII approved and confirmed the cult already paid to him and enrolled him in the list of the Saints.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. John Chrysostom,
Patriarch of Constantinople
In the Metaphrastes*

The blessed Apostles, who have toiled so much for us, what thanks shall we give you When I remember thee, O Peter, I am lost in amazement Paul, when I think of thee, my heart overwhelmeth me, and I weep. When I look at your sufferings I know not what to say or what to speak. How many prisons have ye made holy How many fetters have ye made honourable? How many torments have ye endured How many reproaches have ye borne How have ye carried Christ How have ye made the Churches glad by your preaching? Verily, your tongues were blessed instruments it was for the Church's sake that your limbs were bloody. Ye have been made in all things followers of Christ. Your sound is gone out through all the earth, and your words to the ends of the world. (Ps. xviii. 4.)

R. I saw men standing together, clad in shining raiment, and the Angel of the Lord spoke unto me, saying: * These men are holy, for they are the friends of God.

✠. Vidi Ángelum Dei fortem, volántem per médium cælum, voce magna clamántem et dicéntem.

℟. Isti sunt viri sancti facti amíci Dei.

LECTIO V

Beáti clavi, qui sancta illa membra penetrarunt. Tu cum omni fiducia in manus Dómini ánimam tradidísti, qui assidue ei et ejus sponsæ Ecclesiæ servísti, qui fervénti spíritu Dóminum dilexísti, ómnium Apostolórum fidelíssimus.

℟. Beáti estis, cum maledíxerint vobis hómines, et persecúti vos fúerint, et díxerint omne malum advérsus vos, mentientes, propter me: * Gaudéte et exsultáte, quóniam merces vestra copiósa est in cælis.

Rejoice, O Peter, who hast been gladdened by the wood of the Cross of. Christ., It was. a showing forth of thy Teacher that thou didst will to be crucified, not like the Lord Christ, standing upright, but with thine head toward the earth, as one that made a way from earth to heaven. Blessed are the nails which pierced thine holy, limbs. With sure and certain hope didst thou commend thy spirit into the hands of the Lord, thou who hadst been a faithful servant to Him and to His Bride the Church, thou who in thy warm heart hadst loved the Lord more loyally than all the Apostles.

℟. Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake; * Rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven.

✠. When men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of Man's sake.

LESSON VI

Rejoice thou also, O blessed Paul, whose head was cut off by the sword, thou whose fearless devotion no words can express. What sword was that which divided thine holy neck, that instrument of the Lord's work, worthy that heaven should wonder at it, and earth worship it What place was that which drank in thy blood, that appeared like drops of milk upon the raiment of him who smote thee, and made the savage and his comrades to become strangely gentle and faithful Would that I could have that sword for a crown, and the nails of Peter set therein as the jewels of the diadem.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 14:22-23

At that time Jesus constrained His disciples to get into a ship, and to go before Him unto the other side, while He sent the multitudes away. And so on.

*Homily by St. Jerome, Priest at Bethlehem
Bk. ii, Comm. on Matth. xiv*

The Lord commanded His disciples to cross over to the other side, and constrained them to get into a ship. By these expressions we perceive that they were unwilling to leave the Lord, the love of their Teacher making them desire not to lose a moment of His company. And when He had sent the multitudes away, He went up into a mountain apart to pray. Perchance, if Peter, and James, and John, who had seen Him in the glory of the Transfiguration, had been with Him, they would have gone up into the mountain with Him, but the common herd could not follow Him, save when He taught them on the sea shore, or fed them in the wilderness.

℞. These are they who while yet they lived in the flesh, planted the Church in their own blood; * They drank of the Lord's cup, and became the friends of God.

✠. Their sound is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.

LESSON VIII

He went up into a mountain apart to pray, not as He Who, with five loaves and two fishes, had satisfied about five thousand men, besides women and children, but as He, Who when He heard of the death of John, departed into a desert place apart (vv. 12-21.) Not that we make two Persons in the Lord but some of His works He did as God, and some as man. But the ship was now in the midst of the sea, tossed with waves. The Apostles were right to be slow and unwilling to leave the Lord, for, when He was not with them, they were in peril of shipwreck.

R. These men are saints, whom the Lord hath chosen in love unfeigned, and hath given them glory everlasting. These are they * By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

V. The saints through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness.

R. By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

LESSON IX

Thilst the Lord abode alone upon the top of the mountain, a contrary wind arose, and the sea raged, and the Apostles were endangered and yet the threatening shipwreck held off until Jesus came. And in the fourth watch of the night, Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea. The watches of soldiers are divided into three. When therefore it is said that the Lord came unto them in the fourth watch, it appeareth that they had been in peril all night, and that it was at the end of the night, as it will again be at the end of the world, that He came to the rescue of His disciples.

Cyrillus et Methodius fratres germani, Thessalonica amplissimo loco nati, Constantinopolim mature concesserunt, ut in ipsa urbe Orientis principe humanitatis artes addiscerent. Uterque plurimum brevi profecerunt; sed maxime Cyrillus, qui tantam scientiarum laudem adeptus est, ut singularis honoris causa Philosophus appellaretur. Deinde monachum agere Methodius coepit; Cyrillus autem dignus est habitus, cui Theodora imperatrix, auctore Ignatio patriarcha, negotium daret erudiendi ad fidem christianam Chazaros, trans Chersonesum incolentes, quos, praeceptis suis edoctos et Dei numine instinctos, multiplice superstitione deleta, ad Jesum Christum adjunxit. Recenti Christianorum communitate optime constituta, Constantinopolim rediit alacer, atque in monasterium Polychronis, quo se jam Methodius receperat, Cyrillus ipse secessit. Interim cum res trans Chersonesum prospere gestas ad Rastillam Moraviae principem fama detulisset, is de aliquot operariis evangelicis Constantinopoli accersendis cum imperatore Michael tertio egit. Igitur Cyrillus et Methodius illi expeditioni destinati, et in Moraviam celebri laetitia excepti, animos christianis institutionibus tanta vi tamque operosa industria excolendos aggrediuntur, ut non longo intervallo ea gens nomen Jesu Christo libentissime dederit. Ad eam rem non parum scientia valuit dictionis Slavonicae, quam Cyrillus ante perciperat, multumque potuerunt sacrae utriusque Testamenti litterae, quas proprio populi sermone reddiderat; nam Cyrillus et Methodius principes inveniendi fuerunt ipsas litteras, quibus est

The brethren Cyril and Methodius were born in an honourable position at Thessalonica. As they advanced in years they went to Constantinople to study letters in the capital of the Eastern world. Both made quick progress, but most chiefly Cyril, who gained such learning that he was called for excellency the Philosopher. Methodius became a monk, but the Empress Theodora, on the recommendation of the Patriarch Ignatius, deemed Cyril worthy of receiving the task of teaching Christianity to the Khazar who dwelt beyond the Crimea. By the grace of God he so taught them that they laid aside their many superstitions and were joined to Jesus Christ. After properly establishing the new community of Christians Cyril hastened back to Constantinople, where he entered the monastery of Polychron, whither Methodius had already withdrawn himself. Rastilaw, Prince of Moravia, having heard tell of the good deeds beyond the Crimea, sent to Constantinople to the Emperor Michael III to obtain some Gospel labourers. Cyril and Methodius were sent to him, and gladly received in Moravia, and applied themselves with such power and industry to the work of Christianising souls that it was not long before that nation also joyfully submitted to Jesus Christ. To this end Cyril found of great use the knowledge of the Slavonic language, which he had already acquired, and much effect was produced by the translation of holy Scripture which he made into the language of the people. Cyril and Methodius were the inventors of the alphabet in which the language of the Slavs is characteristically expressed, and for this reason they have been not unjustly termed the fathers of Slavonic literature.

LESSON V

Then the happy tidings of what they had done reached Rome, the Supreme Pontiff the holy Nicholas I. commanded these excellent brethren to come to Rome. When they started for Rome they brought with them the relics of the supreme Pon-tiff the holy Clement I which Cyril had discovered at Cherson. On hearing of their approach Adrian II, who had succeeded to the Papacy upon the death of Nicholas, went forth to meet them accompanied by the clergy and people with every sign of honour. Then Cyril and Methodius gave to the Supreme Pontiff in the presence of the clergy an account of the Apostolic office which they had discharged in so holy and toilsome a manner. When it was made blame to them by some enviers that they had used the Slavonic language for the purposes of public worship, they stated their reasons with such clearness and force that the Pontiff and clergy praised and approved them. When they had both taken an oath that they would remain in the faith of blessed Peter and of the Roman Pontiffs, they were consecrated bishops by Adrian, but it was the Will of God that Cyril, old in grace rather than in years, should close his life at Rome. His dead body received a public funeral, and was laid in the tomb which Adrian had built for himself, but it was afterwards brought to St. Clement's and buried hard by the ashes of that martyr. As it was carried through the city with joyful psalm-singing, it seemed as though the procession were rather that of a triumph than that of a funeral, and that the Roman people were offering heavenly honour to some eminent saint. Methodius went back to Moravia, and there became from his whole soul a pattern to his flock, and from day to day more zealous in the service of Catholicism. He confirmed

LESSON VI

Methodius was again accused before John VIII, the successor of Adrian, of unsoundness in faith, and transgression of the traditions of the elders he was summoned to Rome, and there easily proved, in the presence of John and of some Bishops and clergy of the city, that he had himself always firmly held the Catholic faith, and had carefully taught it to others, and that as regarded the use of the Slavonic language for public worship, he had acted lawfully from certain reasons, and the permission of Pope Adrian, and in nowise contrary to holy writ. The Pontiff therefore in this matter concurred with Methodius, and confirmed even in writing his archiepiscopal authority and his mission among the Slavs. Methodius therefore went back to Moravia and resumed more earnestly than before the task committed to him, for the which also he cheerfully suffered exile. He converted the Prince of the Bohemians and his wife, and spread the Christian name far and wide among that people. He carried the light of the Gospel into Poland, and according to some writers, after establishing the see of Leopold, went into Muscovy properly so called and established the see of Kieff. At the last he returned into Moravia, and when he felt that he was about to go the way of all flesh he named his own successor, exhorted the clergy and people for the last time to good living, and then calmly departed that life which had been to him a path to heaven. As Rome had honoured Cyril in his death, so did Moravia honour Methodius. The festival of these Saints, which had long been observed among the Slav nations, the Supreme Pontiff Leo

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 10:1-9

At that time, the Lord appointed other seventy-two also, and sent them two and two before His face into every city and place, whither He Himself would come. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory (the Great.)

17th Homily on the Gospels

Dearly beloved brethren, our Lord and Saviour doth sometimes admonish us by words, and sometimes by works. Yea, His very works do themselves teach us for that which He doth silently His example still moveth us to copy. Behold how He sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two since there are two commandments to love, that is, a commandment to love God, and a commandment to love our neighbour and where there are not two, the one, being alone, hath not whereon to do the Lord's commandment. And no man can properly be said to love himself: for love tendeth outward toward our neighbour, if it be the love whereto the Gospel doth oblige us.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him He clothed him with a robe of glory * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LECTIO VIII

Ecce enim binos ad prædicandum discipulos Dóminus mittit: quátenus hoc nobis táctus innuat, quia qui caritátem erga álterum non habet, prædicatiónis officium suscipere nullátenus debet. Bene autem dicitur, quia misit eos ante fáciem suam in omnem civitátem et locum, quo erat ipse ventúrus. Prædicatóres enim suos Dóminus séquitur: quia prædicatio prævenit, et tunc ad mentis nostræ habitáculum Dóminus venit, quando verba exhortatiónis præcurrunt: atque per hoc veritas in mente suscipitur.

- ℞. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucérnæ ardéntes in mánibus vestris: * Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis.
- ψ. Vigiláte ergo, quia nescítis qua hora Dóminus vester ventúrus sit.
- ℞. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis.
- ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℞. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a nuptiis.

LECTIO IX

Hinc namque eisdem prædicatóribus Isaías dicit: Paráte viam Dómini, rectas fácite sémitas Dei nostri. Hinc fíliis Psalmísta ait: Iter fácite ei, qui ascéndit super occásum. Super occásum namque Dóminus ascéndit: quia unde in passióne occúbuit, inde majórem suam glóriam resurgéndo manifestávit. Super occásum videlicet ascéndit; quia mortem quam pértulit, resurgéndo calcávit. Ei ergo qui ascéndit super occásum, iter fáci-mus, cum nos ejus glóriam vestris méntibus prædicámus, ut eas et ipse post véniens, per amóris sui præséntiam illústret.

Te Deum

LESSON VIII

Behold, the Lord sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two and thus doing, He doth silently teach us that whosoever loveth not his neighbour, such a one it behoveth not to take upon him the office of a preacher. Well also is it said that He sent them before His face into every city and place whither He Himself would come. The Lord followeth His preachers first cometh preaching, and then the Lord Himself cometh to the house of our mind, whither the word of exhortation hath come before and so cometh the truth into our mind.

- ℞. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- ψ. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
- ℞. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- ℞. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

Therefore, to preachers saith Isaiah: "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight an highway for our God." (xl. 3.) And again the Psalmist saith: "Spread a path before him that rideth upon the West." (lxvii. 4.) The Lord rideth upon the West above that from which in death He veiled His glory, hath He royally exalted that glory that excelleth, even the glory of His rising again. He rideth upon the West, Who, being risen again from the dead, is throned high above the death to which He bowed. Before Him, therefore, That rideth upon the West, we spread a path, when we set forth His glory before the eyes of your mind, to the end that He Himself may come after, and Himself enlighten the same your minds by His presence and His love.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: Sts. Cyril and Methodius, Bishops and Confessors

Cyril and Methodius were brothers, born of a distinguished family in Thessalonica. The Emperor Michael III sent them into Moravia, where in a short time they brought the nation to the faith of Christ. When a favourable report of what they had done was brought to Rome, Pope St. Nicholas I ordered the brothers to come there. At Rome they were consecrated bishops by Adrian, Nicholas's successor. A short time later, however, Cyril died a most holy death in Rome, and Methodius went back to Moravia and increased his efforts on behalf of Catholicism. Moreover, he confirmed the Bohemians, the Pannonians, the Bulgarians and the Dalmatians in the Christian faith, and worked hard to bring the Corinthians to the worship of the one true God. He also brought the light of the Gospel to Poland and, as some writers say, founded the bishopric of Lemberg. Then he went to Muscovy properly so called and established the pontifical see of Kiev. At length he came back to Moravia, exhorted the clergy and people to virtue with his last words, and died peacefully. The feast day of Cyril and Methodius, already celebrated by the Slavic peoples, was extended to the universal Church by Leo XIII.

As soon as ever she was born, her destiny of being a peacemaker between kings and kingdoms began to appear, for the joy of her birth put an end to the ruinous quarrels of her father and grandfather. As she grew up, her father, delighted with her disposition, was used to foretell that his Elizabeth would in herself excel all the daughters of the kingly house of Aragon, and that the happiness of his own home and kingdom was all owing to this one damsel, whose heavenly life he venerated for her indifference to bodily finery, her abstinence from pleasures, her many fasts, her instancy in prayer to God, and her activity in doing works of charity. As a wife, she gave herself up as much to the education of her children, as to her own improvement, striving in all ways, next to God, to please her husband. For nearly half the year, she was used to live on bread and water, and once, when she was ill, God changed the water into wine, which the physicians had ordered her to drink, but which she was unwilling to take. Once when she kissed a disgusting ulcer in a poor woman, it was immediately healed. One winter-time when she was giving some money to the poor, and was fain her husband should not see her alms, the coins changed into roses. She gave sight to a maiden who had been born blind, and healed many other persons of grievous sicknesses by the Sign of the Cross. The miracles of this kind, which she worked, were many. She not only built, but richly endowed convents, schools, and churches. She had a wonderful skill in making peace between kings, and toiled un-

LESSON VI

King Denis died (on the 6th day of January, 1325,) and Elizabeth, who in her maidenhood had been a pattern to virgins, and in her married life to wives, now, in her loneliness, was an example to widows. Clad in the raiment of the nuns of St. Clare, she faithfully attended at the King's funeral, and soon after went to Compostella, where she offered many precious gifts, of silk, and gold, and silver, and precious stones, for the benefit of his soul. Thence she returned home, and spent in holy and godly uses everything that remained to her that was dear and costly, eager to relieve every kind of suffering. She lived, not for herself, but for God, and to be useful to mankind. She finished the convent for nuns, right worthy of a Queen, which she had founded at Coimbra. She fed the poor, defended widows, protected orphans. A war being lighted up between her son Alphonsus IV, King of Portugal, and her grandson Alphonsus V, King of Castile, she resolved to set out to reconcile them, and went to the famous city of Estremoz, upon the borders of the two kingdoms. On the journey, she caught a violent fever, of which, after a vision of the Virgin Mother of God, she died a saintly death on the 4th day of July, in the year 1336. She became illustrious for miracles after her death, especially for the sweetness of the savour of her body, which hath now remained uncorrupt for well-nigh three hundred years, and she hath always been spoken of as the Holy Queen Elizabeth. At length, in the year of our salvation 1625, which was that of the Jubilee, Urban VIII, all Christendom gathered together and approving, formally enrolled her name among those of the Saints.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Elisabeth of Portugal, Queen and Widow

Elizabeth was born of the royal family of Aragon in the year of our Lord 1271. The joy of her birth put an end to the unhappy quarrels between her grandfather and her father, thus making it clear from the outset that she would be a blessed peacemaker between kings and kingdoms. She was remarkable for the way in which she chastised her body, for her constancy in prayer, and for her exercise of the works of charity. When she was married to Denis, King of Portugal, she devoted herself no less to the work of cultivating virtue than to that of educating her children, striving to please her husband, but still more to please God. She not only had monasteries, colleges and churches built, but gave them magnificent endowments. She was wonderful in settling the disputes of kings, unwearied in relieving the private and public calamities of her fellow-men, and famous for her miracles. When King Denis had died, she put on the habit of the Seraphic Order, and whatever she had that was dear and precious to her she offered at the church of Compostella for the soul of the king and used for works of devotion and mercy. Finally, having fallen ill as a result of a journey she made to establish peace between two kings, her son and her grandson, she died a most holy death, after receiving a visit from the Virgin Mother of God. Famous for miracles, she was enrolled among the Saints by Urban VIII.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

In the persecution at Rome under Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, there were seven brethren, sons of the holy woman Felicity, whom the Prefect Publius first essayed to cajole by kindness, and then to shake by fear, to deny Christ and worship the gods but, by their own bravery and the exhortation of their mother, they remained firm in their confession, and were all put to death in diverse ways. Januarius was lashed to death with whips loaded with lead Felix and Philip were beaten to death with cudgels Silvanus was thrown over a precipice Alexander, Vitalis, and Martial were beheaded. Their mother gained the same palm of martyrdom four months afterwards. The seven Brethren gave up their souls to God upon the 10th day of July.

- ℟. thy Saints, O Lord, have passed a wonderful way, serving thy commandments, that they might be found without hurt in the midst of the mighty waters. * Dry land appeared, and, out of the Red Sea, a way without impediment.

LESSON V

The virgin sisters, Rufina and Secunda, were Romans. Their parents had betrothed them to Armentarius and Verinus, but they both consecrated their virginity by vow to Christ, and refused marriage. They were arrested in the reign of the Emperors Valerian and Gallienus. The Praefect Junius failed to change their minds either by promises or threats, and then ordered Rufina to be scourged. While the lashing was going on, Secunda said to the Judge Why dost thou judge my sister to honour and me to dishonour Be pleased to whip us both Magnum spectaculum, fratres, positum est ante oculos fidei nostræ. Aure audivimus, corde vidimus optantem matrem ante se finire istam vitam filios suos, longe contrariis votis consuetudini humanæ. Omnes enim homines filios suos, ex hac vita migrando, præcedere volunt, non sequi; illa autem optavit posterior mori. Non enim amittebat filios, sed præmittebat; nec intuebatur quam vitam finirent, sed quam inchoarent. Desinebant enim vivere, ubi quandoque fuerant morituri; et incipiebant vivere, sine fine victuri. Parum est fuisse spectatricem; mirati sumus potius hortatricem. Fecundior virtutibus quam foetibus: videns certantes, in quibus omnibus ipsa certabat, et in omnibus vincētibz ipsa vincebat.

together, for we both together declare that Christ is God. The Judge was angered at these words, and ordered them both to a dark and stinking dungeon but it was presently filled with a bright light and a sweet savour. They were then shut up in a hot flue of a bath, but they came forth from it unharmed. Stones were next tied to their necks and they were cast into the river Tiber, but an Angel delivered them therefrom. In the end they were beheaded on the Aurelian Way, at the tenth mile-stone from the city. The Lady Plautilla buried their bodies upon her own farm, but they were afterwards brought into the city, and laid in the Cathedral Church of the Most Holy Saviour, hard by the Baptistry.

LESSON VI

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo.)

11th on various subjects.

Wonderful is the sight, my brethren, which is set before the eyes of our faith. We have heard with our ears, and we see in our thoughts, a mother, with superhuman love, watching her sons leaving this life before her. All men would fain depart hence before their children, but she was ready to die last. Departing from her, they were not lost, but gone before. And she looked, not to the life they were ending, but to the life they were beginning. They laid aside a life which must needs end in death, and began that life wherein they are alive for ever. The least of her work was that she was an on-looker more amazing is it, when we remember that she was their exhortress. Her courage was more fruitful than her womb, and when she saw them contending and conquering, her heart contended and conquered in each.

℞. As gold in the furnace hath the Lord tried His chosen ones, and received them as a onem spíritus designat, dicens: Quæ est mater mea, et qui sunt fratres mei? Quicumque enim fécerit voluntátem Patris mei, qui in cælis est, ipse meus frater, et soror, et mater est. Quibus nobis verbis quid aliud innuit, nisi quod obsequéntes jussi-

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 12:46-50

At that time: While Jesus yet talked to the people, behold, His mother and His brethren stood without, desiring to speak with Him. And so on.

*Homily by Pope St. Gregory the Great
3rd on the Gospels*

Dearly beloved brethren The gospel which is read this day is but very short, but it is heavy with great mysteries. Here Jesus, our Maker and Redeemer, feigneth Himself as though He knew not His Own Mother, and telleth who they be who are His mother and brethren, not by fleshly kinship, but by kinship of mind. Who is My Mother And who are My brethren Whosoever shall do the will of My Father, Which is in heaven, the same is My brother, and sister, and mother. By the which words, what are we to understand, save that He gathereth together from out of Heathendom many that are willing to obey His commandments, and that He knoweth not Jewry, whereof, according to the flesh, He is a son.

℞. Because of the covenant of the Lord, and the laws of their fathers, the Saints of God abode in brotherly love, * For one spirit and one faith was ever in them.

✠. Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

℞. For one spirit and one faith was ever in them.

LECTIO VIII

Sed cum is, qui voluntatem Patris fecerit, soror et frater Dómini dicitur, propter utrumque sexum qui ad fidem colligitur, mirum non est; mirandum vero valde est, quómodo étiam mater dicátur. Fideles enim discipulos fratres vocare dignátus est, dicens: Ite, nuntiáte fratribus meis. Qui ergo frater Dómini fieri ad fidem veniéndum potúerit, quæréndum est quómodo étiam et mater esse possit.

R. Sancti mei, qui in carne pósito, certámen habuístis: * Mercédem labóris ego reddam vobis.

V. Veníte benedícti Patris mei, percípíte regnum.

R. Mercédem labóris ego reddam vobis.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Mercédem labóris ego reddam vobis.

LECTIO IX

Sed sciéndum nobis est, quia qui Christi soror et frater est credendo, mater effícitur prædicando. Quasi enim parit Dóminum, quem cordi audiéntis infuderit; et mater ejus prædicando effícitur, si per ejus vocem amor Dómini in próximi mente generátur. Ad quam rem nobis idónee confirmandam adest beáta Felicitas, cujus hódie natalícia celebramus, quæ credéndo exstitit ancílla Christi, et prædicando facta est mater Christi. Septem quippe fílios, sicut in gestis ejus emendatióribus legitur, sic post se tímuít vivos in carne relínquere, sicut carnales paréntes solent metuere ne mórtuos præmittant.

Te Deum

LESSON VIII

Seeing that both men and women are called to the faith, we marvel not that He saith that whosoever shall do the will of His Father, the same is His brother, and sister. But it is startling to hear that the same is also His mother. His faithful disciples He is pleased to call His brethren, where He saith Go, tell My brethren, (Matth. xxviii. 10.) If then it is by joining His religion that one can become the brother of the Lord, let us see how one can become His mother.

R. O ye My Saints, who, being in the flesh, didst have striving * I will render unto you a reward of your labours.

V. Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom

R. I will render unto you a reward of your labours.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. I will render unto you a reward of your labours.

LESSON IX

But we must know that even as one becometh His brother or His sister by believing in Him, so one becometh His mother by preaching Him. Such an one, as it were, giveth birth to the Lord by causing Him to be in the hearer's heart, and by words giving His love existence in their neighbour's mind. For an example in point, behold blessed Felicity, whose Birth-day we keep today. She was one whose faith made her Christ's hand-maiden, and whose preaching made her Christ's mother. We read in the corrected edition of her Acts that she dreaded as much to leave her seven sons behind her alive in the flesh, as do worldly mothers to send theirs dead before them.

LESSON III (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Pius I., the son of Rufinus, was from Aquilia, and was a Priest of the holy Roman Church when he was made Supreme Pontiff, he lived under the Emperors Antoninus Pius and Marcus Aurelius, he held five ordinations in the month of December, wherein he ordained twelve Bishops and eighteen Priests. There remain several eminent ordinances of his, notably that which ruleth that the Resurrection of the Lord be not observed upon any day of the week save the Lord's Day. He turned the house of Pudens into a church, and on account of its eminence above the other churches, as being that where the Bishop of Rome dwelt, he dedicated it under the name of the Shepherd. Here he often celebrated, and baptized and numbered among the faithful many converts to the faith. While he strove to do the work of a good shepherd he shed his blood for his sheep, and for the chief Shepherd Christ. He was crowned with martyrdom upon the 11th day of July, and buried upon the Vatican Hill.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

John Gualberto was the son of a noble family at Florence. In accordance with the wishes of his father, he became a soldier. While he was in that profession, his only brother, Hew, was slain by a cousin. On a certain Good Friday, John, armed and accompanied by soldiers, met the murderer, alone and defenceless, in a narrow way, where neither could turn aside. As he was at the point to kill crucis reveréntiam, quam homicida supplex, mortem jamjam subiturus, brácchiis signabat, vitam ei clementer indulget. Hoste in fratrem recepto, próximum sancti Miniátis templum oratúrus ingréditur, ubi adoratam Crucifixi imáginem caput sibi fléctere cónspicit. Quo mirábili facto permotus Joánnes, Deo exínde, étiam invíto patre, militare decernit, atque ibidem propriis sibi mánibus comam totondit, ac monasticum hábitum índuit: adeoque piis ac religiosis virtútibus brevi coruscat, ut multis se perfectiónis specimen ac normam præbéret; ita ut, ejusdem loci abbate defuncto, communi ómnium voto in superiorem eligerétur. At Dei famulus, cupiens subesse potius quam præesse, ad majora divina voluntáte servatus, ad Camaldulénsis eremi incolam Romualdum proficisci-tur, a quo cælicum sui institúti vaticinium áccipit; tum suum ordinem sub regula sancti Benedicti apud Umbrosam vallem instituit.

℣. Justum dedúxit Dóminus per vias rectas, et osténdit illi regnum Dei.

℞. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

LECTIO V

Defínde, plurimis ad eum ob ejus sanctitátis famam undique convolántibus, una cum iis in socios adscitis, ad hæreticam et simoníacam pravitátem exstirpandam et apostolicam fidem propagandam sédulo incumbit, innumera propterea in se et suis incommoda expertus. Nam, ut eum ejusque socios adversarii perdant, noctu sancti Salvii coenóbium repénite aggrediúntur, templum incendunt, ædes demoliúntur, et mónachos omnes lethali vulnere sauciant; quos vir Dei único crucis signo incólumes prótinus reddit, et, Petro ejus mónacho per immensum ardentissimúmque ignem illæso mirabíliter tran-him, the wretch fell on his knees, and stretched out his arms in the form of the Cross, adjuring him, for the sake of that sign, to forgive him and out of reverence for the Cross he had mercy on him and spared his life. After pardoning his enemy, he went into the Church of St. Minias, which was hard by, to pray. And there he saw the image of Jesus crucified, which had that day received the worship of the faithful, bow its head to him. By this miracle John was so moved, that he laid aside soldiering, even against his father's wishes cut off his hair with his own hands, at the Convent of St. Minias, and clad himself in the garb of a monk. In a short while he so shone with all godly and monkish graces, that he became a pattern of excellency to many. When the Abbat of that house died, the monks all chose John to succeed him. But the servant of God desired to obey, more than to command, and, being kept by God for greater things, he betook himself to one Romuald, a dweller in the hermitage at Camaldoli. Through Romuald he received a revelation from heaven, and forthwith founded an Order of his own under the Rule of St. Benedict, in the valley called Vallombrosa.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℞. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

Many gathered themselves to him, drawn by the fame of his holy life. Them he took for his comrades, and laboured earnestly among them to cleanse the Church in those parts from the pollution of heresy and simony, and spread abroad the Apostolic Faith. He and his had to fight with almost countless hardships. Certain enemies broke by night into the monastery of San Salvi, to destroy John and his monks, set the church on fire, pulled down the huts, and mortally wounded all the monks but the man of God perfectly healed them all by the sign of the Cross. One of his monks named Peter also passed unhurt through a vast and raging fire. At length John and his disciples got the peace which they longed for. He purged Tuscany seúnte, optatam sibi et suis tranquillitatem obtinet. Inde simoníacam labem ab Etruria expulsi, ac in tota Italia fidem prístinæ integritati restituit.

LESSON VI

He entirely built several monasteries, and furnished them and others with buildings. He restored in them the strict observance of the Rule, and gave them holy laws. He sold the furniture of the Church to feed the poor, and found the very elements subject to him to bend stubborn hearts withal. He used the Cross like a sword to drive out devils. In his old age, worn out by abstinence, watching, fasts, prayers, and punishing of the flesh, his strength utterly gave way, and he often repeated the words of David My soul thirsteth for God, for the mighty God, for the living God when shall I come and appear before God ~ (Ps. xli. 2.) When he was at the point of death, he gathered his disciples together and exhorted them to love one another, and, after a little while, ordered the following words to be written down, which he wished should be buried with him I, John, do believe and confess that Faith which the Holy Apostles preached, and which the Holy Fathers have ratified in the four Councils. At length, at Passignano, where he is held in the highest reverence, after a vision of angels which lasted three days, he passed away to be with the Lord, upon the 12th day of July, in the 78th year of his own age, and in that of salvation 1073. He is illustrious for countless miracles, and Celestine III. enrolled his name among those of the Saints.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ÿ. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 5:43-48

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour and hate thine enemy. And so on.

*Homily by St. Jerome, Priest at Bethlehem.
Bk. i., Cowan. on Matth. v. and vi.*

But I say unto you Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you. There are many who judge of the commandments of the Lord by their own weakness, and not by the strength of His Saints and so deem Him to have commanded things impossible. These are they who think that not to hate their enemies is all that they are able to do and that to command us to love them, is to command more than man's nature can bear. It behoveth then to know, that this which Christ commandeth is not impossible, albeit perfect. This is what David did in respect of Saul and Absalom the martyr Stephen also prayed for his enemies, even while they were stoning him and Paul could wish that himself were accursed from Christ for his persecutors. (Rom.
ix. well as taught, when He said Father, forgive them for they know not what they do. (Luke xxiii.
34.)

- R. This is he which wrought great wonders before
God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. *
May he pray for all people, that their sins may
be forgiven unto them.
- Ÿ. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.
- R. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

In réliquis opéribus bonis intérdum potest áliquis qualemćúmque excusatióem præténdere; ad habéndam vero dilectiόem nulus se póterit excusare. Potest mihi áliquis dicere, Non possum jejunare; numquid potest dicere, Non possum amare? Potest áliquis dicere, Virginitátem non possum servare, non possum res totas véndere et paupéribus erogare; numquid potest dicere, Non possum diligere inimícos?

- R. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucérnæ ardéntes in mánibus vestris: * Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.
- Ψ. Vigiláte ergo, quia nescítis qua hora Dóminus vester ventúrus sit.

- Ψ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- R. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

LECTIO IX

Non enim ibi aut pedes laborant, currendo, aures audiendo, aut manus operando laxántur, ut nos per ipsam excusatiόem liberare conémur. Non nobis dícitur: ite ad Oriéntem, et quærite caritátem; navigate ad Occidéntem, et inveniétis dilectiόem. Intus in nostro corde est, ubi redire jubemur, dicente prophéta: Redíte, prævaricatores, ad cor. Non enim in longinquis regiónibus invenítur quod a nobis pétitur.

Te Deum

For the leaving undone other good works, some excuse can sometimes be given but no man can give an excuse for being loveless. Such and such an one may say to me, I am not able to fast but can he say, I am not able to love Such and such an one may say, I am not able to remain a virgin, I am not able to sell all that I have and give to the poor but can he say, I am not able to love my enemies

- R. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- Ψ. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- Ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

This is a work wherein the feet are not wearied with running, nor the ears with hearing, neither do the hands fail from labour, that we should set up thereby an excuse to rid us of the duty. It is not said unto us Go to the East, and search for charity sail to the West, and ye shall find love. It is into our own inner hearts that we are to go, as saith the Prophet Bring it again to mind, O ye transgressors. (Isa. xlv. 8.) What is asked of us is not to be found afar off.

Anacletus was an Athenian who governed the Church in the time of the Emperor Trajan. He ordained that a Bishop should be consecrated by three Bishops and no less, that clerks should be publicly ordained to Holy Orders by their own Bishop, and that in the Mass, after the Consecration, all should afterwards Communicate. He adorned the grave of Blessed Peter, and ordered a place for burying the Popes in. He held two ordinations in the month of December, wherein he ordained five Priests, three Deacons, and six Bishops. He sat as Pope nine years, three months, and ten days. He received the crown of his testimony, and was buried on the Vatican Hill.

LESSON IV

Bonaventure was born at Bagnarea in Tuscany, in the year of our Lord 1221. In his infancy he was dangerously ill, and his mother made a vow that, if he recovered, she would dedicate him to the Order of Blessed Francis. While he was still a young man he entered the Order by his own wish. Under the teaching of Alexander of Hales he advanced so quickly in learning, that in seven years he lectured publicly at Paris on the Books of the Sentences, with great applause. He afterwards explained the same Books by a brilliant Commentary. After six years he was made General Master of his Order at Rome, in which office he did his duty with such wisdom and holiness as caused all men to talk of him and marvel at him.

℟. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him * For My hand shall help him.

He was the author of many books, in which the depth of his learning and the earnestness of his godliness affect the reader and teach him at the same time. Gregory X., moved by his reputation for wisdom and holiness, created him a Cardinal and Bishop of Albano. Blessed Thomas of Aquino gave him the title of Saint even during his life-time. It fell on this wise. Thomas found him writing the Atténdite quid díxerit, Vos estis sal terræ: per quod osténdit quam necessarió ista præcípiat. Non enim de vestra, inquit, tantúmmodo vita, sed de univérso orbe vobis ratio reddénda est. Non ad duas quippe urbes, aut decem, aut vigínti, neque ad unam gentem vos mitto, sicut mittébam prophétas: sed ad omnem terram prorsus ac mare, totúmque mundum, et hunc váriis crimínibus opprés-sum.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 5:13-19

At that time: Jesus said unto His disciples: Ye are the salt of the earth. But if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? And so on.

Homily by St John Chrysostom, Patriarch (of Constantinople.)

15/A on Matth.

Consider how that the Lord saith: "Ye are the salt of the earth," by the which figure He sheweth what a necessary of life is the Gospel. By this figure, He hath us to know that they unto whom He spake have an account to render, not of their own life only, but for the whole world. Not unto two cities, saith the Lord, nor unto ten, nor unto twenty, nor unto one people, as I sent the Prophets, send I you. But I send you unto every land and sea, even unto the whole world, lying groaning, as it is, under the burden of diverse sins.

℟. The Lord loved him and beautified him He clothed him with a robe of glory * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

✠. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℟. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VIII

These words, "Ye are the salt of the earth," show unto us the whole nature of man as savourless and stinking with the strong corruption of sin. And therefore demandeth He of His Apostles such qualities as are most needful and useful to the furthering the salvation of many. He that is gentle and lowly, tender and just, shutteth not up all these good things in his own heart, but openeth these bright fountains that they may gush forth for the use of his neighbour. He whose heart is pure, and who seeketh peace, suffering persecution for the truth's sake, doth still lead a life for the good of the commonwealth.

℞. In médio Ecclésiæ aperuit os ejus, * Et implévit eum Dóminus spíritu sapiéntiæ et intelléctus.

℣. Jucunditatem et exultationem thesaurizavit super eum.

℞. Et implévit eum Dóminus spíritu sapiéntiæ et intelléctus.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Et implévit eum Dóminus spíritu sapiéntiæ et intelléctus.

LECTIO IX

Ne igitur putétis, inquit, ad lévia vos ducendos esse certamina, neque exiguarum rerum vobis ineúdam esse ratiónem. Vos estis sal terræ. Quid igitur? Ipsine putrefácta medicati sunt? Nequáquam: neque enim fieri potest, ut ea quæ jam corrúpta sunt, salis perfricatióne reparéntur. Non ergo hoc fecérunt, sed ante renováta, sibique trádita, atque ab illa jam putrédine liberáta, aspergébant sale, et in ea novitáte conservábant, quam a Dómino suscepérant. Liberáre quippe a putrédine peccatórum, Christi virtútis est: ut autem ad illa iterum non revertántur, Apostolorum curæ est ac labóris.

Te Deum

℞. In the midst of the congregation did the Lord open his mouth. * And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

℣. He made him rich with joy and gladness.

℞. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

LESSON IX

Think not, saith the Lord, that the struggle is easy whereunto ye shall be led, neither shall your reckoning be of light matters. Ye are the salt of the earth. Have ye then salted that which is corrupted? Nay, for it is impossible that that which is once corrupted can be made sound again by the rubbing it with salt. This it is not asked of them to do. But their work is to sprinkle with salt, and to keep fresh thereafter, such things as the Lord hath given over into their charge, and which He Himself hath made new, and freed from all taint, before giving them. To make sound after the corruption of sin, is the work of Christ's power alone; to preserve from falling away again, is the duty and the toil commanded to the Apostles.

R. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

LECTIO V

In Cassinénsi monastério, gravi deténtus infirmitáte, a sancto Benedícto, insígni miraculo, sanátus est. Románam Ecclesiám amplísimo diplómate munerátus, eidem tuéndæ bellum advérsus Græcos suscepit, et Apúliam, diu ab illis posséssam, recuperávit. Nihil sine précibus ággregi sólitus, Angelum Dómini sanctósque Mártyres tuteláres pro se pugnántes ante áciem intérdum vidit. Divína autem protéctus ope, bárbaras nátiónes précibus magis quam armis expugnávit. Panóniam adhuc infidélem, trádita Stéphanoregi soróre sua in uxórem, eóque baptizáto, ad Christi fidem perdúxit. Virginitátem raro exémplo matrimónio junxit, sanctámque Cunegúndam, cónjugem suam, propínquis ejus, morti próxímus, illibátam restítuit.

R. Amávit eum Dóminus, et ornávit eum: stolam glóriæ induit eum, * Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

became Emperor, he earnestly set himself to the furtherance of the cause of godliness. He restored with new splendour the Churches which had been ruined by the unbelievers, and enriched them with many offerings and possessions. Monasteries and other godly places he either built himself, or endowed them with allowances. He founded out of his own family inheritance the Bishopric of Bamberg, and made it tributary to Blessed Peter and to the Bishop of Rome. When Benedict VIII, who had set on his head the Imperial crown, was an exile, he hospitably received him, and afterwards restored him to his See.

R. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.

Ÿ. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

R. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

Then he was struck down with a grievous sickness in the Monastery of Monte Cassino, he was healed by an evident miracle through the intercession of St Benedict. He was a princely benefactor to the Church of Rome, for the defence of which he entered into a war against the Greeks, and took again from them the province of Apulia, which they had long possessed. He never undertook anything until he had made it a subject of prayer. And in battle he once saw the Angel of the Lord and the Holy Martyrs (Laurence, George, and Adrian) his patrons under whose protection he had placed his army, fighting for him in front of his line. With the help of God, he prevailed against the tribes of savages more by prayer than by arms. He gave his sister in marriage to King Stephen of Hungary, whom he induced to be baptized, and so brought all that country to believe in Christ. His marriage with the holy maiden Cunegunda is one of the rare instances of the union of two virgins. When he drew near to death, he gave her back inviolate to her kinsfolk.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

✠. Induit eum Dóminus lorícam fídei, et ornávit eum.

℟. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

LECTIO VI

ficéntiæ vestígiis passim relíctis; postquam heróicæ virtútis suavíssimum odórem longe latéque diffúderat, sanctitaté quam sceptro clárior, ad regni cæléstis præmia, consum-

℟. Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

✠. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℟. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

He managed with great wisdom whatever could tend to the honour and usefulness of the Empire. He left in France? Italy, and Germany, splendid monuments of his godly munificence. The perfume of his saintly life spread its sweetness far and wide, and the glory of his holiness outshone the splendour of his crown. When the work of his life was done, he was called by the Lord to the possession of an eternal kingdom (on the 14th day of July,) in the year of salvation 1024. His body was buried in the Church of the Blessed Apostles Peter and Paul at Bamberg, and God glorified him by the miracles which began forthwith to take place at his grave. The same being duly proved, Eugene III numbered him among the Saints.

℟. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

✠. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

℟. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

Cum sacra Pentecostes die Apóstoli, cælitus afflati, variis linguis loqueréntur, et, invocato augustíssimo Jesu nómine, mira multa pararent; viri plurimi (ut fertur), qui vestigiis sanctorum prophetarum Elíæ ac Eliséi institerant, et Joánnis Baptistæ præconio ad Christi advéntum comparáti fuerant, rerum veritate perspecta atque probata, evangelicam fidem conféstim amplexáti sunt, ac peculiari quodam afféctu beatíssimam Víginem (cujus colloquiis ac familiaritate feliciter frui potuere) adeo venerari cœperunt, ut primi omnium in eo montis Carmeli loco, ubi Elías olim ascendentem nébulam, Víginis typo insignem, conspexerat, eidem puríssimæ Virgini sacellum construxerint.

R. Sicut cedrus exaltáta sum in Líbano, et sicut cypréssus in monte Sion: quasi myrrha elécta, * Dedi suavitátem odóris.

Ÿ. Et sicut cinnamómum et bálsamum aromatízans.

R. Dedi suavitátem odóris.

LECTIO V

Ad novum ergo sacellum sæpe quotidie conveniéntes, rítibus piis, precatiónibus ac laudibus beatíssimam Víginem, velut singularem ordinis tutelam, colebant. Quam ob rem fratres beatæ Mariæ de Monte Carmelo passim ab ómnibus appellari cœperunt; eumque titulum summi Pontifices non modo confirmarunt, sed et indulgéntias peculiares iis, qui eo titulo vel ordinem vel fratres singulos nuncuparent, concessére. Nec vero nomenclatúram tantum magnificentíssima Virgo tríbuit et tutelam, verum et insigne sacri scapularis; quod beato Simoni Anglico præbuit, ut cælésti hac veste ordo ille sacer dignoscerétur, et a malis ingruéntibus protegerétur. Ac demum, cum olim in Europa ordo esset ignotus, et ob id apud Honórium tertium non pauci pro illús exstinctióne instarent, ástitit Honorio noctu piíssima Virgo

Here is a story to the effect that many men who had kept a tradition of the holy Prophets Elijah and Elisha, were made ready by the preaching of John the Baptist to hail the coming of the Messiah, and that, when the Apostles having been filled with the Spirit upon the holy day of Pentecost, spake with diverse tongues and worked miracles by calling upon the Name of Jesus which is above every other name, these men, seeing and being assured of the truth, straightway embraced the faith of the Gospel, and that on account of their singular love toward the Most Blessed Virgin, whose conversation and friendship they were able to enjoy, they paid her the respect of building her a little Chapel, the first which was ever raised in honour of this same most pure Maiden, and which stood upon that part of Mount Carmel whence the servant of Elijah had in old days espied that manifest type of the Virgin, the little cloud like a man's hand, arising out of the sea. (3 Kings xviii. 44.)

R. I was exalted like a cedar in Lebanon, and as a cypress-tree upon Mount Zion. Like the best myrrh * I yielded a pleasant odour.

Ÿ. Like cinnamon and sweet balsam.

R. I yielded a pleasant odour.

LESSON V

Now this new Chapel they repaired oftentimes day by day, and in their sacred ceremonies, prayers, and praises, honoured the Most Blessed Virgin as the particular Guardian of their Congregation. For this reason they came to be everywhere called the Brethren of Blessed Mary, of Mount Carmel, and the Supreme Pontiffs have not only confirmed to them the right to use this name, but have granted particular indulgences to all those who so call either the Order itself, or any particular member thereof. Her name and protection are not the only gifts which the most bountiful Virgin hath given them yea, she hath given them the badge of the Holy Scapular, which she delivered to the Blessed Englishman Simon Stock, even an heavenly garment whereby this Holy Order is marked, and harnessed against all assaults. Moreover, in old times, when this Order was unknown in Europe, and not a few were instant with Honorius III. to put an end to it, the most gracious Virgin Mary ap-

Maria, planeque jussit ut institutum et hómines benigne complecterétur.

R. Quæ est ista quæ procéssit sicut sol, et formósa tamquam Jerúsalem? * Vidérunt eam filiæ Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et regínæ laudavérunt eam.

Y. Et sicut dies verni circúmdabant eam flores rosárum et lília convállium.

R. Vidérunt eam filiæ Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et regínæ laudavérunt eam.

LECTIO VI

Non in hac tantum sæculo ordinem sibi tam acceptum multis prærogativis beatíssima Virgo insignívit; verum et in alio (cum ubíque et poténtia et misericórdia plurimum valeat) fílios in scapularis societátem relatos, qui abstinentiam modicam precesque paucas eis præscriptas frequentarunt, ac pro sui status ratióne castitátem coluérunt, materno plane afféctu, dum igne purgatorii expiántur, solari ac in cælestem pátriam obtentu suo quantócius pie creditur efferre. Tot ergo tantisque beneficiis ordo cumulátus, solemnem beatíssimæ Vírginis Commemoriatiónem, ritu perpetuo ad ejusdem Vírginis glóriam quottannis celebrandam, instituit.

R. Ornátam monílibus fíliam Jerúsalem Dóminus concupívit: * Et vidéntes eam filiæ Sion, beatíssimam prædicavérunt, dicéntes: * Unguéntum effúsum nomen tuum.

Y. Astitit regína a dextris tuis in vestítu deauráto, circúmdata varietáte.

R. Et vidéntes eam filiæ Sion, beatíssimam prædicavérunt, dicéntes:

Y. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Unguéntum effúsum nomen tuum.

peared by night to the said Honorius, and flatly commanded him to show kindness to the Order and to the men belonging thereto.

R. Who is this that cometh up like the sun? This, comely as Jerusalem? * The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed: the queens also, and they praised her.

Y. And about her it was as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

R. The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed the queens also, and they praised her.

LESSON VI

Many godly persons believe that it is not in this world only that the most Blessed Virgin hath marked with her favour this Order which pleaseth her so well, but that in the next world, where her power and mercy have a freer scope than here, they who belong to the Guild of the Scapular, who have practised an easy abstinence, have been regular in reciting a few prayers enjoined to them, and have kept chastity according to their state of life, are comforted by her motherly love while they are being cleansed in the fire of Purgatory, and by her help are borne forward towards their home in heaven more quickly than others. The Order loaded with so many and so great gifts, hath instituted a solemn Commemoration of the Most Blessed Virgin, to be made year after year, in perpetual observance, for the glory of the same Virgin.

R. When the Lord beheld the daughter of Jerusalem adorned with her jewels, He greatly desired her beauty * And when the daughters of Zion saw her, they cried out that she was most blessed, saying thy name is as ointment poured forth.

Y. Upon thy right hand did stand the Queen in a vesture of gold wrought about with diverse colours.

R. And when the daughters of Zion saw her, they cried out that she was most blessed, saying:

Y. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Thy name is as ointment poured forth.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Alexis was a member of one of the noblest Roman families. Through his exceeding great love for Jesus Christ, he received a particular command from God to leave his bride untouched upon his wedding night, and to undertake a pilgrimage to the most famous Churches of the world. For seventeen years he remained occupied in these journeys and utterly unknown. At the end of that time, his name was spoken from an image of the most holy Virgin Mary in the city of Edessa, in Syria, and when he found himself recognised he took ship from thence. He landed at Porto near Rome, and fared to the house of his own father, who gave him shelter as a strange beggar. He lived there unrecognised by any for seventeen years more, and then passed away to heaven, in the time of Pope Innocent I. He left behind him a writing giving his name, family, and the story of his life.

- ℞. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.
- ℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.
- ℞. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

From the Book of Moral Reflections upon Job, written by Pope St. Gregory the Great {Bk. x, Chap. xvi, on Job xii.}

The simplicity of the righteous is made a subject of derision. The wisdom of this world hideth our true feelings by artifice, and useth language to conceal our thoughts this is the wisdom which demonstrated the truth of falsehood, and sheweth the falsehood of the truth. This kind of shrewdness the young acquire by practice, and children pay for the learning it. Those who are good at this look down upon their neighbours those who are bad at quia ab eis hæc eadem duplicitatis iniquitas nómine palliata dilígitur, dum mentis perversitas urbánitas vocátur. Hæc sibi obsequéntibus præcipit honórum cúlmina quærere, adépta temporális glóriæ vanitáte gaudére, irrogáta ab áliis mala multiplícus réddere: cum vires súppetunt, nullis resisténtibus cédere: cum virtútis possibílitas deest, quidquid explére per malítiam non valent, hoc in pacífica bonitáte simuláre.

℞. Amávit eum Dóminus, et ornávit eum: stolam glóriæ induit eum, * Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

℣. Índuit eum Dóminus lorícám fídei, et ornávit eum.

℞. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

LECTIO VI

At contra, sapiéntia justórum est: nil per ostensiónem fingere, sensum verbis aperíre, vera ut sunt dilígere, falsa devitáre; bona gráti exhibére, mala libéntius toleráre quam fácere; nullam injúriæ ultiónem quærere, pro veritáte contuméliam lucrú putáre. Sed hæc justórum simplicitas deridétur; quia ab hujus mundi sapiéntibus puritátis virtus fatúitas créditur. Omne enim quod innocénter ágitur, ab eis proculdúbio stultum putátur; et quidquid in ópere véritas ápprobat, carnáli sapiéntiæ fatuum sonat. Quid namque stúltius vidétur mundo, quam mentem verbis osténdere, nil cállida machinatióne simuláre, nullas injúriis contumélias réddere, pro maledicéntibus oráre, paupertátem quærere, posséssa relínquere, rapiénti non resistere, percutiénti álteram maxíllam præbére?

℞. Iste homo perfécit ómnia quæ locútus est ei Deus, et dixit ad eum: Ingrédere in réquiem meam: * Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

℣. Iste est, qui contémpsit vitam mundi, et pervénit ad cæléstia regna.

it are humble and timid, and wonder at it in others they regard this astuteness too, wrong though it be, with wistful admiration, under softened epithets. Unstraightforwardness is called good breeding. The principles of the world teach those who entertain them, to try and rise to distinction, and when they have attained the bubble of glory which is so soon to pass away, to feel it sweet to have at their feet them on whom they may wreak rich revenge. These principles teach a man, as long as he is strong enough, to give way to nobody else, and, if he hath no chance by force, to try and attain his object by diplomacy.

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

The wisdom of the righteous is the contrary of all this. They seek to avoid deception, to give their thoughts a clear expression in their words, to love the truth because it is the truth, to avoid falsehood, and rather to suffer than to inflict evil. Such are they who seek not to avenge themselves for wrong, and deem it gain to be despised for the truth's sake. This their simplicity is made a subject of derision, for such as are wise in this world believe the purity of their virtue to be simple foolery. Whatsoever is done innocently, they consider without doubt stupid. Such works as the truth approveth are idiotic, when tried by carnal standards of wisdom. After all, what stupider thing is there in this world than to express our real thoughts in our words, to keep nothing quiet by skilful tact, to repay no injuries, to pray for them which curse us, to seek poverty, to give up property, to strive not with such as take from us, to turn the other cheek to the smiter?

℞. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

℣. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 19:27-29

At that time, Peter said unto Jesus: Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee what shall we have therefore? And so on.

Homily by St. Jerome, Priest (at Bethlehem.)

Bk. iii. on Matth xix.

Peter was a fisherman, he was not rich, he earned his bread by his hand and skill, and nevertheless he is thus bold, and saith confidently: We have forsaken all. And because it sufficeth not to forsake only, he addeth that which to do is to be perfect: and followed thee. We have done that which Thou hast commanded us, what reward therefore wilt Thou give us? And Jesus said unto them Amen I say unto you, that ye which have followed Me, in the regeneration, when the Son of Man shall sit in the throne of His glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. He said not, Ye which have forsaken all, for this did even Crates the philosopher, and they which have set nothing by riches are many, but, Ye which have followed Me. This did the Apostles, and this do believers do.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

V. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

R. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

LECTIO IX

Ex ocasióne hujus senténtiæ quidam intro ducunt mille annos post resurrectiόnem, dicéntes, tunc nobis céntuplum ómnium rerum quas dimísimus, et vitam ætérnam esse reddéndam: non intelligéntes, quod, si in céteris digna sit repromissio, in uxóribus appáreat turpítudo: ut qui unam pro Dómino dimiserit centum recípiat in futúro. Sensus ergo iste est: Qui carnália pro Salvátore dimiserit, spirituália recípiet: quæ comparatiόne et mérito sui ita erunt, quasi si parvo número centenárius número comparétur.

xv. 53,) ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones of judgment, condemning the twelve tribes of Israel, because, when ye believed in Me, they would not. (John iii. 18.) And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for My Name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life. This place agreeth well with that other where the Saviour saith I came not to send peace, but a sword. For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; and a man's foes shall be they of his own household. (Matth. x. 34.) Every one, therefore, that hath set no store by affection, and riches, and the pleasures of the world, for Christ's faith's sake, and the preaching of the Gospel, shall receive an hundred-fold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

- R. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- V. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

By reason of these words, an hundredfold, some will have that there shall be a thousand years after the resurrection, wherein they that have forsaken all things shall receive an hundredfold of those things which they have forsaken, and shall inherit everlasting life. Such men consider not that though in other things this were worthy, as touching wives it is unseemly for it cometh us not to think that he that hath forsaken one wife in this world, shall receive an hundred wives in that which is to come. But the meaning is this, that every one that for the Saviour's sake hath forsaken earthly things, shall receive spiritual things which things, being rightly weighed against earthly things, are as though an hundredfold were weighed against one.

Te Deum

LESSON IV

Camillus was a son of the noble family of the Lelli, and was born at Bacchianico, a town in the Diocese of Chieti, (in the Abruzzi, in the year of our Lord 1550.) His mother was sixty years of age at the time of his birth. While she was great with child, she dreamed that she brought forth a babe bearing the mark of a Cross upon his breast, and going before a troop of other babes marked likewise. When Camillus was a young man he served as a soldier, and yielded himself for a while to the sins of the world. In the twenty-fifth year of his age light from God broke upon him and in a violent fit of tears he determined to wipe away the evil relics of his past life, and to put on the new man. That very day, being the holiday of the Purification of the Most Blessed Virgin, he ran to the Friars Minors, who are commonly called Capuchins, and implored them to enrol him among them. They granted his wishes, but God was keeping him for greater things, and on this as well as on another occasion when he made the same attempt he was forced to abandon it by the increasing virulence of a loathsome running sore in the leg, with which he was afflicted. He meekly bowed himself to the will of Providence, and conquering his own wishes twice, stripped himself of the habit of the Order, which he had sought and received.

℣. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

R. Et dedit illi claritatem æternam.

LECTIO V

Romam profectus, in nosocomium, quod Insanabilium dicitur, receptus est; cujus etiam administratorem, ob perspectas ejus virtutes sibi demandatam, summa integritate, ac sollicitudine vere paterna peregit. Omnium ægrotum servum se reputans, eorum sternere lectulos, sordes tergere, ulceribus mederi, agonique extremo piis precibus et cohortationibus opem ferre solempne habuit; quibus in muneribus præclara præbuit admirabilis patientiæ, invictæ fortitudinis et heroicæ caritatis exempla. Verum, cum animarum in extremis periclitantium, quod unice intendebat, levâmini subsidium litterarum plurimum conferre intelligeret, triginta duos annos natus in primis grammaticæ elementis tirocinium inter pueros iterum subire non erubuit. Sacerdotio postea rite initiatus, nonnullis sibi adjunctis sociis, prima jecit congregationis Clericorum regularium infirmis ministrantium fundamenta, irritato conatu obnitente humani generis hoste. Nam Camillus, cælesti voce e Christi crucifixi, manus etiam de ligno avulsas admirando prodigio protendentis, simulacro emissa mirabiliter confirmatus, ordinem suum a Sede apostolica approbari obtinuit; sodalibus quarto obstrictis maxime arduo voto, infirmis, quos etiam pestis infecerit, ministrandi. Quod institutum, quam foret Deo acceptum et animarum salutis proficuum, sanctus Philippus Neri, qui Camillo a sacris confessionibus erat, comprobavit, dum ejus alumnis decedentium agoni opem ferentibus Angelos suggerentes verba sæpius se vidisse testatus est.

R. Amavit eum Dominus, et ornavit eum: stolam gloriæ induit eum, * Et ad portas paradisi coronavit eum.

V. Induit eum Dominus lorîcam fidei, et ornavit eum.

R. Et ad portas paradisi coronavit eum.

R. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

He went to Rome and was received as an inmate in the Hospital for Incurables. In consequence of his eminent good qualities the administration of the Hospital was committed to his charge, and he discharged this office with the most thorough trustworthiness and with a tenderness like a father's. He counted himself the slave of all the patients, and made it a religious duty to make their beds, clean them, dress their sores, and help by godly prayers and exhortations such as were in their last agony. In doing these things he showed himself a bright example of wonderful patience, indomitable firmness, and heroic charity. He became persuaded that a knowledge of letters would make him much more useful as a comforter to the dying, who were his peculiar care, and therefore, at the age of thirty-two years, he humbly went to school again, among little boys learning the first rudiments. After a time he took Priests' orders, and, in company with some companions who joined him, he laid the first foundations of the Congregation of Regular Clerks for ministering to the sick a scheme against which the enemy of man made an unsuccessful struggle. Camillus heard a voice from heaven issue from an image of Christ Crucified, strengthening him, and saw the nailed hands stretched out from the Cross to protect him. He obtained from the Apostolic see an approval of his Institute, the members of which, (besides the three vows of Poverty, Chastity, and Obedience,) take a fourth and very stern one, by which they bind themselves to serve all sick persons, even those stricken with the plague. Holy Philip Neri, who was Confessor to Camillus, testified that he had often seen Angels prompting the members of this Congregation what they should speak when they were assisting the dying, a proof how well-pleasing in the sight of God, and how useful for the salvation of souls, is this Institution.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

V. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LECTIO VI

Arctiōribus hisce vinculis ægrotantium ministerio mancipatus, mirum est qua alacritate, nullis fractus labōribus, nullis deterritus vitæ periculis, diu noctuque ad supremum usque spīritum, eōrum cōmmodis vigilaverit. Omnibus ōmnia factus, vilissima quæque officia demississimo obsequio flexisque plerumque genibus, véluti Christum ipsum cērneret in infirmis, hīlari promptoque animo arripiebat; utque ōmnium indigētiis præsto esset, generalem ordinis præfecturam, cælique delicias quibus in contemplatiōne defixus affluebat, sponte dimisit. Paternus vero illūs erga mīseros amor tum maxime effulsit, dum et Urbs contagiōso morbo primum, deīnde extrema annonæ laborāret inōpia, et Nolæ in Campānia dira pestis grassaretur. Tanta denique in Deum et prōximum caritate exarsit, ut angelus nuncupari, et Angelōrum opem in vario itinerum discrīmine experīri promereretur. Prophetiæ dono et grātia sanitatum præditus, arcana quoque cordium inspexit; ejusque precibus nunc cibaria multiplicati sunt, nunc aqua in vinum conversa. Tandem vigiliis, jejuniis et assiduis attritus labōribus, cum pelle tantum et ossibus constare videretur, quinque molestis æque ac diūtinis morbis, quos misericōrdias Dōmini appellabat, fortiter tolerātis, sacramentis munitus, Romæ, inter suavissima Jesu et Mariæ nomina, ad ea verba: Mitis atque festivus Christi Jesu tibi aspectus appareat; qua prædixerat hora, obdormivit in Dōmino, pridie Idus Juliī, anno salutis millesimo sexcentesimo décimo quarto, ætatis suæ sexagesimo quinto. Quem, plūribus illustrem miraculis, Benedīctus décimus quartus solemni ritu Sanctōrum fastis adscripsit; et Leo décimus tertius, ex Sacrorum catholici orbis antīstītum voto ac Rītuum Congregatiōnis consūlto, cælēstem ōmnium hospitālium et infirmōrum ubique degentium patrōnum declarāvit, ipsiūsque nomen in agonizantium litanīs invocāri præcepit.

LESSON VI

Then he had thus given himself entirely over by these strict ties to the service of the sick, it was wonderful to see with what earnestness Camillus, broken by no weariness, and scared by no danger to himself, watched over their comfort by day and by night as long as life lasted. Becoming all things to all men, he took with cheerful readiness the most repulsive duties, discharging them with the most humble attention, and oftentimes on his knees, as though he saw Christ Himself in His suffering members. That he might be the readier to serve every one's need, he resigned the general government of his own Institute, and denied himself the indulgence in the heavenly refreshment which abundantly poured upon him, when he fixed his mind solely upon God. His tender, fatherly love toward the wretched had its brightest manifestations when Rome was stricken first by a contagious sickness, and then by famine, and Nola in Campagna suffered from a frightful plague. His love to God and to his neighbour was so glorious that he earned the nickname of Angel, and found Angels helping him in the difficulties of his diverse journeyings. He had the gifts of prophecy and healing, and could read the secret thoughts of men's hearts. At his prayer, food was multiplied, and water turned into wine. His want of sleep, fasting, and unceasing work wore him down till he seemed nothing but skin and bones. He suffered from a complication of five different painful and incurable diseases, which he was accustomed to call the Lord's mercies to him, and which he bore bravely. He died at Rome on the day which he had himself foretold, the fourteenth of July, in the year of salvation 1614, and of his own age the 65th. He had received the Sacraments, and fell asleep in the Lord in an attempt to utter the sweet names of Jesus and Mary, while the Priest was reciting the words of the Ritual: "Gentle and joyous may the Countenance of Christ Jesus appear to thee." He was famous for many miracles, and Benedict XIV solemnly enrolled him in the Kalendar of the Saints.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him:

Homília sancti Augustíni Epíscopi
Tractátus 83 in Joánnem

Quid putamus, fratres mei? numquidnam solum ejus de ista dilectióne mandátum est, qua diligimus invicem? Nonne est et aliud majus, ut diligámus Deum? Aut vero de sola Deus nobis dilectióne mandávit, ut alia non requiramus? Tria certe commendat Apóstolus, dicens: Manent autem fides, spes, caritas, tria hæc, major autem horum caritas. Et, si in caritate, hoc est, in dilectióne, concludúntur duo illa præcepta, major tamen dicta est esse, non sola. De fide ígitur nobis quam multa mandáta sunt, quam multa de spe! Quis potest cuncta colligere, quis enumerando sufficere? Sed intueamur, quod ait idem Apóstolus: Plenitúdo legis caritas.

R. Iste est qui ante Deum magnas virtútes operátus est, et de omni corde suo laudávit Dóminum: * Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

Ÿ. Ecce homo sine queréla, verus Dei cultor, ábstinens se ab omni ópere malo, et pérmanens in innocéntia sua.

R. Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ÿ. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John
John 15:12-16

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: This is My commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo
83rd Tract on John

What think ye, my brethren? Is this His only commandment, this, That we love one another? Is there not another and a greater, the commandment to love God? Or hath God commanded us only to love, so that we need seek to do no more? Surely the Apostle commendeth three things: And now abideth Faith, Hope, Charity, these three but the greatest of these is Charity. (1 Cor. xiii. 13.) And although in charity, that is, in love, he included the two first and great commandments, and charity he called the greatest, yet is charity not said to be alone. Concerning Faith, concerning Hope, how much is commanded us? Who can gather them all together? Who can reckon them all? And yet let us consider how the same Apostle saith: Love is the fulfilling of the Law. (Rom. xiii. 10.)

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

Ÿ. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

R. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LECTIO VIII

Ubi ergo caritas est, quid est quod possit deesse? ubi autem non est, quid est quod possit prodesse? Dæmon credit, nec dīligit: nemo dīligit, qui non credit. Frustra quidem, sed tamen potest sperāre vēniā qui non dīligit; nemo autem potest desperāre qui dīligit. Itaque ubi dilēctio est, ibi necessario fides et spes; et, ubi dilēctio prōximi, ibi necessario etiā dilēctio Dei. Qui enim non dīligit Deum, quōmodo dīligit prōximum tamquam se ipsum? Quandōquidem non dīligit et se ipsum. Est quippe impius et iniquus; qui autem dīligit iniquitatem, non plane dīligit, sed odit animam suam.

- R. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucernæ ardentes in manibus vestris: * Et vos similes hominibus expectantibus dominum suum, quando revertatur a nuptiis.
- ψ. Vigilate ergo, quia nescitis qua hora Dominus vester venturus sit.
- R. Et vos similes hominibus expectantibus dominum suum, quando revertatur a nuptiis.
- ψ. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.
- R. Et vos similes hominibus expectantibus dominum suum, quando revertatur a nuptiis.

LESSON VIII

Where therefore, Charity is, what can be lacking or where Charity is not, what can there be availing? The devil believeth and loveth not, but there is no one that loveth and believeth not. Useless though it be, it is still possible for one that loveth not, to hope to be forgiven but for one that loveth it is impossible to give up hope. Therefore, where love is, there also must faith and hope needs be, and where there is love toward our neighbour there also must there needs be love toward God. For one that loveth not God, how can he love his neighbour as himself, seeing he hateth himself, for he is a blasphemous, wicked wretch, and the lover of wickedness is not the lover, but the deadly enemy of his own self.

- R. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- ψ. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: S. Symphorosa with her Seven Sons, Martyrs

Symphorosa was a woman of Tivoli, the wife of the martyr Getulius, unto whom she bore seven sons, named respectively, Crescentius, Julian, Nemesius, Primitivus, Justin, Stacteus, and Eugene, all of whom were arrested along with their mother, in nem una cum matre, Hadriano imperatore, comprehensi sunt. Quorum pietas, multis variisque tentata suppliciis, cum stabili permaneret, mater, quæ filii fidei magistra fuerat, dux eisdem ad martirium exstitit. Nam, saxo ad collum alligato, in profluentem dejicitur: cujus corpus, conquistum a fratre ejus Eugenio, sepelitur. Postridie ejus diei, qui fuit decimo quinto Kalendas Augusti, septem fratres singuli ad palum alligati, varie sunt interfeciti: Crescentio guttur ferro transfigitur; Julião pectus confoditur; Nemesio cor transverberatur; Primitivo trajectitur umbilicus; Justinus membratim secatur; Stacteus telis configitur; Eugenius a pectore in duas partes dividitur. Ita octo hostiæ Deo gratissimæ sunt immolatæ. Corpora in altissimam foveam projecta sunt via Tiburtina, nono ab Urbe lapide; quæ, postea Romam translata, condita sunt in ecclesia sancti Angeli in piscina.

the reign of the Emperor Hadrian, for professing the Christian faith. Their love was tried by many and diverse torments, and their mother who had taught them their religion, was their leader to martyrdom. A stone was tied round her neck and she was thrown into the river. Her body was found and buried by her brother Eugene. The next day, being the 18th of July, the seven brethren were tied each to a stake, and all put to death in diverse ways. Crescentius was stabbed in the throat, Julian in the breast, Nemesius in the heart, and Primitivus in the navel. Justin was hacked limb from limb. Stacteus was shot to death with darts. Eugene was cut into two parts across his breast, (from the head downwards.) Thus were these eight sacrifices of sweet savour offered up to God. Their bodies were thrown into a deep pit, on the road between Rome and Tivoli, at the ninth milestone from Rome, but were afterwards brought to Rome and buried in the Church of the Holy Angel-in-the-Fish-market.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Vincent de Paul was a Frenchman by nation, and was born at (Ranquines, in the parish of) Puy, not far from Dax in Gascony, (upon the 24th day of April, in the year of salvation 1576.) From a little child he showed remarkable charity towards the poor. His father removed him from keeping his cattle, in order to give him a school education, and he learnt earthly things at Dax, and theology both at Toulouse and at Saragossa. He took Priest's orders, and a degree in Divinity. (In 1605,) he was taken prisoner by Mahomedan pirates, who carried him off, and sold him for a slave in Africa. In his slavery he converted his owner, who was an apostate, back to Christ. Under the protection of the Mother of God, Vincent escaped from Barbary. He first visited the thresholds of the Apostles, and Moniálibus Visitationis a sancto Francisco Salesio præpositus, tanta prudéntia per annos circiter quadragínta eam curam sustinuit, ut maxime comprobaverit iudícium sanctíssimi præsulis, qui sacerdotem Vincentio digniorem nullum se nosse fatebátur.

He was appointed by the King, Chaplain General for the galleys of France, and worked with extraordinary zeal for the health of the souls both of those who commanded and of the convicts who rowed. He was made Superior of the Nuns of the Visitation by St Francis de Sales, and discharged this duty for about forty years, with a wisdom which so approved itself to the judgment of their holy Founder, that he was used to say he knew no worthier Priest than Vincent.

V. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

R. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

The preaching of the Gospel to the poor, especially peasants, was the work at which he toiled unweariably, till he was disabled by age. To this special work he bound himself and the members of the Congregation which he founded under the missionary Congregation of Secular Priests, by a perpetual vow approved by the Holy See. How great were his labours for bettering the discipline of the clergy, is attested by the building of Seminaries for the final education of young clerks, the number of meetings of Priests to discuss holy things, and the religious exercises preparatory to Ordination, for which, as well as for godly retreats by laymen, he wished that the houses belonging to his Institute should be always freely open. To spread wider the growth of faith and godliness, he sent his Gospel laborers not only into the several provinces of France, but also into Italy, Poland, Scotland, and Ireland, and also to Barbary and India. He assisted Lewis XIII. on his death-bed, and the Queen Anne of Austria, mother of Lewis XIV., put him upon the young King's Council of Conscience during the Regency, in which position it was his unceasing effort that none but the most worthy should be named to churches and monasteries, that civil contests, duels, and creeping false doctrines, from which himself shrank as soon as he Nullum fuit calamitátis genus, cui paterne non occurrerit. Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

There was no kind of misery which he did not strive with fatherly tenderness to relieve. Christians groaning in Mahommedan slavery, foundlings, deformed children, young maidens exposed to danger, houseless nuns, fallen women, convicts sent to the galleys, sick foreigners, disabled workmen, lunatics, and beggars without number, all these he relieved, and devoutly housed in diverse charitable institutions which remain to this day. When Lorraine, Champagne, Picardy, and other districts were desolated by plague, famine, and war, he made immense efforts for their relief. He founded many charitable societies, to find out and succour the unfortunate. Among these are remarkable that of Matrons, and that of Sisters of Charity which hath been so widely spread. By those of the Cross, of Providence, and of St. Guinevere he aimed at bringing up young girls as school - mistresses. Amid all these and other most anxious business-matters, he remained always looking simply to God, kind to all, true to himself, plain, upright, and lowly. From all honors, riches, and pleasures, he ever shrank, and was heard to say, that nothing gave him any pleasure, except in Christ Jesus, Whom it was his wish in all things to follow. With a body worn out with hardships, work, and old age, he gently fell asleep in the house of St. Lazarus at Paris, the chief house of the Congregation of the Missions, upon the 27th day of September, in the year of salvation 1660, and of his own age the 85th. He was famous on account of his life, his works, and his miracles, and Clement XII inscribed his name among those of the saints, appointing for his feast-day the 19th day of the month of July. Finally, at the earnest prayer of many prelates, Leo XIII. proclaimed and established this hero of charity, illustrious for his

Homília 17 in Evangelia

Dóminus et Salvátor noster, fratres caríssimi, aliquándo nos sermónibus, aliquándo vero opéribus ádmonet. Ipsa etenim facta ejus præcépta sunt: quia dum áliquíd tácitus facit, quid ágere debeámus innotéscit. Ecce enim binos in prædicatiónem discípulos mittit: quia duo sunt præcépta caritátis, Dei vidélicet amor, et próximi: et minus quam inter duos cáritas habéri non potest. Nemo enim próprie ad semetípsum habére caritátem díctur: sed diléctio in álterum tendit, ut cáritas esse possit.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

LUKE 10:1-9

At that time, the Lord appointed other seventy-two also, and sent them two and two before His face into every city and place, whither He Himself would come. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory (the Great.)

17th Homily on the Gospels

Dearly beloved brethren, our Lord and Saviour doth sometimes admonish us by words, and sometimes by works. Yea, His very works do themselves teach us for that which He doth silently His example still moveth us to copy. Behold how He sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two since there are two commandments to love, that is, a commandment to love God, and a commandment to love our neighbour and where there are not two, the one, being alone, hath not whereon to do the Lord's commandment. And no man can properly be said to love himself: for love tendeth outward toward our neighbour, if it be the love whereto the Gospel doth oblige us.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. *

laudávit Dóminum: * Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

✠. Ecce homo sine queréla, verus Dei cultor, ábstinens se ab omni ópere malo, et pérmanens in innocéntia sua.

✠. Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

LECTIO VIII

Ecce enim binos ad prædicándum discípulos Dóminus mittit: quátenus hoc nobis táctus innuat, quia qui caritátem erga álterum non habet, prædicatiónis offícium suscipere nullátenus debet. Bene autem dícitur, quia misit eos ante fáciem suam in omnem civitátem et locum, quo erat ipse ventúrus. Prædicatóres enim suos Dóminus séquitur: quia prædicatío prævenit, et tunc ad mentis nostræ habitáculum Dóminus venit, quando verba exhortatiónis præcúrrunt: atque per hoc véritas in mente suscipitur.

✠. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucérnæ ardéntes in mánibus vestris: * Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

✠. Vigilate ergo, quia nescitis qua hora Dóminus vester ventúrus sit.

✠. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

✠. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

LECTIO IX

Hinc namque eisdem prædicatóribus Isaías dicit: Paráte viam Dómini, rectas fácite sémitas Dei nostri. Hinc fíliis Psalmísta ait: Iter fácite ei, qui ascéndit super occásum. Super occásum namque Dóminus ascéndit: quia unde in passióne occúbuit, inde majórem suam glóriam resurgéndo manifestávit. Super occásum vidélicet ascéndit; quia mor-

May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

✠. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

✠. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Behold, the Lord sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two and thus doing, He doth silently teach us that whosoever loveth not his neighbour, such a one it behoveth not to take upon him the office of a preacher. Well also is it said that He sent them before His face into every city and place whither He Himself would come. The Lord followeth His preachers first cometh preaching, and then the Lord Himself cometh to the house of our mind, whither the word of exhortation hath come before and so cometh the truth into our mind.

✠. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

✠. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

✠. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

✠. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

Therefore, to preachers saith Isaiah: "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight an highway for our God." (xl. 3.) And again the Psalmist saith: "Spread a path before him that rideth upon the West." (lxvii. 4.) The Lord rideth upon the West above that from which in death He veiled His glory, hath He royally exalted that glory that excelleth, even the glory of His rising again. He rideth upon the West, Who, being risen again from the

S. Hieronymi Æmiliani Confessoris

St. Jerome Emiliani, Confessor

Duplex

Lectiones I–III: de Scriptura occurrente.

LECTIO IV

Hieronymus, e gente patrícia Æmiliáni Venetiis ortus, a prima adolescéntia militiæ addictus, difficillimis reipublicæ temporibus Casto novo ad Quarum in montibus Tarvisinis præficitur. Arce ab hostibus capta, ipse in teterrimum carcerem detrúditur, mámbus ac pédibus vinctus; cui omni humana ope destituto beatíssima Virgo, ejus precibus exorata, clemens adest, víncula solvit, et per médios hostes, qui vias omnes obséderant, in Tarvisii conspéctum incólumum ducit. Urbem ingressus, ad Deíparæ aram, cui se voverat, mánicas, compedes, catenas, quas secum detulerat, in accepti beneficii testimónium suspendit. Reversus Venetias, cœpit pietátis stúdia impensius cólere, in páuperes mire effúsus, sed puerórum præsertim misértus, qui paréntibus orbat, egeni et sórdidi per urbem vagabántur; quos in ædes a se conductas recepit de suo alendos, et christiánis móribus imbuéndos.

R. Honéstum fecit illum Dóminus, et custodívit eum ab inimícis, et a seductóribus tutávit illum: * Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

This Jerome was born at Venice, of the Patrician family of the Miani, (in the year of our Lord 1481.) He was trained up to be a soldier, and (in 1508,) in the most troublesome times of the Commonwealth, he commanded the fortress of Castelnovo at Quero, in the mountains near Treviso. After the fall of the place, he was chained hand and foot, and cast into a filthy prison. When all hope of help from man had forsaken him, the Most Blessed Virgin, in answer to his prayers, mercifully came to him, loosed his fetters, and brought him unhurt within sight of Treviso, through the midst of the enemy, who kept all the roads. As soon as he entered the city of Treviso, as an acknowledgment of the favour he had received, he hung up his chains, which he had brought away with him, at an Altar of the Mother of God, to whom he had vowed himself. After his return to Venice he gave himself up to godly works. Amid his great tenderness to all the poor, his compassion was chiefly roused by the fatherless little boys who wandered through the city starving and filthy; them he took into an house conducted by himself, where at his own cost he provided them with board, lodging, clothing, and a Christian education.

R. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.

✠. Justum deduxit Dóminus per vias rectas, et osténdit illi regnum Dei.

℟. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

LECTIO V

Per eos dies Venetias appúlerant beátus Cajetanús et Petrus Caráfa (postmodum Paulus quartus), qui, Hierónymi spíritu novoque instituto colligéndi órphanos probato, illum in Incurábiliúm hospitale adduxérunt, in quo órphanos simul educaret, atque ægrotis pari caritate inservíret. Mox eorúmdem hortatu in próxíam continentem profectus, Brixíæ primum, deínde Bérghomi atque Novocómi orphanotróphia eréxit: Bérghomi præsertim, ubi præter duo, pro púeris unum et pro puellis álterum, domum excipiendis, novo in illis regiónibus exemplo, muliéribus a turpi vita ad pœniténtiam conversis, apéruit. ✠. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

In those days there came to Venice blessed Cajetan (of Tiene,) and Peter Carafa, who was afterwards Paul IV. They were pleased with the spirit of Jerome, and with his new Asylum for Orphans, and took him to the Hospital for Incurables, as well to bring up Orphans, as to extend his charity equally to the sick. Soon after, by the advice of the same, he went to the mainland, and built orphanages first at Brescia, then at Bergamo and Como. His chief foundations were at Bergamo, where besides an orphanage for little boys, and another for little girls, he opened an house of Refuge for repentant harlots, being the first institution of that kind in that part of the world. In the end he went to dwell at Somascha, a hamlet in the district of Bergamo, close to the frontiers of the Venetian territory, and there made an house for himself and his disciples, and gave shape to a congregation, which is generally called the Congregation of Somascha. This congregation grew and spread, and found its work not only in the education of orphans and the service of Churches, but also in a wider usefulness to the Christian Commonwealth, by training up lads in letters and good manners. Holy Pius V. enrolled it among the religious Orders, and other Popes have given it diverse privileges.

℟. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

✠. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℟. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

Jerome went to Milan and to Ticino to gather orphans together, and in both places he gathered a multitude of little boys for whom the charity of noblemen enabled him to provide board, lodging, clothes, and schooling. He returned to Somascha, and, still making himself all things to all men, refused no toil by which he saw that he could be of

In monte, qui Somaschæ imminet, repérta specu, in illam se ábdidit; ubi, se flagellis cædens, dies integros jejunos tránsigens, oratióne in plurimum noctem protracta, super nudo saxo brevem somnum carpens, sui aliorúmque noxárum pœnas luebat. any use to his neighbour. He was used to go about in the fields, helping the reapers in their work, and meanwhile teaching them in the mysteries of the faith. He was very patient in cleansing and healing the heads of little boys foul with lice, and proved so successful a physician to the stinking sores of the poor country-people, that he got a reputation for having the gift of healing. He found a cave in the mountain which hangs over Somascha, and there he would hide himself, passing whole days without meat or drink, and oftentimes scourging himself, continuing in prayer long into the night, and taking his short sleep upon the bare rock, in expiation of his own sins and the sins of others. In the far end of this cave, there drippeth out of the dry stone some water, which is said by an unwavering tradition to have come there at the prayers of the man of God. It droppeth freely even to this day, and is taken to diverse places at a distance, where it often hath an healing effect upon the sick. At length an infectious disorder broke out in all the valley, and Jerome, who nursed the sick and carried the dead to burial on his own shoulders, caught it, and died a precious death, as he had himself foretold, (upon the 8th day of February,) in the fifty-seventh year of his age, and that of salvation 1537. He was famous for many miracles, both during his life and after his death Benedict X. solemnly enrolled his name among those of the Blessed, and Clement XIII inserted it in the Kalendar of the Saints.

At that time, there were brought unto Jesus little children that He should put His Hands on them, and pray. And so on.

Homily by St. John Chrysostom, Patriarch of Constantinople.

Homily on Matthew

Wherefore did the disciples rebuke them that brought them? From an idea of His dignity. What therefore did He To teach them to be lowly, and to be above the niceness of the world, He took the little children, and embraced them in His Arms, and declared that of such is the kingdom of heaven as also He had said above, (xviii. 3, 4.) And we also, if we would fain be heirs of the kingdom of heaven, let us seek with great earnestness this virtue. For this is the highest peak of philosophy, to be simple and wise this is the life of an Angel. The mind of a little child is free from all the diseases of the mind a little child keepeth no remembrance of injuries, but goeth unto such as have inflicted them, as if unto friends, and as if nothing had happened. Although his mother give him stripes, yet a little child ever seeketh her, and putteth her before all.

LESSON VIII

If thou wert to show him a Queen adorned with her crown, he would not prefer her before his own mother, in raiment how faded soever, and he would rather see her, albeit unkempt, than the Queen in all her glorious apparel. For his use is to account of things whether they be his own, or of others, not by the standard of poverty and riches, but by that of love only. He seeketh no more than he needeth. When he is satisfied with milk, he leaveth the pap. LESSON IX

The Pharisees' usual springs of action were spite and vanity; therefore doth the Lord everywhere command His disciples to be simple, and in teaching the one, pointeth silently at the other class.
Nothing breedeth pride so much as principedom and precedence. Since, then, His disciples were to receive much honour throughout all the world,
He warneth their minds beforehand, and letteth them not stumble into the snare of men, nor go seeking for honours from the mob, nor put themselves forward before others. It is true, these may seem little things, but they give occasion for very great evils. It was when they were placed in these positions, that the Pharisees fell into their direst misfortunes from looking for salutations, and foremost or good places, they got into a keen desire of distinction, and from that into ungodliness.

This Praxedes was a maiden of Rome, and the sister of the maiden Pudentiana. When the Emperor Marcus Antoninus was hunting down the Christians, she followed them constantly with money, labour, comfort, and every helpful office of Christian charity. Some she hid in her house, some she exhorted to firmness in professing the faith, of some she buried the bodies. For them that were in prison, and them that were toiling in slavery, she supplied every need. At last the sight of such butchery of Christians was more than she could bear, and she implored God that if it were expedient for her to die, He would release her from such suffering. And so upon the 21st day of July she was called away to receive the reward of her godly conversation in heaven. Pastor the Priest laid her body in the grave of her father (Pudens) and her sister Pudentiana, which was in the cemetery of Priscilla, upon the Salarian Way.

the week, they came unto the sepulchre, at the rising of the sun; and, entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting upon the right side, who saith unto them:

risen, as He said: He goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see Him.

Into my mother's house: there thou shalt teach new wine of my pomegranates. His left hand un-

And while as I was weeping at the Sepulchre, I saw the Lord.

Ÿ. When His disciples were gone away, I tarried still; and the fire of love in my heart yearned after Him.

R. And while as I was weeping at the Sepulchre, I thee. Put me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thy arm, for love is strong as death, jealousy as hard as hell, the lamps thereof are fire and flames. Many waters cannot quench charity, neither can the floods drown it: if a man should give all the substance of his house for love, he shall despise it as nothing.

℞. They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him. The Angels say unto her: Woman, why weepest thou? He is risen, as He said. * He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him.

℣. And as she wept, she stooped down and looked into the Sepulchre, and saw two Angels in white, sitting; and they say unto her:

℞. He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him.

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of Pope St. Gregory (the Great.)
25th on the Gospels.*

Mary Magdalen, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, through love of the truth, washed away in her tears the defilement of her sins, and the words of the Truth are fulfilled which He spake: Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much. She who had remained chilly in sin, became fiery through love. When even His disciples went away again unto their own home, Mary still stood without at the sepulchre of Christ, weeping. She sought Him Whom her soul loved, but she found Him not. She searched for Him with tears; she yearned with strong desire for Him Who, she believed, had been taken away. And thus it befell her, that being the only one who had remained to seek Him, she was the only one that saw Him. It is the truth that the backbone of a good work is perseverance.

℞. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness; * And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

✠. Spécie tua et pulchritudine tua inténde, prospere procéde, et regna.

℞. Et dedúcet te mirábiliter dextera tua.

LECTIO V

Quæsívit ergo prius, et mínime invénit: perseverávit ut quæreret, unde et cóntigit ut inveníret: actúmque est, ut desidéria diláta crescerent, et crescéntia cáperent quod invenís-sent. Hinc est enim quod de eódem sponsa Ecclésia in Cánticis canticórum dicit: In léctulo meo per noctes quæsívi quem díligit ánima mea. Diléctum namque in léctulo quærimus, quando, in præsentis vitæ aliquántula réquie. Redemptóris nostri desidério suspirámus. Per noctem quærimus: quia, etsi jam in illo mens vígilat, tamen adhuc óculus calígat.

℞. Dilexísti justítiam, et odísti iniquitátem:
* Proptérea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus,
óleo lætítiæ.

✠. Propter veritátem, et mansuetúdinem, et justítiam.

℞. Proptérea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus, óleo lætítiæ.

LECTIO VI

Sed, qui diléctum suum non invénit, restat ut surgat, civitátem circúmeat, id est, sanctam electórum Ecclésiám mente et inquisitione percúrrat; per vicos eum et platéas quærat, id est, per angústa et lata gradiéntes aspíciat, ut, si qua inveníre in eis váleat, ejus vestígia exquirat: quia sunt nonnúl-li étiam vitæ sæculáris, qui imitándum áliquid hábeant de actióne virtútis. Quæréntes autem nos vígiles invéniunt, qui custódiunt civitátem: quia sancti Patres, qui Ecclésiæ statum custódiunt, bonis nostris stúdiis occúrrunt, ut suo vel verbo vel scripto nos dóceant. Quos cum páululum pertransímus, invenímus quem díligimus: quia Redémptor noster, etsi humilitáte homo inter hómines, divinitáte tamen super hómines fuit.

✠. In thy comeliness, and thy beauty, go forward, fare prosperously, and reign.

℞. And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

LESSON V

At first when she sought Him, she found Him not; she went on searching, and so it came to pass that she found Him; and this was so, to the end that her longing might grow in earnestness, and so in its earnestness might find what it sought. Hence is it that the Bride in the Song of Songs saith as representing the Church: By night on my bed I sought him whom my soul loveth. We seek on our bed for Him Whom our soul loveth, when, having got some little rest in this world, we still sigh for the Presence of our Redeemer but it is by night that we so seek Him, for though our mind may be on the alert for Him, yet still He is hidden from our eyes by the darkness that now is.

℞. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; * Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

✠. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness.

℞. Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

LESSON VI

But if we find not Him Whom our soul loveth, it remaineth that we should rise and go about the city, that is, by thought and questioning, go through the holy Church of the elect seek Him in the streets, and in the broad ways, that is, walk anxiously looking about us both in the narrow and the broad places, that if we can, we may find His footsteps there for there are some even of those who live for the world, from whom something may be learnt to be imitated by a godly man. As we thus go wakefully about, the watchmen, that keep the city, find us; the holy Fathers, who are the watchmen of the bulwarks of the Church, come to meet our good endeavours, and to teach us either by their words or by their writings. And it needeth but a little to pass from them, but we find Him Whom our soul loveth (a little we must pass,) for albeit our Redeemer in lowliness became a man

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 7:36-50

At that time One of the Pharisees desired Jesus that He would eat with him. And He went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo.)

Bk. 1. Hom. 23, tom. x.

Ye have listened carefully to the Gospel while it was being read, so that the thing told hath, as it were, passed before the eyes of your heart. Ye have seen in your mind's eye, albeit not with bodily sight, the Lord Jesus Christ sitting down to meat in the Pharisee's house, and not refusing when He is bidden of him. Ye have seen also an infamous woman of the city, one of utterly bad character, a sinner, thrusting herself in an uninvited guest, to the banquet where her Healer was sitting, and seeking health at His hands with godly shamelessness;
thrusting herself in eager for mercy, as though eager for the feast. She knew under what a disease she laboured, and she knew that He unto Whom she came was mighty to cure it.

℟. She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness. She looketh well to the ways of her household * And eateth not the bread of idleness.

℣. She tasteth and perceiveth that her merchandise is good. Her candle goeth not out by night.

℟. And she eateth not the bread of idleness.

Unde scis Dóminum nescisse, quæ fúerit illa mulíer, nisi quia permíssa est accédere, nisi quia, illo patiénte, osculáta est pedes ejus, nisi quia tersit, nisi quia unxit? Hæc enim non débuit permítti fácere in pédibus mundis mulíer immúnda? Ad illús ergo pharisæi pedes si talis mulíer accessisset, dictúrus erat, quod Isaías de talibus dicit: Recéde a me, noli me tângere, quóniam

LESSON VIII

She drew near therefore, not unto the Lord's Head, but unto His Feet. She that had so long walked the paths of sin betook her unto the Feet that went about doing good. She first poured forth heart-felt tears, and washed the Lord's Feet with the humble service of her acknowledgment, wiped them with her hair, kissed them, and anointed them. Her silence cried aloud, next in words but in manifested love. The Pharisee, who had desired the Lord Jesus Christ that He would eat with him, belonged to that class of proud men concerning whom the Prophet Isaiah saith people which say, Stand by thyself, come not near to me; for I am holier than thou. (lxv. 5.) When therefore he saw how this woman touched the Lord's Feet with her tears, her kisses, her hair, and her ointment, he spake within himself, saying This Man, if He were a Prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is, that toucheth Him; for she is a sinner.

- ℟. The kingdom of this world and all the beauty of life I have esteemed as nothing, for the excellency of the love of Jesus Christ my Lord * believed, I longed after.

LESSON IX

Pharisee, that biddest and scornest the Lord! Thou invitest the Lord to meat, and thou knowest not Him That should have given thee to eat! Whence knowest thou that the Lord knoweth not who and what manner of woman this is, save from this, that she is allowed to draw near unto Him, and that He suffereth her to kiss His Feet, to wipe them, and to anoint them? Ought not an unclean woman to have been permitted to do these things to clean feet? If such a woman had drawn near to the feet of this Pharisee, he would have said to her mundus sum. Accessit autem ad Dóminum immúnda, ut redíret munda; accessit ægra, ut redíret sana; accessit confessa, ut redíret professa.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Apollinaris came from Antioch to Rome with the Prince of the Apostles, and was by him ordained a Bishop, and sent to Ravenna to preach the Gospel of the Lord Christ. He had already converted a great number of persons to the Christian Faith, when the idolatrous priests caught him and gave him a sharp flogging. A second riot was got up against him on account of one Boniface, a nobleman who had long been dumb, speaking, and his daughter being delivered from an unclean spirit. On this occasion Apollinaris was flogged again, and made to walk barefoot over hot embers. The fire did him no harm, and he was expelled from the city.

℟. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him, * And gave him perpetual glory.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

Apollinaris lay hid for a while with certain Christians. Thence he went to Emilia, where he restored to life the dead daughter of the Patrician Rufinus, so that the whole household of Rufinus might believe in Jesus Christ. This affair greatly incensed the Praefect, who sent for Apollinaris, and earnestly dealt with him to induce him to cease

Re cógnita, satélites eum persequúntur, et plagis in itinere confectum, quod mortuum crederent, relinquunt. spreading the Christian Faith in that city. As Apollinaris paid no heed to the Prefect's orders, he was tortured on the rack, boiling water poured on his wounds, and his mouth bruised with a stone, after which he was ironed and cast into prison. On the fourth day he was put on board a ship and sent into banishment. The ship was wrecked, and he so came to Mysia, thence to the shores of the Danube, and afterwards into Thrace.

R. Lord, Thou hast given him his heart's desire. *
And hast not withholden the request of his lips.

ψ. For Thou hast prevented him with the blessings of sweetness: Thou hast set a crown of precious stones upon his head.

R. And hast not withholden the request of his lips.

LESSON VI

However, the devil in the temple of Serapis declared that he could not give oracles, while the disciple of the Apostle Peter abode in these parts, and after a long search Apollinaris was found and commanded again to take ship. Thus he went back to Ravenna, where he was denounced by the same idolatrous priests as before, and given into the keeping of a centurion. This centurion was a secret worshipper of Christ, and in the night he let Apollinaris go. When it became known some of the officers of justice followed after him, caught him on the road, beat him till they thought he was dead, and left him. Some Christians took him up, but on the seventh day, still exhorting them to stand firm in the Faith, he departed this life with the glorious splendour of martyrdom. His body was buried hard by the wall of the city.

R. The Lord hath put on him a robe of honour, *
And put about his head a crown of joy.

the Lord fed him, and given him the water of

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 22:24-30

At that time There was a strife among the disciples, which of them should be accounted the greatest. And so on.

Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop (of Milan.)

Bk. x. on Luke xxii.

My kingdom, our God hath said, is not of this world. (John xviii. 36.) Man, then, must strive, not to be equal with God, but to be like unto God. Christ alone is the full image of God, as being the brightness of His Father's glory, and the express image of His Person. (Heb. i. 3.) But the righteous man is made after the image of God, in so far as, for the sake of following the example of his God, he, through knowledge of God, setteth no esteem upon this world, and looketh down upon all carnal motions of the will, through having taken in that Word whereby we are fed unto life everlasting and this is the end whereto we eat the Body of Christ, namely, that we may have eternal life. (John vi. 50.)

℞. A crown of gold upon his head, * Wherein is engraved Holiness, an ornament of honour, a costly work.

✠. For Thou hast prevented him with the blessings of sweetness, Thou hast set a crown of precious stones upon his head.

℞. Wherein is engraved Holiness, an ornament of honour, a costly work.

LESSON VIII

The reward which is promised unto us is not meat and drink, but a part in that grace and that life which come down from heaven. Neither are the twelve thrones ~ (Matth. xix. 28) to be understood as meaning chairs for bodies to sit in, but as meaning a dignity like that of God Himself, wherein they that have left all and followed Christ shall judge as Christ doth, not by dint of cross-examinations, but by simple knowledge of the heart, rewarding the good, and condemning the evil. Thus are the Apostles erected into a ghostly tribunal, for the rewarding of faith and the cursing perfidia, virtute errorem redarguentes, sacrilegos odio persequentes.

R. Hic est vere Martyr, qui pro Christi nomine sanguinem suum fudit: * Qui minas iudicium non timuit, nec terrenae dignitatis gloriam quaesivit, sed ad caelestia regna pervenit.

V. Justum deduxit Dominus per vias rectas, et ostendit illi regnum Dei.

R. Qui minas iudicium non timuit, nec terrenae dignitatis gloriam quaesivit, sed ad caelestia regna pervenit.

V. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

R. Qui minas iudicium non timuit, nec terrenae dignitatis gloriam quaesivit, sed ad caelestia regna pervenit.

LECTIO IX

Convertamur igitur, et caveamus, ne in perditionem aliqua inter nos de praelatione possit esse contentio. Si enim contendebant Apostoli, non excusationi obtenditur, sed cautioni proponitur. Si Petrus aliquando convertitur, qui ad primam Domini secutus est vocem; quis potest dicere, cito se esse conversum? Cave ergo jactantiam, cave saeculum. Ille enim confirmare iubetur fratres suos, qui dixit: Omnia dimisimus, et secuti sumus te.

of unbelief, by their might breaking back errors, and laying upon blasphemers the just punishment of hatred.

R. This is a Martyr indeed, who shed his blood for Christ's Name's sake * Who feared not for the threats of judges, nor sought to be great with the glory of this world, but pressed on unto the kingdom of heaven.

V. The Lord guided the righteous in right paths, and showed him the kingdom of God.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Who feared not for the threats of judges, nor sought to be great with the glory of this world, but pressed on unto the kingdom of heaven.

LESSON IX

Let us, then, turn about, and look well to it that there be no strife among us, which of us shall be accounted the greatest. That this strife arose among the Apostles, is not an excuse but a caution for us. If it was only after a while that Peter was converted Peter, who had started up at the first command of the Lord who can promise himself to be converted forthwith? Have a care, then, of boasting; have a care of the world. He who was commanded to strengthen his brethren (Luke xxii. 32) was he who was able to say, Behold, we have forsaken all, and have followed thee. (Matth. xix. 27.)

LESSON IV

Jacobus, Zebedæi filius, Joannis Apóstoli germánus frater, Galilæus, inter primos Apóstolos vocátus cum fratre, relíctis patre ac rétibus, secútus est Dóminum, et ambo ab ipso Jesu Boanérges, id est, tonítrui filii sunt appelláti. Is unus fuit ex tribus Apóstolis, quos Salvátor máxime diléxit, et testes esse voluit suæ transfiguratiónis, et interésse miraculo cum archisynagógi fíliam a mórtuis excitávit, et adesse cum secéssit in montem Olivéti, Patrem oratúrus, ántequam a Judæis comprehenderétur.

James, the Son of Zebedee and brother of the Apostle John, was a Galilean, and with his brother one of the first of His Apostles whom the Lord called, whileas they were in a ship with Zebedee their father, mending their nets and they immediately left the ship, and their father, and followed Him. (Matth. iv. 21, 22.) And He surnamed them Boanerges, which is, The sons of thunder. (Mark iii. 17.) Peter, and James, and John, were the three Apostles whom the Saviour loved best; them He took and brought up into an high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them, (Matth. xvii. 1, 2;) when He went to the house of the ruler of the synagogue to raise his daughter from the dead, He suffered no man to follow Him save Peter, and James, and John, (Mark v. 37;) and, at the last, just before the Jews took Him, when He cometh unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples: Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder. He took with Him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee. (Matth. xxvi. 36, 37.)

℟. Vidi conjúctos viros, habéntes spléndidas vestes, et Ángelus Dómini locútus est ad me, dicens: * Isti sunt viri sancti facti amíci Dei.

℟. I saw men standing together, clad in shining raiment, and the Angel of the Lord spoke unto me, saying: * These men are holy, for they are the friends of God.

℣. Vidi Ángelum Dei fortem, volántem per médium cælum, voce magna clamántem et dicéntem.

℣. I saw a strong Angel of God fly into the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice:

℟. Isti sunt viri sancti facti amíci Dei.

℟. These men are holy, for they are the friends of God.

After that Jesus Christ was ascended into heaven, James preached how that He was God, and led many in Judæa and Samaria to the Christian Faith. A while afterward, he went to Spain, and there he brought some to Christ, of whom seven were afterwards ordained Bishops by Blessed Peter, and were the first such sent into that country. From Spain James went back to Jerusalem, where he taught the Faith to diverse persons, and, among others, to the Magician Hermogenes. Thereupon Herod Agrippa, who had been raised to the kingdom under the Emperor Claudius, to curry favour with the Jews, condemned James to death for his firm confession that Jesus Christ is God. The officer who led James to the judgment-seat, at sight of the courage wherewith he was ready to offer up his testimony, declared himself also to be a Christian.

R. Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake; * Rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven.

ψ. When men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of Man's sake.

R. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven.

LESSON VI

As they were being hurried to execution, this man asked pardon of James, and the Apostle kissed him, saying, Peace be unto thee. James healed a paralytic, and immediately afterwards both the prisoners were beheaded. The body of the Apostle was afterwards taken to Compostella, (in the province of Galicia, in Spain,) where his grave is very famous. Multitudes of pilgrims from all parts of the earth betake themselves thither to pray, out of sheer piety or in fulfilment of vows. The Birthday of James is kept by the Church upon this day, which is that of the bringing of his body to Compostella. It was about Easter-time (Acts xii. 2-4) that he bore witness to Jesus Christ with his blood, at Jerusalem, being the first of the Apostles to do so.

R. These are they which have conquered, and are become the friends of God, who recked not of the commandments of princes, and earned the everlasting reward. * And now have they crowns on their heads, and palms in their hands.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 20:20-23

At that time, came to Jesus the mother of Zebedee's children, with her sons, worshipping Him, and desiring a certain thing of Him. And so on.

Homily by St. John Chrysostom 66th on Matth.

Let no man be troubled if we say that the Apostles were still imperfect, for the mystery of the Cross was not yet finished, the grace of the Spirit had not yet been shed abroad in their hearts. If thou wilt behold them in their strength, consider them such as they became after the grace of the Spirit was given them, and thou wilt perceive that they had trodden under foot every vain desire. This is the cause wherefore their present imperfection is made known unto us, that is, that thou mayest see how great a change could be forthwith wrought by grace. But nevertheless let us now look how they came unto Christ, and what they said. Master, they said, we would that Thou shouldest do for us whatsoever we shall desire. (Mark x. 35.) And He said unto them: What would ye that I should do for you? (Mark X. 36.) not, surely, that He knew not what their wish was, but that He would make them answer, and so uncover the wound, to lay a plaster upon it.

- R. These are they who while yet they lived in the flesh, planted the Church in their own blood; *
They drank of the Lord's cup, and became the friends of God.

- V. Their sound is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.

R. Cálicem Dómini bibérunt, et amíci Dei facti sunt.

R. They drank of the Lord's cup, and became the friends of God.

LESSON VIII

Their wish proceeded from earthly motives, and they were shy and ashamed to express it, and therefore they took Christ apart, and so asked Him. The Evangelist saith: For they were gone apart, that they might not be discovered of them and then they told Him what they sought. To me it seemeth most likely that they had heard how that the disciples should sit upon twelve thrones; they were fain to obtain for themselves the chiefest places at this enthronement; they knew that the Lord loved them better than the most of the others; but they feared that Peter would still be preferred before them; and therefore they made bold to say: Grant unto us that we may sit, one at thy right Hand, and the other at thy left Hand, in thy glory. (Mark x. 37.) They were even instant with Him, saying: Say that we may. And what answered He? To show that they were asking no spiritual gift, nor even knew for themselves what they were asking, nor would have asked it if they had known what it was, Jesus said unto them: Ye know not what ye ask, ye know not how great a thing, how wonderful a thing this is, a thing which even is not Mine to give.

R. These men are saints, whom the Lord hath chosen in love unfeigned, and hath given them glory everlasting. These are they * By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

of reward, neither is My glory immediately to be revealed; but now death and danger are present with you. But consider how, by the manner of His questioning, He doth both exhort and invite them. He saith not Are ye able to bear death? Are ye able to shed your blood? but: How are ye able to drink the cup whereto He presently inviteth them, saying: the cup that I shall drink of; that He may make them readier for the strife by knowing that it is a strife which they are to share with Him.

ac lætum fecunditátis vestem índui. Con-gaúdeat mecum hódie Anna illa, Phenénne adversária, et novum hoc atque inopinátum

LESSON IV

*From the Sermons of St. John of Damascus
2nd on the Birth of the Blessed Virgin*

The home of Anne is set before us, wherein to see an example both of married and of maiden life, the one in the person of the mother, the other in that of the daughter, whereof the one hath but now ceased to be barren, and the other is in a little while destined, beyond the course of nature, to become the Mother of the Messiah by a singular birth, specially designed by God to build up anew our nature. It is with reason then that Anne, filled with the Holy Ghost, with joyful and jubilant spirit singeth aloud: Rejoice with me, for out of my barren womb I have borne the bud of promise, and, as I have longed, I nourish at my breasts the fruit of benediction. I have laid aside the mournful garments of barrenness, and put on the joyful raiment of fruitfulness. Let Hannah the adversary of Peninnah make merry with me, and miráculum, quod in me gestum est, suo exemplo concélebrēt.

R. Propter veritátem, et mansuetúdinem, et justítiam: * Et dedúcet te mirabíliter délixtera tua.

Ÿ. Spécie tua et pulchritúde tua inténde, prósperē procéde, et regna.

R. Et dedúcet te mirabíliter délxtera tua.

LECTIO V

Exsúltet Sara, seníli gáudio géstiens, meúmque ab sterilitáte concéptum præfigúrans.
Cóncinant simul stériles et infecúndæ visita-tiónem meam, admirábili modo cælitus factam. Dicant item matres omnes hac fecunditate prædítæ: Benedíctus, qui orántibus id quod optábant, largítus est, et fecunditátem stérili dedit, ac felicíssimum illud germen Vírginis concéssit, quæ Mater Dei secúndum carnem fuit, cujus venter cælum est, in qua habítávit is qui nullo loco capi potest. Cón-sonam his nos quoque ipsi, quæ vocabátur sterilis nunc autem virgínei thálami mater éxstitit, laudem offerámus. Dicámus ad eam cum Scriptúra: Quam beáta domus David, ex qua prodiísti, et venter, in quo Deus sanc-tificatiónis arcam, hoc est, eam a qua ipse sine semine concéptus est, fabricávit.

R. Diléxísti justítiam, et odísti iniquitátem:
* Proptérea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus,
óleo lætítiæ.

Ÿ. Propter veritátem, et mansuetúdinem, et justítiam.

R. Proptérea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus, óleo lætítiæ.

LECTIO VI

Vere beáta es, ac ter beáta, quæ beatitúde donátam a Deo infántem, hoc est, Maríam, nómine quoque ipso magnópere venerán-dam, peperísti; ex qua Christus vitæ flos éx-join with me for fellow-feeling, in singing of this new and unhopéd-for wonder that is wrought in me.

R. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness; * And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

Ÿ. In thy comeliness, and thy beauty, go forward,
fare prosperously, and reign.

R. And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

LESSON V

Let Sarah be glad that was joyfully pregnant in her old age, and was a shadow cast before of my conception that hitherto have been barren. Let all the barren and fruitless break forth into singing, when they behold in what wondrous wise I have been visited from heaven. Let all mothers likewise, that like Anne are gifted with fruitfulness, say:
Blessed be He That gave their desire unto them that besought Him, That gave fruitfulness unto her that was barren, and That granted unto her that from her should bud forth the joy-bringing Virgin, who, according to the flesh, was Mother of God, and whose womb was a heaven wherein He dwelt Whom no place can contain. Let us also with them offer our praises to her that was called barren, but now is become the mother of a maid-child; let us say unto her in the words of the Scripture: O how blessed is the house of David from whence thou art sprung, and that womb wherein God hath fashioned the ark of His holiness, that is, her, by whom He was Himself conceived without man's seed.

R. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; * Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

Ÿ. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness.

R. Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

LESSON VI

Blessed art thou, and thrice blessed, whom God hath so blessed as to make thee to bring forth, as His own gift, the babe Mary, whose very name is highly honourable, out of whom Christ, the Flower of life, blossomed a maiden whose rising is stitit, cujus Vírginis et gloriósius fuit ortus, et partus mundo sublímior. Nos quoque, o beatíssima fémina, tibi gratulámur; étenim nostrum ómnium spem divínitus concéssam, hoc est, promissiónis foetum peperísti. Beáta revéra es, et beátus fructus ventris tui. Piórum autem lingua germen tuum magnificat, ac sermo omnis lætus partum tuum prædicat. Dignum sane quidem, ac máxime dignum est eam laudáre, quæ divína benignitaté oráculum accépit, ac talem et tantum nobis fructum édedit, ex quo dulcis Jesus pródiit.

In sooth thou hast brought forth what we have all hoped for, and God hath given us, namely, the babe of promise. Blessed indeed art thou, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb. The tongues of all the godly do magnify thine offspring, and every glad word is spoken concerning her of whom thou art delivered. LESSON III (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

This Pantaleon was of a noble family of Nicomedia, and was a physician by trade. Hermolaus the Priest taught him well the faith of Jesus Christ, and he was baptized. A little while after, he persuaded his father Eustorgius to become a Christian. He afterwards duly preached the Faith of the Lord Christ at Nicomedia, and exhorted all to embrace His doctrine. For this he was tortured under the Emperor Diocletian, first on the rack, and then by putting red-hot metal to his body. He bore all the bitterness of his torments with a quiet and brave heart, and at last received the stroke of the sword, and grasped the crown of martyrdom.

LESSON IV

Nazarius was baptized by the blessed Pope Linus, and afterwards went to Gaul. There he met with the boy Celsus, whom he instructed in the Christian law, and baptized. They went together to Trier, and, in the persecution under Nero, were both thrown into the sea, from which they had a marvellous escape. Later on, they came to Milan, where they spread the Faith of Christ, and as they remained firm in declaring that He is God, the Præfect Anolinus had them beheaded. Their bodies were buried outside the Roman gate, and lay long unknown, till, by a revelation from God, Blessed Ambrose found them, smeared with fresh blood, as though they had only a short time undergone martyrdom. They were taken up from thence, carried into the city, and laid in an honourable sepulchre.

℟. thy Saints, O Lord, have passed a wonderful way, serving thy commandments, that they might be found without hurt in the midst of the mighty waters. * Dry land appeared, and, out of the Red Sea, a way without impediment.

℣. He smote the rock, and the waters gushed out, and the streams overflowed.

℟. Dry land appeared, and, out of the Red Sea, a way without impediment.

LESSON V

Victor was by birth an African, and governed the Church in the time of the Emperor Severus. He confirmed the decree of Pius I that the Holy Passover should be kept upon the Lord's Day. To bring this rule into use, Councils were held in many places, and in the First Synod of Nice it was decided that the Holy Passover Day should be kept after the 14th day of the month (Nisan), lest the Innocentius Albanénsis, sancti Hierónymi et Augustíni ætate flóruit. De quo ille ad Demetriádem vírginem: Sancti Innocéntii, qui apostolicæ cathedræ et beátæ memóriæ Anastasii successor et filius est, teneas fidem nec peregrinam, quamvis tibi prudens callídaque videaris, doctrinam recipias. Eum, tamquam justum Lot subtractum Dei providéntia, ad Ravennam servátum fuisse, scribit Orósius, ne Romani pópuli vidéret excidium. Is, Pelagius et Cælestio damnatis, contra eórum hæresim decretum fecit, ut párvuli, ex christiana étiam muliere nati, per baptismum renasci debérent; ut in eis regeneratióne mundétur, quod generatióne contraxérunt. Probávit etiam, ut Sábbato, ob memóriam Christi Dómini sepultúræ jejunium servaréetur. Sedit annos quíndecim, mensem unum, dies decem. Quatuor ordinatióibus, mense Decembri, creávit presbyteros trigínta, diaconos quíndecim, episcopos per diversa loca quinquagínta quatuor. Sepultus est in cœmeterio ad Ursum pileátum.

Christians should seem to be copying the Jews. Victor decided that if need be, baptism can be administered with any water, as long as it be natural. He cast out of the Church Theodotus the tanner, of Constantinople, who taught that Christ was nothing but a man. He wrote upon the subject of the Passover, and some other small works. He held two Ordinations in the month of December, wherein he ordained four Priests, seven Deacons, and twelve Bishops for diverse places. He received the crown of his testimony, and was buried at the Vatican on the 28th day of July, (in the year of our Lord 197.) He sat in the throne of Peter nine years, one month, and twenty-eight days.

LESSON VI

Innocent of Albano flourished in the time of St. Jerome and St. Augustine. Concerning him, St. Jerome saith, writing to Demetrius: Keep firm hold on the faith of holy Innocent, who is the heir and the child of the Apostolic See, and of Anastasius of blessed memory, and receive not any strange doctrine, how wise and acute soever thou mayest count thyself. Orosius writeth that God kept Innocent at Ravenna that he might not see the destruction of the Roman people, even as righteous Lot was withdrawn by God's Providence (from being at the burning of Sodom.) He condemned Pelagius and Caelestius, and made a decree against their heresy, that little children, even those whose mother was a Christian, must be born again in baptism, that the new birth may wash away in them the stain which they have contracted in their conception. He approved also that a Fast should be kept upon Saturday in memory of the Lord Christ's lying in the grave on that day. He sat in the throne of Peter fifteen years, one month, and ten days. He held four Ordinations in the month of December, and made therein thirty Priests, fifteen Deacons, and forty-four Bishops for diverse Lectiones I–III: de Scriptura occurrente.

LECTIO IV

Martha, nobilibus et copiosis parentibus nata, sed Christi Domini hospitio clarior, post ejus ascensum in cælum, cum fratre, sorore, et Marcella pedissequa, ac Maximino, uno ex septuaginta duobus discipulis Christi Domini, qui totam illam domum baptizaverat, multisque aliis Christianis, comprehensa a Judæis, in navem sine velo ac remigio impōnitur, vastissimoque mari ad certum naufragium committitur. Sed navis, Deo gubernante, salvis omnibus, Massiliam appulsa est.

- ℣. Spécie tua et pulchritudine tua intēde, prospere procéde, et regna.
- ℞. Et deducet te mirabiliter dextera tua.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Martha was the daughter of noble and wealthy parents, but is best known as having been the hostess of the Lord Christ. After that He was ascended into heaven, Martha, along with her brother (Lazarus,) her sister (Mary Magdalene,) her waiting-woman Marcella, Maximin, who was one of the seventy-two disciples of the Lord Christ, and who had baptized the whole of the family, and many other Christians, was taken by the Jews, and turned adrift upon the open sea in a ship without sail or oars, to meet with certain wreck, but by the governance of God the ship came to land at Marseilles with all safe.

- ℣. In thy comeliness, and thy beauty, go forward, fare prosperously, and reign.
- ℞. And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

LECTIO V

Eo miraculo et horum prædicatione, primum Massilienses, mox Aquenses ac finitimæ gentes in Christum crediderunt; Lazarusque Massiliensium et Maximinus Aquensium episcopus creatur. Magdalena vero, assueta orationi et pedibus Domini, ut optima parte contemplandæ cælestis beatitudinis, quam elegerat, frueretur, in vastam altissimi montis speluncam se contulit; ubi triginta annos vixit, ab omni hominum consuetudine disjuncta, quotidieque per id tempus ad audiendas cælestium laudes in altum ab Angelis elata.

- ℣. Propter veritatem, et mansuetudinem, et iustitiam.
- ℟. Propterea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus, oleo lætitiæ.

LECTIO VI

Martha autem, mirabili vitæ sanctitate et caritate, omnium Massiliensium animis in sui amorem et admirationem adductis, in locum a viris remotum cum aliquot honestissimis feminis se recepit; ubi summa cum laude pietatis et prudentiæ diu vixit, ac demum, morte sua multo ante prædicta, miraculis clara migravit ad Dominum, quarto Kalendas Augusti. Cujus corpus apud Tarasum magnam habet venerationem.

- ℟. Afferentur tibi in lætitia et exultatione.
- ℣. Glória Patri, et Filio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℟. Afferentur tibi in lætitia et exultatione.

LESSON V

Through this miracle and the preaching of the Saints, the people of Marseilles first, and then those of Aix, and of the uttermost tribes, believed in Christ, and Lazarus was made Bishop of Marseilles, and Maximin Bishop of Aix. Mary Magdalene sat still at Jesus' Feet, being altogether given to prayer and the contemplation of heavenly blessedness, that that good part which she had chosen might not be taken away from her, withdrew herself to a great cave in an exceeding high mountain, where she lived for thirty years, utterly cut off from all conversation with men, and every day during that time carried up by Angels into the air, to listen to them that dwell in heaven praising God.

- ℟. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; * Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.
- ℣. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness.
- ℟. Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

LESSON VI

Martha, by the wondrous holiness and charity of her life, drew upon herself the love and wonder of all the inhabitants of Marseilles. She withdrew herself in company with some other honourable women into a place out of the way of men, where she lived long, with great praise for godliness and discretion. She foretold her own death long before, and at last, illustrious for miracles, passed away to be ever with the Lord, upon the 29th day of July. Her body is held in great worship at Tarascon.

- ℟. After her shall virgins be brought unto the King, her fellows * They shall be brought unto thee with gladness and rejoicing.
- ℣. In thy comeliness and thy beauty, go forward, fare prosperously, and reign.
- ℟. They shall be brought unto thee with gladness and rejoicing.
- ℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- ℟. They shall be brought unto thee with gladness and rejoicing.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 10:38-42

At that time: Jesus entered into a certain village, and a certain woman, named Martha, received Him into her house. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo)26th upon the Words of the Lord

The words of our Lord Jesus Christ which have just been read from the Gospel, give us to wit that there is one thing toward the which we are making our way, all the while that we are striving amid the diverse cares of this world. Thitherward we make our way, while we are still strangers and pilgrims, unpossessed as yet of any abiding city, still on the journey, not yet come home, still hoping, not yet enjoying. Still thitherward let us make our way, not slothfully nor by fits and starts, but so that some day we may arrive thither. Martha and Mary were sisters, not in the flesh only, but also in godliness; together, they clave unto the Lord; together, with one heart they served the Lord present in the Flesh.

- ℞. This is one of those wise virgins, whom the Lord found watching, for when she took her lamp, she took oil with her. * And when the Lord came, she went in with him to the marriage.
- ℣. At midnight there was a cry made: Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.
- ℞. And when the Lord came, she went in with him to the marriage.

LESSON VIII

Martha received Him into her house. It was just as strangers are received, but it was the handmaiden receiving her Lord, the sick receiving her Saviour, the creature receiving her Creator. She received Him, to give bodily meat unto Him by Whom she herself was to be fed unto eternal life. It had been the Lord's will to take upon Him the form of a servant, to be fed by servants, (still out of His good pleasure, not of necessity,) and in that form of a servant which He had taken upon Him. This was His good pleasure, to offer Himself as a subject for hospitality. He had Flesh, wherein He was sometimes hungered and thirsty, but know ye not how that, when He was in the desert and was an-hungered, angels came and ministered unto Him. Himself it was therefore, That gave unto them of whom He was fain to be fed, the wherewithal. And what wonder is this if we consider how that holy Elijah, coming from being fed by the ministry of ravens, asked bread of the widow of Zarephath, and himself gave her the wherewithal to feed him? Had God failed to feed Elijah when He sent him unto the widow? God forbid. He did so that He might bless that godly widow for a service rendered unto His servant.

Sic ergo susceptus est Dóminus, tamquam hospes, qui in sua propria venit, et sui eum non receperunt; sed quotquot receperunt eum, dedit eis potestátem fílios Dei fieri, adoptans servos et liberos fáciens, rédimens captivos et fáciens coheredes. Ne quis tamen vestrum fórsitan dicat: O beáti, qui Christum suscipere in domum propriam meruerunt! Noli dolére, noli murmurare quia temporibus natus es, quando jam Dóminus non vides in carne. Non tibi ábstulit istam dignatióem. Cum uni, inquit, ex minimis meis fecistis, mihi fecistis. Hæc de Dómino pascendo in carne, sed pascénte in spiritu, pauca pro témpore dixérimus.

℞. At midnight there was a cry made: * Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

℣. Trim your lamps, O ye wise virgins.

℞. Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

LESSON IX

Thus was that same Lord received as a guest, Who came unto His own, and His own received Him not, but as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, adopting servants and making them children, redeeming prisoners and appointing them coheirs. Perchance some of you will say: O how blessed were they who were worthy to receive Christ as a guest into their own home! but mourn not, neither murmur, for that thou hast been born in an age wherein thou canst no more see Christ in the flesh. He hath not put the honour of receiving Him beyond thy reach. Inasmuch, saith He, as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me. (Matth. xxv. 40.) The above remarks have occurred to me regarding the Lord considered as fed in the flesh, and I shall now touch briefly, as time permits, upon the Same, considered as the Feeder of the soul.

LESSON III (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Abdon and Sennen were Persians. In the reign of the Emperor Decius they were accused of interring, on their own farm, the bodies of Christians, which had been thrown out unburied. The Emperor commanded them to be arrested and ordered to sacrifice to the gods. This they refused to do, and persistently preached that Jesus Christ is God, whereupon they were put into strict confinement. When Decius afterwards returned to Rome, he had them led in chains in his triumph. Being thus dragged into the city and up to the idols, they abhorred and spat upon them, for which they were cast to bears and lions; the beasts were afraid to touch them. They were butchered with the sword, and the corpses, with their feet bound together, were dragged before the image of the sun. Thence they were stolen away, and the Deacon Quirinus buried them in his own house.

LESSON IV

Ignatius was a Spaniard by nation, and was born of the noble Biscayan family of Loyola, (in the year of our Lord 1491.) He followed first the Court and then the army of the Most Catholic King. At the siege of Pampeluna (in the year 1521) he received a severe wound which laid him up with a long and dangerous illness. During this time he chanced to read some godly books, and conceived from them a burning desire to follow in the footsteps of Christ and His saints. He betook himself to Monserrat, and there entered himself for the heavenly warfare, for a night before the Altar of the Blessed Virgin.

Thence he withdrew to Manresa, clad in sackcloth, for he had before given his costly raiment to a beggar. At Manresa he lived upon bread and water, begging the bread, and fasting every day except the Lord's Day. He mastered his flesh by the use of a sharp chain and hair-cloth, slept upon the ground, and lashed himself to bloodshedding with iron scourges. Thus he dwelt for a year, feasted by God with such clear lights, that he was used afterwards to say that even if the Holy Bible had not existed, he would have been ready to die for the faith only on the evidence of those things which the Lord had shown unto him at Manresa. It was at this time that, albeit a man of little education, he put together that wonderful book entitled Spiritual Exercises, whose worth hath been attested by the judgment of the Apostolic See, and by universal usefulness.

℞. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

To make himself of greater use for the profit of souls, he determined to improve himself by education, beginning by going through the rudiments among little boys. He left nothing untried that could help towards the salvation of others, and it was marvellous what pain and mockery he cheerfully accepted on all hands, suffering ill-usage also, imprisonment and stripes almost unto death; but he was willing to suffer them all much more for the greater glory of his Master. At Paris he took to him seven comrades from the members of that University, men of different nations, but who had all taken the Degree of Master of Arts and in Divinity. With these seven he laid the first foundations of the Society of Jesus in the crypt at Montmartre, (upon the 15th day of August, in the year of Christ 1534.) When he afterwards organised the same Society at Rome he bound it by the closest bonds to the Apostolic See, adding to the three accustomed vows of Poverty, Chastity, and Obedience, a fourth, concerning Missions. Paul III. was the first Pope to receive and confirm the Institute, but it has since been approved by other Popes and by the Council of Trent. Ignatius, to spread the Faith, sent holy Francis Xavier to preach the Gospel in the Indies, and others in other parts of the world, and the war, which he thus proclaimed against paganism and heresy, was waged with such success, that it was the general belief, confirmed by the utterance of the Pope, that even as God had in other times raised up holy men specially to meet the needs of their day, so He had raised up against Luther and the heretics of that age, Ignatius and the Society which he had founded.

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

But the first care of Ignatius was to set forward godliness among Catholics. He was a great promoter of seemliness in the Churches, instruction in the Catechism, and often hearing Sermons and using the Sacraments. He opened schools everywhere to train up boys in godliness and good learning. At Rome he founded the German College, a home for fallen and another for imperilled girls, an orphanage for boys and another for girls, houses for converts under instruction, and other godly institutions. He never wearied in his work of gaining souls for God, and was sometimes heard to say that if he had the choice he would rather live without knowing whether he was to be among the blessed, and meanwhile work for God and the salvation of his neighbours, than know he was going to glory and die forthwith. He exercised an extraordinary power over devils. Holy Philip Neri and others saw heavenly light shining from his face. At last, (on the 31st day of July,) in the year of our Redemption 1556 and of his own age the sixty fifth, he passed away to the embrace of that Lord Whose greater glory had been the constant theme of his words and aim of all his works. He is very illustrious in the Church on account of his great deeds Dóminus et Salvátor noster, fratres caríssimi, aliquándo nos sermónibus, aliquándo vero opéribus ádmonet. Ipsa étenim facta ejus præcépta sunt: quia dum áliquíd táctus facit, quid ágere debeámus innotéscit. Ecce enim binos in prædicatióem discípulos mitit: quia duo sunt præcépta caritátis, Dei vidélicet amor, et próximi: et minus quam inter duos caritas habéri non potest. Nemo enim própriè ad semetípsum habére caritátem díctur: sed diléctio in álterum tendit, ut caritas esse possit.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

LUKE 10:1-9

At that time, the Lord appointed other seventy-two also, and sent them two and two before His face into every city and place, whither He Himself would come. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory (the Great.)

17th Homily on the Gospels

Dearly beloved brethren, our Lord and Saviour doth sometimes admonish us by words, and sometimes by works. Yea, His very works do themselves teach us for that which He doth silently His example still moveth us to copy. Behold how He sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two since there are two commandments to love, that is, a commandment to love God, and a commandment to love our neighbour and where there are not two, the one, being alone, hath not whereon to do the Lord's commandment. And no man can properly be said to love himself: for love tendeth outward toward our neighbour, if it be the love whereto the Gospel doth oblige us.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

✠. Ecce homo sine queréla, verus Dei cultor, ábstinens se ab omni ópere malo, et pérmanens in innocentía sua.

℟. Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

LECTIO VIII

Ecce enim binos ad prædicándum discípulos Dóminus mittit: quátenus hoc nobis táci-tus ínnuat, quia qui caritátem erga álterum non habet, prædicatiónis offícium suscípere nullátenus debet. Bene autem dícitur, quia misit eos ante fáciem suam in omnem civitátem et locum, quo erat ipse ventúrus. Prædicatóres enim suos Dóminus séquitur: quia prædicatío prævenit, et tunc ad mentis nostræ habitáculum Dóminus venit, quando verba exhortatiónis præcúrrunt: atque per hoc véritas in mente suscípitur.

℟. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucérnæ ardéntes in má nibus vestris: * Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

✠. Vigilate ergo, quia nescitis qua hora Dóminus vester ventúrus sit.

℟. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

LECTIO IX

Hinc namque eisdem prædicatóribus Isaías dicit: Paráte viam Dómini, rectas fácite sémitas Dei nostri. Hinc fíliis Psalmísta ait: Iter fácite ei, qui ascéndit super occásum. Super occásum namque Dóminus ascéndit: quia unde in passióne occúbuit, inde majórem suam glóriam resurgéndo manifestávit. Super occásum vidélicet ascéndit; quia mortem quam pértulit, resurgéndo calcávit. Ei ergo qui ascéndit super occásum, iter fácimus, cum nos ejus glóriam vestris méntibus

✠. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocence.

℟. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Behold, the Lord sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two and thus doing, He doth silently teach us that whosoever loveth not his neighbour, such a one it behoveth not to take upon him the office of a preacher. Well also is it said that He sent them before His face into every city and place whither He Himself would come. The Lord followeth His preachers first cometh preaching, and then the Lord Himself cometh to the house of our mind, whither the word of exhortation hath come before and so cometh the truth into our mind.

℟. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

✠. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

Therefore, to preachers saith Isaiah: "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight an highway for our God." (xl. 3.) And again the Psalmist saith: "Spread a path before him that rideth upon the West." (lxvii. 4.) The Lord rideth upon the West above that from which in death He veiled His glory, hath He royally exalted that glory that excelleth, even the glory of His rising again. He rideth upon the West, Who, being risen again from the dead, is throned high above the death to which He bowed. Before Him, therefore, That rideth upon the West, we spread a path, when we set forth His glory before the eyes of your mind, to the end that He Himself may come after, and Himself en-

His love.

LECTIO I

De Actibus Apostolorum

Act 12:1-5

Misit Heródes rex manus ut affligeret quosdam de Ecclésia. Occídit autem Jacóbum, fratrem Joánnis, gládio. Videns autem quia placéret Judáis, appósuit ut apprehénderet et Petrum. Erant autem dies azymórum. Quem, cum apprehendísset, misit in cárcerem, tradens quátuor quaterniόνibus mílitum custodiéndum, volens post Pascha producere eum pópulo. Et Petrus quidem servabátur in cárcere; orátio autem fiebat sine intermissióne ab Ecclésia ad Deum pro eo.

℟. Simon Petre, ántequam de navi vocárem te, novi te et super plebem meam príncipem te constítui: * Et claves regni cælórum tráddi tibi.

℣. Quodcúmque ligáveris super terram erit ligátum et in cælis; et quodcúmque sólveris super terram, erit solútum et in cælis.

℟. Et claves regni cælórum tráddi tibi.

LECTIO II

Act 12:6-8

Cum autem productúrus eum esset Heródes, in ipsa nocte erat Petrus dórmienti inter duos mílites vinctus caténis duábus, et custódes ante óstium custodiébant cárcerem.

Lesson IX: of The Holy Maccabean Martyrs (08-01r).

LESSON I

From the Acts of the Apostles

Acts 12:1-5

And at the same time, Herod the king stretched forth his hands, to afflict some of the church. And he killed James, the brother of John, with the sword. And seeing that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to take up Peter also. Now it was in the days of the Azymes. And when he had apprehended him, he cast him into prison, delivering him to four files of soldiers to be kept, intending, after the pasch, to bring him forth to the people. Peter therefore was kept in prison. But prayer was made without ceasing by the church unto God for him.

℟. Simon Peter, before I called thee out of the ship, I knew thee, and appointed thee for a ruler over My people. * And I have given unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

℣. Whatsoever, thou shalt bind on earth, shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven.

℟. And I have given unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

LESSON II

Acts 12:6-8

And when Herod would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains: and the keepers before the door kept the prison. And behold an an-

Et Petrus ad se revérsus, dixit: Nunc scio vere quia misit Dóminus Angelum suum, et erípuit me de manu Heródis et de omni exspectatióne plebis Judæórum.

R. Tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificábo Ecclésiám meam, et portæ ínferi non prævalébunt advérsus eam: * Et tibi dabo claves regni cælórum.

gel of the Lord stood by him: and a light shined in the room: and he striking Peter on the side, raised him up, saying: Arise quickly. And the chains fell off from his hands. And the angel said to him: Gird thyself, and put on thy sandals. And he did so. And he said to him: Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me.

R. Simon Peter, if thou lovest Me, feed My sheep. Lord, Thou knowest that I love thee; * I will lay down my life for thy sake.

Ψ. If I should die with thee, I will not deny thee.

R. I will lay down my life for thy sake.

LESSON III

Acts 12:9-11

And going out, he followed him, and he knew not that it was true which was done by the angel: but thought he saw a vision. And passing through the first and the second ward, they came to the iron gate that leadeth to the city, which of itself opened to them. And going out, they passed on through one street: and immediately the angel departed from him. And Peter coming to himself, said: Now I know in very deed, that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

R. Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. * And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven.

nisset, ibi multis est affēcta munēribus. Præ cēteris insigne donum accēpit fērræ catēnæ, auro gemmisque ornātæ, quam illam esse affirmābant, qua Petrus Apóstolus ab Heróde vinctus fūerat. Eudócia, catēnam pie venerāta, eam póstea Romam ad fíliam Eudóxiam misit; quæ illam Pontífici máximo détulit. Isque vicíssim illi monstrávit álteram catēnam, qua, Neróne imperatóre, idem Apóstolus constrictus fūerat.

R. Dómine, si tu es, jube me veníre ad te super aquas. * Et exténdens manum apprehéndit eum, et dixit Jesus: Módicæ fidei, quare dubitásti?

R. Et exténdens manum apprehéndit eum, et dixit Jesus: Módicæ fidei, quare dubitásti?

LECTIO V

Cum igitur Póntifex Románam catēnam cum ea, quæ Jerosólymis allāta fūerat, contulísset, factum est ut illæ inter se sic con- necteréntur, ut non duæ, sed una catēna ab eódem artifice confēcta esse viderétur. LECTIO VI to Jerusalem in fulfilment of a vow, and there was gifted with many presents. Among other things, they gave her in especial an iron chain, adorned with gold and precious stones, which they affirmed to be the same wherewith the Apostle Peter had been bound by King Herod. Eudocia, with godly reverence, afterwards sent this chain to Rome, to her daughter Eudoxia, who brought it to the Pope, and the Pope in return showed to her another chain wherewith the same Apostle had been shackled under the Emperor Nero.

R. Lord, if it be Thou, bid me come unto thee on the water; * And Jesus stretched forth His Hand, and caught him, and said unto him: O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

Ÿ. But when he saw the wind boisterous, he was afraid and, beginning to sink, he cried, saying: Lord, save me!

R. And Jesus stretched forth His Hand, and caught him, and said unto him: O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

LESSON V

When then the Pope put together the Roman chain and that which had been brought from Jerusalem, it came to pass that they got so entangled the one with the other that they seemed no longer two but one chain. From this wonder these holy fetters began to receive such honour, that Eudoxia's Church of St. Peter on the Esquiline Mount was dedicated under the name of St. Peter in Chains, and a Feast - Day instituted upon the first day of August in memory of it.

R. Arise, O Peter! Cast thy garment about thee, gird thee with strength for the saving of the nations. * The chains are fallen off from thine hands.

Ÿ. The Angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison and he smote Peter on the side and raised him up, saying: Arise up quickly.

R. The chains are fallen off from thine hands.

Solus Petrus inter Apóstolos méruit audíre: Amen dico tibi, quia tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificábo Ecclésiám meam; dignus certe, qui ædificándis in domo Dei pó-pulis lapis esset ad fundaméntum, columna ad sustentáculum, clavis ad regnum. De hoc

From that time forth the honour which before had used to be paid to the profane festivity of the Gentiles, (held in memory of the dedication of the temple of Mars, and of the birth of Claudius,) began to be turned to the Chains of Peter, whose very touch healed the sick, and drove out devils. Among other such cases there befell in the year of man's Redemption 969, that of a certain Count, a servant of the Emperor Otho, who was possessed by an unclean spirit, and tore himself with his own teeth. This man the Emperor ordered to be taken to Pope John, and as soon as he had touched the Count's neck with the hallowed chains, the foul spirit came out of him, and left him free. And thenceforward the reverence for these holy chains greatly increased in the City.

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 16:13-19

At that time Jesus came into the coasts of Caesarea Philippi, and He asked His disciples, saying Who do men say that I, the Son of Man, am And so on.

*Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo.)
29th on the Saints*

Peter was the only one of the Apostles who was worthy to hear the words Amen, I say unto thee that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church. Worthy indeed must he be, who, when the nations are to be built up into a Temple of God, is chosen as the ground-stone whereon ait sermo divínus: Et ponébant, inquit, infirmos suos, ut umbra saltem transeúntis Petri obumbráret eos. Si tunc opem ferre póterat umbra córporis, quanto magis nunc plenitúdo virtútis? si tunc supplicántibus próderat aura quædam pertranseúntis, quanto magis grátia nunc permanéntis? Mérito per omnes Christi ecclésiás auro pretiósius habétur ferrum illud poenálium vinculórum.

℞. Ego pro te rogávi, Petre, ut non defíciat fides tua: * Et tu aliquándo convérsus confírma fratres tuos.

ψ. Caro et sanguis non revelávit tibi, sed Pater meus, qui est in cælis.

℞. Et tu aliquándo convérsus confírma fratres tuos.

LECTIO VIII

Si tam medicábilis fuit obumbrátio visitántis, quanto magis caténa vinciéntis? Si inánis quædam spécies vácuæ imáginis habére pótuit in se vim salútis, quanto plus de córpore meruérent attráhere salubritátis, férreo póndere sacris impréssa membris, víncula passiónis? Si ad præsídia supplicántium tam potens fuit ante martýrium, quanto magis éfficax post triúmphum? Felíces illi nexus, qui, de mánicis et compédibus in corónam mutándi, Apóstolum contingéntes, Mártyrem reddidérunt! Felícia víncula, quæ reum suum usque ad Christi crucem, non tam condemnátúra quam consecratúra, misérunt!

℞. Quem dicunt hómines esse Filium hóminis? dixit Jesus discípulis suis. Respóndens Petrus dixit: Tu es Christus Fílius Dei vivi. * Et ego dico tibi, quia tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificábo Ecclésiám meam.

the building is to stand the pillar whereby it is to be held up, and the key wherethrough entrance is to be made into the kingdom. Concerning him the Word of God saith That they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them. (Acts v. 15.) If the shadow of his body then could give help, how much more shall the fulness of his strength give help now. If the very air, as he passed by, was then profitable to such as besought him, how much more shall his favour profit where now he abideth. It is with reason that, throughout all the Churches of Christ, the iron chains wherewith he was afflicted are reckoned more precious than gold.

℞. Peter, I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not * And when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.

ψ. Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father Which is in heaven.

℞. And when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.

LESSON VIII

If his shadow as a visitor was so healthful, what is his chain now that he bindeth and looseth. If his empty image in the air had healing power, how much power must have been contracted from his body by those chains, whose iron weight sank into his holy limbs during his suffering. If, before he testified, he was so mighty to aid them that called upon him, how much mightier is he now since his victory. Blessed were the links, doomed to be changed from fetters and shackles, into a crown, which by touching the Apostle, made him a Martyr. Blessed were the chains, whose prisoner left them for the Cross of Christ, and which brought him thither, not as the instruments of condemnation, but of sanctification.

℞. Jesus asked His disciples, saying: Who do men say that I, the Son of Man, am? Peter answered, and said: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. * And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church.

✠. Beátus es, Simon Bar-Jona, quia caro et sanguis non revelávit tibi, sed Pater meus qui est in cælis.

℟. Et ego dico tibi, quia tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificábo Ecclésiám meam.

✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Et ego dico tibi, quia tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificábo Ecclésiám meam.

✠. Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father Which is in heaven.

℟. And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church.

Sermon 20th on the Machabees

From the Sermons of St. Gregory of Nazianzus (Patriarch of Constantinople)

What were the Machabees For it is under their name that the Festival at which you are this day as-ssembled is kept. It is true that many persons do not hold them in honour, because they fought before the coming of Christ nevertheless they deserve to be venerated by all men, for they bore themselves bravely and faithfully in defence of the laws and ordinances of their people. They that underwent martyrdom before Christ came, what would not have been their deeds, if they had suffered persecu-tion after He came, and had had before them for a pattern the Death which He embraced for the sake of man's salvation With no example to lead them, their bravery was what it was had they had the example before their eyes, would they not have gone down with double nerve to the battle There is a mystic and subtle idea, which seemeth very likely to me and to all lovers of God, that none of those who were crowned with martyrdom before Christ came, could have been so, unless they had had faith in Christ.

LESSON IV

Alphonsus Mary de' Liguori was born of a noble family, at (Marianella, near) Naples, (on the 26th day of September, in the year of salvation 1696.) From his earliest days he gave no dark signs of holiness. When he was but a babe, his parents carried him to holy Francis de Hieronymo, of the Society of Jesus, and holy Francis, after long prayer, said that the child would live to ninety years of age, that he would become a Bishop, and that he would be a great blessing to the Church. From his childhood, he had a strong distaste to games, and by his entreaty and example, induced the noble pages (of the Court, among whom he served,) to conduct themselves with Christian decency. As a young man, he became a member of diverse godly guilds, and made it among his delights to nurse the sick in the hospitals, to spend much time in prayer in the Churches, and often to receive the Holy Sacraments. With his godliness he so joined zeal for learning, that when he was scarcely sixteen years of age he took degrees in Canon and Civil law in the University of Naples. In obedience to the wish of his father, he adopted the profession of an advocate, in which he gained great credit, but, finding dangers in the practice of the law, he entirely gave it up. He declined a very brilliant marriage which was proposed to him by his father, resigned his family inheritance as an eldest son, hung up his sword at the Altar of the Blessed Virgin Mary, styled of Ransom, and surrendered himself altogether to the service of God. He became a Priest, (in 1726,) and made so zealous an onslaught on sin, running hither and thither in the office of an Apostle, that he accomplished the conversion of multitudes of lost creatures. The poor and the country-people most chiefly roused his compassion, and (in 1742) he founded the Congregation of Priests called that of the Most Holy Redeemer,

LESSON V

That he might not turn aside from his work, he bound himself by a vow never to lose any time. Inflamed with the love of souls, he toiled to gain them to Christ and to amend their lives, not only by preaching of the word of God, but also by writings full of holy learning and godliness. It is a marvel how many hatreds he stilled, and how many backsliders he led again into the paths of salvation. He was eminently devoted to the Mother of God, published a book on her glories, and when he was earnestly speaking thereof in his sermons, it happened more than once that all the people openly saw a strange brightness fall upon him from her image, till all his countenance shone, and he was rapt in an ecstasy. The sufferings of the Lord and the Holy Eucharist were ever before his eyes, and to them he spread abroad a wonderful love. When he was praying before the Altar of the Blessed Sacrament, or celebrating the Holy Liturgy, which he never failed to do every day, through the seraphic violence of his love, he wept burning tears, or shook with strange movements, or became altogether beside himself. He joined a wonderful innocence and purity, which he never polluted by the stain of deadly sin, to a wonderful depth of repentance, and chastised his body with hunger, iron chains, hair-cloth, and scourgings even to bloodshedding. Among all these things he was remarkable for the gift of prophecy, the power of seeing into the hearts of men, the ability to be in more places than one at the same time, and other miracles.

R. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him.

LESSON VI

But firmly and perseveringly refused all high places in the Church which were offered him, but (in 1762) Pope Clement XIII. absolutely commanded him to take the Bishopric of the Church of Santa Agata de' Goti. On becoming a Bishop, the only change which he made in the hardness of his life was that of his outer raiment. There remained, too, the same simplicity of meats, the same strong zeal for Christian discipline, the same determined will to put down sin and keep out false doctrines, and the same earnestness in all the duties of a shepherd of souls. In his tenderness to the poor, he spent among them all the revenues of his Church, and in a year of famine sold the furniture of his own house to feed his starving people. He was all things to all men and brought nuns to lead a more perfect life, while he saw to it that a monastery was opened for nuns attached to his own Congregation. On account of grievous and continual sickness, he resigned his Bishopric, and poor as when he had left them, poor he returned among his disciples. On the 1st day of August, in the year 1787, he peacefully died at Nocera dei Pagani, amid the tears of his followers. He was then ninety years of age his body was worn out with old age and hard work, and with chronic gout, and other painful maladies, but the freshness of his mind never failed to the last, in talking and writing on heavenly things. In the year 1816 Pope Pius VII., finding him famous on account of his good works and miracles, enrolled his name among those of the Blessed. God still glorified him by new signs and wonders, and on the Feast of the Most Holy Trinity, in the year 1839, Gregory XVI., with solemn pomp, numbered him among the Saints of the Church. Lastly, Pope Pius IX., in accordance with a Resolution of the Congregation of Sacred Rites, gave him the title of Doctor of the Universal Church.

17th Homily on the Gospels

Dearly beloved brethren, our Lord and Saviour doth sometimes admonish us by words, and sometimes by works. Yea, His very works do themselves teach us for that which He doth silently His example still moveth us to copy. Behold how He sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two since there are two commandments to love, that is, a commandment to love God, and a commandment to love our neighbour and where there are not two, the one, being alone, hath not whereon to do the Lord's commandment. And no man can properly be said to love himself: for love tendeth outward toward our neighbour, if it be the love whereto the Gospel doth oblige us.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: S. Stephen Pope and Martyr
This Stephen was a Roman, and exercised the Popedom in the reign of the Emperors Valerian and Gallienus. It was his ordinance which forbade Priests and Deacons ever to use their hallowed garments except in the Church. He forbade a rebaptism of such as had been baptized by heretics, writing to St. Cyprian in these words: Let us have no innovations, but only what hath been handed down unto us. He turned many to Christ, and, among them, the Tribune Olympius, with his wife Exuperia, and his son Theodulus, and the Tribune Nemesius, to whose blind daughter he had given sight, along with all his household. All these were martyrs for Jesus Christ. When the persecution of the Emperors was waxing dreadier and more dread, Stephen gathered together the clergy, and exhorted them to be brave in lifting up their testimony, and himself celebrated Masses and Councils in the Cat-acombs. He was caught by some unbelievers, and haled to the temple of Mars, to do sacrifice to that idol, but he boldly said he would never pay to devils an honour which it behoved to give to God only. As he spake these words an earthquake made the image of Mars to fall down, and all the temple to tremble. All they that held Stephen fled, and the Pope went back to his own people in the cemetery of Lucina. He there delivered to them a discourse full of the Word of God, and gave them the Communion of the Sacrament of the Body of Christ. While he was finishing the Mass, the soldiers of the Emperor again brake in upon them, and his head was cut off as he sat in his chair. The reliques of the Martyr, along with the chair stained with his blood, were buried by the clergy in the cemetery of Callistus, upon the 2nd day of August, (in the year of our Lord 257.) He lived as Pope three years, three months, and twenty two days. He held two ordinations in the month of December, and in them ordained six Priests, five Deacons, and three Bishops.

LECTIO I

De Actibus Apostolorum

Acts 7:51-54

Dura cervice et incircumcisis córdibus et áuribus, vos semper Spiritui Sancto resístitis: sicut patres vestri, ita et vos. Quem prophetárum non sunt persecúti patres vestri? Et occidérunt eos, qui prænuntiábunt de adventu Justí, cujus vos nunc proditores et homicidæ fuistis, qui accepístis legem in dispositiône Angelórum et non custodistis. Audiéntes autem hæc, disseccabántur córdibus suis, et stridébant déntibus in eum.

℟. Stéphanus autem plenus grátia et fortitúdine, * Faciébat prodígia et signa magna in pópulo.

LESSON I

From the Acts of the Apostles

Acts 7:51-54

You stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, you always resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do you also. Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? And they have slain them who foretold of the coming of the Just One; of whom you have been now the betrayers and murderers: Who have received the law by the disposition of angels, and have not kept it. Now hearing these things, they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed with their teeth at him.

℟. And Stephen, full of grace and power * Did great wonders and miracles among the people.

¶ Surrexerunt quidam de synagoga disputantes cum Stéphano: et non poterant resistere sapientiæ, et Spiritui qui loquebatur.

℞. Faciebat prodigia et signa magna in populo.

LECTIO II

Acts 7:55-58

Cum autem esset plenus Spiritu Sancto, intendens in cælum, vidit glóriam Dei, et Jesum stantem a dextris Dei. Et ait: Ecce video cælos apertos, et Filium hominis stantem a dextris Dei. Exclamantes autem voce magna, continuérunt aures suas, et ímpetum fecerunt unánimiter in eum. Et ejiéntes eum extra civitatem lapidábant: et testes deposuerunt vestiménta sua secus pedes adolescentis, qui vocabátur Saulus. Et lapidábant Stephanum, invocántem et dicéntem: Dómine Jesu, suscipe spiritum meum.

℞. Vidébant omnes Stéphanium, qui erant in concílio: * Et intuebántur vultum ejus tamquam vultum Angeli stantis inter illos.

¶ Plenus grátia et fortitúdine, faciebat prodigia et signa magna in populo.

℞. Et intuebántur vultum ejus tamquam vultum Angeli stantis inter illos.

LECTIO III

Acts 7:59; 8:1-2

Positis autem genibus, clamávit voce magna: Dómine, ne statuas illis hoc peccátum. Et cum hoc dixisset, obdormívit in Dómino. Saulus autem erat consentiens neci ejus. Facta est autem in illa die persecútio magna in ecclesiá quæ erat Jerosolymis; et omnes dispersi sunt per regiónés Judææ et Samariæ, præter Apóstolos. Curavérunt autem Stephanum viri timorati, et fecerunt planctum magnum super eum.

℞. Intuens in cælum beátus Stéphanus, vidit glóriam Dei, et ait: * Ecce vídeo cælos apértos, et Filium hominis stantem a dextris virtútis Dei.

¶ There arose certain of the synagogue, disputing with Stephen; and they were not able to resist the wisdom, and the Spirit which spoke.

℞. Did great wonders and miracles among the people.

LESSON II

Acts 7:55-58

But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looking up steadfastly to heaven, saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God. And he said: Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God. And they crying out with a loud voice, stopped their ears, and with one accord ran violently upon him. And casting him forth without the city, they stoned him; and the witnesses laid down their garments at the feet of a young man, whose name was Saul. And they stoned Stephen, invoking, and saying: Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.

℞. All that sat in the council, looking steadfastly on Stephen, saw * His face as it had been the face of an angel standing among them.

¶ Full of grace and power, he did great wonders and miracles among the people.

℞. His face as it had been the face of an angel standing among them.

LESSON III

Acts 7:59; 8:1-2

And falling on his knees, he cried with a loud voice, saying: Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this, he fell asleep in the Lord. And Saul was consenting to his death. And at that time there was raised a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem; and they were all dispersed through the countries of Judea, and Samaria, except the apostles. And devout men took order for Stephen's funeral, and made great mourning over him.

℞. The blessed Stephen looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and said * Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son

LESSON IV

In (the year of our Lord 415,) in the reign of the Emperor Honorius, a Priest named Lucian, (dwelling at Caphargamala, about twenty miles from Jerusalem,) received a message from God, in consequence of which discovery was made of the bodies of the Saints Stephen the First Martyr, Gamaliel, Nicodemus, and Abibon, (the son of Gamaliel,) which had long been lying unknown and unheeded. Lucian was asleep when Gamaliel appeared to him in a dream as a tall comely old man of worshipful presence, told him where the bodies were lying, and bade him go to John, Patriarch of Jerusalem, and deal with him that they might have more honourable burial.

- ℟. They stoned Stephen, calling upon God and saying: * Lord Jesus Christ, receive my spirit; and lay not this sin to their charge.
- ✠ And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, saying
- ℟. Lord Jesus Christ, receive my spirit; and lay not this sin to their charge.

LESSON V

When the Patriarch of Jerusalem heard it, he called together Bishops and Priests from the neighbouring cities, and betook himself to the place, where he found the tombs hewn in the rock, and a right sweet savour flowing forth from them. The thing being noised abroad, a great multitude of people came together, and many that were sick and weak

LESSON VI

From the Book upon The City of God, written by St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo)

xxii, 8

When the Bishop Projectus brought some reliques of that most glorious Martyr Stephen to Tibilis, a great multitude came together and went out to meet the shrine. A blind woman prayed to be led to the Bishop who was bearing the hallowed deposit. She laid on the reliques the flowers which she was carrying, took them up again, touched her eyes with them and forthwith saw. She went forward rejoicing, at the head of the amazed procession, choosing her own path, and needing no more that any should lead her. I remember also the shrine of this same Martyr which hath been placed in the town of Synica, hard by this city of Hippo. Lucillus, Bishop of that place, was carrying it, with a multitude going before and following after when, all of a sudden, by bearing this hallowed burden, he was healed of the emerods, from which he was even then suffering, and which were being treated by a physician, an intimate friend of his, who was about to cut them.

℞. The ungodly fell upon the righteous, to put him to death. * But he received the stones with joy, that he might earn a crown of glory.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 23:34-39

At that time, Jesus said to the scribes and pharisee: I send to you prophets, and wise men, and scribes: and some of them you will put to death and crucify. And so on,

*Homily by St. Jerome, Priest (at Bethlehem.)
Book IV, Commentary on Matth. XXIII*

We have already remarked that the Lord's words, Fill ye up the measure of your fathers, (32,) refer in the first place to Himself, Whom the Jews afterwards put to death. In a secondary sense it may likewise be applied to His disciples, of whom He saith, Behold, I send unto you Prophets, and wise men, and Scribes. Here observe that, according to the Apostle writing to the Corinthians, (1 Cor. xii. 4,) there are diversities of gifts among Christ's followers. Some are Prophets of that which is to come; some are wise men, who know the due season for rebuke and exhortation; some are Scribes learned in the law. And of these they stoned Stephen, slew Paul with the sword, crucified Peter, and scourged the Disciples mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles. (v, 40; xvi, 23.)

℟. Stephen, the servant of God, who was stoned by the Jews, saw the heavens opened he saw and entered in. * Blessed is he, unto whom the heavens were opened.

✠. While his poor body was crushed by the hurtling shower of stones, God's brightness broke upon him out of the heavenly palaces.

℟. Blessed is he unto whom the heavens were opened.

LESSON VIII

It is a subject of dispute among commentators who is meant by Zacharias the son of Barachias.

libera nobis tribueretur erroris facultas, additum est: Quem occidistis inter templum et altare. In diversis diversa legi: et debeo singulorum opiniones ponere. Alii Zachariam filium Barachiae dicunt, qui in duodecim prophetis undecimus est, patrisque in eo nomen consentit: sed ubi occisus sit inter templum et altare, Scriptura non loquitur; maxime cum temporibus ejus vix ruinae templi fuerint. Alii Zachariam patrem Joannis intelligi volunt, ex quibusdam apocryphorum somniis approbantes, quod propterea occisus sit, quia Salvatoris predicaverit adventum.

R. Patefacta sunt januae caeli Christi Martyri beato Stephano, qui in numero Martyrum inventus est primus: * Et ideo triumphat in caelis coronatus.

V. Mortem enim, quam Salvator noster dignatus est pro nobis pati, hanc ille primus reddidit Salvatori.

R. Et ideo triumphat in caelis coronatus.

V. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

R. Et ideo triumphat in caelis coronatus.

LECTIO IX

Alii istum volunt esse Zachariam, qui occisus est a Joas rege Judae inter templum et altare, sicut Regum narrat historia. Sed observandum, quod ille Zacharias non sit filius Barachiae, sed filius Joadae sacerdotis: unde et Scriptura refert: Non fuit recordatus Joas patris ejus Joadae, quia sibi fecisset bona. Cum ergo et Zachariam teneamus et occisionis consentiat locus: quaerimus, quare Barachiae dicatur filius, et non Joadae? Barachia lingua nostra Benedictus Domini dicitur, et sacerdotis Joadae justitia Hebraeo nomine demonstratur. In Evangelio, quo utuntur Nazareni, pro filio Barachiae, filium Joadae reperimus scriptum.

We read of several persons of the name of Zacharias. But here, in order to prevent any mistake, it is particularly said, Whom ye slew between the temple and the altar. I have read various opinions in various places upon this question, and I will give each. First, some hold that Zacharias the son of Barachias is the eleventh of the twelve Minor Prophets; and this opinion is supported by the father's name. But the Bible nowhere telleth us that this Prophet was slain between the temple and the altar; and it is hardly possible that he can have been, for in his time it could scarcely be said that even the ruins of the temple were in existence. Secondly, others maintain that this Zacharias was Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist. This interpretation is derived from the dreams of the Apocryphal Gospels, wherein it is asserted that he was martyred for preaching Christ's coming.

R. The gates of heaven were opened to Christ's blessed martyr Stephen, and he is the first of all the martyrs. * Wherefore he reigneth crowned in heaven.

V. For he was the first to make an offering of his death to that Saviour Who vouchsafed to suffer death for us.

R. Wherefore he reigneth crowned in heaven.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Wherefore he reigneth crowned in heaven.

LESSON IX

A third school will have it that this Zacharias, the son of Barachias, was that Zacharias of whom we read, in Chron. xxiv. 22, that he was slain by Joash, king of Judah, between the temple and the altar. Against this it is to be remarked, that that Zacharias was not the son of Barachias, but of Jehoiada the priest; whence it is written, Joash remembered not the kindness which Jehoiada his father had done to him. The question therefore ariseth, if this opinion be true, why, the name and manner of death both agreeing with this explanation, Zacharias is called the son, not of Jehoiada, but of Barachias. In Hebrew, Barachias signifieth the Blessed of the Lord, and Jehoiada proves his Righteousness. In the Gospel used by the Nazarenes the name of Jehoiada is used instead of Barachias.

Te Deum

LECTIO V

Hujus autem ingenium ac virtus maxime enituit in evertédis hæreticis, qui perniciosos erróribus Tolosátes pervertere conabántur; quo in negótio septem consumpsit annos.

LESSON IV

Dominic was a Spaniard, a son of the noble family of Guzman. He was born at Calaruega, (in Old Castile,) in the year of our Lord 1170, and was sent to be taught worldly and sacred learning at Palencia. He attained great success in his studies, and became, first, a Regular Canon of the Cathedral Church of Osma, and afterwards Founder of the Order of Friars Preachers. While his mother was great with child, she dreamt that what was in her womb was a little whelp dog with a lighted torch in his mouth, and that when she was delivered of him, he set all the world on fire. By this dream was figured that burning and shining light of holiness of life and power of doctrine, whereby he should enkindle godliness throughout whole nations. The end proved the truth of the image, for this is in good sooth what his work was, a work which he hath continued to do through the Brethren of his Order.

℞. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℞. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

But his wisdom and bravery were most chiefly shown in confounding the ~(Albigensian) heretics, who were fain, with their pestilential falsehoods, to corrupt the people of the county of Toulouse.

Postea Romam venit ad Lateranense concilium cum episcopo Tolosano, ut ordo, quem instituerat, ab Innocentio tertio confirmaretur. Quæ res dum in deliberatione versatur. Dominicus hortatu Pontificis ad suos revertitur, ut sibi regulam deligeret. Romam rediens, ab Honorio tertio, qui proximus Innocentio successerat, confirmationem ordinis Prædicatorum impetrat. Romæ autem duo instituit monasteria, alterum virorum, mulierum alterum. Tres etiam mortuos ad vitam revocavit, multaque alia edidit miracula, quibus ordo Prædicatorum mirifice propagari coepit.

℞. Amavit eum Dominus, et ornavit eum: stolam gloriæ induit eum, * Et ad portas paradisi coronavit eum.

℣. Induit eum Dominus lorica fidei, et ornavit eum.

℞. Et ad portas paradisi coronavit eum.

LECTIO VI

Verum, cum ejus opera ubique terrarum monasteria jam ædificarentur, innumerabilesque homines religiosam ac piam vitam instituerent, Bononiæ anno Christi ducentesimo vigesimo primo supra millesimum in febrem incidit. Ex qua cum se morituum intelligeret, convocatis fratribus et alumnis suæ disciplinæ, eos ad innocentiam et integritatem cohortatus est. Postremo caritatem, humilitatem, paupertatem, tamquam certum patrimonium eis testamento reliquit; fratribusque orantibus, in illis verbis, Subvenite, Sancti Dei, occurrere, Angeli, obdormivit in Domino, octavo Idus Augusti. Quem postea Gregorius nonus Pontifex retulit in Sanctorum numerum.

℞. Iste homo perfecit omnia quæ locutus est ei Deus, et dixit ad eum: Ingrederere in requiem meam: * Quia te vidi justum coram me ex omnibus gentibus.

℣. Iste est, qui contempsit vitam mundi, et pervenit ad cælestia regna.

In this business he spent seven years. Afterwards he came to Rome to the Fourth Lateran Council, along with the Bishop of Toulouse, that the Order which he had founded might be confirmed by Innocent III. While the matter was under consideration, Dominick, by the advice of the Pope, went home, that he might put his Rule into shape. He returned again to Rome (in 1216,) and obtained from Honorius III., the immediate successor of Innocent, the confirmation of the Order of Preachers. At Rome Dominic founded two Convents, one for men, and one for women. He raised three dead men to life, and worked many other miracles, where through the Order of Preachers became exceedingly spread abroad.

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

By his work convents were already during his lifetime established in all countries, and almost countless persons embraced the life of prayer and godliness. In the year of Christ 1221 he fell sick of a fever at Bologna. When he understood that he was about to die, he called together his brethren and disciples, and exhorted them to innocence and uprightness. Lastly, he left to them as his legacy, love, lowliness, and poverty, and as the brethren were all praying, and the words were being said, "Come ye to help him, ye Saints of God run ye to meet him, ye Angels", he fell asleep in the Lord. It was the 6th day of August. Pope Gregory IX. afterwards placed his name among those of the Saints.

℞. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

℣. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

LESSON IV

In the time of Pope Liberius, there lived at Rome a certain nobleman named John and a noble lady his wife, who had no children to whom to leave their substance. Then they vowed that they would make the most holy Virgin Mother of God their heiress, and earnestly besought her in some way to make known to them upon what godly work she would that the money should be spent. The Blessed Virgin Mary graciously listened to their prayers and heart-felt earnestness, and by a miracle assured them of her will.

R. I was exalted like a cedar in Lebanon, and as a cypress-tree upon Mount Zion. Like the best

Ÿ. Like cinnamon and sweet balsam.

R. I yielded a pleasant odour.

LESSON V

On the 5th day of August, which is that time when the heat of summer waxeth greatest in Rome, a part of the Esquiline Hill was covered by night with snow. And on this same night the Mother of God appeared in a dream to John and his wife separately, and told them that on that spot, which in the morning they should see clad with snow, they should build a Church, to be dedicated in the name of the Virgin Mary, for that this was the way tulit, qui idem per sómnum sibi contigisse affirmávit.

R. Quæ est ista quæ procéssit sicut sol, et formósa tamquam Jerúsalem? * Vidérunt eam filiæ Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et regínæ laudavérunt eam.

R. Vidérunt eam filiæ Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et regínæ laudavérunt eam.

LECTIO VI

Quare solemni sacerdotum et pópuli supplicatióne ad collem venit nive coopertum, et in eo locum ecclésiæ designávit, quæ Joánnis et uxoris pecúnia exstructa est, póstea a Xysto tertio restituta. Variis nomínibus primum est appellata, basilica Liberii, sancta Maria ad Præsepe; sed, cum multæ jam essent in Urbe ecclésiæ sub nómine sanctæ Maríæ Vírginis, ut quæ basilica novitate miraculi ac dignitate ceteris ejusdem nóminis basilicis præstaret, vocabuli étiam excelléntia significarétur, ecclésia sanctæ Maríæ majoris dicta est. Cujus dedicatiónis memória ex nive, quæ hac die mirabíliter cécidit, anniversaria celebritate cólitur.

R. Ornátam monílibus fíliam Jerúsalem Dóminus concupívit: * Et vidéntes eam filiæ Sion, beatíssimam prædicavérunt, dicéntes: * Unguéntum effúsum nomen tuum.

Ÿ. Astitit regína a dextris tuis in vestítu deauráto, circúmdata varietáte.

in which she chose that they should make her their heiress. John went and told it to Pope Liberius, who declared that he also had been visited by a like dream.

R. Who is this that cometh up like the sun? This, comely as Jerusalem? * The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed: the queens also, and they praised her.

Ÿ. And about her it was as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

R. The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed the queens also, and they praised her.

LESSON VI

Therefore he came in a solemn procession of Priests and people to the snow-clad hill, and traced upon that spot the plan of a Church which was built with the money of John and his wife. It was afterwards rebuilt by Sixtus III. At the beginning it was called by diverse names, sometimes the Liberian Basilica, sometimes the Church of St. Mary-at-the-Manger. Howbeit, since there are in Rome many Churches called after the Holy Virgin Mary, and this Church doth excel them all, both in honour, and because of the strange sign wherewith it was dedicated, it hath come to be called the Church of St. Mary, the Greater. The memory of the dedication thereof is kept every year by a Feast-day that taketh name from the wonderful fall of snow which on this day took place.

R. When the Lord beheld the daughter of Jerusalem adorned with her jewels, He greatly desired her beauty * And when the daughters of Zion saw her, they cried out that she was most blessed, saying thy name is as ointment poured forth.

Ÿ. Upon thy right hand did stand the Queen in a vesture of gold wrought about with diverse colours.

R. And when the daughters of Zion saw her, they cried out that she was most blessed, saying:

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Thy name is as ointment poured forth.

LESSON I

Lesson from the second letter of St. Peter the Apostle

2 Pet 1:10-14

Wherefore, brethren, labour the more, that by good works you may make sure your calling and election. For doing these things, you shall not sin at any time. For so an entrance shall be ministered to you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. For which cause I will begin to put you always in remembrance of these things: though indeed you know them, and are confirmed in the present truth. But I think it meet as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance. Being assured that the laying away of this my tabernacle is at hand, according as our Lord Jesus Christ also hath signified to me.

2 Pet 1:18-21

And this voice we heard brought from heaven, when we were with him in the holy mount. And we have the more firm prophetic word: whereunto you do well to attend, as to a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts: Understanding this first, that no prophecy of scripture is made by private interpretation. LESSON IV

From the Sermons of Pope St. Leo (the Great)On the Transfiguration

The Lord taketh chosen witnesses, and in their presence, revealeth His glory. That form of body which He had in common with other men, He so transfigured with light, that His Face did shine as the sun, and His raiment became exceeding white as snow. Of this metamorphosis the chief work was to remove from the hearts of the disciples the stumbling at the Cross. Before their eyes was unveiled the splendour of His hidden majesty, quibus revelata esset abscondita excellētia dignitatis. Sed non minore providētia spes sanctę Ecclēsię fundabatur, ut totum Christi corpus agnosceret quali esset commutatio donandum, ut ejus sibi honoris consortium membra promitterent, qui in capite pręfulsisset.

that the lowliness of His freely-chosen suffering might not confound their faith. But none the less was there here laid by the Providence of God a solid foundation for the hope of the Holy Church, whereby the whole body of Christ should know with what a change it is yet to be honoured. The members of that body whose Head hath already been transfigured in light may promise themselves a share in His glory.

℞. They were abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house, and * Thou madest them drink of the river of thy pleasures.

℣. For with thee is the fountain of life, and in thy light shall we see light.

℞. And Thou madest them drink of the river of thy pleasures.

LESSON V

For the strengthening the Apostles and bringing them forward into all knowledge, there appeared unto them Moses and Elias that is, the Law and the Prophets talking with Him. Before five witnesses did His glorification take place, as though to fulfill that which is written: At the mouth of two witnesses, or at the mouth of three witnesses, shall the matter be established. (Deut. xix. 15.) What can be more certain, what can be better attested than this matter, which is proclaimed by the trumpets of both the Old and the New Testaments, and concerning which the witness of ancient testimony uniteth with the teaching of the Gospel? The pages of either Covenant strengthen one another, and the brightness of open glory maketh manifest and distinct Him Whom the former prophecies had promised under the veil of mysteries.

℞. Master, it is good for us to be here. * Let us make here three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

℣. For he wist not what to say.

℞. Let us make here three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

the things worldly and earthly overflowing with gladness at the vision, he yearned to dwell with Jesus there, where the revelation of His glory had rejoiced him. And so he said Master, it is good for us to be here if Thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias. To this proposal the Lord answered nothing, this signifying, that what Peter wished was not wrong, but out of place, since the world could not be saved but by the death of Christ. And the Lord's example was to call the faith of believers to this, that albeit we are behoven to have no doubts concerning the promise of eternal blessedness, yet we are to understand that, amid the trials of this life, we are to seek for endurance before glory.

℞. If the ministration of death, written and engraven on stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not steadfastly behold the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenance which is done away: * How shall not the ministration of the Spirit, which abideth, be rather glorious?

℣. For Christ was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he who hath builded the house hath more honour than the house.

℞. How shall not the ministration of the Spirit, which abideth, be rather glorious?

concerning death, and the killing of His disciples, and had laid upon them many hard and grievous things, and since all these were in this present life, and already hanging over them, whereas the good things were matter for hope and waiting as, for example, that whosoever should lose his life for His sake should find it, for that the Son of Man should come in the glory of His Father, and reward every man according to his works. (Matth. xvi. 25, 27.) Therefore, to assure them by their own eyes, and show them what the glory is wherein He will come, He manifested and unveiled it to them, as far as in this life they were able to grasp it, lest they and especially Peter should grieve over their own deaths, or the death of their Lord.

℞. God hath called us with an holy calling, according to His own grace, which is now made manifest; * By the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ.

LESSON VIII

Behold what He doth, when He treateth of heaven and hell. Where He saith Whosoever will save his life shall lose it, and whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it. And again He shall reward every man according to his works in these words He pointeth at heaven and hell. But although He speaketh concerning both, He giveth a glimpse of heaven only and not of hell. To see hell would have profited the brutish and stupid, but His disciples were upright and clear-sighted, and therefore for them it was enough to be strengthened by the better things. This was what suited Him the best. Yet He left not the other altogether undone. Sometimes He set the horrors of hell, as it were, before the eyes, as for instance in the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, and that of him who was fain to wring the hundred pence from his fellow-servant.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: S. Xystus II Pope, Felicissimus and Agapitus, Martyrs

Xystus II. was an Athenian, who, from a philosopher, became a disciple of Christ. In the persecution under Valerian he was accused of openly preaching Christ, and was seized and haled to the temple of Mars, where he was given the choice of death or offering sacrifice to the idol. He firmly refused to commit that wickedness, and as he was being led away to seal his testimony, holy Lawrence ran up to him and in his grief said to him Father, whither goest thou without thy son Holy Priest, dost thou fare hence without a Deacon? Xystus answered him: I am not leaving thee, my son there awaiteth thee for Christ's truth a sterner wrestling than mine yet three days, and thou shalt follow me, the Deacon behind the Priest and in the meanwhile, if thou hast anything in the treasury, give it to the poor. Xystus was accordingly slain upon that day, and with him the Deacons Felicissimus and Agapitus, and the Subdeacons Januarius, Magnus, Vincent, and Stephen. He was buried in the cemetery of Callistus, and they in the cemetery of Praetextatus upon the 6th day of August, (in the year of our Lord 258.) He sat (in the throne of Peter) eleven months and twelve days. During that time he held one ordination in the month of

LESSON IV

Cajetan was born at Vicenza, (in the year 1480,) of the noble family of the lords of Tiene, and was forthwith dedicated by his mother to the Virgin Mother of God. From his childhood such wonderful innocence shone in him that all called him the Saint. He took the degree of Doctor in Civil and Canon Law at Padua, and afterwards went to Rome, where Julius II. gave him a place among the Prelates. Having taken Priest's Orders, he became so full of the fire of the love of God, that he left the Court, that he might be free to work entirely for God. He founded hospitals at his own expense, and nursed the sick, even such as were suffering from the plague, with his own hands. He laboured with such constant earnestness for the salvation of his neighbours that he got the name of the Hunter of souls.

℟. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

From a desire to restore the corrupted discipline of the clergy to the mould of the Apostolic life, he founded, (in 1524,) a Congregation of Clerks Regular, who should give up all care of earthly things, neither keeping any income, nor begging the needful things of life from the faithful, but Itaque, approbante Cleménte septimo, ad aram maximam basilicæ Vaticanæ una cum Joánne Petro Caráfa, episcopo Theatino, qui póstea Paulus quartus Pontifex maximus fuit, et aliis duobus exímia pietátis viris, vota solemnina emisit. In Urbis direptione a militibus crudelíssime vexátus ut pecúniám próderet, quam dudum in cælestes thesáuros manus páuperum deportaverant, verbera, torménta et carceres invicta patiéntia sustinuit. In suscepto vitæ instituto constantíssime perseverávit, soli divinæ providéntiæ inhærens, quam sibi numquam defuísse aliquándo miracula comprobantur.

living only on such alms as might be given them unasked. For this end, and with the approval of Clement VII., Cajetan himself, together with John Peter Carafa, Archbishop of Chieti, (afterwards Pope Paul IV.), and two other men of eminent godliness, took solemn vows at the High Altar of St. Peter's Church on the Vatican. When the city of Rome was sacked by the troops (of the Constable de Bourbon, in 1527,) Cajetan was most cruelly illused to make him reveal his wealth, which had long before been laid up for him in heaven by the hands of the poor, and he endured with unconquered patience stripes, torture, and imprisonment. He held on bravely in the way of life he had taken up, trusting altogether to the Providence of God, Whose unfailing care of him was sometimes attested by miracles.

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

He was a great advancer of care in the worship of God, of splendour in the house of God, of exactness in the holy ceremonies, and of the often receiving of the most holy Eucharist. The hideous forms and dark convolutions of heresy he more than once unmasked and abolished. He would remain in prayer with abundance of tears as much as eight hours at a time. He was often thrown into trances, and was celebrated for the gift of prophecy. One Christmas night at Rome, when he was praying before the Lord's manger, he was deemed worthy that the Mother of God should lay the Child Jesus in his arms. He sometimes spent the whole night in whipping himself, nor could he ever be persuaded to soften the hardness of his life, but witnessed that he was fain to die in sackcloth and ashes. In the end he fell ill with grief at the offence against God, which the people of Naples committed by rebelling (against the establishment of the Inquisition.) Refreshed by a vision from heaven, he departed thither (on the 7th day of August, 1547.) His body lieth at Naples in the Church of St. Paul, where it is held in great reverence. Pope

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 6:24-33

At that time: Jesus said unto His disciples: No man can serve two masters. And so on.

*Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo
Bk. ii. on the Lord's Sermon on the Mount, ch. xiv*
No man can serve two masters, and this is further explained for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. These words we ought carefully to weigh, for the Lord sheweth straightway who be the two masters whom we have choice of: Ye cannot serve God and Mammon. Mammon is a term which the Hebrews are said to use for riches. It is also a Carthaginian word for the Punic for gain is mammon. He which serveth mammon, serveth that evil one who hath perversely chosen to be lord of these earthly things, and is called by the Lord the prince of this world. (John xiv. 30.) Of these two masters, either a man will hate the one and love the other, that is God or he will hold to the one and despise the other. He which serveth mammon holdeth to an hard and destroying master, for he is led captive by his lust, and sold a slave to the devil, and him loveth no man is there any man that loveth the devil And yet there be that hold to him.

LESSON VIII

Therefore, I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on lest, albeit such things are not idle, but needful to be sought after, yet the seeking for things even needful should divide the heart and our intention should be corrupted when we do something as it were mercifully that is, lest, when we would seem to be seeking another's good, it should be profit to ourselves, rather than benefit to him, that we seek and therefore we seem not to ourselves to sin, because we would seek things not idle, but needful.

R. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

Ÿ. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

There the Praefect Quadratian, during the persecution under Julian, commanded both Hilarinus and Donatus to worship idols, and when they both refused to commit such abominable iniquity, Hilarinus was beaten with clubs before the eyes of Quadratian, until he gave up the ghost. From the Sermon of S. John Chrysostom Serm. 1. de Mart, tom. 3

Every man knoweth how, by the good Providence of God, the diverse glories of His Martyrs are held in such esteem by His people, that the same His Saints in all places receive worthy honour, and before us is set, by the favour of Christ, the noble example of their courage: thus are we stirred up to consider, on the occasion of these Holidays, how great glory doth abide them in heaven, whose birth-days are thus kept upon earth: thereby, also, we are roused to strive to be like them, brave, godly, and true: so that, in the strength of Christ, we, like them, may wrestle with, and conquer our enemy, and, when we have gained the same victory that they gained, may with them at last be glorified in the kingdom of heaven.

R. The Saints of God shrank not from the stripes of the executioners, but died for Christ's Name's sake * That they might be made joint-heirs in the house of the Lord.

For what man is there willing to share their reward, that if he do not first lay hold on their steadfastness, follow after the example of their faith, and imitate their brave patience, can either seek or find their glory by likeness to their lives? But whosoever doth so follow them, let him not doubt but that, though in very deed he gain not the crown of martyrdom, he is yet able by good works to make himself meet therefor. From the holy Gospel according to Mark

Mark 16:15-18

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory (the Great)

29th on the Gospels

By the words "every creature" we may understand every tribe of the Gentiles. Of aforetime it had been said, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, (Matth. x. 5,) but now, Preach the Gospel to every creature, that, since the Jews had proudly rejected the preaching of the Apostles, that might become our gain which was the seal of their condemnation. But when the Eternal Truth sendeth forth His disciples to preach, what doth He but scatter seed over the field of the world He scattered abroad a pauca grana mittit in semine, ut multarum messium fruges recipiat ex nostra fide.

R. Propter testamentum Domini, et leges paternas, Sancti Dei perstiterunt in amore fraternitatis: * Quia unus fuit semper spiritus in eis, et una fides.

V. Ecce quam bonum et quam jucundum habitare fratres in unum.

R. Quia unus fuit semper spiritus in eis, et una fides.

LECTIO VIII

Neque etenim in universo mundo tanta fidelium messis exurgeret, si de manu Domini super rationalem terram illa electa grana predicantium non venissent. Sequitur: Qui crediderit et baptizatus fuerit, salvus erit: qui vero non crediderit, condemnabitur. Fortasse unusquisque apud semetipsum dicat: Ego jam credidi, salvus ero. Verum dicit, si fidem operibus tenet. Vera etenim fides est, quæ in hoc, quod verbis dicit, moribus non contradicit. Hinc est enim quod de quibusdam falsis fidelibus Paulus dicit: Qui confitentur se nosse Deum, factis autem negant.

R. Sancti mei, qui in carne positi, certamen habuistis: * Mercedem laboris ego reddam vobis.

V. Venite benedicti Patris mei, percipite regnum.

R. Mercedem laboris ego reddam vobis.

V. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

R. Mercedem laboris ego reddam vobis.

LECTIO IX

Signa autem eos qui credituri sunt, hæc sequentur: In nomine meo demonia ejicient, linguis loquentur novis, serpentes tollent: et si mortiferum quid biberint, non eis nocēbit: super ægros manus impōnent, et bene habebunt. Numquidnam, fratres mei, quia ista signa non facitis, minime creditis? Sed hæc necessaria in exordio Ecclesiæ fuerunt. Ut enim ad fidem cresceret multitufew grains for seed, that He may afterward reap an abundant harvest in our faith.

R. Because of the covenant of the Lord, and the laws of their fathers, the Saints of God abode in brotherly love, * For one spirit and one faith was ever in them.

V. Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

R. For one spirit and one faith was ever in them.

LESSON VIII

The great harvest of faithful souls throughout the whole world would never have sprung up, if the hand of the Lord had not first scattered those chosen grains of preachers over the reasonable soil of men's minds. Then is written, He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved but he that believeth not shall be damned. Now, perchance, thou sayest in thine heart I believe, and therefore I shall be saved. True, if to thy faith thou dost add works. He only hath a living faith whose life doth not give the lie to his profession. It is of this that Paul speaketh, where he saith of certain vain believers, They profess that they know God but in works they deny Him. (Tit. i. 16.)

R. O ye My Saints, who, being in the flesh, didst have striving * I will render unto you a reward of your labours.

V. Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom

R. I will render unto you a reward of your labours.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. I will render unto you a reward of your labours.

LESSON IX

And these signs shall follow them that believe In My name they shall cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues, they shall take up serpents and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover. My brethren, these signs do not follow us. Do we, then, not believe Nay. The truth is, these things were needful when the Church was young. That she might grow by the increase of the faithful, do credéntium, miraculis fuerat nutriéndā: quia et nos, cum arbústa plantamus, tamdiu eis aquam infúndimus, quoúsque ea in terra jam coaluisse videámus: et si semel radicem fíxerint, irrigátio cessabit. Hinc est enim quod Paulus dicit: Linguæ in signum sunt non fidelibus, sed infidelibus.

she needed to be nourished with miracles. So we, when we plant a young tree, continually water and tend it, till we see that it hath taken firm root in the earth but when once it hath taken firm root, it can grow of itself. Hence Paul saith of tongues: Tongues are for a sign not to them that believe, but to them that believe not. (Cor. xiv. 22.)

LESSON IV

John Mary Vianney, born of pious peasants in the village of Dardilly in the diocese of Lyons, gave many signs of holiness from his infancy. When, at the age of eight, he was taking care of the sheep, he would sometimes by word and example instruct little boys, kneeling before a statue of the Mother of God, in the use of the Rosary; and at other times, entrusting the flock to his sister or to another child, he was wont to seek out a more retired spot, that he might more readily devote himself to prayer before an image of the Virgin. Having a very great love for the poor, he would lead them in crowds to his father's house, and he took a delight in aiding them in every way. That he might be initiated into letters, he was sent to the parish priest of the village of Ecully; but as he was very slow to understand, he encountered almost unsurmountable difficulties in his studies. Fasting and praying, he entreated the divine assistance, and, with a view to begging for a facility in learning, he approached the tomb of St. Francis Regis, earnestly beseeching him for that gift. Having most laboriously passed through the course of theology, he was found to be sufficiently suitable to receive holy orders.

R. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him ℟. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

LECTIO V

In pago Ecully, præeunte párocho, cujus vicarius renunciátus fuerat, potiores pastoralis perfectiónis gradus totis viribus attingere contendit. Elapso triennio, in viculum Ars qui non ita multo post diócesi Bellicénsi adscriptus est, quasi Angelus de cælo fuit missus et omnino squalentis ac desertæ suæ parœciæ faciém florentíssime renovávit. In consciéntiis judicándis ac moderandis ad plurimas horas quotidie assiduus, frequentem Eucharistiæ usum invéxit, pias sodalitates instaurávit: mirum autem in modum téneram in Immaculátam Vírginem ánimis pietátem índidit. Ratus vero pastoris esse, flagítia concréditæ plebis expiare, nec oratiónibus, nec vigiliis, maceratióibus et continuis jejuniis parcebat. Tantam viri Dei virtútem cum Satan ferre non posset, eum vexatióibus primum, dein aperto certamine adortus est; sed atrocíssimas afflictiónes patienter tolerábat Joánnes Maria.

℟. Amávit eum Dóminus, et ornávit eum: stolam glóriæ índuit eum, * Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

✠. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

In the village of Ecully, under the guidance of the parish priest, whose assistant he had been appointed, he strove with all his strength to attain to the higher degrees of pastoral perfection. After three years had gone by, he was sent, like an Angel from heaven, to the small village of Ars, which not so long after was included in the diocese of Belley, and in a most brilliant manner he entirely renewed the condition of his neglected and forsaken parish. Continually engaged for many hours daily in hearing confessions and in giving spiritual direction, he introduced the frequent reception of the Eucharist, and organized pious sodalities: and in a remarkable manner he inspired into souls a tender devotion to the Immaculate Virgin. And, deeming that it is the duty of the pastor to expiate the sins of the flock accredited to him, he spared neither prayers, nor vigils, nor mortifications and continual fastings. Since Satan could not endure such great virtues in this man of God, he assailed him, first with mere annoyances, and afterwards in open combat; but John Mary patiently endured the most malevolent injuries.

℟. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

✠. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℟. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

He was very often asked by the neighbouring priests to labour for the salvation of souls after the manner of the Missionaries, either by preaching sermons, or by hearing confessions, and he was always at hand in every case. Burning with zeal for the glory of God, he brought it about, that the pious exercises of Missions were established in more than an hundred parishes arranged in a continuous and permanent series. Meanwhile, as God was rendering his servant famous by miracles and by graces, there began that celebrated pilgrimage, in which, throughout a period of twenty years, nearly one hundred thousand persons of every class flocked to Ars, not only from France and from Europe, but even from the distant regions of America. Worn out by labours rather than by old age, having foretold the day of his death, he went to rest in the embrace of the Lord, on the 4th day of August, in the year 1859, and of his age the seventy-third. After he became illustrious for many miracles, Pius X added him to the number of the Blessed, and Pius XI, in the holy year numbered him with the Saints in heaven and extended his feast to the universal Church, and on the fiftieth anniversary of his own priesthood, appointed him the heavenly patron of all parish priests.

Homilia 32 in Evangelia

Quia Dóminus ac Redemptor noster novus homo veni in mundum, nova præcepta dedit mundo. Vitæ etenim nostræ vétérí, in vítiis enutrítæ, contrarietátém oppósuit novitátis suæ. Nam, sicut arte medicínæ cálda frígidis, frígida cáldis curántur; ita Dóminus noster contrária oppósuit medicaménta peccátis, ut lúbicis continéntiam, tenácibus largitátém, iracúndis mansuetúdinem, elátis præcíperet humilitátém.

Te Deum32nd on the Gospels

Our Lord and Redeemer came into the world a new Man, and gave the world new commandments. For against the ways of our old life, brought and bred up in sin, He set the contrast of His new life. It was the old way, according to the knowledge of the carnal man, for every man to keep his own goods, and, if he were able to do it, to take his neighbour's goods also, and, if he were not able to take them, at least to lust after them. But the Heavenly Physician hath medicines wherewith to meet all the diseases of sin. For, even, as by the art of the physician, things hot are healed by things cold, and things cold by things hot, so doth our Lord set against sin holiness, ordaining for the lecherous purity, for the miserly munificence, for the hot-tempered meekness, and for the proud lowliness.

LESSON IV

The Lesson is taken From the Sermons of Pope St. Leo (the Great.)

For St. Lawrence's Birthday

Then the fury of the heathen power was raging against Christ's choicest members, in aiming in especial at such as were of the Priestly Order, the wicked persecutor turned fiercely on the Levite Lawrence, who was remarkable, not only as a minister of the Sacraments, but also as distributor of the property of the Church, promising himself a double prey by the taking of this one man, namely, to make him betray the consecrated treasure, and apostatise from the true faith. The wretch was thus doubly fired by his greed for money and his hatred of the truth, his greed urging him to seize the gold, and his wickedness to rob a believer of Christ. He demanded of the upright keeper of the sacred treasury, to bring him the wealth of the Church, for which his rapacity longed. But the pureminded Levite showed him where these riches were stored, by bringing before him a great multitude of holy poor, by the feeding and clothing of whom he had laid up all that he had, in such wise, that it could be lost no more, and was now all the safer, as the way of spending it had been the holier.

℞. Father, whither goest thou without thy son? Holy Priest, dost thou fare hence without a Deacon? * It hath never been thy use to offer sacrifice without a minister.

✠. What therefore in me hath displeased thee, my Father? Hast thou tried me and found me unworthy to be called thy son? Make trial if I am indeed a useless servant, even I, whom thou elégeris, cui commisísti Domínici sánguinis dispensatióem.

- ℞. Tu nunquam sine minístro sacrificium offérre consuéveras.

LECTIO VI

Nihil óbtines, nihil próficis, sæva crudélitas.
Subtráhitur torméntis tuis matéria mortá-lis, et, Lauréntium in cælos abeúnte, tu déficis flammiis tuis. Superári caritas Christi flamma non pótuít; et ségnior fuit ignis, qui foris ussit, quam qui intus accéndit. Sævísti persecútor in Mátyrem: sævísti, et auxísti palmam, dum ággeras pœnam. Nam quid non ad vic-didst choose, to commit unto me the administratióem of the Cup of the Blood of the Lord.

- ℞. It hath never been thy use to offer sacrifice without a minister.

LESSON V

The baffled thief chafed, and his hatred for the god-liness which had appointed such an use of riches, flaming forth, he attempted the robbery of a dearer treasure from him in whose hands he had found no coin, even to take from him that possession wherein he had holier wealth. He commanded Lawrence to deny Christ, and made ready to assail the immovable firmness of the Levite's soul with appalling tortures, of which the failure of the first was followed by the application of others more fearful still. When his limbs had been mangled and cut by many stripes, his tormentor ordered them to be roasted over a fire. He was laid on an iron grating, the bars of which by the continual fire below, became themselves burning hot, so that by turning and rearranging his limbs upon them, his agony was kept keener, and his suffering made to last longer.

- ℞. Leave me not, holy Father, for I have spent already thy treasures. * I leave thee not, my son, neither forsake thee but there awaiteth thee for Christ's truth a wrestling sterner than mine.
- ℣. We, as old men, have an easier race to run; for thee in thy youth, there is kept a more glorious victory over the enemy; yet three days, and thou shalt follow me, the Deacon behind the Priest.
- ℞. I leave thee not, my son, neither forsake thee but there awaiteth thee for Christ's truth a wrestling sterner than mine.

LESSON VI

Cruel savage! thou gainest nothing, and advancest nothing. That which can die passeth by degrees beyond the reach of thy tortures, and when Lawrence departeth to heaven, thou and thy fires are conquered. The love of Christ could not be overcome by the flames, and the glow that scorched the outward man was colder than that that burnt in the inner. Thou didst rage, O thou persecutor thou didst rage against the Martyr, but by maktóris glóriam ingénium tuum réperit, quando in honórem transiérunt triúmphí étiam instruménta supplícii? Gaudeámus ígitur, dilectíssimi, gáudio spiritáli, et de felicíssimo íncliti viri fine gloriémur in Dómino, qui est mirábilis in Sanctis suis, in quibus nobis et præsidium constítuit et exéplum; atque ita per univérsum mundum clarífcát glóriam suam, ut a solis ortu usque ad occásum, leviticórum lúminum coruscánte fulgóre, quam clarificáta est Jerosólýma Stéphanó, tam illústis fíeret Roma Lauréntio.

R. Beátus Lauréntius clamávit et dixit:

LECTIO VII

Léctio sancti Evangelíi secúndum Joánnem
Joannes 12:24-26

In illo témpore: Dixit Jesus discípulis suis:
Amen, amen dico vobis, nisi granum fruménti cadens in terram, mórtuum fúerit, ípsum solum manet. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Augustíni Epísco-pi
Tract. 51 in Joannem, sub médiúm

Ipse Dóminus Jesus erat granum mortificándum et multiplicándum; mortificándum infidelitáte Judæórum, multiplicándum fide populórum. Jam vero exhórtans ad passió-nis suæ sectánda vestígia, Qui amat, inquit, ánimam suam, perdet eam. Quod duóbus modis intéllegi potest. Qui amat, perdet; id est, si amas, perdes. Si cupis vitam tenére in Christo, noli mortem tímére pro Christo.

ing keener his agony, thou hast but made nobler his palm. What did thine imagination fail to discover that could minister to the glory of him who conquered thee, since even the means of his execution have turned to the honour of his triumph? Wherefore, dearly beloved brethren, let us rejoice with spiritual joy, and make our boast in the Lord, Who is wonderful in His Saints, (Ps. lxvii. 36,) and hath given unto us, in them an help and an example. Let us, I say, make our boast of the extraordinary happiness of the illustrious Lawrence's end, in that same Lord Who hath so glorified the name of His servant throughout the whole world, that from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof, wheresoever the constellation of the Levitical lights shineth, even as Jerusalem is made glorious by Stephen, so Rome is made famous by Lawrence.

R. The blessed Lawrence cried and said: My God do I worship, and Him only do I serve * And therefore I am not afraid of thy tortures.

Ÿ. The darkness is no darkness to me, but the night is all as clear as the morning, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day.

R. And therefore I am not afraid of thy tortures.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And therefore I am not afraid of thy tortures.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John
John 12:24-26

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: Amen, Amen, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo.)
From Tract 51 on John

The Lord Jesus was Himself a corn of wheat that was to die and bring forth much fruit to die by the unbelief of the Jews, and to bring forth much fruit in the faith of the Gentiles. He, exhorting men to follow His steps, saith: He that loveth his life shall lose it. Now, these words may be understood in two ways. First he that loveth his life shall lose it, that is, If thou love life, thou wilt lose it; if thou wilt live for ever in Christ, refuse not to die for Item álio modo: Qui amat ánimam suam, perdet eam; noli amáre, ne perdas; noli amáre in hac vita, ne perdas in ætérna vita.

R. In cratícula te Deum non negávi, * Et ad ignem applicátus te Dóminum Jesum Christum conféssus sum.

Ÿ. Probásti, Dómine, cor meum, et visitásti nocte.

R. Et ad ignem applicátus te Dóminum Jesum Christum conféssus sum.

LECTIO VIII

Hoc autem, quod postérius dixi, magis habére vidétur evangélicus sensus; séquitur enim: Et qui odit ánimam suam in hoc mundo, in vitam ætérnam custódit eam. Ergo, quod supra dictum est, Qui amat, subintellégitur in hoc mundo, in vitam ætérnam ipse custódit eam. Magna et mira senténtia, quemádmódum sit hómínis in ánimam suam amor ut péreat, ódium ne péreat. Si male amáveris, tunc odísti; si bene óderis, tunc amásti. Felíces, qui odérunt custodiéndó, ne perdant amándó.

R. O Hippólyte, si credíderis in Dóminum Jesum Christum, * Et thesáuros tibi osténdó, et vitam ætérnam promítto.

Ÿ. Beátus Lauréntius Hippólyto dixit: Si credis in Dóminum Jesum Christum.

R. Et thesáuros tibi osténdó, et vitam ætérnam promítto.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et thesáuros tibi osténdó, et vitam ætérnam promítto.

LECTIO IX

Sed vide ne tibi subrépat, ut tépsum velis interímere, sic intellegéndó, quod debes odísse in hoc mundo ánimam tuam. Hinc enim quidam malígini atque perversi hómínes, et in seípsis crudelióres et sceleratióres homicídæ, flammis se donant, aquis se præ-

Christ. Or secondly, he that loveth his life shall lose it; love not then that which thou shalt lose; love not this present life, so that thou be thereby in jeopardy of losing life eternal.

R. Upon the bars I denied thee not, O God. * And when they put me to the fire, I acknowledged thee to be the Lord, O Jesus Christ.

Ÿ. Lord, Thou hast proved mine heart and visited it by night.

R. And when they put me to the fire, I acknowledged thee to be the Lord, O Jesus Christ.

LESSON VIII

What this second interpretation is the meaning of the Gospel, appeareth most probable from the words which follow: And he that hateth his life in this world, shall keep it unto life eternal. From which we may suppose the sense of the first words to be: He that loveth his life in this world shall lose it unto life eternal. This is a great and marvellous saying, showing how a man may so love life as to lose life, and so hate life as to keep life. If thou love it too well, then dost thou hate it; if thou hate it with an holy hatred, then dost thou love it. Blessed are they that, lest they should so love it as to lose it, so hate it as to keep it.

R. O Hippolytus, if thou believest in the Lord Jesus Christ, * I lay before thee treasure an hundredfold, and promise thee life everlasting.

Ÿ. The blessed Lawrence said unto Hippolytus: If thou believest in the Lord Jesus Christ.

R. I lay before thee treasure an hundred-fold, and promise thee life everlasting.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. I lay before thee treasure an hundred-fold, and promise thee life everlasting.

LESSON IX

Beware, lest thou take these words: He that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal as some do, for an approval of suicide. Some evil and perverse men, bloody and guilty murderers of themselves, do indeed throw themselves into the fire, drown themselves in water, and cast themfócant, præcipítio se collidunt, et péreunt. Hoc Christus non dócuit; immo étiam diá-bolo præcipítium suggerénti respóndit: Re-di retro, sátana: scriptum est, Non tentábis Dóminum, Deum tuum. Petro autem dixit, significans qua morte clarificatúrus erat Deum: Cum esses júnior, cingébas te, et ambulábas quo volébas; cum autem senúeris, alter te cinget et feret quo tu non vis. Ubi satis expréssit, non a seípso, sed ab álío debére occídi, qui vestígia séquitur Christi.

selves down precipices, and so perish. This is not the teaching of Christ, Who, when the devil would have Him cast Himself down from an high place, answered: Get thee behind Me, Satan. It is written, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God. (Matth. iv. 5-7.) Who also said to Peter, signifying by what death he should glorify God: When thou wast young thou girdedst thyself and walkedst whither thou wouldest; but when thou shalt be old, another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not. (John xxi. 18.) From which it is evident that he that would follow Christ's footsteps, must be slain, not by himself, but by another.

Tiburtius, Chromátii præfecti Urbis filius, sancti Sebastiani ópera Christianus, cum ob eam causam ad Fabianum judicem adductus esset múltaque apud illum de Christi fide prædicáret, excandéscens iudex paviméntum candéntibus carbónibus sterni iubet. Quo die Susanna virgo nobilíssima, quod Galerii Maximiani, ffilii Diocletiani imperatóris, conjúgium recusaret, ut quæ virginitátem Deo vóverat; post multa tormentórum genera, quibus varie tentátum est sanctum Vírginis propositum, domi suæ, jussu imperatóris, gládio percússa, ad duplex virginitátis et martyrii præmium migrávit in cælum.

Lessons I–II: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON III (WHEN COMMÉMORATED)

Tiburtius was son to Chromatius, Praefect of the city of Rome, and was converted to Christianity by holy Sebastian. On this account he was brought before Fabian the judge, and spake boldly in his presence many things concerning belief in Christ. Then Fabian broke out in anger and caused the pavement to be spread with live coals. Now, Tiburtius, said he, thou must either sacrifice to our gods, or walk barefoot on these coals. Tiburtius armed himself with the sign of the Cross and walked boldly on the coals. Learn from this, said he, that there is no God but He whom the Christians worship; for the coals are to me like flowers. For this (in the year 286) he was credited with art magic, led forth without the city and smitten with the sword at the third milestone on the Lavian Road, where he was buried by the Christians. On the same day, (about the year 295,) the noble maiden Susanna, having refused the offer of marriage of Galerius Maximianus, son to the Emperor Diocletian, because she had made a vow of her virginity to God, after diverse torments wherewith her holy resolution was tried, was smitten with the sword, in her own house, by order of the Emperor, and passed to heaven to receive the double reward of virginity and martyrdom.

LESSON IV

The noble maiden Clara was born at Assisi in Umbria, (in the year 1193.) In imitation of her holy fellow-citizen Francis, she distributed all her goods among the poor and needy. She fled from the din of the world, and (on the 18th day of March, 1212,) betook herself to the Church (of St. Mary of the Angels) in the fields, where blessed Francis cut her hair. She stoutly resisted the efforts of her family to make her come back, and after a while Francis took her to the Church of St. Damian, where the Lord gathered around her several companions. Thus she founded an holy Sisterhood, which, at the earnest entreaty of holy Francis, she governed. For two-and-forty years she directed her monastery with wonderful care and wisdom in the fear of the Lord and the full keeping of the Rule. Her own life was an instruction and teaching for the rest, whence others learnt to order their own.

What she might wax stronger in spirit by keeping the body down, she made her bed on the bare ground, sometimes with little twigs, and with hard wood for a pillow. Her dress was a gown and cloak of mean and rough cloth, and she sometimes wore hair-cloth next the skin. She bridled herself with such abstinence, that for a long time she took no bodily nourishment whatever upon three days in the week. Upon the remaining days she ate so little that the others wondered how she lived. As long as her health allowed it, she kept two Lents every year, during which she fasted upon bread and water. Moreover, she was instant in watching and prayer, wherein she chiefly spent both her days and nights. She suffered from constant illnesses, and when she could not herself rise to bodily work, she sat up with the help of the sisters, and with her back propped, worked with her hands, that she might not be idle even in the midst of her weaknesses. She was an eminent lover of poverty, from which no need ever made her swerve, and she persistently refused the possessions which were offered to the sisters by Gregory IX. for their support.

The power of her holy life shone forth in many and diverse miracles. She restored the use of speech to one of the sisters in her convent for another she opened a deaf ear she healed one sick with fever, one swollen with dropsy, one troubled with an hollow oozing ulcer, and others afflicted with diverse ailments. She cured a brother of the Order of Friars Minors of raging madness. Once when all the oil in the house was spent, she took the vessel and washed it, and it was found filled with oil by the goodness of God. She multiplied half a loaf till it was enough to satisfy fifty sisters. When the Saracens (attached to the army of Frederick II.) attacked Assisi, (in the year 1239,) and were fain to break into Clare's monastery, she being sick, caused herself to be carried to the door, and likewise the vessel in which was held the Most Holy Sacrament of the Eucharist, and there she prayed,

Having received the Holy Eucharist, and a Plenary Indulgence from Innocent IV., she resigned her soul to God upon the honours. Then when words were found only to be thrown away upon him, he was given over to the Prefect to be put to death. The Praefect went to the house of Hippolytus to take possession of his goods, and there found that all the household were Christians. He strove in vain to awe them into the denial of their faith, and then ordered Concordia, the nurse of Hippolytus, who was encouraging the rest, to be beaten to death with whips loaded with lead, and afterwards the others to be slain outside the gate that leadeth toward Tivoli. Hippolytus was tied to wild horses which dragged him through rough places full of briars and thistles, until with a mangled body he resigned his soul to God. Justin the Priest buried him along with the others. On the same day, at Imola, the martyr Cassian was put to a most cruel death. He was a schoolmaster, and was given up to his scholars, with his hands bound behind his back, to be stabbed and torn to death with steel pens. Owing to the weakness of the means, the suffering of his martyrdom was very grievous and long, and his palm all the more glorious.

LESSON I

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 11:27-28

At that time: It came to pass as Jesus spoke, a certain woman of the company lifted up her voice, and said unto him: Blessed is the womb that bore thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked. And so on, and that which followeth.

Homily by St. John Chrysostom

Homily 20 on John ch. 2, toward the end

When you give ear to the saying of that woman: Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked: and to the Lord's reply: Yea, rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God and keep it: think not that he made this ob-ma, non quod Matrem neglégeret, sed nihil ei utilitátis matris nomen allatúrum osténderet, nisi bonitáte et fide præstáret. Quod si Mariæ nihil, sine virtúte, matérna caritas erat profutúra; longe minus nobis patris, fratris, matris, filii bónnitas, nisi áliquid nostrum afferámus.

R. Dómine, Pater et Deus vitæ meæ, ne derelínquas me in cogitátu máligno: extolléntiam oculórum meórum ne déderis mihi, et desidérium málignum avérte a me, Dómine; aufer a me concupiscéntiam, * Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

Y. Ne derelínquas me, Dómine, ne accréscent ignorántiæ meæ, nec multiplicéntur delícta mea.

R. Et ánimo irreverénti et infruníto ne tradas me, Dómine.

LECTIO II

In nullo namque álio, nisi in solis sui ipsíus virtútibus, post divínam grátiam, de salúte cuípiam sperándum est. Nam, si id profutúrum erat per se Mariæ, profuísset étiam Judæis, quorum consanguíneus Christus secúndum carnem; profuísset civitáti, in qua natus est; profuísset frátribus. Atqui, dum fratres rerum suárum curam habuérun, nihil eis propinquitátis nomen profuit, sed cum réliquo mundo damnáti erant.

R. Magna enim sunt judícia tua, Dómine, et inenarrábília verba tua: * Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

Y. Transtulísti illos per Mare Rubrum et transvestísti eos per aquam nímiám.

R. Magnificásti pópulum tuum et honorásti.

LECTIO III

Tunc autem admiratióni esse cœpérunt, quando própria claruérun virtúte. Pátria vero nihil inde consecúta cécidit, et incéndio absúmpa est; concíves míseré interémpiti perière; consanguínei secúndum carnem nil servation as slighting his Mother, but as wishing to shew that it would profit her nothing to be called his Mother, unless she excelled in goodness and faith. Now, if a mother's love would avail Mary nothing without virtue, much less will it avail us to be a good father, brother, mother, or son, unless we are good in ourselves.

R. O Lord, Father and God of my life, leave me not to evil counsels; give me not a proud look, but turn away from me an haughty mind, O Lord turn away from me concupiscence, * And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord!

Y. Leave me not, O Lord, lest mine ignorance increase, and my sins abound.

R. And give me not over unto an impudent and froward mind, O Lord.

LESSON II

For indeed, salvation for anyone, apart from the divine grace, is to be hoped for in nothing else but his own virtues. For if her kinship in itself could have profited Mary, it would also have profited the Jews, for Christ was their kinsman according to the flesh; it would have profited the city in which he was born; it would have profited his brethren. Yet as long as his brethren cared only for their own interests, their relationship to Christ profited them nothing, but they were condemned with the rest of the world.

R. Great are thy judgments, O Lord, and thy words cannot be expressed. * Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

Y. Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

R. Thou didst make thy people mighty and honourable.

LESSON III

Then only did they begin to be worthy of admiration, when they shone by their own virtue. His native land, indeed, having gained nothing from its own connection with him, fell and was burnt by fire; his fellow-citizens were put to death and per-ad salutem lucrati sunt, deficiente virtutis patrocinio. Verum Apostoli ante omnes clarissimi evaserunt, cum se ad veram et expetendam ejus familiaritatem consuetudinemque per obedientiam contulerunt. Hinc intelligimus, fide semper nobis opus esse, et vita quæ virtutibus luceat: hæc dumtaxat salvos nos facere poterit.

R. Quæ sunt in corde hominum, oculi tui vident, Domine, et in libro tuo omnia scribentur: * Homo videt in facie, Deus autem in corde.

Ps. Omnia enim corda scrutatur, et universas mentium cogitationes intellegit.

R. Homo videt in facie, Deus autem in corde.

Ps. Gloria Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

R. Homo videt in facie, Deus autem in corde.

ished miserably; his kindred according to the flesh gained nothing towards their salvation; insofar as all these lacked the protection of virtue. But of them all, the Apostles became the most renowned, since by obedience they joined themselves to him in a right and desirable friendship and companionship. From this we learn, that we always have need of faith, and a life shining with virtues; since this alone will have power to save us.

R. Lord, thine eyes behold all that is in the heart of man, and in thy book are they all written. * Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ps. For He searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Ps. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart.

Gen 3:9-15

Vocavitque Dominus Deus Adam, et dixit ei: Ubi es? Qui ait: Vocem tuam audivi in paradiso; et timui eo quod nudus essem, et abscondi me. Cui dixit: Quis enim indicavit tibi quod nudus esses, nisi quod ex ligno de quo præceperam tibi ne comederes, comedisti? Dixitque Adam: Mulier quam dedisti mihi sociam, dedit mihi de ligno, et comedi. Et dixit Dominus Deus ad mulierem: Quare hoc fecisti? Quæ respondit: Serpens decipit me, et comedi. Et ait Dominus Deus ad serpentem: Quia fecisti hoc, maledictus es inter omnia animantia et bestias terræ; super pectus tuum gradieris, et terram comedes cunctis diebus vitæ tuæ. Inimicitias ponam

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Genesis

Gen 3:9-15

And the Lord God called Adam, and said to him: Where art thou? And he said: I heard thy voice in paradise; and I was afraid, because I was naked, and I hid myself. And he said to him: And who hath told thee that thou wast naked, but that thou hast eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat? And Adam said: The woman, whom thou gavest me to be my companion, gave me of the tree, and I did eat. And the Lord God said to the woman: Why hast thou done this? And she answered: The serpent deceived me, and I did eat. And the Lord God said to the serpent: Because thou hast done this thing, thou art cursed among all cattle, and beasts of the earth: upon thy breast shalt thou go, and earth shalt thou inter te et mulferem, et semen tuum et semen illius; ipsa conteret caput tuum, et tu insidiaberis calcaneo ejus.

R. Vidi speciosam sicut columbam, ascendentem desuper rivos aquarum, cujus inestimabilis odor erat nimis in vestimentis ejus; * Et sicut dies verni circumdabant eam flores rosarum et lilia convallium.

Ps. Quae est ista quae ascendit per desertum sicut virgula fumi ex aromatibus myrrhae et thuris?

R. Et sicut dies verni circumdabant eam flores rosarum et lilia convallium.

LECTIO II

De Epistola prima beati Pauli Apostoli ad Corinthios

1 COR 15:20-26

Christus resurrexit a mortuis primitiae dormientium, quoniam quidem per hominem mors, et per hominem resurrectio mortuorum. Et sicut in Adam omnes moriuntur, ita et in Christo omnes vivificabuntur; unusquisque autem in suo ordine: primitiae Christus; deinde ii qui sunt Christi, qui in adventu ejus crediderunt. Deinde finis, cum tradiderit regnum Deo et Patri, cum evacuaverit omnem principatum, et potestatem, et virtutem. Oportet autem illum regnare, donec ponat omnes inimicos sub pedibus ejus. Novissima autem inimica destruetur mors.

R. Sicut cedrus exaltata sum in Libano, et sicut cypressus in monte Sion: quasi myrrha electa, * Dedi suavitatem odoris.

Ps. Et sicut cinnamomum et balsamum aromatizans.

R. Dedi suavitatem odoris.

LECTIO III

1 COR 15:53-57

Oportet enim corruptibile hoc induere incorruptionem, et mortale hoc induere immortalitatem. Cum autem mortale hoc induerit immortalitatem, tunc fiet sermo qui eat all the days of thy life. I will put enmities between thee and the woman, and thy seed and her seed: she shall crush thy head, and thou shalt lie in wait for her heel.

R. I saw her, when, fair like a dove, she winged her flight above the rivers of waters. The priceless savour of her perfumes hung heavy in her garments. * And about her it was as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

Ps. Who is this that cometh out of the wilderness like a pillar of smoke, perfumed with myrrh and frankincense?

R. And about her it was as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

LESSON II

From the First Epistle of Blessed Paul the Apostle to the Corinthians

1 COR 15:20-26

But now Christ is risen from the dead, the firstfruits of them that sleep: For by a man came death, and by a man the resurrection of the dead. And as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all shall be made alive. But every one in his own order: the firstfruits Christ, then they that are of Christ, who have believed in his coming. Afterwards the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God and the Father, when he shall have brought to nought all principality, and power, and virtue. For he must reign, until he hath put all his enemies under his feet. And the enemy death shall be destroyed last.

R. I was exalted like a cedar in Lebanon, and as a cypress-tree upon Mount Zion. Like the best myrrh * I yielded a pleasant odour.

Ps. Like cinnamon and sweet balsam.

R. I yielded a pleasant odour.

LESSON III

1 COR 15:53-57

For this corruptible must put on incorruption; and this mortal must put on immortality. And when this mortal hath put on immortality, then shall come to pass the saying that is written: Death scriptus est: Absórpta est mors in victória. Ubi est, mors, victória tua? ubi est, mors, stímulus tuus? Stímulus autem mortis peccátum est, virtus vero peccáti lex. Deo autem grátias, qui dedit nobis victóriam per Dóminum Jesum Christum.

R. Quæ est ista quæ procéssit sicut sol, et formósa tamquam Jerúsalem? * Vidérunt eam filíæ Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et regínæ laudavérunt eam.

V. Et sicut dies verni circúmdabant eam flores rosárum et lília convállium.

R. Vidérunt eam filíæ Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et regínæ laudavérunt eam.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Vidérunt eam filíæ Sion, et beátam dixerunt, et regínæ laudavérunt eam.

LECTIO IV

Sermo sancti Joánnis Damascéni

Oratio 2 de Dormit. B. M. V., post init.

Hódie sacra et animáta arca Dei vivéntis, quæ suum in útero concépit Creatórem, requiescit in templo Dómini, quod nullis est extrúctum má nibus. Et David exsúltat ejus parens, et cum eo chorus ducunt Angeli, célebrant Archángeli, Virtútes gloríficant, Principátus exsúltant, Potestátes collætántur, gaudent Dominationóes, Throni festum diem agunt, laudant Chérubim, glóriam ejus prædicant Séraphim. Hódie Eden novi Adam paradísum súscipit animátum, in quo solúta est condemnátio, in quo plantátum est lignum vitæ, in quo opérta fuit nostra núditas.

R. Ornátam monílibus fíliam Jerúsalem Dóminus concupívit: * Et vidéntes eam filíæ Sion, beatíssimam prædicavérunt, dicéntes: Unguéntum effúsum nomen tuum.

is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting? Now the sting of death is sin: and the power of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, who hath given us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

R. Who is this that cometh up like the sun? This, comely as Jerusalem? * The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed: the queens also, and they praised her.

V. And about her it was as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

R. The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed the queens also, and they praised her.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed the queens also, and they praised her.

LESSON IV

From the Sermons of St. John of Damascus.

2nd on the Falling-asleep of Blessed Mary.

This day the holy and animated Ark of the living God, which had held within it its own Maker, is borne to rest in that Temple of the Lord, which is not made with hands. David, whence it sprang, leapeth before it, and in company with him the Angels dance, the Archangels sing aloud, the Virtues ascribe glory, the Princedoms shout for joy, the Powers make merry, the Lordships rejoice, the Thrones keep holiday, the Cherubim utter praise, and the Seraphim proclaim its glory. This day the Eden of the new Adam receiveth the living garden of delight, wherein the condemnation was annulled, wherein the Tree of Life was planted, wherein our nakedness was covered.

R. When the Lord beheld the daughter of Jerusalem adorned with her jewels, He greatly desired her beauty * And when the daughters of Zion saw her, they cried out that she was most blessed, saying thy name is as ointment poured forth.

V. Upon thy right hand did stand the Queen in a vesture of gold wrought about with diverse colours.

R. Et vidéntes eam filiæ Sion, beatíssimam prædicavérunt, dicéntes: Unguéntum effúsum nomen tuum.

LECTIO V

Hódie Virgo immaculáta, quæ nullis terrénis inquináta est affectibus, sed cæléstibus educáta cogitatiónibus, non in terram révér-sa est; sed, cum esset animátum cælum, in cæléstibus tabernáculis collocátur. Ex qua enim ómnibus vera vita manávit, quómodo illa mortem gustáret? Sed cedit legi latæ ab eo quem genuit; et, ut filia vétëris Adam, vétërem senténtiam súbiit (nam et ejus Fí-lius, qui est vita ipsa, eam non recusávit); ut autem Dei vivéntis Mater, ad illum ipsum digne assúmitur.

R. Beátam me dicent omnes generatiónes, *
Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.

ψ. Et misericórdia ejus a progénie in progénies timéntibus eum.

R. Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.

LECTIO VI

Ex Actis Pii Papæ duodécimi

Quóniam vero univér-sa Ecclési-a fidem in corpóream beatæ Mariæ Virginis Assumpti-onem per sæculórum decúrsum manifestávit, et toti-us orbis Epíscopi prope unánimi consensió-ne petiérunt ut hæc véritas, quæ Sacris Litteris innítitur, Christifidélium ánimis pénitus est ínsita, ceterisque revelá-tis veritatibus plane cónsona, tamquam divínæ et cathólicæ fidei dogma definirétur, Pius duodécimus Póntifex Máximus, toti-us Ecclésiæ votis ánnuens, státuit hoc Beatæ Mariæ Virginis privilégium solémniter renuntiáre. Itaque die prima Novémbris anni máximi Jubilæi millésimi nongentésimi quinquagésimi, Romæ, in foro ad sancti Petri Basilicam patén-te, plurimórum Sanctæ Románæ Ecclésiæ Cardinálium atque Episcopórum ex díssitis étiam regiónibus astánte cœtu, coram ingénti Christifidélium multitudíne,

R. And when the daughters of Zion saw her, they cried out that she was most blessed, saying thy name is as ointment poured forth.

LESSON V

This day the stainless maiden, who had been de-filed by no earthly lust, but ennobled by heavenly desires, returned not to dust, but, being herself a living heaven, took her place among the heavenly mansions. From her true life had flowed for all men, and how should she taste of death? But she yielded obedience to the law established by Him to Whom she had given birth, and, as the daughter of the old Adam, underwent the old sentence, which even her Son, Who is the very Life Itself, had not refused; but, as the Mother of the living God, she was worthily taken by Him unto Himself.

R. All generations shall call me blessed. * For He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.

ψ. And his mercy is on them that fear Him, from generation to generation.

R. He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.

LESSON VI

From the Acts of Pope Pius XII

Since indeed the universal Church hath at all times and throughout the ages manifested faith in the bodily Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and since the Bishops of the whole world by an almost unanimous agreement have petitioned that this truth, which is enshrined in Sacred Scripture and deeply rooted in the souls of Christ's faithful, and is also truly in accord with other revealed truths, should be defined as a dogma of the divine and Catholic Faith, Pope Pius XII, acceding to the requests of the whole Church, decreed that this privilege of the Blessed Virgin Mary be solemnly proclaimed, and thus, on the first day of November of the year of the Great Jubilee, nineteen hundred and fifty, at Rome, in the open square before the Basilica of St. Peter, surrounded by a throng of many Cardinals and Bishops of the Holy Roman Church who had come from distant parts of the earth, and before a great multitude of the faithful, with the whole Catholic world rejoicing, Virgin Mary with his special favour; in honour of his Son, the immortal King of ages and victor over sin and death; for the increase of the glory of the same august Mother, and for the joy and exultation of the whole Church, by the authority of Our Lord Jesus Christ, of the holy Apostles Peter and Paul, and by our own authority, we pronounce, declare and define it to be a divinely revealed dogma that: The Immaculate Mother of God, Mary ever Virgin, was, at the end of her earthly life, assumed body and soul into heavenly glory.*

 De Maria Deipara Virgine, lib. 5, c. 6*

The Church frequently and reverently keepeth feastdays dedicated to the Mother of God, realizing that it is a work pleasing to God and worthy of the faithful if many feasts, with fixed dates and public ceremonies, are celebrated in honour of anni tempóribus ac públicis cæremóniis sæpenúmero celebrátur. Inter has autem férias, quæ tot sæculis religiósè háctenus observántur, festum Assumptiónis máximum reputátur, locúmque princípem tenet. Nec dies quidem ullus Mariæ lætior feliciórque cóntigit, si novam et ánimæ et córporis felicitátem eo die illi collátam rite contemplémur: ideóque si ántea unquam, tunc vel máxime spíritus et ánima et corpus ejus in Deum vivum mirabíliter exsultávit, ípsaque summo jure dícere pótuit: Respéxit humilitátem ancíllæ suæ: Ecce enim ex hoc beátam me dicent omnes generatiónes: quia fecit mihi magna qui potens est.

℞. Diffúsa est grátia in lábiis tuis: *
Proptérea benedíxit te Deus in ætérnum.

℣. Myrrha, et gutta, et cásia a vestiméntis tuis, a dómibus ebúrneis, ex quibus detectavérunt te filiæ regum in honóre tuo.

℞. Proptérea benedíxit te Deus in ætérnum.

LECTIO VIII

Quare nos étiam, qui te Filiúmque tuum amámus, o ter beáta et vere augústa Mater, non póssumus huic præclará et incomparábili felicitáti tuæ non ex ánimo gratulári, quandóquidem quæcúmque a Dómino tibi et de te dicta sunt, tam pulchro éxitu concludúntur, ac omni ex parte tandem perficiúntur. Beáta quæ non modo credidísti, sed fídei étiam omnisque virtútis fructum et finem hódie consecúta es, et ejus quem tantópere amásti atque desiderásti, jucundíssimo conspéctu nunc demum pérfrui meruísti. Emmanuélem in castéllum mundi hujus intrántem, tamquam hóspitem, hóspita excepísti: hódie ab illo vicíssim in regále suum palátium excíperis, et tamquam mater tali Salomóne digna magnífice primum honoráris.

℞. Beáta es Virgo Mariá, Dei Génatrix, quæ credidísti Dómino: perfécta sunt in te quæ dicta sunt tibi: ecce exaltáta es super the most blessed of all the blessed in heaven, the Mother of our Lord and God. Among all these feasts which have been celebrated so devotedly for so many years, even unto the present day, the Feast of the Assumption is considered the greatest and holdeth chief place. Indeed there was no happier or more joyful day for Mary, if we duly consider the happiness of both body and soul granted to her on that day. Then especially, as never before, her spirit, soul and body rejoiced wondrously in the living God and she could rightfully say: He hath regarded the lowliness of his handmaiden; for behold, all generations shall call me blessed; for he that is mighty hath magnified me.

℞. Grace is poured into thy lips * Therefore God hath blessed thee for ever.

℣. thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces whereby kings' daughters among thy honourable women have made thee glad.

℞. Therefore God hath blessed thee for ever.

LESSON VIII

O thrice blessed and truly august Mother, it is for this reason that we who love thee and thy Son cannot refrain from congratulating thee with all sincerity upon thine admirable and incomparable happiness, especially since everything that hath been said to thee and about thee by the Lord, is brought to a conclusion by thy beautiful passing away from this life, and in every wise hath been perfectly fulfilled. Blessed art thou who hast not only believed but hast this day attained unto the end of faith and the fruit of all virtue, and now at last hast merited to enjoy the most pleasing sight of him whom thou didst love and desire so greatly. Thyself a guest, thou didst receive Emmanuel who as a guest did enter into thee, as into a mighty fortress in this world; and today, thou in turn art received by him into his royal mansion, and magnificently welcomed with the highest honour, as becometh one found worthy to be the Mother of such a Solomon.

℞. O Virgin Mary, Mother of God, blessed art thou that didst believe the Lord, for there hath been a performance of those things which were choros Angelórum: * Intercéde pro nobis ad Dóminum, Deum nostrum.

✠ Ave, María, grátia plena, Dóminus tecum.

℞. Intercéde pro nobis ad Dóminum, Deum nostrum.

✠ Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Intercéde pro nobis ad Dóminum, Deum nostrum.

LECTIO IX

Felix dies, qui tam pretiósum munus de huius mundi desérto transmísit, et ad sanctam æternámque civitátem ita perduxit, ut comúnē et incredíbile gáudium, nec minor admirátio cælítibus ómnibus crearetur. Felix dies, qui sponsæ languéntis tam ardéntibus quam diutúrnis desidériis satisfécit, ut quod quæsíverat inveníret, quod petíverat accíperet, quod exspectárat secúra possidéret, nímirum in illa summi æterníque boni perféc-ta visióne atque fruitióne pénitus conquiescens. Felix dies, qui ancíllam Dómini humíllimam eo usque provéxit ac éxtulit, ut præstantíssima cæli Regína, mundíque Dómina efficerétur, et ne áltius quidem posset assúrgere, quóniam in Regni sólio sublimáta, post Christum gloriósa resédit. Felix hic planéque venerándus dies est, qui Regínam et Matrem nobis poténtem simul et cleméntem in regno Dei constituit ac confirmávit, ut eámdem, quæ Júdicis mater assidue manet, matrem misericórdiæ nobis favéntem, apud Christum patrocínantem, nostræque salútis negótia fidéliter procurántem habéamus.

Te Deum

told thee from the Lord. Behold, thou art exalted over choirs of Angels. * Plead for us with the Lord our God.

LESSON IX

O blessed day which sent so precious a gift from the desert of this world, and carried it to the holy and eternal city, so that universal and unheard of joy no less than admiration welled up in all the blessed in heaven. O blessed day, that fulfilled the long and ardent yearning of the gentle spouse, so that she might find what she had sought, that she might receive what she asked; that what she awaited she might possess securely, resting safely at last in that perfect vision and inward joy of the eternal and all-great Goodness. O blessed day which raised up and so highly exalted this most humble handmaiden of the Lord that she might become the most glorious Queen of Heaven and the mistress of the world. Indeed she could not have risen to more sublime heights since she had been elevated to the very Throne of the heavenly kingdom, and thus was established in glory next after Christ. O blessed and truly honourable is this day which constituted and confirmed for us a Queen and Mother who is at once powerful and merciful in the kingdom of God, that we might have her, who ever remaineth the Mother of the Judge, as a Mother of mercy protecting us and interceding for us with Christ, unceasingly watching over the work of our salvation.

Virg. sub init.Discourse on the Praises of the Virgin*

De radice Jesse ortus est rex David, et de tribu regis David sancta Virgo: sancta, inquam, et sanctorum virorum filia, cujus parentes fuerunt Jóachim et Anna; qui quidem in vita sua Deo placuerunt, atque etiam fructum ejusmodi germinaverunt, sanctam Virginem Mariam, templum simul et matrem Dei. Jóachim porro, Anna et María, hi tres Trinitati palam sacrificium laudis offerébant. Jóachim enim interpretatur Præparatio Domini, eo quod ex illo præparatum sit templum Domini, nempe Virgo. Anna rursus similiter Grátia interpretatur, propterea quod Jóachim et Anna grátiam acceperunt, ut accedéntibus precibus, talem fructum germinarent, sanctam Virginem adépti; Jóachim síquidem precabatur in monte, et Anna in horto suo.

From the Root of Jesse sprang King David, and from the stock of King David, the Holy Virgin. Holy I call her, and the daughter of holy men. Her father and mother were Joachim and Anne, who pleased God in their lives, and brought forth an offspring well pleasing to Him, even the Holy Virgin Mary, at once the Temple and the Mother of God. These three, Joachim, Anne, and Mary, clearly offered up unto the Trinity a sacrifice of praise. For the name Joachim being interpreted, signifieth “the preparation of the Lord”, and out of him was prepared the Temple of the Lord, namely, the Virgin. The name Anne signifieth grace, and she and Joachim did indeed receive a grace when, in answer to their prayers, they generated such an offspring, compassing the Holy Virgin. Joachim prayed upon the mountain and Anne in her garden.

LECTIO VI

Exsulta, Jóachim, quóniam ex fília tua Fílius natus est nobis; et vocátur nomen ejus magni consílii, hoc est, salútis totíus mundi Angelus. Pudóre afficiátur Nestórius, ac manum ori impónat. Mea non est hæc orátio, quamquam alióqui mea; hanc enim diviníssimam hereditátem a theólogo patre Gregório accépi. O beátum par Jóachim et Anna! Ac profécto ex ventris vestri fructu immaculáti agnoscímini, quemádmódum Christus quodam loco dixit: Ex frúctibus eórum cognoscétis eos. O blessed couple, Joachim and Anne unto you is all creation laid under debt, since through you creation hath offered to the Creator this noblest of gifts, namely, that chaste mother, who alone was worthy of the Creator.

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

Rejoice, O Joachim, from whose daughter a Child hath unto us been born, and His name is called The Angel of the Great Counsel, that is, of the salvation of the whole world. Let Nestorius be ashamed, and put his hand upon his mouth. Her Child is God. How then can His Mother be other than Mother of God? Whosoever acknowledgeth not the Holy Mother of God is far from God. This saying is not mine, although it is mine in all other senses than that of authority. I have received it as a most godly legacy from Father Gregory the Divine. O blessed couple, Joachim and Anne. Christ saith in a certain place: By their fruits ye shall know them (Matth. iii. 20) and ye are known by the fruit of your chaste loins. That that which should be born of you might be worthy and well-pleasing in the sight of God, ye ordered your own lives by rule. In the chaste and holy exercise of your natural gift, ye produced the treasure of virginity.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ÿ. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

R. Quia te vidi justum coram me ex

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 1:1-16

The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham. Abraham begat Isaac, and Isaac begat Jacob. And so on.

*Homily by St. John of Damascus
Bk. iv on the Orthodox Faith*

That Joseph sprang from the lineage of David, the most holy Evangelists Matthew and Luke have clearly shown. There is this difference between them, that Matthew traceth the pedigree from David through Solomon, and Luke through Nathan. But both of them pass in silence over the descent of the Holy Virgin. In explanation of this we shall find on investigation that among the Jews, and in the Holy Scriptures, it hath never been in use to chronicle the pedigrees of women. But the Law containeth a warning against the tribes intermarrying one with another. Joseph was of the same tribe as David, (namely, Judah,) and since he was a just man (this is the praise which the Gospel of God giveth him,) he would not have espoused the Holy Virgin, unless she had been of the same race, as such an union would not have been in accordance with the commandment of the law. For this reason the Evangelist held it enough to have shown the descent of Joseph.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before
God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. *
May he pray for all people, that their sins may
be forgiven unto them.

Ÿ. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

R. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Igitur ex stirpe Nathan, filii David, Levi genuit Melchi et Panthérem. Panther autem genuit Barpanthérem (namque ita vocabatur). Barpánther rursus genuit Jóachim. Jóachim dénique genuit sanctam Dei Genetrícem. Rursus, ex stirpe Salomónis, filii David, Mathan ex uxóre sua genuit Jacob. Mórtuo autem Mathan, Melchi ex tribu Nathan, filius Levi ac frater Panthéris, uxórem ipsíus Mathan, quæ étiam Jacóbi mater erat, matrimonio sibi copulávit, atque ex ea genuit Heli. Ita uteríni fratres erant Jacob et Heli; ille nímirum ex tribu Salomónis, hic ex tribu Nathan oriúndus.

Joseph itaque natúra quidem filius Jacob erat, a Salomóne oriúndus; legis autem ratióne patrem habébat Heli, ex Nathan oriúndum. Quæ cum ita sint, Jóachim lectíssimam illam ac summis láudibus dignam mulierem Annam matrimonio sibi copulávit. Verum, quemádmódum prisca illa Anna, cum sterilitátis morbo laboráret, per oratiónem ac promissiónem, Samuélem procreávit; eódem modo hæc étiam, per obsecratiónem et promissiónem, Dei Genetrícem a Deo accépit, ut ne

Therefore, from the stock of Nathan the son of David, Levi begat Melchi and Panther and Panther begat Bar-Panther (for so was he called) and Bar-Panther begat Joachim and Joachim begat the Holy Mother of God. Again, from the stock of Solomon the son of David, Mathan of his wife begat Jacob. And after Mathan was dead, Melchi, of the family of Nathan, son to Levi and brother to Panther, took to him in marriage her that had been the wife of Mathan, and was mother of Jacob, and begat of her Heli. So that Jacob and Heli were half-brothers, sons of the same mother, but one of the stock of Solomon and the other of the stock of Nathan.

- V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

Then Heli, who was the descendant of Nathan, died, having had no children. Whereupon, Jacob, who was the descendant of Solomon, took to himself the widow of his half-brother Heli, to raise up seed unto his brother, and begat of her Joseph. So Joseph was by nature the son of Jacob the descendant of Solomon, but in the eye of the Law he had for his father Heli the descendant of Nathan. Things being thus, Joachim took to wife that most eminent and praiseworthy woman, Anne. And even as the patient Hannah, being stricken with barrenness, by prayer and promise became the mother of Samuel, so likewise this woman also through prayer and promise received from God the Mother of God, that in fruitfulness she might not be behind any of the famous matrons. And

LESSON IV

Hyacinth was a Pole, and was born (in the year 1185) of the noble and Christian family (of the Counts of Odrowatz,) in the town of Camien, in the diocese of Wratislaw. He was trained up in learning from his youth, and after studying law and theology, became a Canon of Crakow, where he was eminent above his fellows by the singular godliness of his life and the depth of his learning. Being at Rome, (in 1218,) he was received into the Order of Friars Preachers by the Founder, St. Dominic, himself, and kept in holiness to the end of his life the rule of perfect living which he had learnt from him. He remained always a virgin, and loved modesty, long-suffering, lowliness, self-restraint, and all other good graces as his heritage in the life of a Friar.

℟. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

Caritáte in Deum fervens, integras sæpe noctes fundéndis précibus castigandóque corpore insúmens, nullum eidem levaméntum, nisi lapidi innixus sive humi cubans, adhibebat. Remissus in pátriam, Frisaci primum in itinere amplíssimum sui ordinis monastérium, mox Cracoviæ álterum eréxit. Inde per alias Poloniæ regni provincias aliis quatuor exædificatis, incredibile dictu est quantum verbi Dei prædicatióne et vitæ innocentia apud omnes profecerit. Nullum diem prætermisit, quo non præclára aliqua fidei, pietátis atque innocentia argumenta præstiterit.

Inter quæ illud insigne, quod Vándalum fluvium prope Visogradum aquis redundántem, nullo navigio usus, trajecit, sociis quoque expanso super undas pallio traductis. Admirábili vitæ genere ad quadraginta prope annos post professiónem perducto, mortis die suis frátribus prænuntiáto, ipso assumptæ Vírginis festo, Horis canonicis persolutis, sacramentis ecclesiásticis summa cum veneratióne perceptis, iis verbis: In manus tuas, Dómine; spíritum Deo réddidit, anno salútis millesimo ducentésimo quinquagesimo septimo. Quem miraculis, étiam post óbitum, illustrem, Clemens Papa octavus in Sanctórum númerum rétulit.

℣. Iste est, qui contémpsit vitam mundi, et pervénit ad cæléstia regna.

In the heat of his love for God, he sometimes passed whole nights in pouring forth prayers and chastising his body, to which he never gave rest but in leaning against a stone or lying upon the ground. He was sent back to his own country, and, on the way, founded a very large house of his Order at Friesach and soon afterwards another at Crakow. In other provinces of the kingdom of Poland he founded four others, and it passeth belief what success he had with all kinds of men, by his preaching of the Word of God, and the innocence of his life. Not a day passed wherein he did not display some bright gift of faith, godliness, or innocence.

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

The zeal of this most holy man for the salvation of his neighbors was that which God marked by His greatest miracles. Among these is famous the time when coming to the River Vistula near Wisgrade, and finding it in flood, he crossed it without a boat, drawing over also his three companions standing upon the waves upon his outspread mantle. He led a wonderful life for nearly forty years after his profession, and then foretold to his brethren the day of his death. Upon the very day of the Feast of the Assumption of the Virgin, he finished the recitation of the Office of the Church, received the Sacraments with the utmost reverence, and then with the words, Into thy hands, O Lord, gave up his soul to God in the year of salvation 1257. He was illustrious for miracles even after his death, and Pope Clement VIII. numbered him among the saints.

℞. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Tractatus 27. in fine.

Ex Tractatu sancti Augustíni Epíscopi in Joánnem.

Certi sumus, fratres, quia omnes, qui sumus in corpore Domini, et manemus in illo, ut et ipse maneat in nobis, in hoc sæculo ne-cesse habemus usque in finem inter malos vivere; non inter illos dico malos, qui blas-phemant Christum; raro enim jam inveniu-tur, qui lingua blasphemant, sed multi, qui vita. Necesse est ergo, ut inter illos usque in finem vivamus. Sed quid est quod ait, Qui manet in me, et ego in illo? Quid, nisi quod Martyres audiebant: Qui perseveraverit usque in finem, hic salvus erit?

Quomodo mansit in illo sanctus Laurentius, cujus hodie festum diem celebramus?
Mansit usque ad tentationem, mansit usque ad tyrannicam interrogationem, mansit usque ad acerrimam comminationem, mansit usque ad peremptionem. Parum est: usque ad immanem excruciationem mansit. Non enim occisus est cito, sed cruciatus est in igne.
Diu vivere permissus est: immo non diu vi-vere permissus est, sed tarde mori compulsus
est. In illa ergo longa morte, in illis tormen-tis, quia bene manducaverat, et bene bibe-rat, tamquam illa esca saginatus, et illo calice ebrius, tormenta non sensit.

LESSON IV

Commemoration of: Octave of St. Lawrence, Martyr

(21th.)

From one of the Tracts upon John, written by St.
Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo.)

Brethren, we know that all we who are in the body of the Lord, and abide in Him that He also may abide in us, must needs in this world live even unto the end among the wicked; by the wicked
I mean not such as blaspheme Christ, for it is now but few who are found who blaspheme Him with their tongue, but many there be who do it by their lives. Among such we must needs live, even unto the end. But what is it that He said, He that abideth in Me and I in him? (John xv. 5.) Is it not that whereunto the Martyrs gave ear, He that endureth to the end shall be saved? (Matth. x. 22.)

In what wise abode in Him the holy Lawrence whose Feast-day we keep to-day? He abode in Him until trial came; he abode in Him until He was browbeaten by the tyrant; he abode in Him until his fearful sentence came; he abode in Him even unto death. That is saying but a little of him; he abode in Him even in savage torture. He was not slain quickly, but tortured in the fire. He was allowed to remain long alive, and yet not allowed to remain long alive, but slowly put to death. During that long death, in all that agony, since he had well eaten and well drunk, filled with that Food, and drunken with that Cup, he felt not the torture.

Dixerat autem illi Xystus Martyr sanctus, cujus diem quinto abhinc retro die celebravimus: Noli merere fili: (episcopus enim erat ille, iste diaconus) noli merere, inquit, sequeris me post triduum. Triduum autem dixit medium inter diem passionis sancti Xysti, et diem hodiernam passionis sancti Laurentii. Triduum est medium. O consolatio! Non ait, Noli merere fili, desinet persecutio, et securus eris: sed, Noli merere: quo ego præcedo, tu sequeris; nec consecutio tua differatur. Triduum medium erit, et mecum eris. Accepit oraculum, vicit diabolum, pervenit ad triumphum.

Te Deum

Nor the holy Martyr Xystus, whose day we kept five days ago, had said unto him: Be not sorrowful, my son (for he was the Bishop and Lawrence the Deacon,) be not sorrowful, said he, yet three days and thou shalt follow me. These three days of which he spake were the three clear days which elapse between the day of the passion of holy Xystus, and this day, the day of the passion of holy Lawrence. The three days are those between. O what a strange comfort! He saith not: Be not sorrowful, my son; the persecution will come to an end, and thou wilt be safe, but Be not sorrowful, whither I go, thither shalt thou follow me, and the time will not be long. Three clear days shall pass, and then thou shalt be with me. Lawrence received the prophecy, conquered the devil, and entered into his triumph.

Song 4:1-4

thy teeth as flocks of sheep, that are shorn which come up from the washing, all with twins, and there is none barren among them. thy lips are as a scarlet lace: and thy speech sweet. thy cheeks are as a piece of a pomegranate, besides that which lieth hid within. thy neck, is as the tower of David, which is built with bulwarks: a thousand bucklers hang upon it, all the armour of valiant men.

How beautiful art thou, my love, how beautiful art thou! thy eyes are doves' eyes, besides what is hid within. thy hair is as flocks of goats, which Come up from mount Galaad.

LECTIO II

Cant 4:7-10

Tota pulchra es, amíca mea, et mácula non est in te. Veni de Líbano, sponsa mea: veni de Líbano, veni, coronáberis: de cápite Amana, de vértice Sanir et Hermon, de cubílibus leónum, de móntibus pardórum. Vulnerásti cor meum, soror mea, sponsa; vulnerásti cor meum in uno oculórum tuórum, et in uno crine colli tui. Quam pulchræ sunt mammæ tuæ, soror mea sponsa! pulchríora sunt úbera tua vino, et odor unguentórum tuórum super ómnia arómata.

℟. Sicut cedrus exaltáta sum in Líbano, et sicut cypréssus in monte Sion: quasi myrrha elécta, * Dedi suavitátem odóris.

¶ Et sicut cinnamómum et bálsamum aromatízans.

℟. Dedi suavitátem odóris.

LECTIO III

Cant 4:11-15

Favus distíllans lábia tua, sponsa; mel et lac sub lingua tua: et odor vestimentórum tuórum sicut odor thuris. Hortus conclúsus soror mea, sponsa, hortus conclúsus, fons signátus. Emissiónes tuæ paradísus malórum punicórum, cum pomórum frúctibus, cypri cum nardo. Nardus et crocus, fístula et cinnamómum, cum univérsis lignis Líbani; myrrha et áloe, cum ómnibus primis unguéntis. Fons hortórum, púteus aquárum vivéntium, quæ fluunt ímpetu de Líbano.

℟. Quæ est ista quæ procéssit sicut sol, et formósa tamquam Jerúsalem? * Vidérunt of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

¶ Who is this that cometh out of the wilderness like a pillar of smoke, perfumed with myrrh and frankincense?

℟. And about her it was as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

LESSON II

Song 4:7-10

Thou art all fair, O my love, and there is not a spot in thee. Come from Libanus, my spouse, come from Libanus, come: thou shalt be crowned from the top of Amana, from the top of Sanir and Hermon, from the dens of the lions, from the mountains of the leopards. Thou hast wounded my heart, my sister, my spouse, thou hast wounded my heart with one of thy eyes, and with one hair of thy neck. How beautiful are thy breasts, my sister, my spouse! thy breasts are more beautiful than wine, and the sweet smell of thy ointments above all aromatical spices.

℟. I was exalted like a cedar in Lebanon, and as a cypress-tree upon Mount Zion. Like the best myrrh * I yielded a pleasant odour.

¶ Like cinnamon and sweet balsam.

℟. I yielded a pleasant odour.

LESSON III

Song 4:11-15

thy lips, my spouse, are as a dropping honeycomb, honey and milk are under thy tongue; and the smell of thy garments, as the smell of frankincense. My sister, my spouse, is a garden enclosed, a garden enclosed, a fountain sealed up. thy plants are a paradise of pomegranates with the fruits of the orchard. Cypress with spikenard. Spikenard and saffron, sweet cane and cinnamon, with all the trees of Libanus, myrrh and aloes with all the chief perfumes. The fountain of gardens: the well of living waters, which run with a strong stream from Libanus.

℟. Who is this that cometh up like the sun? This, comely as Jerusalem? * The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed: the queens also, and they praised her.

✠. Glória Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

R. Vidérunt eam filiæ Sion, et beatam dixerunt, et reginæ laudaverunt eam.

LECTIO IV

Ex Constitutione Apostolica Pii Papæ duodecimi

Sanctorum Patrum ac theologorum argumenta considerationesque Sacris Litteris, tamquam ultimo fundamento, nituntur; quæ quidem almam Dei Matrem nobis veluti ante oculos proponunt divino Filio suo conjunctissimam, ejusque semper participantem sortem. Quamobrem quasi impossibile videtur eam cernere, quæ Christum concepit, peperit, suo lacte aluit, eumque inter ulnas habuit pectorique obstrinxit suo, ab eodem post terrestrem hanc vitam, etsi non anima, corpore tamen separatam. Cum Redemptor noster Mariæ Filius sit, haud poterat profecto, utpote divinæ legis observator perfectissimus, præter Æternum Patrem, Matrem quoque suam dilectissimam non honorare. Atqui, cum eam posset tam magno honore exornare, ut eam a sepulcri corruptione servaret incolumem, id reapse fecisse credendum est.

R. Ornátam monílibus fíliam Jerúsalem Dóminus concupívit: * Et vidéntes eam filiæ Sion, beatíssimam prædicáverunt, dicéntes: Unguéntum effúsum nomen tuum.

✠. Astitit regína a dextris tuis in vestítu deauráto, circúmdata varietáte.

R. Et vidéntes eam filiæ Sion, beatíssimam prædicáverunt, dicéntes: Unguéntum effúsum nomen tuum.

✠. And about her it was as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, and lilies of the valleys.

R. The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed the queens also, and they praised her.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. The daughters of Zion saw her, and called her blessed the queens also, and they praised her.

LESSON IV

The Lesson is taken from the Apostolic Constitution of Pope Pius XII

All these proofs and considerations of the holy Fathers and Theologians are based upon the Sacred Scriptures as the final foundation; they establish the blessed Mother of God before our eyes, as it were, as most closely united to her divine Son and always sharing his lot. Therefore, it seemeth impossible to think of her who conceived Christ, gave birth to him, gave him milk, held him in her arms, and clasped him to her heart, as being, after her earthly life, separated from him in body if not in soul. Since our Redeemer is the Son of Mary, he could surely not do otherwise, as the most perfect observer of the divine law, than to honour his most beloved Mother in addition to honouring his eternal Father. And, since it was possible for him to give her this great honour, that she might be preserved from the corruption of the grave, we must believe that he really did so.

R. When the Lord beheld the daughter of Jerusalem adorned with her jewels, He greatly desired her beauty * And when the daughters of Zion saw her, they cried out that she was most blessed, saying thy name is as ointment poured forth.

✠. Upon thy right hand did stand the Queen in a vesture of gold wrought about with diverse colours.

R. And when the daughters of Zion saw her, they cried out that she was most blessed, saying thy name is as ointment poured forth.

LECTIO V

Maxime autem illud memorandum est, inde a sæculo secundo, Mariam Virginem a sanctis Patribus véluti novam Hevam proponi novo Adæ, etsi subjectam, arctissime conjunctam in certamine illo adversus inferorum hostem, quod quemadmodum in protoevangelio præsignificatur, ad plenissimam deveniturum erat victoriam de peccato ac de morte, quæ semper in gentium Apostoli scriptis inter se copulantur. Quamóbre, sicut gloriosa Christi anástasis essentialis pars fuit ac postremum hujus victoriæ tropæum, ita Beatæ Virginis commune cum Filio suo certamen virginei corporis «glorificatione» concludendum erat; ut enim idem Apostolus ait, «cum ... mortale hoc induerit immortalitatem, tunc fiet sermo, qui scriptus est: absorpta est mors in victoria.»

℟. Beátam me dicent omnes generatiónes, *
Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.

℣. Et misericórdia ejus a progénie in progénies timéntibus eum.

℟. Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.

LECTIO VI

Idcirco augusta Dei Mater, Jesu Christo, inde ab omni æternitate, «uno eodemque decreto» prædestinationis, arcano modo conjuncta, immaculata in suo conceptu, in divina maternitate sua integerrima virgo, generosa Divini Redemptoris socia, qui plenum de peccato ejusque consecrariis deportavit triumphum, id tandem assecuta est, quasi supremam suorum privilegiorum coronam, ut a sepulcri corruptione servaretur immunis, utque, quemadmodum jam Filius suus, devicta morte, corpore et anima ad supernam cæli gloriam eveheretur, ubi Regina refulgeret ad ejusdem sui Filii dexteram, immortalis sæculorum Regis.

℟. Beáta es, Virgo María, quæ Dóminum portásti, Creatórem mundi: * Genuísti

LESSON V

And this indeed should be borne in mind, that as far back as the second century the holy Fathers represented Mary as the new Eve of a new Adam, and closely joined to him (although dependently upon him) in the fight against the hellish enemy which, as already foretold in the protogospel, would end in complete victory over sin and death, which two phases are always joined in the writings of the Apostle of the Gentiles. Wherefore, just as the essential glory of Christ's resurrection was a part and final trophy of this victory, so also the association of Mary with her Son in this common struggle was to end with the glorification of her virginal body; for as the same Apostle saith: When this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory.

℟. All generations shall call me blessed. * For He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.

℣. And his mercy is on them that fear Him, from generation to generation.

℟. He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.

LESSON VI

Therefore the august Mother of God, from all eternity united in a hidden way with Jesus Christ by one and the same decree of predestination, immaculate in her conception, an inviolate virgin in her divine motherhood, the gracious cooperator of the Divine Redeemer who triumphed completely over sin and its consequences, was finally granted as the supreme crown of her privileges that she should be preserved free from the corruption of the grave, and that, like her own Son, having conquered death, she might be taken up, body and soul, to the exalted glory of heaven, where she sitteth in splendour at the right hand of her very Son, the immortal King of ages.

℟. Blessed art thou, O Virgin Mary, who hast carried the Lord, the Maker of the world. *

qui te fecit, et in ætérnum pérmanes Virgo.

✠ Ave, María, grátia plena; Dóminus tecum.

℞. Genuísti qui te fecit, et in ætérnum pérmanes Virgo.

✠ Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℞. Genuísti qui te fecit, et in ætérnum pérmanes Virgo.

LUC 1:41-50

In illo tempore: Repleta est Spiritu Sancto Elisabeth et exclamavit voce magna, et dixit: Benedicta tu inter mulieres. Et reliqua.

*Homilia sancti Petri Damiani Episcopi
In Nativitate B. M. V.*

Virgo Dei Genitrix, cujus pulchritudinem sol et luna mirantur, súbveni, dómina, clamantibus ad te jugiter: Revértere, revértere Sunamítis, revértere, ut intueamur te. Tu benedicta, et super benedicta, revértere per potentiam. Fecit in te magna qui potens est, et data est tibi omnis potestas in cælo et in terra. Nihil tibi impossibile, cui possibile est desperatos in spem beatitudinis relevare. Quomodo enim illa potestas tuæ potentiæ poterit obviare, quæ de carne tua carnis suscepit originem? Accedis enim ante illud aureum humanæ, reconciliationis altare, non solum rogans, sed imperans, dómina, non ancilla. Moveat te natura, potentia moveat, quia quanto potentior, tanto misericordior esse debebis. Potestati enim cedit ad gloriam, injurias ulcisci nolle cum possit. Revértere per amorem. Scio, dómina, quia benignissima es, et amas nos amore invincibili, quos in te et per te Filius tuus et Deus tuus summa dilectione dilexit. Quis scit quoties refrigeras iram Judicis, cum justitiæ virtus a præsentia deitatis egréditur?

Thou hast borne Him Who created thee, and thou abidest a virgin for ever.

✠ Hail, Mary, full of grace. the Lord is with thee.

℞. Thou hast borne Him Who created thee, and thou abidest a virgin for ever.

✠ Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. Thou hast borne Him Who created thee, and thou abidest a virgin for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 1:41-50

At that time : Elisabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost: and she spake out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women. And so on, and that which followeth.

*A Homily by St. Peter Damian the Bishop
In Nativitate B. M. V.*

O Virgin Mother of God, at whose beauty the sun and the moon stand in awe, come to the aid of them that unceasingly call upon thee, O Lady. Turn thou unto us, o turn thou unto us, O Sulamitess, turn thou unto us, o turn thou unto us that we may behold thee, O blessed, yea more than blessed Maid, turn thou unto us in thy power. He that is mighty hath magnified thee, and hath given thee all power in heaven and in earth. Nothing is impossible to thee, to whom it is possible to shew the most desolate souls the hope of happiness. For how can that Power ignore thy power, when it received its fleshly origin from thy flesh? Thou standest before that golden altar of reconciliation, not only asking, but commanding, as mistress rather than handmaid. Let thy nature move thee, because the more power thou art, the more merciful must thou needs be. For it doth surely redound to the glory of power, to be unwilling to exact vengeance for wrong. Look upon us through love; I know, O Lady, that thou art the most blessed and that thou lovest with an unconquerable love them that in thee and through thee, thy Son and thy God hath loved with a great love. Who knoweth how many times thou didst turn away the anger of the Judge when the virtue of justice went forth from the presence of God.

R. Diffúsa est grátia in lábiis tuis: *
Proptérea benedíxit te Deus in ætérnum.

Ÿ. Myrrha, et gutta, et cásia a vestiméntis tuis, a dómibus ebúrneis, ex quibus delectáverunt te filia regum in honóre tuo.

R. Proptérea benedíxit te Deus in ætérnum.

LECTIO VIII

Revértere per singularitatem. In manibus tuis sunt thesauri miserationum Domini, et sola electa es, cui gratia tanta conceditur. Ab-sit ut cesset manus tua, cum occasionem quæras salvandi miseros et misericordiam effundendi! neque enim tua gloria minúitur, sed augetur, cum pœnitentes ad veniam, ju-stificati ad gloriam assumuntur. Revértere ergo, Sunamítis, id est despecta, cujus ani-mam pertransivit gladius quæ fabri uxor appellata fuisti. Ad quid? Ut intueamur te.
Summa gloria est post Deum te vidére, ad-hærere tibi, et in tuæ protectionis munimine demorari. Audi nos. Nam et Filius nihil ne-gans honorat te, qui est Deus benedictus in sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

R. Beáta es Virgo María, Dei Génetríx, quæ credidísti Dómino: perfécta sunt in te quæ dicta sunt tibi: ecce exaltáta es super choros Angelórum: * Intercéde pro nobis ad Dóminum, Deum nostrum.

Ÿ. Ave, María, grátia plena, Dóminus tecum.

R. Intercéde pro nobis ad Dóminum,
Deum nostrum.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Intercéde pro nobis ad Dóminum,
Deum nostrum.

R. Grace is poured into thy lips * Therefore God hath blessed thee for ever.

Ÿ. thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces whereby kings' daughters among thy honourable women have made thee glad.

R. Therefore God hath blessed thee for ever.

LESSON VIII

Turn thou unto us through thy very uniqueness.
In thy hands are the treasures of the Lord's mercy, and thou alone art the chosen one to whom such great grace is given. Heaven forbid thy hand should ever weaken, for thou wilt never have to seek any occasion of saving the unfortunate or of pouring you thy mercy. Nor doth thy glory ever grow less, but it ever increaseth, for penitents are taken back into favour, and just souls are raised into glory. Turn thou unto us, O Sulamitess, that is, one who was despised, whose soul the sword did pierce and who hath been called the spouse of a carpenter. And why do we ask thee to turn unto us? So that we may behold thee. The greatest glory after seeing God is to see thee, to cling to thee, and to dwell in the fastness of thy protection.
Hear thou us, for thy Son doth honour thee and denieth thee nothing, and he is God who is blessed forever and ever. Amen.

R. O Virgin Mary, Mother of God, blessed art thou that didst believe the Lord, for there hath been a performance of those things which were told thee from the Lord. Behold, thou art exalted over choirs of Angels. * Plead for us with the Lord our God.

Ÿ. Hail, Mary, full of grace, the Lord is with thee.

R. Plead for us with the Lord our God.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to
the Holy Ghost.

R. Plead for us with the Lord our God.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of S. Agapitus, Martyr

Agapitus was a young man of Palestrina, who eagerly accepted martyrdom at the age of fifteen years, under the Emperor Aurelian. On account of his firmness in his religion, the Emperor ordered him first to receive an exceedingly long hiding with cat-gut, and then to be thrown into a foul dungeon, where he remained for four days without food. Being brought out of prison, live embers were put upon his head, but, whereas he still gave God thanks, he was whipped again, and hung up naked by the feet, in such wise that a thick smoke from a fire kindled under his face might pour into his mouth. Afterwards, boiling water was poured upon his belly, and his jaws were broken. Then presently the judge fell from his judgement seat, and shortly after died. Whereupon the Emperor was enraged, and commanded the holy youth to be thrown to wild beasts, but these dared not to touch him, and he was stricken by the sword at Palestrina.

*Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.
Lessons VII–IX: from the Common of a Confessor not a Bishop (C5).*

LESSON IV

John was born in the year 1601, of pious and respectable parents, at a village commonly known as Ri, in the diocese of Seez. While still a boy, when he was fed with the bread of Angels, he cheerfully made a vow of perpetual chastity. Having been received at the College of Caen, directed by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus, he was conspicuous exceptus, singulari pietate emicuit; et Mariæ Virginis tutelæ sese committens, speciale fœdus initum cum ea vix adolescens suo sanguine signavit. Litterarum ac philosophiæ curriculo multa cum laude peracto, spretisque sibi oblatiis nuptiis, Berulliani Oratorii congregationi nomen dedit, et sacerdotio Parisiis auctus est. Mira caritate erga proximum flagravat: nam apud plura loca, corporibus, asiatica lue percussis, animisque curandis sedulam operam dedit. Domus Oratorianæ Cadomi rector factus, quum diu cogitaret ad Ecclesiæ ministerium juvenes idoneos instituere, a sodalibus, quibuscum viginti annos vixerat, divina ope implorata, licet ægre, forti animo discessit.

℣. Justum dedúxit Dóminus per vias rectas, et osténdit illi regnum Dei.

℟. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

LECTIO V

Quinque igitur sacerdotes sibi socios, anno millesimo sexcentesimo quadragesimo tertio, die festo Annuntiationis beatæ Mariæ Virginis, congregationem presbyterorum instituit, cui sanctissima Jesu et Mariæ nomina dedit, et Cadomi primum seminarium aperuit, quod in Normannia et Britannia minori complura, eodem auctore, subsequuta sunt. Pro peccatricibus feminis, ad christianam vitam revocandis, ordinem Dominæ nostræ a Caritate fundavit; cujus nobilissimæ arboris ramus est congregatio Andegavensis a Bono Pastore. Insuper societatem a Matris Dei Corde admirabili, et alia caritatis opera condidit. Scripta plura præclare edidit, et missionarius Apostolicus tot pagos, oppida et urbes ipsamque regiam aulam usque ad extremam ætatem, evangelizavit.

for a remarkable piety; and, committing himself to the protection of the Virgin Mary, when still a youth he signed with his own blood, the special covenant he had entered into with her. Having completed his courses of letters and of philosophy with great distinction, and having spurned opportunities of marriage which had been arranged for him, he enrolled himself with the Congregation of the Oratory de Bérulle, and was ordained priest at Paris. He was on fire with a marvellous love towards his neighbour: for he took the most constant pains in caring for both the souls and bodies of those smitten with the Asiatic plague, in many different places. He was made Rector of the Oratorian house at Caen, but since he had been thinking for a long time of educating suitable young men for the ministry of the Church, earnestly asking for the divine assistance, with a brave spirit he most regretfully departed from the associates with whom he had lived for twenty years.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

Accordingly, associating five priests with himself, in the year 1643, on the feastday of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, he founded a Congregation of Priests, to whom he gave the most holy names of Jesus and Mary, and opened the first seminary at Caen; and a great many others followed immediately in Normandy and Brittany, also founded by him. For the recalling of sinful women to a Christian life, he founded the Order of Our Lady of Charity; of which most noble tree, the Congregation of the Good Shepherd of Angers is a branch. Furthermore, he founded the Society of the Admirable Heart of the Mother of God, and other charitable institutions. He was the author of many excellent treatises, and laboured as an Apostolic Missionary to the very end of his life, preaching the Gospel in very many villages, towns, and cities, and even in the royal court.

R. Amávit eum Dóminus, et ornávit eum: stolam glóriæ induit eum, * Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

Ÿ. Índuit eum Dóminus lorícam fídei, et ornávit eum.

R. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

LECTIO VI

Singulare ejus studium emicuit in salutari devotione promovenda erga sacratissima Corda Jesu et Mariæ, quorum liturgicum cultum eisdem præstandum non sine aliquo divino afflatu, primus omnium excogitavit ideoque ejusdem cultus pater, doctor et apostolus habitus est. Jansenistarum doctrinis fortiter resistens, immutatum erga Petri cathedram obsequium servavit, et pro suis inimicis, tamquam pro fratribus, assidue Deum precatus est. Tot laboribus, potius quam annis fractus, cupiens dissolvi et esse cum Christo, die decima nona Augusti, anno millesimo sexcentesimo octogesimo, suavia Jesu et Mariæ nomina sæpius repetens, placide exspiravit. Quem pluribus miraculis clarum Pius Papa decimus Beatorum albo adscripsit eumque novis signis fulgentem Pius Papa undecimus, anno sacro, in die dominica Pentecostes inter Sanctos retulit ejusque Officium ac Missam ad universam Ecclesiam exendit.

R. Iste homo perfécit ómnia quæ locútus est ei Deus, et dixit ad eum: Ingrédere in réquiem meam: * Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

Ÿ. Iste est, qui contémpsit vitam mundi, et pervénit ad cæléstia regna.

R. Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

His matchless zeal was very conspicuous in promoting the salutary devotion towards the most sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary, whose liturgical worship he was the first of all to devise, although not without some divine inspiration. He is therefore held to be the father, the teacher, and the apostle of that worship. Courageously withstanding the doctrines of the Jansenists, he preserved unalterable obedience towards the Chair of Peter, and he constantly prayed to God, both for his enemies as well as for his brethren. Broken by so many labours, rather than by years, desiring to be freed and to be with Christ, on the 19th day of August, 1680, frequently repeating the sweet names of Jesus and Mary, he died in peace. As he became illustrious by many miracles, Pope Pius X added him to the list of the Blessed, and as he still shone forth with new signs and wonders, Pope Pius XI, in the holy year and on the day of Pentecost, placed him among the Saints, and extended his Office and Mass to the universal Church.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ÿ. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Bernard was born (in the year of salvation 1091) at a decent place in Burgundy called Fontaines. On account of extraordinary good looks, he was as a boy very much sought after by women, but he could never be turned aside from his resolution to keep chaste. To fly from these temptations of the devil, he determined at two-and-twenty years of age to enter the Monastery of Citeaux, whence the Cistercian Order took its rise. When this resolution of Bernard's became known, his brothers did all their diligence to change his purpose, but he only became the more eloquent and happy about it. Them and others he so brought over to his mind, that thirty young men entered the same Order along with him. As a monk he was so given to fasting, that as often as he had to eat, so often he seemed to be in pain. He exercised himself wonderfully in watching and prayer, and was a great lover of Christian poverty. Thus he led on earth an heavenly life, purged of all care and desire for transitory things.

- ℞. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.
- ℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.
- ℞. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

He was a burning and shining light of lowliness, mercifulness, and kindness. His concentration of thought was such, that he hardly used his senses except to do good works, in which latter he acted with admirable wisdom. Thus occupied, he refused the Bishoprics of Genoa, Milan, and others, which were offered to him, declaring that he was unworthy of so high a sphere of duty. Being made factus Claravallensis, multis in locis ædificavit monasteria, in quibus præclara Bernardi institutio ac disciplina diu viguit. Romæ, sanctorum Vincéntii et Anastásii monasterio ab Innocéntio secúndo Papa restitúto præfécit abbátem illum, qui póstea Eugénius tertius Summus Póntifex fuit, ad quem étiam librum misit de Consideratióne.

℞. Amávit eum Dóminus, et ornávit eum: stolam glóriæ induit eum, * Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

℣. Índuit eum Dóminus lorícam fídei, et ornávit eum.

℞. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

LECTIO VI

Multa prætèrea scripsit, in quibus appáret, eum doctrína pótius divínitus trádicta, quam labóre comparáta, instrúctum fuisse. In summa virtútum laude exorátus a máximis princípibus de eórum componendis controversiis, et de ecclesiásticis rebus constituéndis, sæpius in Itáliam venit. Innocéntium item secúndum Pontíficem Máximum in confutándo schísmate Petri Leónis, cum apud imperatórem et Henrícum Angliæ regem, tum in concílio Pisis coácto, egrégie adjúvit. Dénique tres et sexagínta annos natus, obdormívit in Dómino, ac miráculis illústris, ab Alexándro tertio Papa inter sanctos relátus est. Pius vero octávus Póntifex Máximus ex sacrorum Rítuum Congregatiónis consílio sanctum Bernárdum universális Ecclesiæ Doctórem declarávit et confirmávit, nec non Missam et Offícium de Doctóribus ab ómnibus recitári jussit, atque indulgéntias plenárias quotánnis in perpétuum órdis Cisterciénsium ecclesiás visitántibus die hujus sancti festo concéssit.

℞. Iste homo perfécit ómnia quæ locútus est ei Deus, et dixit ad eum: Ingrédere in réquiem meam: * Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

℣. Iste est, qui contémpsit vitam mundi, et pervénit ad cæléstia regna.

Abbot of Clairvaux (in 1115,) he built monasteries in many places, wherein the excellent rules and discipline of Bernard long flourished. When Pope Innocent II., (in 1138,) restored the monastery of St. Vincent and St. Anastasius at Rome, Bernard set over it the Abbot who was afterwards the Supreme Pontiff Eugene III., and who is also the same to whom he addressed his book upon Consideration.

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

He was the author of many writings, in which it is manifest that his teaching was rather given him of God, than gained by hard work. In consequence of his high reputation for excellence, he was called by the most exalted Princes to act as arbiter of their disputes, and for this end, and to settle affairs of the Church, he often went to Italy. He was an eminent helper to Pope Innocent II., in putting down the schism of Peter Leoni, and worked to this end, both at the Courts of the Emperor and of Henry King of England, and in the Council of Pisa. He fell asleep in the Lord, (at Clairvaux, on the 20th day of August,) in the (year 1153, the) sixty-third year of his age. He was famous for miracles, and Pope Alexander III. numbered him among the Saints. Pope Pius VIII., acting on the advice of the Congregation of Sacred Rites, declared and confirmed St. Bernard a Doctor of the Universal Church. He also commanded that all should use the Mass and Office for him as for a Doctor, and granted perpetual yearly plenary indulgences to all who should visit Churches of the Cistercian Order upon the Feast-day of this Saint.

℞. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

℣. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

R. Quia te vidi justum coram me ex
ómnibus géntibus.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Quia te vidi justum coram me ex
ómnibus géntibus.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

LUKE 10:1-9

At that time, the Lord appointed other seventy-two also, and sent them two and two before His face into every city and place, whither He Himself would come. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory (the Great.)

17th Homily on the Gospels

Dearly beloved brethren, our Lord and Saviour doth sometimes admonish us by words, and sometimes by works. Yea, His very works do themselves teach us for that which He doth silently His example still moveth us to copy. Behold how He sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two since there are two commandments to love, that is, a commandment to love God, and a commandment to love our neighbour and where there are not two, the one, being alone, hath not whereon to do the Lord's commandment. And no man can properly be said to love himself: for love tendeth outward toward our neighbour, if it be the love whereto the Gospel doth oblige us.

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

Ÿ. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

R. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Behold, the Lord sendeth forth His disciples to preach by two and two and thus doing, He doth silently teach us that whosoever loveth not his neighbour, such a one it behoveth not to take upon him the office of a preacher. Well also is it said that He sent them before His face into every tem et locum, quo erat ipse venturus. Prædicatores enim suos Dominus sequitur: quia prædicatio prævenit, et tunc ad mentis nostræ habitaculum Dominus venit, quando verba exhortationis præcurrunt: atque per hoc veritas in mente suscipitur.

℞. In medio Ecclesiæ aperuit os ejus, * Et implevit eum Dominus spiritu sapientiæ et intellectu.

℣. Jucunditatem et exultationem thesaurizavit super eum.

℞. Et implevit eum Dominus spiritu sapientiæ et intellectu.

℣. Glória Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

℞. Et implevit eum Dominus spiritu sapientiæ et intellectu.

LECTIO IX

Hinc namque eisdem prædicatoribus Isaías dicit: Parate viam Domini, rectas facite semitas Dei nostri. Hinc filiis Psalmista ait: Iter facite ei, qui ascendit super occasum. Super occasum namque Dominus ascendit: quia unde in passione occubuit, inde majorem suam gloriam resurgendo manifestavit. Super occasum videlicet ascendit; quia mortem quam pertulit, resurgendo calcavit. Ei ergo qui ascendit super occasum, iter facimus, cum nos ejus gloriam vestris mentibus prædicamus, ut eas et ipse post veniens, per amoris sui præsentiam illústret.

Te Deum

city and place whither He Himself would come. The Lord followeth His preachers first cometh preaching, and then the Lord Himself cometh to the house of our mind, whither the word of exhortation hath come before and so cometh the truth into our mind.

℞. In the midst of the congregation did the Lord open his mouth. * And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

℣. He made him rich with joy and gladness.

℞. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

LESSON IX

Therefore, to preachers saith Isaiah: "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight an highway for our God." (xl. 3.) And again the Psalmist saith: "Spread a path before him that rideth upon the West." (lxvii. 4.) The Lord rideth upon the West above that from which in death He veiled His glory, hath He royally exalted that glory that excelleth, even the glory of His rising again. He rideth upon the West, Who, being risen again from the dead, is throned high above the death to which He bowed. Before Him, therefore, That rideth upon the West, we spread a path, when we set forth His glory before the eyes of your mind, to the end that He Himself may come after, and Himself enlighten the same your minds by His presence and His love.

LESSON IV

LECTIO IV

Joanna Francisca Frémiot de Chantal, Divione in Burgundia clarissimis orta natalibus, ab ineunte ætate eximiæ sanctitatis non obscuras edidit significationes. Eam enim vix quinquennem nobilem quemdam Calvinistam solida supra ætatem argumentatione perstrinxisse ferunt, collatumque ab eo minusculum flammis illico tradidisse, in hæc verba: En quomodo hæretici apud inferos comburentur, qui loquenti Christo fidem detrectant. Matre orbata, Deiparæ Virginis tutelæ se commendavit, et famulam, quæ ad mundi amorem eam alliciebat, ab se rejecit. Nihil puerile in moribus exprimens, a sæculi deliciis abhorrens, martyriumque anhelans, religioni ac pietati impense studebat. Baroni de Chantal nuptui a patre tradita, virtutibus omnibus excolendis operam dedit, liberos, famulos, aliosque sibi subjectos in fidei doctrina, bonisque moribus imbuere satagens. Profusa liberalitate pauperum inopiam sublevabat, annona divinitus non raro multiplicata: quo factum est, ut nemini se umquam Christi nomine roganti stipem abnegaturam spoponderit.

℞. Propter veritatem, et mansuetudinem, et justitiam: * Et deducet te mirabiliter dextera tua.

ψ. Spécie tua et pulchritudine tua intende, prospere procéde, et regna.

℞. Et deducet te mirabiliter dextera tua.

LECTIO V

Viro in venatione interempto, perfectioris vitæ consilium iniens, continentiae voto se obstrinxit. Viri necem non solum æquo animo tulit, sed, in publicum indultæ veniæ testimonium, occisoris filium e sacro fonte suscipere sui victrix elegit. Modica familia, tenui victu atque vestitu contenta, pretiosas vestes in pios usus convertit. Quidquid a domesticis curis supererat temporis, preci-

Jane Frances Fremiot de Chantal was born of parents of the highest rank, at Dijon in Burgundy, (on the 23rd day of January, in the year 1575.) From her earliest childhood she gave no dark promise of a life of eminent holiness. It is said that when she was scarcely fifteen years of age she confuted with precocious acuteness a Presbyterian nobleman, and when he gave her a little present she put it in the fire, saying That is how heretics will burn in hell for not believing Christ when He speaketh. On the death of her mother, she placed herself under the keeping of the Virgin Mother of God, and discharged a maid who strove to beguile her into loving the world. She had nothing youthful about her ways. She shrank from the pleasures of life. She had a strong wish that she might die a martyr. She devoted herself unweariedly to religion and godliness. Her father gave her in marriage, (at twenty years of age,) to the Baron de Chantal, and she strove to excel in all the duties and graces of a wife. She made it her work to see that her children, her servants, and all others under her authority were taught the doctrines of the faith and the practice of good living. She relieved the sufferings of the poor by plentiful almsgiving, for which purposes God not unfrequently miraculously multiplied her money. And so it came to pass that no one ever asked her for food in Christ's name and was refused it.

℞. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness; * And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

ψ. In thy comeliness, and thy beauty, go forward, fare prosperously, and reign.

℞. And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

LESSON V

When her husband was accidentally killed out shooting, and in her widowhood she determined to embrace the more excellent way, and took a vow not to marry again. She bore her bereavement with resignation to the Will of God, and so far overcame her horror of the gentleman who had fired the shot, that, to show she attributed no blame to him, she stood god-mother to his little boy. She was quite content with few servants and plain cook-bus, piis lectionibus, laborique impendebat. Numquam adduci potuit ut alteras nuptias, quamvis utiles et honorificas, iniret. Ne autem a proposito castimoniæ observandæ in posterum dimoveretur, illius voto innovato, sanctissimum Jesu Christi nomen candenti ferro pectori insculpsit. Ardentius in dies caritate fervescens, pauperes, derelictos, ægros, teterrimisque morbis infectos ad se adducendos curabat; eosque non hospitio tantum excipiebat, solabatur, fovebat, verum étiam sordidas eorumdem vestes depurgabat, laceras reficiebat, et manantibus foetido pure ulceribus labia admovere non exhorrebat.

℞. Dilexisti justítiam, et odísti iniquitátem:
* Proptérea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus,
óleo lætítiæ.

℣. Propter veritátem, et mansuetúdinem, et justítiam.

℞. Proptérea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus, óleo lætítiæ.

LECTIO VI

A sancto Francisco Salesio, quo spiritus moderatore usa fuit, divinam voluntatem edocta, proprium parentem, socerum, filium denique ipsum, quem étiam vocationi obsistentem, sua e domo egrediens, pedibus calcare non dubitavit, invicta constantia deseruit, et sacri instituti Visitationis sanctæ Mariæ fundamenta jecit. Ejus instituti leges integerrime custodivit, et adeo paupertatis fuit amans, ut vel necessaria sibi deesse gauderet. Christianæ vero animi demissionis et obedientiæ, virtutum denique omnium perfectissimum exemplar se præbuit Altiores in corde suo ascensiones disponens, arduissimo efficiendi semper id quod perfectius esse intelligeret, voto se obstrinxit. Denique, sacro Visitationis instituto ejus potissimum opera longe lateque diffuso, verbo, exemplo, et scriptis étiam divina sapientia refertis, ad pietatem et caritatem sororibus excitatis, meritis ery and dress, and sold her rich wardrobe for the benefit of charities. She received offers of second marriage which would have been both politic and honourable, but never was induced to accept one of them, and to harden herself in her intention of remaining in her widowhood, she renewed her vow to that effect, and branded on her chest with a hot iron the most holy name of Jesus Christ. Her love grew tenderer every day, and she had brought to her the starving, the abandoned, the diseased, and those who were afflicted with the most sickening disorders. Them she not only sheltered, comforted, and nursed, but washed and mended their filthy and ragged garments, and shrank not from putting her mouth to their sores oozing with disgusting matter. Whatever of her time was not taken up by her household duties she spent in prayer, reading godly books, and working.

℞. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; * Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

℣. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness.

℞. Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

LESSON VI

She used the services of St. Francis de Sales as her spiritual adviser, and when she learnt from him what was the will of God, she scrupled not to disregard the wishes of her own father, brother-in-law, and even of her son, whom she left with calm determination, went forth from her home, and founded the holy Institution of the Sisters of the Visitation of St. Mary, (at Annecy, upon Trinity Sunday 1610.) She most rigidly kept the rules of this Institute, and loved so well to be poor, that it made her glad to lack even the necessities of life. She showed herself a model of Christian lowliness, obedience, and all graces. Having settled in her heart still to go up higher and higher towards the Temple of the Lord, she bound herself by a most difficult vow always to do that which she should understand to be best. It was chiefly through her labour that the holy Institute of the Visitation became spread far and wide, and she stirred up the sisters to godliness and love by her words, by her example, and by writings full of Divine wisdom.

She duly received the Sacraments before her death, and then, at Moulins, on the 13th day of December, in the year 1641, departed hence, to be for ever with the Lord. St. Vincent of Paul, who was far distant, in a vision beheld her soul borne to heaven, and St. Francis de Sales coming to meet it. Her body was afterwards taken to Annecy. She was famous for miracles both before and after her death, and Pope Benedict XIV. enrolled her among the Blessed, and Pope Clement XIII. among the Saints. Pope Clement XIV. ordered her Feast-day to be kept by the whole Church upon the twenty-first day of August.

LESSON IV

*From a Sermon by St. Bernardine of Siena
From sermon 9 on the Visitation*

What man, unless secure in a divine oracle, may presume to speak with impure, indeed with polluted lips, anything little or great about the true Parent of God and of man, whom the Father before all ages predestined a perpetual Virgin, whom the Son chose as his most worthy Mother, whom git in Matrem, Spíritus Sanctus omnis grátia domicílium prǽparávit? Quibus verbis ego homúnculus sensus altíssimos virgínei Cordis, sanctíssimo ore prolátos, éfferam, quibus non súfficit lingua ómnium Angelórum? Dóminus enim ait: Bonus homo de bono thesáuro cordis profert bona; quod verbum potest étiam esse thesáurus. Quis inter puros hómines mélior homo potest excogitári, quam illa, quæ méruit éffici Mater Dei, quæ novem ménsibus in corde et in útero suo ipsum Deum hospitáta est? Quis thesáurus mélior, quam ipse divínus amor quo fornáceum cor Virginis ardens erat?

℞. Sicut cedrus exaltáta sum in Líbano, et sicut cypréssus in monte Sion: quasi myrrha elécta, * Dedi suavitátem odóris.

℣. Et sicut cinnamómum et bálsamum aromatízans.

℞. Dedi suavitátem odóris.

LECTIO V

De hoc ígitur Corde quasi de fornáce divíni ardóris Virgo beáta prótulit verba bona, id est, verba ardentíssimæ caritátis. Sicut enim a vase summo et óptimo vino pleno, non potest exíre nisi óptimum vinum; aut sicut a fornáce summi ardóris non egréditur nisi incéndium fervens; sic quippe a Christi Matre exíre non pótuit verbum, nisi summi summéque divíni amóris atque ardóris. Sapiéntis quoque dómínæ et matrónæ est pauca verba, sólida tamen atque sententiósa habére; proínde septem vícíbus quasi septem verba tantum miræ senténtiæ et virtútis a Christi benedictíssima Matre legúntur dicta, ut mystice ostendátur ipsam fuisse plenam grátia septifórmi. Cum Angelo bis tantúmmodo est locúta. Cum Elísabeth bis étiam. Cum Fílio étiam bis, semel in templo, secúndo in núpitiis. Cum minístris semel. Et in his ómnibus semper valde parum locúta est; excépto quod in laude Dei et gratiárum actióne se ámplius dilatávit, scílicet, quum ait: Magníficat ánima mea Dóminum. Ubi non cum hómine, sed cum Deo locúta fuit. Hæc sep-the Holy Ghost prepared as the dwelling place of every grace? With what words shall I, a lowly man, give expression to the highest sentiments of the virginal Heart uttered by the holiest mouth, for which the tongues of all the Angels do not suffice? For the Lord saith: A good man bringeth forth good things from the good treasure of his heart; and this word can also be a treasure. Among pure mortals who can be conceived of as better than she who was worthy to be the Mother of God, who for nine months had as a guest in her heart and in her womb God himself? What better treasure than the divine love itself, which was burning in the Heart of the Virgin as in a furnace?

℞. I was exalted like a cedar in Lebanon, and as a cypress-tree upon Mount Zion. Like the best myrrh * I yielded a pleasant odour.

℣. Like cinnamon and sweet balsam.

℞. I yielded a pleasant odour.

LESSON V

And so, from this Heart as from a furnace of divine ardor the Blessed Virgin brought forth good words, that is, words of the most ardent charity. For as from a vessel full of the richest and best wine only good wine can be poured; or as from a furnace of intense heat only a burning fire is emitted; so indeed from the Mother of Christ no word can go forth except of the greatest and most intense divine love and ardor. It is also the mark of a wise woman and matron to speak few words, but words that are effective and full of meaning; and so seven times, as it were, seven words of such wonderful meaning and virtue are read as having been uttered by the Most Blessed Mother of Christ, that mystically it may be shown she was full of the sevenfold grace. To the Angel twice only did she speak; to Elizabeth also twice; with her Son likewise twice, once in the temple, and a second time at the marriage feast; and once to the attendants. And on all those occasions she always said very little; with this one exception that she spake at length in the praise of God and in thanksgiving, namely, when she said: My soul doth magnify the Lord. But here she did not speak with man, but with God. Those seven words were spoken in a wonderful tem verba secúndum septem amóris procésus et actus sub miro gradu et órdine sunt proláta; quasi sint septem flammæ fornácei Cordis ejus.

LESSON VI

From ecclesiastical documents

The liturgical worship, through which due honor is given to the Immaculate Heart of the Virgin Mary, and for which many holy men and women have prepared the way, the Apostolic See itself first approved in the beginning of the nineteenth century, when Pope Pius VII instituted the feast of the Most Pure Heart of the Virgin Mary, to be piously and reverently celebrated by all the dioceses and religious families who had asked for it. Afterwards Pope Pius IX added an Office and a proper Mass to it. But an ardent desire and longing, which had arisen in the seventeenth century, grew day by day, that namely, the same Feast, given greater solemnity, might be spread to the entire Church. In 1942, Pope Pius XII, graciously acceding to this wish, and during the terrible war then ravaging almost the entire world, pitying the infinite hardships of men, and because of his devotion and confidence in our heavenly Mother, in solemn supplication earnestly entrusted the entire human race to her most generous Heart, and in honor of the same Immaculate Heart he ordered a Feast to be kept forever with its proper Office and Mass.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John
John 19:25-27

In that time: There stood by the cross of Jesus, his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalen. And so on.

A Homily by St. Robert Bellarmine, Bishop
On the Seven Words of Christ on the Cross cap. 12
 The burden and yoke which our Lord imposed on St. John, that he take care of his Virgin Mother, was indeed a sweet yoke and a light burden. Who indeed would not esteem it a happiness to dwell under the same roof with her, who for nine months had borne in her womb the Incarnate Word, and for thirty years had enjoyed the sweetest and happiest communication of sentiments with him? Who doth not envy the chosen disciple of our Lord, who in the absence of the Son of God, was given the presence of the Mother of God? yet, if I am not mistaken, we can obtain by our prayers that our most kind Lord, who became man for our sakes and was crucified for love of us, should say to us: Behold thy Mother; and should say to his Mother for each one of us: Behold thy son.

- ℟. O Holy Virgin Mary, happy indeed art thou, and right worthy of all praise * For out of thee rose the Sun of righteousness, even Christ our God.
- ✠. Pray for the people, plead for the clergy, make intercession for all women vowed to God. May all that are keeping this thine holy Feast day feel the might of thine assistance.
- ℟. For out of thee rose the Sun of righteousness, even Christ our God.

LECTIO VIII

Non est avarus pius Dóminus gratiárum, dúmmo ad thronum grátiae ejus cum fide et fidúcia et non ficto corde, sed vero et sincéro accedámus. Qui nos coherédes esse voluit regni Patris sui, non dedignábitur certe nos coherédes habére amoris Matris suæ. Sed nec ipsa Virgo benigníssima gravábitur multitudíne filiórum, cum sinum amplíssimum hábeat et valde cúpiat, nullum períre ex his, quos Filius suus tam pretiósó sángxuine et tam pretiósá morte redémit. Adeámus ergo cum fidúcia ad thronum grátiae Christi, et suppliciter nec sine lácrimis ab eo petámus, ut de unoquóque nostrum Matri suæ dicat: Ecce fílius tuus; et unicúque nostrum de Matre sua dicat: Ecce Mater tua.

- ℟. Beátam me dicent omnes generatiónes, *
Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.
- ℣. Et misericórdia ejus a progénie in progénies timéntibus eum.
- ℟. Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.
- ℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℟. Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.

LESSON VIII

Our good Lord is not avaricious of his graces, if only we approach the throne of grace with faith and confidence, with a true and sincere but not a false heart. He who desireth to have us co-heirs in the kingdom of his Father, will certainly not disdain to have us co-heirs in the love of his Mother. Nor will the most benign Virgin herself take it amiss to have a countless number of children, since she hath an heart capable of embracing all of us, and ardently desireth that not even one of those souls should perish whom her divine Son redeemed with his precious Blood, and his still more precious death. And so let us approach with confidence the throne of the grace of Christ, and with tears let us humbly beg of him to say to his Mother for each of us: Behold thy son; and to each one of us concerning his Mother: Behold thy Mother.

- ℟. All generations shall call me blessed. * For He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.
- ℣. And his mercy is on them that fear Him, from generation to generation.
- ℟. He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.
- ℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

Commemoration of: Sts. Timothy, Hippolytus and Symphorianus, Martyrs

Timothy came from Antioch to Rome in the time of Pope Melchiades. He had preached the faith of Christ there for a year, when he was thrown into irons by Tarquinius, Praefect of the city. After suffering a long imprisonment he was brought to the idols to offer them sacrifice. He refused right boldly to commit this great sin, and was thereupon Quo item die, Aureliano imperatore, propter eandem fidem Augustodūni Symphorianus adolescens varie tortus est. savagely scourged, and his raw body covered with quick-lime. He steadily persisted in his testimony under these and other tortures, and at last was beheaded, (in the year 311.) His body is buried upon the road to Ostia, hard by the sepulchre of the blessed Apostle Paul. On the same day, under the Emperor Alexander, and at Ostia, Hippolytus, Bishop of Porto, on account of his illustrious confession of the faith, had his hands and feet bound, and was thrown into a deep pit full of water, and so received the crown of his testimony. The Christians buried him there. Also on the same day, ~ (in the year 180,) under the Emperor Aurelian, and at Autun, the young lad Symphorian was tortured in diverse ways for professing the same faith. As he was being led to die, he heard his mother crying out to him My child, my child think of life eternal Look to heaven and to Him That reigneth there! thy life is not being taken away, but changed for a better. And so, for Jesus Christ's sake, he bravely offered his neck to the executioner.

Lesson IX: of Vigil of St. Bartholomew, Apostle (08-230).

LESSON IV

This Philip was a scion of the noble Florentine family of the Benizi from his very cradle he showed signs of holiness. When he had scarcely entered the fifth month of his life, his cries marvellously assumed the form of words, entreating his mother to give some alms to the servants of the Mother of God. While he was a young man at Paris studying letters, but ever of a fervent piety, he stirred up in many the love of our Fatherland which is in heaven. After his return to his own country, the most Blessed Virgin appeared to him in a vision, and specially called on him to enter the Order of her Servants, which had then been newly founded. He withdrew himself to a cave on Monte Christi Domini cruciatum meditatione suavem vitam duxit: indeque per universam pene Europam, magnamque Asiæ partem, quam evangelicis prædicationibus obivit, solalitia Septem Dolorum Dei Matris instituit, suumque ordinem eximio virtutum exemplo propagavit.

℟. Honéstum fecit illum Dóminus, et custodívit eum ab inimícis, et a seductóribus tutávit illum: * Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

℣. Justum dedúxit Dóminus per vias rectas, et osténdit illi regnum Dei.

℟. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

LECTIO V

Divinæ caritatis et catholicæ fidei dilatandæ ardore vehementer accensus, sui ordinis Generalis reluctans atque invitus renuntiatus, fratres ad prædicandum Christi Evangelium in Scythiam misit: ipse vero plurimas Italiæ urbes concursans, gliscentes in eis civium discordias composuit, multasque ad Romani Pontificis obedientiam revocavit; nihilque de studio alienæ salutis omittens, perditissimos homines e vitiorum cœno ad pœnitentiam ac Jesu Christi amórem perduxit. Orationi summopere addictus, sæpe in extasim rapi visus est. Virginitatem vero adeo coluit, ut ad extremum usque spiritum voluntariis ac durissimis suppliciis illibatam custodierit.

℟. Amávit eum Dóminus, et ornávit eum: stolam glóriæ induit eum, * Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

℣. Índuit eum Dóminus lorícam fídei, et ornávit eum.

℟. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

LECTIO VI

Effloruit in eo jugiter singularis erga pauperes misericordia, sed præcipue cum apud Camilianum agri Senensis vicum leproso nudo eleemosynam petenti propriam, qua indutus erat, vestem fuit elargitus: qua ille contextus, Senario, where he led a life hard as touching the chastisement of the flesh, but sweet with thoughts of the agonies of Christ. Thence he came forth and went through nearly all Europe and great part of Asia, preaching the Gospel, founding Guilds everywhere in honour of the Seven Sorrows of the Mother of God, and extending his Order by the wonderful example of his own holy life.

℟. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.

℣. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

℟. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

He was forced against his own wishes to undertake the duties of General of his Order, and, in his love of God and of the spreading of the Catholic Faith, sent forth brethren to preach the Gospel of Christ in Russia. He himself went through many cities of Italy, stilled the raging quarrels of the inhabitants, and recalled many of them to their obedience to the Bishop of Rome. He left nothing undone to forward the salvation of his neighbour, and brought the most depraved wretches to leave the slough of their sins, to do penance, and to love Jesus Christ. He was most earnest in prayer, and was often seen to fall into trances while engaged in it. Virginity he so prized that to his very last breath he kept it unsullied by dint of self-imposed and stern penances.

℟. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℟. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

Quo comperto vir Dei, ne forte pastoralis regiminis onus subire cogeretur, apud Tuniatum montem tamdiu delituit, donec Gregorius decimus Pontifex Maximus fuerit renunciatus: ubi balneis, quæ etiam hodie sancti Philippi vocantur, virtutem sanandi morbos suis precibus impetravit. The fame of this miracle spread far and wide, and some of the Cardinals who had assembled at Viterbo after the death of Clement IV., to elect a successor to him, cast their eyes upon Philip, with whose heavenly wisdom they were also acquainted. When the man of God found how things stood, lest he should be constrained to take upon him the burden of the Pastoral Office, he went and hid himself on Montagnate, until Gregory X. had been proclaimed Pope. By his prayers he obtained medicinal powers for the waters in these mountains, which are still called St. Philip's Baths. At length, (on the 22nd of August,) in the year 1285, he departed this life in a most holy manner at Todi, while embracing the image of Christ hanging upon the Cross, which he called his book. At his grave the blind received their sight, the lame walked, and the dead were raised. Pope Clement X., finding him famous for these and many other great signs and wonders, enrolled his name among those of the Saints.

All the holy words of the Lord are full of His commandments. Why, then, speaketh the Lord of the commandment to love one another as if He gave no other commandment? This, saith He, is My commandment, That ye love one another. Is it not because love is the one object of all His commandments, and all His commandments are one?
For, even as a tree, having but one root, bringeth virtues do spring therefrom. Neither is the branch love.

Omnes magni, omnes sublímies montem ascéndunt. Non enim cuicúmque prophéta dicit: Ascénde in montem excélsum, qui evangelízas Sion: exálta in virtúte vocem tuam, qui evangelízas Jerúsalem. Non vestígiis corporálibus, sed factis sublimióribus in hunc montem ascénde, et séquere Christum, ut ipse esse mons possis: Montes enim in circúitu ejus. LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 6:12-19

At that time Jesus went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, He called unto Him His disciples. And so on.

Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop (of Milan.)

Bk. v. Comment. on Luke 6

All they who go up into the mountain are the great and the aspiring. It is not to every man that the Prophet saith: O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion, get thee up into the high mountain, Thou that tellest good tidings to Jerusalem, lift up thy voice with strength. (Isa. xl. 9.) Not with bodily feet, but by high deeds get thee up into this mountain, and follow Christ, that thou mayest be a mountain thyself. Therefore it is that thou findest in the Gospel that none but His disciples went up into the mountain with the Lord. The Lord therefore prayeth, not to entreat anything for Himself, but to obtain somewhat for me. For, albeit the Father had given the Son power over all flesh, that He might give eternal life to as many as He had given Him, (John xvii. 2,) the Son Himself, being found in fashion as a man, (Phil. ii. 8,) thinketh well to pray the Father (John xiv. 16) on our behalf, inasmuch as He is our Advocate with the Father, (1 John ii. 1.)

℞. Isti sunt qui viventes in carne,

℣. In omnem terram exívit sonus eórum, et

LECTIO VIII

Et erat, inquit, pernóctans in oratióne Dei. Spécies tibi, Christiáne, datur, forma præscríbitur, quam débeas æmulári. Quid enim te pro salute tua fácere opórtet, quando pro te Christus in oratióne pernóctat? Quid te fácere cónvenit, cum vis áliquod pietátis of-fícium adorári, quando Christus, missúrus Apóstolos, orávit prius, et solus orávit? Nec usquam álíbi, si non fallor, orásse cum Apóstolis reperítur; ubique solus óbsecrat. Dei enim consílium humána vota non cápiunt, nec quisquam interiórurum potest esse párticeps Christi.

℞. Isti sunt viri sancti, quos elégit Dóminus in caritate non ficta, et dedit illis glóriam sempitérnam: * Quorum doctrína fulget Ecclesia, ut sole luna.

LECTIO IX

Vocávit, inquit, discípulos suos, et elégit duódecim ex ipsis; quos ad propagándum auxílium salutis humánæ per terrárum orbem satóres fidei destináret. Simul advérte cæléste consílium: non sapiéntes áliquos, non

℣. Their sound is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.

℞. They drank of the Lord's cup, and became the friends of God.

LESSON VIII

And continued all night in prayer to God. Herein, O Christian, a pattern is set before thee, an example is given thee, after the which thou oughtest to aspire. What doth it not behove thee to do for thy salvation, when Christ spent an whole night in prayer for the same? What doth it become thee to do, when thou wilt some good work, when Christ prayed before He sent forth His Apostles? He prayed first, and He prayed alone. Neither, unless I am mistaken, do we anywhere find that He ever joined in prayer with His disciples. He ever prayed alone. Human desires cannot grasp the counsel of God, nor can any man, however spiritually minded, share the thoughts of God.

℞. These men are saints, whom the Lord hath chosen in love unfeigned, and hath given them glory everlasting. These are they * By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

℣. The saints through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness.

℞. By the light of whose teaching the Church is glorified, even as the moon is glorified by the light of the sun.

LESSON IX

LESSON IV

Louis IX, King of France, (was born on the 25 th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1215.) At the age of twelve years he lost his father. He was brought up under the godly care of his mother, Blanche of Castile. In the twentieth year of his reign he fell grievously sick, and the thought then occurred to him of delivering Jerusalem out of the hands of the Moslems. On his health being restored, he received a banner from the Bishop of Paris, and crossed the sea (to Egypt) with a very great army. In his first battle he put the Saracens to flight, but, a great number of the soldiers perishing by disease, he was himself conquered and taken prisoner.

The King afterwards entered into treaty with the Saracens, and he and his army departed in peace. He remained five years in the East, during which he redeemed great numbers of Christians from slavery among the unbelievers, and also brought

He built many monasteries, and charitable institutions for the poor. By his alms he relieved the needy, and often visited the sick, for whom he not only provided at his own cost, but waited on them with his own hands with such things as they wanted. He wore a plain dress and constantly chastised his body with hair-cloth and fasting. (In the year 1270) he crossed the sea (to Tunis) to make war again upon the Saracens. His camp was pitched in sight of the enemy, but he was seized with pestilence, and died uttering the words I will come into thy house I will worship toward thy holy temple, and praise thy Name. (Pss. v, 8; cxxxvii, 2.) His body was afterwards carried to Paris, and it is kept and honoured in the famous Abbey Church of St. Denis, but his head in the oratory called La Sainte Chapelle. He was renowned for miracles, and Pope Boniface VIII. enrolled his name among those of the Saints.

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke
Luke 19:12-25

At that time, Jesus spoke this parable unto His disciples: A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. And so on.

Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop (of Milan.)
Book viii. on Luke.

It is well ordered that, being about to call the Gentiles, and to command the destruction of those Jews, who would not have Christ to reign over them, He should put forth first this parable; lest it should be said He had given the Jews no means of becoming better. How can they be asked to repay who have received nothing? That is not a piece of silver of little worth, which, when the woman before mentioned in this Gospel (xv. 8) hath lost, she lighteth a candle, and sweepeth the house, and searcheth diligently until she findeth it.

- ℞. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

A single pound one gained ten and another five pounds. Perchance by him which had the five pounds is signified he which practiseth well, since the body hath five senses, and by him which had the ten, that is, double the other, he which is learned and orthodox in the deep things of doctrine, as well as upright in his practical life. Hence also in Matthew we have five talents and two talents the five talents signifying good practice, and the two talents precept and practice together. So that that which counteth as the greater number is but a fraction of the lesser number.

Et hic póssumus decem mnas decem verba intelligere, id est, legis doctrínam; quinque autem mnas, magistéria disciplínæ. Sed legisperítum in ómnibus volo esse perféctum; non enim in sermóne, sed in virtúte est regnum Dei. Bene autem, quia de Judéis dicit, duo soli multiplicátam pecúniám déferunt, non útique æris, sed dispensatiónis usúris. Ália est enim pecúniæ foenébri, ália doctrí-næ cæléstis usúra.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

And here we may also understand by the ten pounds the ten words, that is, the Commandments, and by the five pounds, the enforcement of their teaching. But I would that a lawyer should be in all things perfect. For the kingdom of God is not in word but in power. (1 Cor. iv. 20.) Meet also is it, that, in speaking of Jews, Christ should represent only two as bringing in increased capital, for these talents are talents not of money but of grace, and to increase money by usury is a very different thing from improving heavenly revelation by the like means.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Joseph Calasanz, called of the Mother of God, was born of a noble family at Petralta in Aragon, (on the 15th day of September, in the year of Christ 1556.) From his tender years he began to show that fondness for children, and that gift of instructing them for which he was afterwards distinguished. He called them around him when he was still but a child himself, and taught them the mysteries of the faith and godly prayers. He was deeply learned in profane and sacred letters, and it was while he was studying theology at Valencia that he bravely overcame the wiles of a noble and powerful lady and, by a brilliant victory, kept untarnished that virginity which he had vowed to God. He became a Priest in consequence of a vow, and was summoned by many Bishops in the kingdoms of New Castile, Aragon, and Catalonia to help them in their work, wherein he surpassed the hopes of all, correcting depraved manners, restoring the discipline of the Church, and marvellously putting an end to hatreds and bloody feuds. But in obedience to a vision from heaven and many warnings from the voice of God, he left Spain and went to Rome.

LESSON V

In Rome he afflicted his body with extraordinary hardness of living, with watching, and with fasting, and so passed his days and nights in prayer, and in the contemplation of heavenly things. He was used to visit the Seven Churches almost every night, a custom which he kept for many years. Having joined several godly Brotherhoods, it was strange how eagerly he relieved the poor by alms and every sort of kindness, choosing especially the sick and the imprisoned. When the city was ravaged by a pestilence, such was the charitable zeal with which he joined in the labours of St. Camillus de' Lelli, that besides the great help which he brought to the sick poor, he would even carry the bodies of the dead on his own shoulders to burial. Having understood from God that his call was to bring up children in godliness and good learning, he founded the Order of the Poor Regular Clerks of the Pious Schools of the Mother of God, who profess as the special object of their Institute a singular care for the teaching of the poor. This Institute received the warm approval of Clement VIII., Paul V., and other Popes, and in a short time obtained a marvellous extension through many provinces and kingdoms of Europe. In this work Joseph Casalanz underwent so many toils, and patiently bore so many griefs, that he was proclaimed by all men a wonder of endurance and a very image of holy Job.

He won that God should glorify him by many miracles worked in the presence of his disciples, and that the Most Blessed Virgin should appear to him, with the Child Jesus in her arms, blessing them as they prayed. He refused wealthy preferments when they were offered to him. He was eminent for the gift of prophecy, for the power of reading the secrets of the heart, of knowing distant events, and of miracles. The Virgin Mother of God, to whom from his childhood he had had an especial love, and other heavenly ones, honoured him by often allowing him to see them. He foretold the day of his own death, and the restoration and growth of his Order, which seemed at that time to be almost entirely destroyed. He fell asleep in the Lord at Rome, upon the 25 th day of August, in the year of salvation 1648, and of his own age the 92 nd. An hundred years after his death his heart and tongue were found whole and incorrupt. God glorified him by many miracles even after his death, and he was first crowned by Benedict XIV. with the honours paid to the Blessed, and then solemnly enrolled by Clement XIII. among the Saints.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

V. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 18:1-5

At that time Came the disciples unto Jesus, saying Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven And so on.

Homilia sancti Joannis Chrysostomi.

In cap. 18. Matth. Hom. 60.

Videte ne aliquem istorum contempseritis parvulorum, quia eorum Angeli Patris mei faciem semper aspiciunt, et quia ego propter eos veni, et hæc Patris mei voluntas est. Ad tuendos conservandosque pusillos diligentiores nos reddit. Perspicias quam ingentia in tutelam tenujum moenia erexerit, et quantum studium curamque habeat, ne perdan- tur tum quia supremas despicientibus eos poenas statuit, tum quia summam pollicetur mercedem his, qui curam eorum suscipiunt; idque tam suo, quam Patris exemplo corro- borat.

℟. Iste est qui ante Deum magnas virtutes operatus est, et de omni corde suo laudavit Dominum: * Ipse intercedat pro peccatis omnium populorum.

℣. Ecce homo sine querela, verus Dei cultor, abstinens se ab omni opere malo, et permanens in innocentia sua.

℟. Ipse intercedat pro peccatis omnium populorum.

LECTIO VIII

Dominum igitur etiam nos imitemur, et nihil pro fratribus omittamus, etiam eorum quæ humilia viliaque nimium videntur; sed si administratione nostra etiam opus fuerit, quamvis tenuis atque abjectus quidem, cui administrandum sit, fuerit, quamvis ardua nobis res atque laboris plena esse videatur, omnia hæc pro fratris salute tolerabiliora faciliioraque, oro, videantur: tanto enim studio tantaque cura Deus dignam esse animam ostendit, ut neque Filio suo pepercerit.

℟. Sint lumbi vestri præcincti, et lucernæ ardentes in manibus vestris: * Et vos similes hominibus expectantibus dominum suum, quando revertatur a nuptiis.

Homily by St. John Chrysostom, Patriarch (of Constantinople.)

60th on Matth. xviii.

Take heed, saith Jesus, that ye despise not one of these little ones, for I say unto you, that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of My Father and that for their sake am I come, and this is the will of My Father. Hereby the Lord stirreth us up to guard and save these little ones. Thou seest how mighty are the walls which He raiseth to protect little children, and how great thought and care He hath lest they should be lost, threatening on the one hand the uttermost punishment against whosoever shall offend one of these little ones which believe in Him, (6) and promising on the other hand, the highest reward to whosoever shall receive one such little child in His Name, (5) and this His teaching He giveth both in His Own, and in His Father's Name.

℟. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

℣. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

℟. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Let us therefore take example by the Lord, and let us leave nothing undone for the good of any of our brethren, even for such as seem to us the least and lowliest, but if there be any need that we should serve any, low and outcast though he be, let us serve him though the thing look hard to us and calling for a great deal of work, let such things, I pray, be looked on as light and easy if they be required for our neighbour's salvation, for of such price and such care did God count his soul to be worth, that He spared not to purchase it, even His Own Son. (Rom. viii. 32.)

℟. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

- ✠. Vigiláte ergo, quia nescítis qua hora Dóminus vester ventúrus sit.
- ℟. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.
- ✠. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.
- ℟. Et vos símiles homínibus expectántibus dóminum suum, quando revertátur a núptiis.

LECTIO IX

Si non est nobis satis ad salutem, quod virtuose ipsi vivamus, sed oportet aliorum salutem re ipsa desiderare; cum neque nos recte vivamus, neque alios hortemur, quid respondebimus? Quæ nobis spes salutis reliqua erit? Quid majus, quam animis moderari, quam adolescentulorum fingere mores? Omni certe pictore, omni certe statuaria, ceterisque hujusmodi omnibus excellentiorem hunc duco, qui juvenum animos fingere non ignoret.

Te Deum

- ✠. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
- ℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.
- ✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.
- ℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

If it be not enough for our salvation that we should ourselves live well, but we must also seek the salvation of others, what shall we answer, if we neither live well ourselves, nor exhort others What hope that we shall be saved is then left to us What more important task is there than to train up minds, and teach to the young how to live He that is skilled to mould well the minds of children I reckon a nobler workman than any painter or sculptor, or such like artist.

Lessons VII–IX: from the Common of a Doctor Bishop (C4a).*

LESSON IV

Augustine was born of honourable parents at Tagaste in Africa, (upon the 13th day of November, in the year of our Lord 354.) As a boy his great intellectual sharpness caused him to distance all his companions in learning. When he was living at Carthage as a young man, he fell into the heresy of the Manichæans. He afterwards went to Rome, and was thence sent to Milan to teach Rhetoric. At Milan he often went to hear the sermons of Bishop Ambrose, by whose labours he was drawn to the Catholic Church, and by whom he was bap-moniam conjungens, a Valerio notæ sanctitatis episcopo Hipponensi presbyter factus est. Quo tempore familiam instituit religiosorum, quibuscum victu communi eodemque cultu utens, eos ad apostolicæ vitæ doctrinæque disciplinam diligentissime erudiebat. Sed cum vigeret Manichæorum hæresis, vehementius in illam invehī cœpit, Fortunatumque hæresiarcham confutavit.

R. Invēni David servum meum, óleo sancto meo unxi eum: * Manus enim mea auxiliābitur ei.

ψ. Nihil proficiet inimicus in eo, et filius iniquitatis non nocēbit ei.

R. Manus enim mea auxiliābitur ei.

LECTIO V

Hac Augustīni pietate commotus Valerius, eum adiutorem adhibuit episcopalis officii. Nihil illo fuit humilior, nihil continentius. Lectus ac vestitus moderatus, vulgaris mensa, quam semper sacra vel lectione vel disputatione condiebat. Tanta benignitate fuit in pauperes, ut, cum non esset alia facultas, sacra vasa frangeret ad eorum inopiam sustentandam. Feminarum, et in eis sororis, et fratris filiæ, contubernium familiaritatemque vitavit: quippe qui diceret, etsi propinquæ mulieres suspectæ non essent, tamen quæ ad eas ventitarent, posse suspicionem efficere. Nul- lum finem fecit prædicandi Dei verbum, nisi gravi morbo oppressus. Hæreticos perpetuo insectatus et coram et scriptis, ac nullo loco passus consistere, Africam a Manichæorum, Donatistarum, Pelagianorum, aliorumque præterea hæreticorum errore magna ex parte liberavit.

R. Pôsui adjutórium super poténtem, et exaltávi eléctum de plebe mea: * Manus enim mea auxiliābitur ei.

tized (on Holy Saturday, 387,) at the age of thirty-three. After his return to Africa, (in 388,) Valerius, the illustrious and saintly Bishop of Hippo, finding him to unite holiness of life, with Catholic profession, made him a Priest, (about the end of 390.) At this time he founded a sort of family of godly men, who lived and worshipped in common with him, and whom he earnestly formed upon the model of the Apostolic life and teaching. The Manichean heresy flaming forth with violence, he began strongly to attack it, and confounded the arch-heretic Fortunatus.

R. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him * For My hand shall help him.

ψ. The enemy shall prevail nothing against him, nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

R. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON V

Valerius, moved by the godly zeal of Augustine, (in December 395,) joined him with himself as an assistant in his duties of Bishop (and dying in the year following, was succeeded by him.) He was lowly and pure in the highest degree. His furniture and dress were plain, and his food of the commonest sort, which he always seasoned when at table by either reading some religious book, or arguing upon some religious subject. His tenderness to the poor was such that, failing all other resources, he broke up the hallowed vessels to relieve their wants. It was his rule not to dwell or be very close friends with any woman, a rule which he did not relax even in the case of his sister and niece, for he was accustomed to say, that although no scandal could arise in the case of such near kinswomen, yet it might arise concerning the women friends who sought their company. He never ceased to preach the Word of God, until he was disabled by heavy sickness. He was always an hard follower after heretics, and by his words and his writings never suffered them to rest anywhere. In great measure, he purged Africa of the Manicheans, Donatists, Pelagians, and other heretics.

R. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him.

✠. Inveni David servum meum, oleo sancto meo unxi eum.

℟. Manus enim mea auxiliabitur ei.

LECTIO VI

Tam multa pie, subtiliter et copiose scripsit, ut christianam doctrinam maxime illustraret. Quem in primis secuti sunt, qui postea theologicam disciplinam via et ratione tradiderunt. Wandalis Africam bello vastantibus, et Hipponem tertium jam mensem obsidentibus, in febrim incidit. Itaque cum discessum e vita sibi instare intelligeret, Psalmos David qui ad poenitentiam pertinent, in conspectu positos profusis lacrimis legebat. Solebat autem dicere neminem, etsi nullius sceleris sibi conscius esset, committere debere, ut sine poenitentia migraret e vita. Ergo sensibus integris, in oratione defixus, astantibus fratribus, quos ad caritatem, pietatem, virtutesque omnes erat adhortatus, migravit in cælum. Vixit annos septuaginta sex, in episcopatu ad triginta sex. Cujus corpus primum in Sardiniam delatum, deinde a Luitprando, Longobardorum rege, magno pretio redemptum, Ticinum translatum est, ibique honorifice conditum.

℟. Iste est, qui ante Deum magnas virtutes operatus est, et omnis terra doctrina ejus repleta est: * Ipse intercedat pro peccatis omnium populorum.

✠. Iste est, qui contempsit vitam mundi, et pervenit ad cælestia regna.

℟. Ipse intercedat pro peccatis omnium populorum.

✠. Glória Patri, et Filio, * et Spiritui Sancto.

℟. Ipse intercedat pro peccatis omnium populorum.

✠. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

℟. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON VI

He wrote so much, and that with such godliness and understanding, that he is to be held among the very chiefest of them by whom the teachings of Christianity have been shown forth. He is one of the first of those whom later theologians have followed, in method, and in argument. He fell sick of a fever what time the Vandals were laying Africa waste, and when they were busy in the third month of besieging Hippo. When he understood that his departure from this present life was at hand, he caused the Psalms of David which most speak the language of repentance to be placed before him, and read them with tears, for he was wont to say that even if a man's conscience were to accuse him of no sin, he should not dare to leave this world except as a penitent. His senses remained vigorous to the last, and it was while rapt in prayer, in the presence of the brethren whom he had exhorted to love, godliness, and all goodness, that he departed for heaven, (upon the 28th of August, 430.) He lived 76 years, whereof he had been a Bishop nearly thirty six. His body was first carried to Sardinia, but Luitprand, King of the Lombards, afterwards bought it for a great price, and took it to Ticino, where it is honourably buried.

℟. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and the whole earth is full of his teaching * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them

✠. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and hath attained unto the kingdom of heaven.

℟. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

Incipit liber Jeremiæ Prophætæ

Jer 1:1-5

Verba Jeremiæ filii Helciæ, de sacerdotibus, qui fuérunt in Anathoth, in terra Bénjamin. Quod factum est verbum Dómini ad eum in diébus Josiæ filii Amon regis Juda, in tertiodécimo anno regni ejus. Et factum est in diébus Joákim filii Josiæ regis Juda, usque ad consummationem undécimi anni Sedeciæ filii Josiæ regis Juda, usque ad transmissionem Jerúsalem, in mense quinto. Et factum est verbum Dómini ad me, dicens: Priúsqvam te formárem in útero, novi te: et ántequam exíres de vulva, sanctificávi te, et prophétam in géntibus dedi te.

R. Misit Heródes rex manus, ac tenuit Joánnem et vinxit eum in cárcere, quia metuébat eum propter Herodiádem, * Quam túlerat fratri suo Philíppo uxórem.

¶. Arguébat Heródem Joánnes propter Herodiádem.

R. Quam túlerat fratri suo Philíppo uxórem.

LECTIO II

Jer 1:6-10

Et dixi, A a a, Dómine Deus: ecce néscio loqui, quia puer ego sum. Et dixit Dóminus ad me: Noli dícere, Puer sum: quóniam ad ómnia, quæ mittam te, ibis: et unívrsa, quæcúmque mandávero tibi, loquerís. Ne tímeas a fácie eórum: quia tecum ego sum, ut éruam te, dicit Dóminus. Et misit Dóminus manum suam, et tetigit os meum: et dixit Dóminus ad me: Ecce dedi verba mea in ore tuo: ecce constitui te hódie super gentes, et super regna, ut evéllas, et déstruas, et dispérdas, et díssipes, et ædífices, et plantes.

Lesson IX: of St. Sabina, Martyr (08-29cc).

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Jeremias

Jer 1:1-5

The words of Jeremias the son of Helcias, of the priests that were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin. The word of the Lord which came to him in the days of Josias the son of Amon king of Juda, in the thirteenth year of his reign. And which came to him in the days of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda, unto the end of the eleventh year of Sedecias the son of Josias king of Juda, even unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive, in the fifth month. And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: Before I formed thee in the bowels of thy mother, I knew thee: and before thou camest forth out of the womb, I sanctified thee, and made thee a prophet unto the nations.

R. Herod the King sent forth, and laid hold upon John, and bound him in prison, for he feared him, for Herodias' sake, * His brother Philip's wife, for he had married her.

¶. For John had rebuked Herod, for Herodias' sake.

R. His brother Philip's wife, for he had married her.

LESSON II

Jer 1:6-10

And I said: Ah, ah, ah, Lord God: behold, I cannot speak, for I am a child. And the Lord said to me: Say not: I am a child: for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee: and whatsoever I shall command thee, thou shalt speak. Be not afraid at their presence: for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord. And the Lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth: and the Lord said to me: Behold I have given my words in thy mouth: Lo, I have set thee this day over the nations, and over the kingdoms, to root up, and pull down, and to waste, and to destroy, and to build, and to plant.

- ℣. Joānnes Baptista arguébat Heródem *
Propter Herodiádem, quam túlerat fratri behead John in the prison.

- ℣. For Herodias' sake, his brother's wife, whom he had married while his brother was yet alive.

LESSON III

Jer 1:17-19

Thou therefore gird up thy loins, and arise, and speak to them all that I command thee. Be not afraid at their presence: for I will make thee not to fear their countenance. For behold I have made thee this day a fortified city, and a pillar of iron, and a wall of brass, over all the land, to the kings of Juda, to the princes thereof, and to the priests, and to the people of the land. And they shall fight against thee, and shall not prevail: for I am with thee, saith the Lord, to deliver thee.

- ℣. The damsel danced, and her mother charged her, saying: * See thou ask nothing but only the head of John. And the king was sorry, for his oath's sake, and for their sakes which sat with him.
- ℣. The damsel said unto her mother What shall I ask? And she said:

- ℣. And the king was sorry, for his oath's sake, and for their sakes which sat with him.

LESSON IV

*From the Book upon Virgins, written by St.
Ambrose, Bishop (of Milan.)*

ii. 6

We must not hurry by the record of the Blessed Baptist John. We must ask what he was, and by whom, and why, and how, and when he was slain.
He was a righteous man murdered by adulterers.
The guilty passed upon their judge the sentence of death. Moreover, the death of the Prophet was the fee of a dancing-girl. And lastly, there was a feature est Prophétæ. Postrémo (quod étiam omnes bárbari horrére consuevérunt) inter épulas atque convívia consummándæ crudelitátis profértur edíctum; et a convívio ad cárcerem, de cárcere ad convívium ferális flagítii circumfértur obséquium. Quanta in uno facínore sunt crímina!

R. Justus germinábit sicut lílium: * Et florébit in ætérnum ante Dóminum.

Y. Plantátus in domo Dómini, in átriis domus Dei nostri.

R. Et florébit in ætérnum ante Dóminum.

LECTIO V

Quis non, cum e convívio ad carcerem cursari vidéret, putaret Prophétam jussum esse dimitti? Quis, inquam, cum audísset natalem esse Herodis, solemne convivium, puellæ optiónem eligéndi quod vellet datam; missum ad Joánnem ob solutiónem non arbitrarétur? Quid crudelitáti cum deliciis? quid cum funéribus voluptati? Rápitur ad pœnam Prophéta convivali témpore, convivali præcépto, quo non cuperet vel absolvi: périmitur gládio, caput ejus affertur in disco. Hoc crudelitáti férculum debebátur, quo in-satiáta épulis féritas vescerétur.

R. Iste cognóvit justítiam, et vidit mirabília magna, et exorávit Altíssimum: * Et invéntus est in número Sanctórum.

Y. Iste est, qui contempsit vitam mundi, et pervenit ad cæléstia regna.

R. Et invéntus est in número Sanctórum.

LECTIO VI

Intuére, rex acerbíssime, tuo spectacula digna convivio. Pórrige dexteram, ne quid sæ-about it from which even savages shrink; the order for completing the atrocity was given amid the merriment of a dinner-party. From banquet to prison, from prison to banquet, that was the course run by the servants of the murderer. How many horrors does this simple crime embrace within its details?

R. The righteous shall grow as the lily * Yea, he shall flourish in the presence of the Lord for ever.

Y. Those that be planted in the house of the Lord, shall flourish in the courts of the house of our God.

R. Yea, he shall flourish in the presence of the Lord for ever.

LESSON V

Who is there, that, on seeing the messenger hasten from the dinner-table to the prison, would not have forthwith concluded that he carried an order for the Prophet's release. If any one had heard that it was Herod's birth-day, and that he was giving a great feast, and that he had offered a damsel the choice of whatever she listed, and that thereupon a messenger had been sent to John's dungeon. If any one, I say, had heard this, what would he have supposed? He would have concluded that the damsel had asked and obtained John's freedom. What have executions in common with dinners, or death with gaiety? While the banquet was going on, the Prophet was hurried to death, by an order from the reveller whom he had not troubled even by a prayer for release. He was slain with the sword, and his head was served up in a plate. This was the new dish demanded by a cruelty which the Feast had been powerless to glut.

R. This is he which knew righteousness, and saw great wonders, and made his prayer unto the Most High * And he is numbered among the Saints.

Y. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

R. And he is numbered among the Saints.

LESSON VI

Look, savage King, look at a decoration which suiteth well with thy banquet. Put out thine hand, vítia tuæ desit; ut inter digitos tuos rivi défluant sacri cruoris. Et, quóniam non exsaturari épulis fames, non restingui póculis póruit inauditæ sævitiæ sitis; bibe sánguinem scaturiéntibus adhuc venis exsecti cápitis profluentem. Cerne óculos in ipsa morte sceleris tui testes, aversánte conspéctum deliciárum. Claudúntur lúmina non tam mortis necessitate quam horrore luxuriæ. Os aureum illud exsanguie, cujus senténtiam ferre non poteras, conticescit, et adhuc tímétur.

R. Honestum fecit illum Dóminus, et custodívit eum ab inimícis, et a seductóribus tutávit illum: * Et dedit illi claritátem ætérmam.

Ÿ. Descendítque cum illo in fóveam, et in vinculis non derelíquit eum.

R. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérmam.

Ÿ. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérmam.

LECTIO VII

Léctio sancti Evangélíi secúndum Marcum

Marc 6:17-29

In illo témpore: Misit Heródes ac ténuít Joánnem, et vinxit eum in cárcere propter Herodiádem, uxórem Philíppi fratris sui, quia duxerat eam. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Augustíni Epísopi Sermo 10 in novís. Serm.

Cum sanctum Evangélium legerétur, crudele spectaculum ante óculos nostros constitutum est: caput sancti Joánnis in disco, feralis missus crudelitátis propter ódium veritátis. Puella saltat, et sævit mater; et inter lascivias et delicias convivántium témere jurátur, et ímpie, quod jurátur, implétur. Factum est Joánni, quod ipse prædixerat; de Dómino enim Jesu Christo dixerat: Illum oportet crescere, me autem minui. Iste minutus est in so as to lose no part of the luxury of cruelty, and let the streams of the sacred blood run between thy fingers. Thine hunger the dinner hath been unable to satisfy, thy cups have not been able to quench thine inhuman thirst. Suck, suck the blood which the still palpitating veins are discharging from the place where the neck has been severed. Look at the eyes. Even in death they remain the eyes of a witness of thine uncleanness, but they are closing themselves upon the spectacle of thy pleasures. Those eyes indeed are shutting but it seems not so much from the laws of natural death, as from horror at the scene of thine enjoyment. The golden mouth, whose bloodless lips are silent now, can repeat no more the denunciation which thou couldst not bear to hear, and still thou art afraid of it.

R. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him, * And gave him perpetual glory.

Ÿ. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.

R. And gave him perpetual glory.

Ÿ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Mark

Mark 6:17-29

At that time Herod had sent forth, and laid hold upon John, and bound him in prison, for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife, for he had married her. And so on.

*Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo.)
New Sermons.*

The reading of the Holy Gospel hath set a scene of cruelty before our eyes even the head of St. John in a charger; a message of death sent forth to discharge the bloody commands of one that hateth the truth; a damsel dancing, and a mother rabid; a rash oath sworn in the midst of uncleanness and the revels of a supper, and a wicked fulfillment of the oath so sworn. It befell unto John according to his own saying. For he had said concerning the Lord Jesus Christ: He must increase, but I must

For what could he say but that whereof he was full? And what could they answer him but that whereof they were full? He sowed wheat, and found thorns. He had said unto the King: It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife. Lust had got the better of the King, and he kept a woman whom it was not lawful for him to have, even his brother's wife. But she pleased him, so that his cruelty was lulled. He respected the Saint who had spoken the truth to him. But the horrible woman conceived hatred, and by-and-by brought it forth. When she brought forth, she brought forth a girl, a dancing-girl.

LECTIO IX (PRO COMMEMORATIONE)

Commemoratio: S. Sabinae Martyris

Sabina, mulier Romana, Valentini viri clarissimi uxor, a Seraphia virgine christianæ fidei præceptis instituta, post sanctæ Virginis martyrium, collectas ejus reliquias piis exsequiis sepelivit. Quæ propter eam causam paulo post, Hadriano imperatore, comprehensa, Elpidio iudici sistitur. Cui is: Tu ne illa Sabina et genere et matrimonio nobilissima? At illa, Sum, inquit: sed Domino meo Jesu Christo grátias ago, qui me, intercessióne Seraphiæ famulæ suæ, e dæmonum potestate liberávit. Quam varie tentatam ut propositum mutaret, cum a fidei constantia movere non posset, præfectus, pronuntiata sententia quod deos contemneret, capitis damnávit. Ejus corpus a Christianis in eodem sepulcro conditum est, in quo ipsa magistram fidei suæ Seraphiam posúerat.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Sabina, Martyr

Sabina was a Roman lady, the wife of a distinguished nobleman named Valentine. The Christian faith was taught to her by a maiden named Seraphia. After the martyrdom of this holy virgin, Sabina gathered together her reliques, and buried them with godly service. For this cause she was in a little while arrested, under the Emperor Hadrian, and brought before the Judge Elpidius. Art thou, said he, the same Sabina who is so distinguished for her blood and for her marriage? She answered "I am, but I give thanks to my Lord Jesus Christ for having delivered me through the prayers of His hand-maiden Seraphia from the troubling of devils." Diverse attempts were made to make her change her mind, but when they proved in vain the Praefect passed sentence of death upon her for despising the gods. The Christians laid her body in the same grave in which she had herself laid that of Seraphia, her teacher in the faith.

LESSON IV

The first flower of holiness which came to full blossom in South America, was the maiden Rose. She was born at Lima, of a Christian father and mother, (upon the 20th of April, in the year 1586,) and was remarkable from her childhood for marks of saintliness. The occasion of her name was a strange huic nomini occasionem dedit: cui postea Virgo Deipara cognomen adjecit, jubens vocari deinceps Rosam a sancta Maria. Quinquennis votum perpetuæ virginitatis emisit. Adultior, ne a parentibus ad nuptias cogeretur, clam sibimet venustissimam capitis cæsariem præscidit. Jejunii supra humanum modum addicta, integras Quadragesimas transegit, pane abstinens, ac dietim solis quinque granulis mali citrini victitans.

R. Et deducet te mirabiliter dextera tua.

LECTIO V

Habitu tertii ordinis sancti Dominici assumpto, pristinas vitæ austeritates duplicavit: oblongo asperrimoque cilicio sparsim mimisculas acus innexuit: sub velo coronam densis aculeis introrsus obarmatam interdiu noctuque gestavit. Sanctæ Catharinæ Senensis ardua premens vestigia, catena ferrea, triplici nexu circumducta, lumbos cinxit. Lectulum sibi e truncis nodosis composuit, horumque vacuas commissuras fragminibus testarum implevit. Cellulam sibi angustissimam struxit in extremo horti angulo, ubi cælestium contemplationi dedita, crebris disciplinis, inedia, vigiliis corpusculum extenuans, at spiritu vegetata, larvas dæmonum, frequenti certamine victrix, impavide protrivit ac superavit.

R. Dilexisti justitiam, et odisti iniquitatem: * Propterea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus, óleo lætitiæ.

likeness to a rose, which her face assumed when she was a babe. To this name she afterwards added that of the Virgin Mother of God, desiring to be called St. Mary's Rose. At the age of fifteen years she uttered a vow of perpetual virginity. As she grew older, lest her parents should force her to marry, she polled her head of all her hair, which was very beautiful. She fasted to a degree almost superhuman, passing whole Lents without taking bread, and eating day by day only five pips of a lime.

R. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness; * And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

V. In thy comeliness, and thy beauty, go forward, fare prosperously, and reign.

R. And thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

LESSON V

She took the habit of the Third Order of St. Dominic, and then doubled her former severities. She wore a long and very rough hair-cloth, into which she inserted small pins. She wore day and night under her veil a crown, the inner side of which was armed with pricks. In imitation of the hard steps of St. Katharine of Sienna, she girded her loins with a threefold iron chain. She made to herself a bed of knotty sticks, and filled the gaps with broken bits of potsherd. She built herself a very small hut in the farthest corner of the garden, where she gave herself up to thoughts of heavenly things, and to punishing her body with often scourging, starvation, and sleeplessness. But she waxed strong in spirit, and though she often had to fight with evil ghosts, she conquered them, fearlessly prostrated them, and triumphed over them.

R. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; * Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

V. Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness.

R. Therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness.

LESSON VI

Aegritudinum tormentis, domesticorum insultibus, linguarum morsibus dire agitata, nondum satis pro merito se affligi quærebatur. Per quindecim annos ad plusculas horas desolatione spiritus et ariditate miserrime contabescens, forti animo tulit agones omni morte amariores. Exinde cœpit supernis abundare deliciis, illustrari visionibus, colligescere seraphicis ardoribus. Angelo tutelori, sanctæ Catharinæ Senensi, Virgini Deiparæ inter assiduas apparitiones mire familiaris, a Christo has voces audire meruit: Rosa cordis mei, tu mihi sponsa esto. Denique Sponsi hujus paradiso feliciter invectam, plurimisque ante et post obitum miraculis coruscantem, Clemens decimus Pontifex Maximus sanctarum Virginum catalogo ritu solemniter adscripsit.

℟. Afferéntur Regi vírgines post eam, próximæ ejus; * Afferéntur tibi in lætítia et exsultatióne.

℣. Spécie tua et pulchritúdine tua; inténde, prospere procéde, et regna.

℟. Afferéntur tibi in lætítia et exsultatióne.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Afferéntur tibi in lætítia et exsultatióne.

She suffered greatly from painful illnesses, from the maltreatment of the servants, and from slanderous accusations, but still complained that she did not suffer as much as she deserved. For fifteen years she pined in misery from desolation and dryness of spirit, bravely enduring torments worse than any form of death. After this period she began to overflow with consolation, to be enlightened by visions, and to melt with love like a Seraph's. She attained, by the frequency of visions, to a strange personal familiarity with her Guardian Angel, with St. Katharine of Sienna, and with the Virgin Mother of God, and she earned from Christ the words, Rose of My Heart, be thou My bride. She was famous for many miracles, both before and after she departed hence, and was happily transplanted into the Bridegroom's garden, (upon the 24th of August 1617, being aged 31 years.) Pope Clement X. with solemn pomp inscribed her name in the list of holy maidens.

℟. After her shall virgins be brought unto the King, her fellows * They shall be brought unto thee with gladness and rejoicing.

℣. In thy comeliness and thy beauty, go forward, fare prosperously, and reign.

℟. They shall be brought unto thee with gladness and rejoicing.

LESSON IX (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

Commemoration of: St. Felix and Adauctus, Martyrs

Felix was arrested in the reign of the Emperors Diocletian and Maximian, on the charge of having embraced the Christian Faith, and was brought to the temple of Serapis. When he was ordered to offer sacrifice, he spat in the face of the brazen idol, which thereupon fell down. When this happened a second and third time in the temples of Mercury and Diana, he was accused of impiety and magic, and tortured upon the rack. It was not long, however, before he was led out to the second mile-stone upon the road to Ostia, to be smitten with the axe. As they were on the way thither, they chanced to meet a certain Christian, who, when he knew that Felix was going to finish his testimony, said aloud, I live by the same law as he doth I worship the same Christ Jesus. And therewith he kissed Felix, and they were beheaded together, upon the 30th day of August. What the name of the second person was the Christians never knew, and he is therefore honoured under the title of Him-who-was-added x that is, added to the company of the Holy Martyr Felix in winning of the crown.

Lectiones VII–IX: ex Communi Confessoris non pontificis (C5).

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

Lessons VII–IX: from the Common of a Confessor not a Bishop (C5).

LECTIO IV

Raymundus, Nonnatus cognomento dictus, quia præter communem naturæ legem e mortuæ matris dissecto latere in lucem educatus fuit, Portelli in Catalaunia piis et nobilibus parentibus ortus, ab ipsa infantia futuræ sanctitatis indicia dedit. Nam puerilia oblectamenta, mundique illecebras respuens, ita pietati operam dabat, ut omnes in puero adultam virtutem admirarentur. Crescente vero ætate, litterarum studiis incubuit: sed mox jubente patre vitam ruri agens, sacellum sancti Nicolai in Portelli finibus situm crebro adibat, ut sacram Deiparæ imaginem, quæ in eo summa fidelium veneratione etiam nunc colitur, visitaret. Ibi effusus in preces, ipsam Dei parentem, ut se in filium adoptare viamque salutis ac scientiam sanctorum edocere dignaretur, enixe deprecabatur.

LESSON IV

This Raymond is commonly called the Unborn, because his was one of the rare cases in which the child is not brought into the world in the course of nature, but by a surgical operation after the death of the mother. He was the son of godly and noble parents, at Portel, (in the dioecese of Urgel,) in Catalonia. The tokens of his holy after-life appeared even in his childhood. The things that delight children, and the attractions of the world, had no charm for him. He was so earnest in godliness that all men marvelled at his habits of premature old age. As he grew older, he gave himself to the study of letters, but, at the command of his father, turned to farming. He went often to the Chapel of St Nicolas, in the suburbs of Portel, to visit the sacred image of the Mother of God, which is still sought with great tenderness by the faithful. There he poured forth his soul in prayer,

- R. Honéstum fecit illum Dóminus, et custodívit eum ab inimícis, et a seductóribus tutávit illum: * Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.
- Ÿ. Justum dedúxit Dóminus per vias rectas, et osténdit illi regnum Dei.
- R. Et dedit illi claritátem ætérnam.

LECTIO V

Nec defuit votis ejus benignissima Virgo. Ab ipsa enim intellexit gratissimum sibi fore, si religionem sub titulo de Mercede, seu de Misericordia redemptionis captivorum, ea suggerante nuper fundatam, ingrederetur. Qua monitione percepta, Barcinonem statim profectus, illud tam præcellentis erga proximum caritatis institutum amplexus est. Regulari igitur militiæ adscriptus, virginitatem, quam pridem beatæ Virgini consecraverat, perpetuo coluit, ceterisque virtutibus enituit, caritate præsertim erga Christianos, qui sub potestate paganorum miseram in captivitate vitam degebant. Hos ut redimeret, in Africam missus, cum jam multos a servitute liberasset, ne, consumpta pecunia, aliis item in proximo abnegandæ fidei discrimine constitutis deesset, se ipsum pignori dedit; sed cum ardentissimo salutis animarum desiderio succensus, plures Mahometanos suis concionibus ad Christum converteret, in arctam custodiam a barbaris conjectus, variisque suppliciis cruciatus, mox labiis perforatis et sera ferrea clausis, crudele martyrium diu sustinuit.

- R. Amávit eum Dóminus, et ornávit eum: stolam glóriæ índuit eum, * Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.
- Ÿ. Índuit eum Dóminus lorícám fídei, et ornávit eum.
- R. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

and earnestly entreated the Mother of God herself to be pleased to take him for her son, to show him the way wherein it should be safe for him to walk, and to teach him the science of the Saints.

- R. The Lord made him honourable, and defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait for him; * And gave him perpetual glory.
- Ÿ. He went down with him into the pit, and left him not in bonds.
- R. And gave him perpetual glory.

LESSON V

And the most gracious Maiden was not deaf to his prayers. From her he understood that it would please her right well, if he would join the Religious Order which had just been founded at her own inspiration, styled of Ransom or of Mercy, for buying up and freeing slaves. As soon as he had received this intimation from her, he went to Barcelona, and entered the Institute so nobly dedicated to love for our neighbour. Once enlisted in the Regular Army, he guarded unspotted for ever the virginity which he had already consecrated to the Blessed Virgin for ever. But he was a bright and shining light of all other good words and works, especially of tender compassion for Christians who were passing a life of grievous bondage in the possession of unbelieving masters. To free such he was sent into Africa, and delivered many. But his money ran short, and as there were still many in imminent danger of denying the faith, he pawned himself. He was enkindled with a most vehement longing for the salvation of souls, and by his exhortations brought diverse Mohammedans to Christ. The Moors therefore threw him into close prison, and put him to diverse tortures, at last making holes through his lips and locking them together with an iron padlock, which horrid cruelty he long bore.

- R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.
- Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.
- R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LECTIO VI

Ob hæc et alia fortiter gesta sanctitatis ejus fama longe lateque diffusa est. Qua permotus Gregorius nonus, in amplissimum sanctæ Romanæ Ecclesiæ Cardinalium collegium Raymundum adscripsit: sed vir Dei in ea dignitate ab omni pompa abhorrens, religiosæ humilitatis tenacissimus semper fuit. Romam vero pergens, statim ac Cardonam pervenit, extremo morbo confectus, ecclesiasticis sacramentis muniri summis precibus postulavit. Cumque morbus ingravesceret, et sacerdos diutius tardaret, Angelorum ministerio, sub specie religiosorum sui ordinis apparentium, salutari viatico refectus fuit. Quo sumpto, et gratiis Deo peractis, migravit ad Dominum Dominica ultima Augusti, anno millesimo ducentesimo quadragesimo. Mortui corpus, cum circa locum sepulturæ contentio orta esset, arcæ inclusum, et mulæ cæcæ impositum, ad sacellum sancti Nicolai Dei nutu delatum fuit, ut ibi tumularetur, ubi prima jecerat sanctioris vitæ fundamenta. Illic constructo sui ordinis cænobio, a confluentibus voti causa ex universa Catalaunia fidelibus populis honoratur, variis miraculis et signis gloriosus.

℟. Iste homo perfécit ómnia quæ locútus est ei Deus, et dixit ad eum: Ingrédere in réquiem meam: * Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

℣. Iste est, qui contémpsit vitam mundi, et pervénit ad cæléstia regna.

℟. Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

℣. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

℟. Quia te vidi justum coram me ex ómnibus géntibus.

LESSON VI

The account of these, and other brave things that he did, he got the name of a Saint far and wide. Gregory IX. was moved thereby to make Raymond a Cardinal of the Holy Roman Church, but in this place of honour the man of God shrank from all outward show, and clung ever tightly to the lowliness that beseemeth a Religious man. He had started for Rome, (in obedience to the command of the Pope,) but had only got as far as Cardona, (six miles from Barcelona,) when he was seized with his last illness, and earnestly called for the strengthening Sacraments of the Church. But his position became critical, and the Priest had not arrived. Then Angels came unto him, clad in the habit of his own Order, and ministered unto him the wholesome Provision for the last journey. When he had taken It, he gave God thanks, and departed hence to be ever with the Lord. It was the last Lord's Day in August, 1240. After his death there was some dispute arose as to where his body should be buried so they shut it up in a box, and laid it upon a blind mule, and the beast was guided by God to carry it to the chapel of St. Nicolas, that he might be buried where he had laid the foundations of his nobler life. There was built there a Convent of his Order, and the faithful come together thither from all parts of Catalonia to honour him, and he is famous for diverse signs and wonders.

℟. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him: Enter thou into My rest, * For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

℣. This is he which loved not his life in this world, and is come unto an everlasting kingdom.

℟. For thee have I seen righteous before Me among all people.

LESSON III (WHEN COMMEMORATED)

The holy Abbot Giles was by birth an Athenian, and of Royal lineage. From his youth he showed ever such a love for sacred learning and for works of charity, that he seemed to care for nothing else. When his father and mother were dead, he bestowed his whole inheritance upon the poor. He took off even his own coat, to clothe a poor sick man withal, and the sick man was healed forthwith as soon as he put it on him. As Giles became famous for working miracles, he fled from glory among men, and betook him to Arles, (in France,) to the company of blessed Caesarius. After the space of two years he departed thence, and went into the desert, for he lived in wonderful holiness for a long while upon the roots of herbs and the milk of an hind, which came to him at regular hours. This hind was chased one day by the King's hounds, and took refuge in Giles's cave. Thereby the King of France was moved earnestly to entreat of him that he would suffer a monastery to be built in the place where this cave was. At the instant desire of the King, he took the rule of this monastery, albeit himself unwilling, and discharged this duty wisely and godly for some years, until he passed away to heaven.

LESSON IV

This Stephen (was the son of Geysa, fourth Duke of the Hungarians, and was born at Gran in the year 977.) He it was who first gave to Hungary the faith of Christ and the name of a kingdom. He obtained the Kingly crown from the Bishop of Rome, and being by command of the same anointed King, he made an offering of his kingdom to the Apostolic See. With wonderful devotion and bounty he founded diverse godly houses at Rome, Jerusalem, and Constantinople, and in Hungary the Archbishopric of Gran and ten other Sees. Toward the poor he had the same love and bounty. He greeted them as though they were Christ Himself, and never sent any one away sorrowing and empty. He spent vast sums in relieving their poverty, and also often parted among them with exceeding tenderness even the furniture of his house. Moreover it was his use to wash the feet of the poor with his own hands, and to go in the night, alone and unknown, to the hospitals, and to wait on them that lay there, and show them other deeds of kindness. It was the reward of these good works that, when the rest of his body decayed, his right hand remained uncorrupt.

onslaughts of mighty foes. He married Gisela of Bavaria, sister to the holy Emperor Henry, and begat on her Emeric, whom he trained up in such manners and godliness, as are shown by his also becoming a Saint. To carry on the business of his kingdom, he gathered together from all quarters the most learned and godly men, and took nothing in hand without their advice. Meanwhile he entreated of God by the most lowly supplications, offered up in sack-cloth and ashes, that, before he departed this life, he might see all Hungary Catholic. On account of his excellent zeal for the spread of the Faith he is called the Apostle of that nation, and the Bishop of Rome gave to him and to his successors the right to have a Cross carried before them.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him; He clothed him with a robe of glory, * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

Ÿ. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

R. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VI

He had a burning zeal to honour the Mother of God. He built a very great Church in her honour, and made her Patroness of Hungary. In return, the same Virgin received him into heaven, (in the year 1038,) upon the day of her own Assumption, which the Hungarians, by the example of the holy King, call "the Great Lady's Day." His hallowed body yielded the sweetest savour, and reeked with an heavenly liquid, and amid many and diverse wonders it was removed by command of the Bishop of Rome into a more noble place, and more honourably buried. Pope Innocent XI. ordered his Feast to be held upon the 2nd day of September, on account of the famous victory over the Turks which was gained upon this day, (in the year 1686,) when the army of Leopold I., Emperor (elect) of the Romans, and King of Hungary, wrested from them, by the help of God, the city of Buda.

R. This is he which did according unto all that God commanded him; and God said unto him:

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 19:12-25

At that time, Jesus spoke this parable unto His disciples: A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. And so on.

*Homily by St. Ambrose, Bishop (of Milan.)
Book viii. on Luke.*

It is well ordered that, being about to call the Gentiles, and to command the destruction of those Jews, who would not have Christ to reign over them, He should put forth first this parable; lest it should be said He had given the Jews no means of becoming better. How can they be asked to repay who have received nothing? That is not a piece of silver of little worth, which, when the woman before mentioned in this Gospel (xv. 8) hath lost, she lighteth a candle, and sweepeth the house, and searcheth diligently until she findeth it.

℟. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

✠. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

℟. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

℞. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

And here we may also understand by the ten pounds the ten words, that is, the Commandments, and by the five pounds, the enforcement of their teaching. But I would that a lawyer should be in all things perfect. For the kingdom of God is not in word but in power. (1 Cor. iv. 20.) Meet also is it, that, in speaking of Jews, Christ should represent only two as bringing in increased capital, for these talents are talents not of money but of grace, and to increase money by usury is a very different thing from improving heavenly revelation by the like means.

Lessons I–III: from the Scripture of the day.

LESSON IV

Pope Pius X, whose name previously was Joseph Sarto, was born in the village of Riese in the Venetian province, to humble parents remarkable for their godliness and piety. He enrolled among the students in the seminary of Padua, where he exhibited such piety and learning that he was both an example to his fellow students and the admiration of his teachers. Upon his ordination to the priesthood, he labored for several years first as curate in the town of Tombolo, then as pastor at Salzano. He applied himself to his duties with such a constant flow of charity and such priestly zeal, and was so distinguished by the holiness of his life, that the Bishop of Treviso appointed him as a canon of the cathedral church and made him the chancellor of the bishop's curia, as well as spiritual director of the diocesan seminary. His performance in these duties was so outstanding and so highly impressed Leo XIII, that he made him bishop of the Church of Mantua.

℟. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him * For My hand shall help him.

℣. The enemy shall prevail nothing against him, nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

℟. For My hand shall help him.

LESSON V

Lacking in nothing that makes a good pastor, he labored particularly to teach young men called to the priesthood, as well as fostering the growth of devout associations and the beauty and dignity of divine worship. He would ever affirm and promote the laws upon which Christian civilization depend, and while leading himself a life of poverty, never missed the opportunity to alleviate the burden of poverty in others. In Petri cáthedra constitútus, nihil de prístina vitæ ratióne remísit. Humilitáte præserítim, simplicitáte ac paupertáte refúlxit, ita ut in suo testaménto scribere potúerit: « Pauper natus sum, pauper vixi, pauper mori cúpio ». Humílitas vero ánimo fortitúdinem in eo alébat, cum de Dei glória, Ecclésiæ libertáte, animarúmque salúte agerétur. Vir acérri-mi ingénii et propósi tenax, inter vicésimi ineúntis sæculi procéllas, Ecclésiám fírmiter rexit, et præclaríssimis ornávit institútis. of Venice. After the death of Pope Leo XIII, when the votes of the College of Cardinals began to increase in his favor, he tried in vain with supplications and tears to be relieved of so heavy a burden. Finally he ceded to their persuasions, saying I accept the cross. Thus he accepted the crown of the supreme pontificate as a cross, offering himself to God, with a resigned but steadfast spirit.

R. I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people * For My hand shall help him.

Ÿ. I have found David My servant, with My holy oil have I anointed him.

LESSON VI

Placed upon the chair of Peter, he gave up nothing of his former way of life. He shone especially in humility, simplicity and poverty, so that he was able to write in his last testament: I was born in poverty, I lived in poverty, and I wish to die in poverty. His humility, however, nourished his soul with strength, when it concerned the glory of God, the liberty of Holy Church, and the salvation of souls. A man of passionate temperament and of firm purpose, he ruled the Church firmly as it entered into the twentieth century, and adorned it with brilliant teachings. He restored the sacred music to its pristine glory and dignity; he established Rome as the principal centre for the study of the Holy Bible; he ordered the reform of the Roman Curia with great wisdom; he restored the laws concerning the faithful for the instruction of the catechism; he introduced the custom of more frequent and even daily reception of the Holy Eucharist, as well as permitting its reception by children as soon as they reach the age of reason; he zealously promoted the growth of Catholic action; he provided for the sound education of clerics and increased the number of seminaries in their diverse regions; he encouraged every priest in the practice of the interior life; he brought the laws of the Church together into one body; he condemned and suppressed those most pernicious errors known collectively as Modernism; he suppressed the custom of

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to John

John 21:15-17

At that time: Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? And so on, and that which followeth.

A Homily by St. Augustine, the Bishop

Tractatus 123 in Joánnem. in medio

To the threefold denial there is now appended a threefold confession, that his tongue may not yield a feebler service to love than to fear, and imminent death may not appear to have elicited more from his lips than present life. Let it be the office of love to feed the Lord's flock, if it was the signal of fear to deny the Shepherd. Those who have this purpose in feeding the flock of Christ, that they may have them as their own, and not as Christ's, are convicted of loving themselves, and not Christ, from the desire either of boasting, or wielding power, or acquiring gain, and not from the love of obeying, serving and pleasing God.

R. The Lord loved him and beautified him He clothed him with a robe of glory * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

✠. Induit eum Dóminus lorícam fídei, et ornávit eum.

℟. Et ad portas paradísi coronávit eum.

LECTIO VIII

Contra hos ergo vígilat tótidem inculcáta ista vox Christi, quos Apóstolos gemit sua quære-re, non quæ Jesu Christi. Nam quid est áliud, si díligis me, pasce oves meas; quam si dicerétur, si me díligis, non te páscere cógita? Sed oves meas, et sicut meas pasce, non sicut tuas; glóriam meam in eis quære, non tuam; domínium meum, non tuum; lucra mea, non tua; ne sis in eórum societáte qui pértinent ad témpora periculósa, seípso amánte, et cétera quæ huic malórum ínítio connectúntur.

✠. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℟. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VIII

Against such, therefore, there standeth as a wakeful sentinel this thrice inculcated utterance of Christ, of whom the Apostle complaineth that they seek their own, not the things that are of Christ Jesus. For what else signifieth the words: Lovest thou me? Feed my sheep: than if it were said: If thou lovest me, think not of feeding thyself, but feed my sheep as mine, and not as thine own; seek my glory in them, and not thine own; my dominion, and not thine; my gain, and not thine; lest thou be found in the fellowship of them that belong to the perilous times, lovers of their own selves, and all else that is joined on to this beginning of evils.

℟. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; * And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

✠. Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

✠. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

With great propriety, therefore, is Peter addressed: Lovest thou me? and found replying: I love thee; and the command applied to him: Feed my lambs, and this a second and a third time. We have it also demonstrated here that love (amor) and liking (dilectio) are one and the same thing; for the Lord also in the last question said not: Dost thou like me? (Diligis me?): but: Dost thou love me? (Amas me?) Let us, then, love not ourselves but him; and in feeding his sheep, let us be seeking the things which are his, not the things which are our

1 Cor 4:1-5

Sic nos exístimet homo ut miníistros Christi, et dispensatóres mysteriórum Dei. Hic jam quæritur inter dispensatóres ut fidélis quis inveniátur. Mihi autem pro mínimo est ut a vobis júdicer, aut ab humáno die: sed neque meípsum júdico. Nihil enim mihi cóncius sum, sed non in hoc justificátus sum: qui autem júdicat me, Dóminus est. Puto enim quod Deus nos Apóstolos novíssimos osténdit, tamquam morti destinátos: quia spectáculum facti sumus mundo, et Ángelis, et homínibus.

℟. Tóllite jugum meum super vos, dicit Dóminus, et discite a me, quia mitis sum

LESSON I

Lesson from the first letter of St. Paul the Apostle to the Corinthians

1 Cor 4:1-5

Let a man so account of us as of the ministers of Christ, and the dispensers of the mysteries of God. Here now it is required among the dispensers, that a man be found faithful. But to me it is a very small thing to be judged by you, or by man's day; but neither do I judge my own self. For I am not conscious to myself of any thing, yet am I not hereby justified; but he that judgeth me, is the Lord. Therefore judge not before the time; until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts; and then shall every man have praise from God.

℟. Behold, I send you as sheep in the midst of wolves, said the Lord: * Be ye, therefore, wise as serpents and simple as doves.

℣. Whilst you have the light, believe in the light, that you may be the children of light.

℟. Be ye therefore wise as serpents and simple as doves.

LESSON II

1 Cor 4:6-9

But these things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to myself and to Apollo, for your sakes; that in us you may learn, that one be not puffed up against the other for another, above that which is written. For who distinguisheth thee? Or what hast thou that thou hast not received? And if thou hast received, why dost thou glory, as if thou hadst not received it? You are now full; you are now become rich; you reign without us; and I would to God you did reign, that we also might reign with you. For I think that God hath set forth us apostles, the last, as it were men appointed to death: we are made a spectacle to the world, and to angels, and to men.

LESSON III

1 COR 4:10-15

We are fools for Christ's sake, but you are wise in Christ; we are weak, but you are strong; you are honourable, but we without honour. Even unto this hour we both hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no fixed abode; And we labour, working with our own hands: we are reviled, and we bless; we are persecuted, and we suffer it. We are blasphemed, and we entreat; we are made as the refuse of this world, the offscouring of all even until now. I write not these things to confound you; but I admonish you as my dearest children. For if you have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet not many fathers. For in Christ Jesus, by the gospel, I have begotten you.

℞. But when they shall deliver you up to the judges, take no thought how or what to speak: * for it shall be given you in that hour what to speak:

From the holy Gospel according to John
John 15:1-7

In illo témpore: Dixit Jesus discípulis suis: Ego sum vitis vera: et Pater meus agrícola est. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Augustíni Epíscopi Tract. 80 in Joannem

Iste locus evangélicus, fratres, ubi se dicit Dóminus vitem, et discípulos suos pálmities, secúndum hoc dicit, quod est caput Ecclésiæ, nosque membra ejus, mediátor Dei et hóminum, homo Christus Jesus. Uníus quippe natúræ sunt vitis et pálmities. Propter quod cum esset Deus, cujus natúræ non sumus, factus est homo, ut in illo esset vitis humana natúra, cujus et nos hómines pálmities esse possémus.

℞. Ego sum vitis vera, et vos pálmities: * Qui manet in me, et ego in eo, hic fert fructum multum, allelúja, allelúja.

℣. Sicut diléxit me Pater, et ego diléxi vos.

℞. Qui manet in me, et ego in eo, hic fert fructum multum, allelúja, allelúja.

LECTIO VIII

Quid ergo est, Ego sum vitis vera? Numquid ut ádderet, vera, hoc ad eam vitem rétulit, unde ista similitúdo transláta est? Sic enim dícitur vitis per similitúdinem, non per proprietátem: quemádmódum dícitur ovis, agnus, leo, petra, lapis anguláris, et cétera hujúsmodi, quæ magis ipsa sunt vera, ex quibus ducúntur istæ similitúdines, non proprietátes. Sed cum dicit, Ego sum vitis vera: ab illa se útiq̃ue discérnit, cui dícitur: Quómodo convérsa es in amaritúdinem vitis aliéna? Nam quo pacto est vitis vera, quæ expectáta est ut fáceret uvam, fecit autem spinas?

In that time Jesus said to his disciples: I an the true vine; and my Father is the husbandman. And so on.

Homily by St. Augustine, Bishop (of Hippo.) Tract 80 on John

Dearly beloved brethren, this passage of the Gospel, wherein the Lord saith that He is the vine, and that His disciples are the branches, is to be taken in that sense wherein it is also said, that He is the Head of the Church, (Eph. v. 23,) and that we are the members of Him (30) Who is the Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus (1 Tim. ii. 5.) The vine and his branches are of one and the same nature. Therefore, seeing that He was God, of which nature we are not, He was made man, to the end that He might have in Himself this vine, that is, the manhood, whereof we men can be made branches.

℞. I am the vine: you the branches. * He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit, alleluia, alleluia.

℣. As the Father hath loved me, I also have loved you.

℞. He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit, alleluia, alleluia.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℞. He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit, alleluia, alleluia.

LESSON VIII

Why saith He: I am the true vine? As touching this word true, hath He not here regard to that other parable of a vine, the like figure whereto He doth here apply to Himself? (Jer. ii. 21.) Here is He called a vine, not plainly, but in parable, as also He is called elsewhere a sheep, (Isa. liii. 7, Acts viii. 32,) a lamb, (John i. 36,) a lion, (Apoc. v. 5,) a rock, (1 Cor. x. 4,) a corner-stone, ~ (Eph. ii. 20,) and other things of the like kind. But these things are in themselves that which they seem to be, albeit He is called by their names, not plainly, but in a parable, and herein are they different from that vine, whereof in this place He taketh on Him the name. For when He saith: I am the true vine, doth He not make distinction between Himself, and that which indeed seemed to be a vine, but Ego sum, inquit, vitis vera: et Pater meus agrícola est. Numquid unum sunt agrícola et vitis? Secúndum hoc ergo vitis Christus, secúndum quod ait: Pater major me est. Secúndum autem id, quod ait: Ego, et Pater unum sumus; et ipse agrícola est: nec talis, quales sunt, qui extrínsecus operándo exhibent ministérium: sed talis, ut det étiam intrínsecus increméntum. Nam neque qui plantat est áliiquid, neque qui rigat: sed, qui increméntum dat, Deus. Sed útique Deus est Christus, quia Deus erat Verbum: unde ipse, et Pater unum sunt. to which it is said: How art thou turned into the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto Me? (Jer. ii. 21.) For by what title shall that plant be called other than a false vine, whereto they looked that she should bring forth grapes, and she brought forth thorns?

℟. Her Nazarites are become pure, Alleluia: they reflect the glory of God, Alleluia. * They are whiter than milk. Alleluia, Alleluia.

℣. They are purer than snow, they are whiter than milk, they are more ruddy in body than coral, their polishing is of sapphire.

℟. They are whiter than milk. Alleluia, Alleluia.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. They are whiter than milk. Alleluia, Alleluia.

LESSON IX

He saith: I am the true vine, and My Father is the husbandman. Is the vine one with the husbandman? These words then are to be taken in that sense wherein He also saith: My Father is greater than I. (John xiv. 28.) In this sense is He the vine, and the Father is the husbandman. But again, in regard to those words: I and the Father are one, and again and: My Father is the husbandman, we understand that They are not the vine and the husbandman, after the manner of a vine, and the husbandman that from without doth care for and keep it, but after the manner of a vine and Him That from within doth make it to bring forth fruit. For neither is he that planteth anything, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increase. (1 Cor. iii. 7.) But Christ is God, for the Word was God. (John i. 1.) Therefore He and the Father are one: and, albeit the Word was made flesh, (John i. 14,) which, before, He was not, He ceased not to be still That Which He was.

A Homily by St. Leo the PopeSermo 2 in anniversario assumpt. suæ ante medium

When the Lord, as we read in the Gospel, asked his disciples who did men, amid their diverse speculations, believe him the Son of Man to be, blessed Peter answered and said: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And the Lord answered and said unto him: Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father, which is in heaven: and I say also unto thee: That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it; and I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. But the dispensation of truth perdures, and blessed Peter, persevering in the strength of the rock which he hath received, hath not relinquished the position he assumed at the helm of the Church.

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: When ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not by and by. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory (the Great.)

35th on the Gospels.

Our Lord and Redeemer willet us to know what shall be the signs that the end of the world is at hand, to the end that ye may be the less terrified, when that cometh whereof ye have already had warning. Darts strike less which are seen coming: and the plagues of the earth will be to us more bearable, if we are harnessed against them with the shield of foreknowledge. Behold, how He saith When ye shall hear of wars and commotions be not terrified for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not by and by. It behoveth us to ponder these words of our Redeemer, wherein He warneth us of suffering, from without, and from within. Wars are the work of a foreign enemy, commotions of the citizens. Therefore, that He may let us know that we shall be troubled from within and from without, He sheweth that our wrestling shall be in part against strangers, and in part against our brethren.

℟. Because of the covenant of the Lord, and the laws of their fathers, the Saints of God abode in brotherly love, * For one spirit and one faith was ever in them.

When these woes come, the end is not by and by. And He saith further Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and great earthquakes shall be in diverse places, and pestilences, and famines, and fearful sights and great signs shall there be from heaven. Before the last tribulation cometh, shall come many other tribulations: and, by the many woes which shall come first, shall be foreshadowed the everlasting woe which shall come in the end. And therefore, after wars and commotions, the end is not yet by and by many woes must come first, to give warning of the woe that hath no end.

R. I will render unto you a reward of your labours.

ψ. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. I will render unto you a reward of your labours.

LESSON IX

But, forasmuch as the signs and troubles whereof the Lord speaketh are so manifold, we must needs shortly consider each for, of necessity, we must suffer some things from heaven, some from the earth, some from the powers of nature, and some from men. For where He saith Nation shall rise against nation He speaketh concerning the troubling of men where great earthquakes shall be in diverse places concerning wrath from above: where: and pestilences concerning the frailty of the body where and famines concerning the barrenness of the earth: where fearful signs from heaven, and tempests concerning commotions of the air. As, then, all things shall have an end, so, before the end, shall all things be troubled and we who have sinned and come short in all things, shall in all things be afflicted, that it may be fulfilled that is written: and the world shall fight with Him against the unwise. At that time Jesus spake unto His disciples this parable A man, travelling into a far country, called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods. And so on.

*Homily by Pope St Gregory (the Great.)
9th on the Gospels.*

Dearly beloved brethren, this Lesson from the Holy Gospel moveth us to take good heed lest we, who are seen in this world to have received more than others, should thereby bring ourselves into greater condemnation from the Maker of this world. To whom much is given, of the same is much required. Therefore, let him that receiveth much, strive to be all the more lowly, and all the more ready to do God service, for his very gifts' sake, knowing that he will be obliged to give account thereof. Behold, a man, travelling into a far country, calleth his own servants, and delivereth unto them talents, to the end that they may trade therewith. After a long time, the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them, and to them that have done well He rendereth a reward of their labours, but that servant which was careless of his master's work He condemneth.

℟. The Lord loved him and beautified him He clothed him with a robe of glory * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

R. And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding.

LESSON IX

And so he that had received five talents, gained other five talents for some there be who, while yet they are not able to go on unto things inward and mystic, do yet so desire our Fatherland which is above, that they teach well all whom they can, and of those very outward things which they have received make gain double. These are they which keep themselves clean from the unruly motions of the flesh, and from the lust of the world, and from the delight of things which are seen, and, by their preaching, keep other men also clean from all these things. And some there are who receive, as their two talents, the power to think and the power to work. These are they which inwardly understand dark things, and outwardly work wonders. And these, since they preach unto others, both through their understanding and their works, gain, as it were, double, for the talents which they have received.

Matt 5:13-19

At that time: Jesus said unto his disciples: Ye are the salt of the earth: But if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? And so on,
and that which followeth.

A Homily by St. Augustine the Bishop

Lib. 1 de Sermóne Dómini in monte, cap. 6

The Lord would have us understand how that men do lose their power of savouring others with righteousness when they are willing to place their eternal welfare in jeopardy for the sake of any témporal advantage, like as attainment of ease or luxury, or escape from suffering or toil. For that which is eternal, unlike things of this world, can neither be bestowed by men, nor by them taken away. Hence, when he asketh: If the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? he would have us understand the question to be: If ye, by whom mankind is preserved from corruption, be willing to lose the kingdom of heaven so as to escape trials or persecutions in this world, who is there to preserve you from corruption, seeing ye are they that God hath chosen to preserve all others from corruption?

℞. The Lord loved him and beautified him He clothed him with a robe of glory * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

℣. The Lord hath put on him the breast-plate of faith, and hath adorned him.

℞. And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

LESSON VIII

Those that should be the salt of the earth, but have lost their savour, are thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men. But no one that suffereth persecution is truly said to be trodden under foot of men. Rather, timéndo, infatuátur. Calcári enim non potest nisi inférior; sed inférior non est, qui, quamvis corpore multa in terra sustíneat, corde tamen fixus in cælo est.

℟. In médio Ecclésiæ apérui os ejus, * Et implévit eum Dóminus spíritu sapiéntiæ et intelléctus.

℣. Jucunditátem et exsultatíonem thesaurizávit super eum.

Vos estis lumen mundi. Quómodo dixit supérius sal terræ, sic nunc dicit lumen mundi. Nam, neque supérius ista terra accipiéndá est, quam pédibus corpóreis calcámus; sed hómines, qui in terra hábitant, vel étiam peccatóres, quorum condiéndis et exstinguéndis putóribus apostólicum salem Dóminus misit. Et hic mundum non cælum et terram, sed hómines qui sunt in mundo vel dīligunt mundum, opórtet intēlligi; quibus illuminándis Apóstoli missi sunt. Non potest civitas abscondi super montem pósita; id est, fundáta super insígnem magnámque justítiam, quam signīficat étiam ipse mons, in quo dísputat Dóminus.

that one is truly trodden under foot of men who through fear of persecution hath lost the savour of righteousness. For no one can be trodden upon, unless he be beneath him which treadeth upon him. And certainly no one who hath his heart in heaven, no matter how grievously he doth suffer in his body on earth, is rightly said to be beneath anyone who misuseth him.

℟. In the midst of the congregation did the Lord open his mouth. * And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

℟. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

℣. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

℟. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

LESSON IX

Ye are the light of the world. And we are to understand the word World in the same sense as the word Earth when he spoke above of the salt of the earth, that is, not that earth whereupon we walk with our bodily feet, but the men which dwell upon the earth; in other words, sinners, for the sweetening and correction of whose corruption, the Lord hath sent his Apostles, as it were, as so much salt. And so by the world we are to understand, not the heaven and the earth, but the men who are in the world and love the world, for the enlightening of whom the Apostles have been sent. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid: that is, what is founded upon the heights of righteousness, whereof the mountain upon which the Lord gave this discourse was itself a figure, is magnificent in the eyes of all men.

Matt 16:13-19

At that time: When Jesus came into the coasts of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I the Son of man am? And so on.

A Homily by St. Leo the PopeSermo 2 in anniversario assumpt. sue ante medium

When the Lord, as we read in the Gospel, asked his disciples who did men, amid their diverse speculations, believe him the Son of Man to be, blessed Peter answered and said: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And the Lord answered and said unto him: Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father, which is in heaven: and I say also unto thee: That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it; and I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. But the dispensation of truth perdures, and blessed Peter, persevering in the strength of the rock which he hath received, hath not relinquished the position he assumed at the helm of the Church.

℟. The Lord loved him and beautified him He clothed him with a robe of glory * And crowned him at the gates of Paradise.

In the universal Church it is as if Peter were still saying every day: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. For every tongue which confesseth the Lord is taught that confession by the teaching of Peter. This is the Faith that overcometh the devil and looseth the bonds of his prisoners.

This is the Faith which maketh men free of the world and bringeth them to heaven, and the gates of hell are impotent to prevail against it. This is the rock which God hath fortified with such ramparts of salvation, that the contagion of heresy will never be able to infect it, nor idolatry and unbelief to overcome it. And therefore, dearly beloved, we celebrate today's festival with reasonable obedience, that in my humble person he may be acknowledged and honoured who doth continue to care for all the shepherds as well as sheep entrusted unto him, and who doth lose none of his dignity even in an unworthy successor.

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 12:35-40

At that time, Jesus said unto His disciples: Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning. And so on.

Homily by Pope St. Gregory (the Great.)

13th on the Gospels.

Sancti Evangélii, fratres caríssimi, apérta vobis est léctio recitata. Sed ne álíquibus ipsa ejus planíties alta fortásse videátur, eam sub brevítate transcúrrimus, quátenus ejus expositio ita nesciéntibus fiat cógnita, ut tamen sciéntibus non sit onerósa. Dóminus dicit: Sint lumbi vestri præcíncti. Lumbos enim præcingimus, cum carnis luxúriam per continéntiam coarctámus. Sed quia minus est, mala non ágere, nisi étiam quisque stúdeat, et bonis opéribus insudáre, prótinus ádditur: Et lucérnæ ardéntes in mánibus vestris. Lucérnas quippe ardéntes in mánibus tenémus, cum per bona ópera próximis nostris lucis exémpla monstrámus. De quibus profécto opéribus Dóminus dicit: Lúceat lux vestra coram homínibus, ut vídeant ópera vestra bona, et glorificent Patrem vestrum qui in cælis est.

R. Iste est qui ante Deum magnas virtútes operátus est, et de omni corde suo laudávit Dóminum: * Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

Ÿ. Ecce homo sine queréla, verus Dei cultor, ábstinens se ab omni ópere malo, et pérmanens in innocéntia sua.

R. Ipse intercédát pro peccátis ómnium populórum.

LECTIO VIII

Duo autem sunt, quæ jubéntur, et lumbos restríngere, et lucérnas tenére: ut et mundítia sit castitátis in córpore, et lumen veritátis in operatióne. Redemptóri etenim nostro unum sine áltero placére nequáquam potest: si aut is qui bona agit, adhuc luxúriæ inquinaménta non déserit: aut is qui castitáte præéminet, necdum se per bona ópera exércet. Nec cástitas ergo magna est sine bono ópere, nec opus bonum est álíquod sine castitáte. Sed et si utrúmque ágitur, restat, ut quisquis ille est, spe ad supérnam pátriam tendat, et nequáquam se a vítiis pro mundi hujus honestáte contíneat.

Dearly beloved brethren, the words of the Holy Gospel, which have just been read, lie open before you, and, lest their very plainness should make them seem to some to be hard, we will go through them with such shortness as that neither may they which understand not remain unenlightened, nor they which understand be wearied. The Lord saith Let your loins be girded about. Now, we gird our loins about, when by continency we master the lustful inclination of the flesh. But, forasmuch as it sufficeth not for a man to abstain from evil deeds, if he strive not to join thereto the earnest doing of good works, it is immediately added And your lights burning. Our lights burn when, by good works, we give bright example to our neighbour; concerning which works the Lord saith Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father Which is in heaven. (Matth. v. 16.)

R. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

Ÿ. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

R. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Here, then, are two commandments, to gird our loins about, and to keep our lights burning the cleanness of purity in our body, and the light of the truth in our works. Whoso hath the one and not the other, pleaseth not thereby our Redeemer; that is, he pleaseth Him not which doth good works, but bridleth not himself from the pollutions of lust, neither he which is eminent in chastity, but exerciseth not himself in good works. Neither is chastity a great thing without good works, nor good works anything without chastity. And if any man do both, it remaineth that he must look by hope toward our Fatherland above, and not have for his reason wherethrough he turneth himself away from vice, the love of honour in this present world.

Venit quippe Dóminus, cum ad júdícium próperat: pulsat vero, cum jam per ægritúdinis moléstias esse mortem vicínam désígnat. Cui conféstim aperímus, si hunc cum amóre suscípimus. Aperíre enim júdici pulsánti non vult, qui exíre de corpore trépidat: et vidére eum, quem contempsísse se méminit, júdicem formídat. Qui autem de sua spe et operatióne secúrus est, pulsánti conféstim áperit, quia lætus júdicem sústinet; et, cum tempus propínquæ mortis advénerit, de glória retributiónis hilaréscit.

LESSON IX

And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding that, when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately. The Lord cometh at the hour of judgment He knocketh when, by the pains of sickness, He biddeth us know that death is nigh. To Him open we immediately, if we receive Him in love. Whoso feareth to leave this body, will not open to the Judge when He knocketh, for he dreadeth to see that Judge, Whom he knoweth that he hath despised. But whosoever knoweth that his hope and works are built upon a good foundation, when he heareth the Judge knock, openeth to Him immediately, for to such an one that coming is blessed, yea, when the hour of death is at hand, such an one haileth with gladness a glorious reward.

Ergo ad níhilum valet sal infatuátum, nisi ut mittátur foras et calcétur ab homínibus. Non itaque calcátur ab homínibus qui páti-tur persecutiónem; sed qui, persecutiónem timéndo, infatuátur. Calcári enim non potest nisi inférior; sed inférior non est, qui, quamvis córpore multa in terra sustíneat, corde tamen fixus in cælo est.

℞. In médio Ecclésiæ apéruit os ejus, * Et implévit eum Dóminus spíritu sapiéntiæ et intelléctus.

A Homily by St. Augustine the BishopLib. 1 de Sermóne Dómini in monte, cap. 6

The Lord would have us understand how that men do lose their power of savouring others with righteousness when they are willing to place their eternal welfare in jeopardy for the sake of any témporal advantage, like as attainment of ease or luxury, or escape from suffering or toil. For that which is eternal, unlike things of this world, can neither be bestowed by men, nor by them taken away. Hence, when he asketh: If the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? he would have us understand the question to be: If ye, by whom mankind is preserved from corruption, be willing to lose the kingdom of heaven so as to escape trials or persecutions in this world, who is there to preserve you from corruption, seeing ye are they that God hath chosen to preserve all others from corruption?

℞. This is he which wrought great wonders before God, and praised the Lord with all his heart. * May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

℣. Behold a man without blame, a worshipper of God in truth, keeping himself clean from every evil work, and abiding still in his innocency.

℞. May he pray for all people, that their sins may be forgiven unto them.

LESSON VIII

Those that should be the salt of the earth, but have lost their savour, are thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men. But no one that suffereth persecution is truly said to be trodden under foot of men. Rather, that one is truly trodden under foot of men who through fear of persecution hath lost the savour of righteousness. For no one can be trodden upon, unless he be beneath him which treadeth upon him. And certainly no one who hath his heart in heaven, no matter how grievously he doth suffer in his body on earth, is rightly said to be beneath anyone who misuseth him.

℞. In the midst of the congregation did the Lord open his mouth. * And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

LESSON IX

Ye are the light of the world. And we are to understand the word World in the same sense as the word Earth when he spoke above of the salt of the earth, that is, not that earth whereupon we walk with our bodily feet, but the men which dwell upon the earth; in other words, sinners, for the sweetening and correction of whose corruption, the Lord hath sent his Apostles, as it were, as so much salt. And so by the world we are to understand, not the heaven and the earth, but the men who are in the world and love the world, for the enlightening of whom the Apostles have been sent. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid: that is, what is founded upon the heights of righteousness, whereof the mountain upon which the Lord gave this discourse was itself a figure, is magnificent in the eyes of all men.

Ecce enim Redemptóris voce decem vírgines, et omnes dicúntur vírgines, et tamen intra beatitúdinis jánuam non omnes sunt recéptæ; quia eárum quædam, dum de virginitáte sua glóriam foris éxpétunt, in vasis suis óleum habére noluérunt.

Sed prius quæréndum nobis est quid sit regnum cælórum, aut cur decem virgínibus comparétur, quæ étiam vírgines prudéntes et fátuæ dicántur. Dum enim cælórum regnum constat quia reprobórum nullus ingreditur, étiam fátuis virgínibus cur símile esse perhibétur? Sed sciéndum nobis est quod sæpe in sacro elóquio regnum cælórum præsentis témporis Ecclésia dicitur. De quo álio in loco Dóminus dicit: Mittet Fílius hóminis Ángelos suos, et còlligent de regno ejus ómnia scándala. me to say that even to these good things which ye do, ye must needs take all careful heed. Look ye well to it, that, when ye work righteousness, ye do it not as seeking the praise and admiration of men, for if the lust of praise do once creep in, that which seemeth so fair without, loseth its reward within. Behold how the Redeemer speaketh of these ten virgins. He calleth them all virgins, yet entered not all of them into the door of blessedness, for there were some of them who sought outwardly the honour of virginity, but would take no oil within their vessels with their lamps.

R. This is one of those wise virgins, whom the Lord found watching, for when she took her lamp, she took oil with her. * And when the Lord came, she went in with him to the marriage.

Ψ. At midnight there was a cry made: Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

R. And when the Lord came, she went in with him to the marriage.

LESSON VIII

First of all, it is for us to ask What is the kingdom of Heaven? And wherefore shall the same be likened unto ten virgins, whereof, albeit five were wise, yet five were foolish For if the kingdom of heaven be such that there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie, (Apoc. xxi. 27,) how can it be like unto five virgins which were foolish? But we must know that, in the word of God, the kingdom of heaven doth oftentimes signify the Church as she now is, touching the which the Lord saith in another place "The Son of Man shall send forth His Angels, and they shall gather out of His kingdom all things that offend." (Matth. xiii. 41.) In that kingdom of Blessedness, wherein peace shall have her perfect reign, there shall be nothing found that offendeth for the angels to gather out.

R. At midnight there was a cry made: * Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

Ψ. Trim your lamps, O ye wise virgins.

R. Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

R. Ecce sponsus venit, exíte óbviám ei.

LECTIO IX

In quinque autem córporis sénsibus unusquisque subsístit; geminátus autem quínarius denárium pérofit. Et, quia ex utróque sexu fidélium multitúdo colligitur, sancta Ecclésia decem virgínibus símilis esse denuntiátur. In qua quia mali cum bonis et réprobi cum electis admíxti sunt, recte símilis virgínibus prudéntibus et fátuis esse perhibétur. Sunt namque plerique continéntes, qui ab appetítu se exterióri custódiunt et spe ad interióra rapiúntur, carnem mácerant, et toto desidério ad supérnam pátriam anhélant, æténa prámia expetunt, pro labóribus suis recípere laudes humánas nolunt. Hi nímirum glóriam suam non in ore hóminum ponunt, sed intra consciéntiam cóntegunt. Et sunt plerique, qui corpus per abstinéntiam affligunt, sed de ipsa sua abstinéntia humános favóres expetunt.

R. Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

LESSON IX

The body of every man doth consist of five senses, and five being doubled, is ten. Forasmuch, therefore, as the whole body of the faithful doth consist of two sexes, the Holy Church is likened unto ten virgins. And forasmuch as in the Church the good are for the present mingled with the bad, and the reprobate with the elect, it is rightly said that, of the ten virgins, five are wise and five are foolish. There are many who have self-control, which do keep themselves from lusting after things outward, whose hope beareth them to things inward, who chastise the flesh, who long with intense homesickness for their Fatherland which is in heaven, who seek an eternal reward, and who will not to receive for their labours the praise of men. These are they who reckon their glory, not in the mouths of men, but in the testimony of their own conscience. And many there be likewise who afflict the body by self-control, and yet who seek for their self-control applause from men.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Matthew

Matt 13:44

At that time Jesus spake unto His disciples this parable The kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory the Great

11th on the Gospels

Dearly beloved brethren, the kingdom of heaven is likened unto the things of earth, to the end that by the mean of things which we know, our mind may rise to the contemplation of the things which we know not by the example of things which are seen, may fix her gaze on things which are not seen by the touch of things which she useth, may be warmed towards the things which she useth not; by things which she knoweth and loveth, to love also the things which she knoweth not. For, behold, "the kingdom of heaven is likened unto treasure hid in a field, the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and, for joy thereof, goeth and selleth all that he hath and buyeth that field."

R. She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness. She looketh well to the ways of her household * And eateth not the bread of idleness.

Ÿ. She tasteth and perceiveth that her merchandise is good. Her candle goeth not out by night.

R. And she eateth not the bread of idleness.

LESSON VIII

And herein we must remark that the treasure, when once it hath been found, is hidden to keep it safe. He whose intimate yearnings after God are not hidden from the praise of men, is open thereby to the attacks of evil spirits. In this life we are, as it were, journeying homewards on a road beset by evil spirits who are like highwaymen. He therefore inviteth robbery who carrieth his treasure ostentatiously. Doubtless our neighbour should be able

Sic autem sit opus in público, quátenus inténtio máneat in occulto; ut, et de bono ópere próximos præbeamus exéplum, et tamen per intentiónem, qua Deo soli placére quærimus, semper optémus secrétum.

But this is not to be understood to mean that we are to seek the praise of men by what we do. Rather, let us in such wise work in the open that the inner intention of devotion is not advertised. So we shall give an example to our neighbour, and yet keep hidden, except from the sight of God, our purpose of pleasing him.

R. The kingdom of this world and all the beauty of life I have esteemed as nothing, for the excellency of the love of Jesus Christ my Lord * Whom, having seen, I loved Whom, having believed, I longed after.

LESSON IX

The treasure is the desire for heaven, the field wherein it is hidden is the earnest observance wherewith this desire is surrounded. Whosoever turneth his back upon the enjoyments of the flesh, and by earnest striving heavenward, putteth all earthly lusts under the feet of discipline, so that he smileth back no more when the flesh smileth at him, and shuddereth no more at anything that can only kill the body whosoever doth thus, hath sold all that he had, and bought that field.

For “not like the offense is gift”, on the contrary the benefits received are greater than the loss sustained. Yes, that was how the Maker supreme in good judgment and in kindness plied His craft: what had been bruised, He did not break. Epistle 13 in the first half

And the fulfillment of the mystery of our atonement, which was ordained from all eternity, was not assisted by any figures because the Holy Spirit had not yet come upon the Virgin, and the power of the Most High had not over-shadowed her: so that Wisdom building herself a house within her undefiled body, the Word became flesh; and the form of God and the form of a slave coming together into one person, the Creator of times was born in time; and He Himself through whom all things were made, was brought forth in the midst of all things. For if the New Man had not been made in the likeness of sinful flesh, and taken on Him our old nature, and being consubstantial with the Father, had deigned to be consubstantial with His mother also, and being alone free from sin, had united our nature to Him the whole human race would be held in bondage beneath the Devil's yoke.

LECTIO I

De Parábolis Salomónis

Prov 8:12-17

Ego sapiéntia hábito in consílio et erudítis intérsus cogitatiónibus. Tímor Dómini odit malum: arrogántiam, et supérbiam, et viam pravam, et os bilíngue detéstor. Meum est consílium et áquitas, mea est prudéntia, mea est fortitúdo. Per me reges regnant, et legum conditóres justa decérnunt; per me príncipes

LESSON I

Lesson from the book of Proverbs

Prov 8:12-17

I wisdom dwell in counsel, and am present in learned thoughts. The fear of the Lord hateth evil: I hate arrogance, and pride, and every wicked way, and a mouth with a double tongue. Counsel and equity is mine, prudence is mine, strength is mine. By me kings reign, and lawgivers decree just things, By me princes rule, and the mighty decree imperant, et poténtes decérnunt justítiam. Ego diligéntes me díligo; et qui mane vígilant ad me, invénient me.

R. Sancta et immaculáta virgínitas, quibus te láudibus éfferam, nésceo: * Quia quem cæli cápere non póterant, tuo grémio contulísti.

Y. Benedícta tu in muliéribus, et benedíctus fructus ventris tui.

R. Quia quem cæli cápere non póterant, tuo grémio contulísti.

LECTIO II

Prov 8:18-25

Mecum sunt divítiae et glória, opes supérbae et justítia. Mélior est enim fructus meus auro et lápide pretióso, et genímína mea argénto elécto. In viis justítiae ámbulo, in médio semitárum judícii, ut ditem diligéntes me et thesáuros eórum répleam. Dóminus possidébit me in initío viárum suárum, ántequam quidquam fáceret a princípío. Ab ætérno ordináta sum et ex antíquis, ántequam terra fíeret. Nondum erant abyssi, et ego jam concépta eram; necdum fontes aquárum erúperant, necdum montes gravi mole constíte-rant; ante colles ego parturiébar.

R. Congratulámini mihi, omnes qui díligitis Dóminum: quia cum essem párvula, plácuí Altíssimo, * Et de meis viscéribus génui Deum et hómínem.

Y. Beátam me dicent omnes generatiónes, quia ancíllam húmílem respéxit Deus.

R. Et de meis viscéribus génui Deum et hómínem.

LECTIO III

Prov 8:34-36; 9:1-5

Beátus homo qui audit me, et qui vígilat ad fores meas cotídie, et obsérvat ad postes óstii mei. Qui me invénierit, invéniet vitam, et háuriet salútem a Dómino; qui autem in me peccáverit, lædet ánimam suam. Omnes, qui me odérunt, díligunt mortem. Sapiéntia ædijustice. I love them that love me: and they that in the morning early watch for me, shall find me.

R. O how holy and how spotless is thy virginity; I am too dull to praise thee: * For thou hast borne in thy breast Him Whom the heavens cannot contain.

Y. Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

R. For thou hast borne in thy breast Him Whom the heavens cannot contain.

LESSON II

Prov 8:18-25

With me are riches and glory, glorious riches and justice. For my fruit is better than gold and the precious stone, and my blossoms than choice silver. I walk in the way of justice, in the midst of the paths of judgment, That I may enrich them that love me, and may fill their treasures. The Lord possessed me in the beginning of his ways, before he made any thing from the beginning. I was set up from eternity, and of old before the earth was made. The depths were not as yet, and I was already conceived. neither had the fountains of waters as yet sprung out: The mountains with their huge bulk had not as yet been established: before the hills I was brought forth:

R. Rejoice with me, all ye that love the Lord, for while I was yet a little one, I pleased the Most High. * And I have brought forth from my bowels God and man.

Y. All generations shall call me blessed, since the Lord hath regarded the lowliness of his handmaiden.

R. And I have brought forth from my bowels God and man.

LESSON III

Prov 8:34-36; 9:1-5

Blessed is the man that heareth me, and that watcheth daily at my gates, and waiteth at the posts of my doors. He that shall find me, shall find life, and shall have salvation from the Lord: But he that shall sin against me, shall hurt his own soul. All that hate me love death. Wisdom hath built herself a house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars. She ficávit sibi domum, excídit colúmnas septem. Immolávit víctimas suas, míscuit vinum et propósuit mensam suam. Mísit ancíllas suas ut vocárent ad arcem et ad mœnia civitátis: Si quis est párvulus, veníat ad me. Et insipíentibus locúta est: Veníte, comédite panem meum, et bíbite vinum quod míscui vobis.

R. Beáta es, Virgo María, quæ Dóminum portásti, Creatórem mundi: * Genuísti qui te fecit, et in ætérnum pérmanes Virgo.

V. Ave, María, grátia plena; Dóminus tecum.

R. Genuísti qui te fecit, et in ætérnum pérmanes Virgo.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spíritui Sancto.

R. Genuísti qui te fecit, et in ætérnum pérmanes Virgo.

LECTIO VII

Lectio sancti Evangelii secúndum Lucam

LUC 11:27-28

In illo témpore: Loquén-te Jesu ad turbas, extóllens vocem quædam mûlier de turba dixit illi: Beátus venter qui te portávit. Et réliqua.

Homília sancti Bedæ Venerábilis Presbýteri Lib 4. cap. 49. in Luc. 11.

Magnæ devotiónis et fidei hæc mûlier osténditur, quæ, scribis et pharisæis Dóminum tentántibus simul et blasphemántibus, tanta ejus incarnatióem præ ómnibus sinceritate cognóscit, tanta fidúcia confitétur, ut et præséntium prócerum calúmniam, et futurórum confúndat hæreticórum perfídiam. Nam, sicut tunc Judæi, Sancti Spíritus ópera blasphemándo, verum consubstantialém-que Patri Dei Fílium negábant; sic hæretici póstea, negándo Mariám semper Vírginem, Sancti Spíritus operánte virtúte, nascitúro cum humánis membris Unigénito Dei, carnis suæ matériam ministrásse, verum consubstantialémque matri Fílium hóminis fatéri non debére dixerunt.

hath slain her victims, mingled her wine, and set forth her table. She hath sent her maids to invite to the tower, and to the walls of the city: Whosoever is a little one, let him come to me. And to the unwise she said: Come, eat my bread, and drink the wine which I have mingled for you

R. Blessed art thou, O Virgin Mary, who hast carried the Lord, the Maker of the world. * Thou hast borne Him Who created thee, and thou abidest a virgin for ever.

V. Hail, Mary, full of grace. the Lord is with thee.

R. Thou hast borne Him Who created thee, and thou abidest a virgin for ever.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. Thou hast borne Him Who created thee, and thou abidest a virgin for ever.

LESSON VII

From the Holy Gospel according to Luke

Luke 11:27-28

At that time, as Jesus spoke unto the multitudes, a certain woman of the company lifted up her voice and said unto Him: Blessed is the womb that bore thee. And so on.

*Homily by the Venerable Bede
Lib 4 Cap 49 in Luke 11*

It is plain that this was a woman of great earnestness and faith. The Scribes and Pharisees were at once tempting and blaspheming the Lord, but this woman so clearly grasped His Incarnation, and so bravely confessed the same, that she confounded both the lies of the great men who were present, and the faithlessness of the heretics who were yet to come. Even as the Jews then, blaspheming the works of the Holy Ghost, denied the very Son of God Who is of one substance with the Father, so afterwards did the heretics, by denying that Mary always a Virgin did, under the operation of the Holy Ghost, supply flesh to the Only begotten One of God, when He was about being born in an human Body, even so, I say, did the heretics deny that the Son of Man should be called a true Son, Who is of one substance with His Mother.

R. Felix namque es, sacra Virgo María, et omni laude digníssima: * Quia ex te ortus est sol justítiæ, Christus, Deus noster.

V. Ora pro pópulo, intérvieni pro clero, intercède pro devóto femíneo sexu: séntiant omnes tuum juvámen, quicúmque célebrant tuam sanctam festivitátem.

R. Quia ex te ortus est sol justítiæ, Christus, Deus noster.

LECTIO VIII

Sed, si caro Verbi Dei secúndum carnem nascéntis a carne Vírginis matris pronuntiátur extránea, sine causa venter qui eam portáset, úbera quæ lactássent, beatificántur. Dicit autem Apóstolus: Quia misit Deus Fílium suum, factum ex muliere, factum sub lege. Neque audiéndi sunt, qui legéndum putant: Natum ex muliere, factum sub lege, sed Factum ex muliere; quia concéptus ex útero virgínali, carnem non de níhilo, non aliúnde, sed matérna traxit ex carne. Alióquin nec vere Fílius hóminis dicerétur, qui originem non habéret ex hómine. Et nos ígitur, his contra Eutychen dictis, extollámus vocem cum Ecclésia cathólica, cujus hæc múlíer typum gessit, extollámus et mentem de médio turbárum, dicamúsque Salvatóri: Beátus venter qui te portávit, et úbera quæ suxísti. Vere enim beáta parens, quæ, sicut quidam ait, Eníxa est puérpera Regem, qui cælum terrámque tenet per sácula.

R. Beátam me dicent omnes generatiónes, * Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.

V. Et misericórdia ejus a progénie in progénies timéntibus eum.

R. Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.

V. Glória Patri, et Fílio, * et Spirítui Sancto.

R. Quia fecit mihi Dóminus magna qui potens est, et sanctum nomen ejus.

R. O Holy Virgin Mary, happy indeed art thou, and right worthy of all praise * For out of thee rose the Sun of righteousness, even Christ our God.

V. Pray for the people, plead for the clergy, make intercession for all women vowed to God. May all that are keeping this thine holy Feast day feel the might of thine assistance.

R. For out of thee rose the Sun of righteousness, even Christ our God.

LESSON VIII

If we shall say that the Flesh, Wherewith the Son of God was born in the flesh, was something outside of the flesh of the Virgin His Mother, without reason should we bless the womb that bore Him, and the paps which He hath sucked. But the Apostle saith: "God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law", (Gal. iv. 4,) and they are not to be listened to who read this passage: "Born of a woman, made under the law." He was made of a woman, for He was conceived in a virgin's womb, and took His Flesh, not from nothing, not from elsewhere, but from the flesh of His Mother. Otherwise, and if He had not been sprung of a woman, He could not with truth be called the Son of man. Let us therefore, denying the doctrine of Eutyches, lift up our voice, along with the Universal Church, whereof that woman was a figure, let us lift up our heart as well as our voice from the company, and say unto the Saviour: Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked. Blessed Mother, of whom one hath said thou art His Mother, Who reigns over earth and over heaven for ever.

R. All generations shall call me blessed. * For He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.

V. And his mercy is on them that fear Him, from generation to generation.

R. He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.

V. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

R. He that is mighty, even the Lord, hath done to me great things; and Holy is His Name.

LECTIO IX

Quinímmo beáti qui áudiunt verbum Dei et custódiunt. Pulchre Salvátor attestatióbeátior quia ejúsdem semper amándi custos manébat ætérna.

*Tē DeumLESSON IX

Yea, rather, blessed are they that hear the Word of God and keep it. How nobly doth the Saviour say “Yea” to the woman’s blessing, declaring also that not only is she blessed who was meet to give bodily birth to the Word of God, but that all they who spiritually conceive the same Word by the hearing of faith, and, by keeping it through good works, bring it forth and, as it were, carefully nurse it, in their own hearts, and in the hearts of their neighbours, are also blessed. Yea, and that the very Mother of God herself was blessed in being for a while the handmaid of the Word of God made Flesh, but that she was much more blessed in this, that through her love she keepeth Him for ever.
